FORMER APOSTLE GIVES TESTIMONY

Moses Thatcher Tells of Removal While In Line For Presidency.

Washington, April 26.—The Smoot investigation before the senate committee on privileges and elections was opened today by Attorney Tayler for the prosecution calling upon Moses Thatcher to resume the stand. This was for the identification of a pamphlet issued by Calvin Reasoner, purporting to be an accurate account of the Thatcher episode. The document was put in the record and the witness was turned over the the defense for cross-examination.

Mr. Van Cott interrogated Mr. Thatcher in regard to his views of church interference in politics. The witness said he had no fault to find with the political rule, but in answer to a question of Senator Dubois as to the result of a Mormon official running for political office in opposition to the wishes of church authorities he said: "It might result as in my case, but a free American citizen has the right to retire from his church office and I believe every man who loves his country would resign such office under these circumstances."

Mr. Thatcher defended the church and the political rule. He admitted, however, that his views had been modified in regard to the church interference, but insisted that he knew of no instances where church consent had been given or refused a Mormon candidate for political office.

Mr. Thatcher stated that at the time he was removed from the apostolate he was in line for the presidency of the church. He said he was dropped from the rolls in April 1896 and formal action was taken by his quorum in November 1896. Continuing he said:

"Suppose I am the only man of my age in the Mormon church wha has no priesthood.

"And you were denied the right to enter the temple?" asked the chairman.

"Yes sir."

He said he was denied entrance to the temple by the doorkeeper, at the order of the first presidency and had never made application since, and he added:

"And I am glad to say that I am a free man."

"Since you were diposed as an apostle," Chairman Burrows asked:

"Yes sir."

Mr. Thatcher discussed his defeat in politics, speaking frankly of the popularity of former United States Senator Rawlins and also of the church opposition to his own candidacy. All questions were answered with the exception of several by Chairman Burrows in relation to the ceremony which is performed in the endowment house.

"I think I should be excused in regard to that," replied the witness.

"Why?"

"Because of the general sacredness of the ceremony."

"Have you taken any obligation not to reveal it?"

"I think I have."

"What would be the effect if you should disclose the nature fo the ceremony or obligation?"

"No effect except upon my conscience."

No further effort was made to obtain a description of the ceremony, and Mr. Thatcher was excused.

The hearing was adjourned until 10:30 tomorrow and the committee went into executive session.

WILL RECOGNIZE BLOCKADE.

San Domingo, April 26.—United States Minister Powell has notified the Dominican government that his government will recognize the blockade of Monte Cristo, provided it is effective.

TRACTION COMPANY LOAN.

Chicago, April 26.—Certificates of indebtedness, amounting to $500,000, have been issued by the receivers of the Chicago Union Traction company. The purpose was the raising of funds to pay interest upon the floating indebtedness and keep the lines in operation.

RAPID RISE OF WATERS IN THE OLD MISSISSIPPI PRESAGES DISASTROUS FLOODS IN LOWLANDS

River Coming Up Faster at St. Louis Than Ever Known Before.

It Has Passed Danger Mark and Creeps Steadily Upward.

Both Rivers at Keokuk Rising Rapidly and Flood Is Feared.

St. Louis, April 26.—The Mississ' *.i has passed the 30-foot danger line and the stage today was 31.3 feet. The stage is creeping up at the rate of an inch and a half an hour. The rise is one of the most rapid ever recalled by the rivermen. The water is backing up in the creeks around East St. Louis, but Mayor Cook, who last year directed the forces in constructing dikes declares that the city will be able to withstand the anticipated stage of thirty-five feet. The greatest danger is said to be about twenty miles north of East St. Louis, where the levee first broke last year.

At Madison, Venice and Granite City, the tri-cities located just north of East St. Louis dikes are being constructed by large forces of men. Already much bottom land is under water. Many people have left their homes. Rain poured in St. Louis and vicinity all night and continued today. At St. Charles, twenty-five miles northwest of St. Louis, the Missouri river is out of its banks and people have been driven from their homes. The Missouri is rising at the rate of 2½ inches an hour, having risen eight feet since Saturday. Ferry boat service at St. Louis has ben abandoned because of difficulty in making landings in such a strong current.

Kansas City, April 26.—The Kansas river here and above receded slowly today, but Col. Conner the local weather observer, says the fall will be very gradual and that the stream may rise slightly again before it reaches its normal stage. There is a great volume of water coming this way, which is being emptied into the Kaw river by its many tributaries, all of which are bankfull. No serious damage, however, is expected at this point. The bridges here are in no further danger. No heavy rains are reported from this part of the southwest today.

Keokuk, Iowa, April 26.—Both rivers here are rising at an alarming rate. The Mississippi is now within half a foot of the danger mark. The Des Moines river has risen four feet in the last twenty-four hours and is now running over the lowlands. All districts flooded last season are again in danger, and general rains for two days will break the levees, which have just been repaired. The full force of the flood is felt here where the Des Moines river empties into the Mississippi. Reports from up the Des Moines say the river is rising an inch an hour, and the Mississippi is also rising steadily.

NEWCHWANG SAID TO HAVE BEEN BOMBARDED BY THE JAPANESE MONDAY NIGHT

Report, Though From Good Authority, Lacks Confirmation.

Mukden Advices Indicate Russians Have Concentrated Forces.

Tien Tsin, April 26.—It is reported upon good authority that the Japanese fleet bombarded the town of Newchwang last night.

St. Petersburg, April 26.—The authorities here have no news to confirm the reported bombardment of Newchwang last night.

The naval staff has no confirmation of the reports from Tokio and Seoul of the destruction of a Japanese merchantman by Russian torpedo boats at Won San, or the appearance there of three Russian cruisers belonging to the Vladivostok squadron. Whether Capt. Essen, commander of the Vladivostok squadron, has taken the squadron on a raiding expedition down the coast is a secret which naturally would not be divulged. If true, doubtless it was for the purpose of demoralizing the people on the coast and with the hope of playing havoc with the Japanese transport fleet, but no official news of the report of such a raid could reach St. Petersburg until Capt. Essen returns to port.

St. Petersburg, April 26.—The emperor has received three official dispatches, two of which are understood to relate to fighting on the Yalu river. Their contents will be given out tonight.

FORCESCONCENTRATED.

Russians Have Sixty Thousand Men on the Yalu.

St. Petersburg, April 26.—Advices from Mukden indicate that the Russians have completed the concentration of their forces on the Mukden-Liao-Yang-Yalu and Mukden-Newchwang lines. Forty thousand men are occupying fortified positions along the Yalu river and 20,000 are posted at Taku-Shan at the had of Korea bay, where the Japanese have threatened to make a landing. The Russins also occupy the banks of the Tumen river from the Russo-Korean frontier to Lake Tai-Tji, (Paik-Tou-San), on the Manchu-Korean frontier, near the source of the Yalue. Detachments of Rusisan cavalry and light infantry hold the towns of Kie-Lin, Musan and Zunduyan, along the river, and points on the east coast of Korea, offering facilities for landing.

SHARP CRITICISM

Of Russian Navy Made By the Noroe Vreyma.

St. Petersburg, April 26.—The Novoe Vreyma today contains a remarkably free criticism of the Russian navy, which reads as follows:

"It would be well to put an obelisk in front of the admiralty inscribed 'Remember Makaroff.' His death should be the signal to destroy the old order of things of which he fell a victim after heroically doing his best with the defective weapons at his disposal. Makaroff's death marks a new era for the Russian navy. The old days marked by a muddle of careless and inefficiency are over and we have learned our lessons.

"The nation understands them just as well and learns from the first lesson the necessity of a reform of the personnel of the navy. The present system of promoting officers according to the number of nautical miles they sail may work well in a highly efficient navy but it is absurdly dangerous for ours, where the capacities of the officers fluctuate. As a result many of our best officers are discouraged into retirement.

"The present war is unlike any previous war in that the whole nation is following its phases with breathless anxiety. Our nerves are stralned much as are those of the defenders of Port Arthur. We weep over our reverses and rejoice at the slightest success. Like the English in the Boer war, we are one of the greatest of the world powers fighting a smaller one and the sentiment of patriotism overwhelms all other considerations."

STRATEGY OF KUROPATKIN.

Throws Large Force of Cavalry Across Yalu.

St. Petersburg, April 26.—Gen. Kuropatkin has played a strong card in the game of strategy. A large portion of Gen. Rennenkampf's Cossac cavalry division has been thrown across the upper reaches of the Yalu and a considerable force of cavalry which crossed the Tumen some time ago, is moving down to the southwest to effect a juncture with it.

Together with this force, which it is believed totals 2000 men, he will threaten Lieut. Gen. Inouye's left flank when the Japanese are ready to cross lower down on the Yalu. Being composed of cavalry, with a few mountain guns, Rennenkampf's force is extremely mobile. Unless it should be dislodged it will compel the Japanese to leave a very strong army to guard its communications, whereas, if a Japanese force should be sent to drive it out, it would have to move directly away from the main army, while the Russian army, if compelled to fall back can recross in the direction of the Russian troops now concentrated in Manchuria.

Capt. Clado, Vice Admiral Skrydloff's chief of staff, says Skrydloff, like Gen. Kuropatkin, counsels patience and coolness.

"Russia strength is on shore," said the captain. "We have withdrawn every soldier in the way of the Japanese advance to the Yalu in order to entice them into Manchuria.

Afloat our policy is to induce the Japanese to engage the squadron and the forts combined, rejecting the seduction to fight on the open sea until reinforcements arrive. Then Gen. Kuropatkin can advance on Korea and Vice Admiral Skrydloff will go out to battle.

"Vice Admiral Togo's plan of attacking Port Arthur in order to cover the Japanese landing in Korea worked satisfactorily so long as our squadron did not go out from Port Arthur between the intervals of his appearance. From ten to eighteen days' time was needed by Togo to repair, coal and provision his ships and wait until the next fleet of transports was ready. When Vice Admiral Makaroff cruised in the Yellow sea, Togo's task was much more difficult.

"Naturally Togo desired to inveigle the Russian squadron into a general naval battle, but Makaroff always avoided this, remaining within easy distance of the forts. Makaroff's cruisers also made dangerous the Japanese attempt to block the entrance to Port Arthur, as they knew our squadron might take them unawares while engaged in this task.

"The Japanese are losing valuable time, as a disembarkation in Manchuria will soon be very perilous.

"The landing of a considerable detachment on the Liao Tung peninsula would be of inestimable advantage to the enemy by distracting our attention and thus facilitating the Japanese advance across the Yalu."

The emperor has received the following telegram from Gen. Kuropatkin: "Gen. Sassulitch reports, under date of April 24, that during recent days the Japanese have been observed landing pontoon material and collecting boats in preparation for the construction of bridges in the neighborhood of Wiju and also near the village of Sigou, ten miles further up the river.

"On April 23 a Japanese detachment, consisting of two companies of infantry and a small body of cavalry, crossed the Yalu ten miles below Siagosaikhe. Gen. Sassulitch immediately reinforcer his condans on our front. Small parties of the enemy were seen preparing to cross elsewhere in that vicinity.

"All is quiet south of the Yalu."

A dispatch from Port Arthur denies the report that 20,000 Japanese have landed at Dalny. The dispatch states that there is no change in the situation on the Liao Tung peninsula.

BALTIC FLEET

Will Not Sail Until Late In the Summer.

St. Petersburg, April 26.—The report that the Baltic fleet is to leave Libau Thursday for the far East is incorrect. Some of the ships are just going into commission, and those being completed cannot be finished before July. The reports may be attributable to the fact that some school ships are going out to train the naval reserves.

The battleship Borodino left the admiralty works today for Cronstadt to receive her armor and heavy guns.

The admiralty is giving earnest consideration to all questions in connection with the dispatch in July of the Baltic fleet to the far East.

Vice Admiral Rojestvensky, who will command it, and Rear Admiral Wirenius have been in consultation. All idea of following the northern route has been abandoned. Indeed, it never was seriously considered. Admiral Rojestvensky originally favored the Cape of Good Hope route, but it is more probable now that colliers and supply ships, well protected, will go by that route, and that the battleships and torpedo boats will pass through the Suez canal. The two divisions will rendezvous in the Indian ocean. For the entire fleet to proceed by way of the Cape of Good Hope would involve too much time, the expenditure of a large quantity of coal and the fouling of the boilers and bottoms of the fighting ships, which it is important to avoid on account of the lack of docking facilities at Port Arthur. It is understood that the admiralty now entertains no fears regarding the restrictions imposed by the Suez canal regulations, although Admiral Wirenius complained of the strictness with which the neutrality of the canal was enforced.

There is evidence of a more friendly disposition on the part of the British authorities. It is said that they pointed out that they would have to hold contraband of war arriving at Liverpool from America, if landed. At the same time it was suggested to the Russian consul that transshipment could take place in the harbor, and the authorities at Liverpool even placed a barge at the consul's disposal.

RUSSIAN FORCES

Still In Possession of West Side of Yalu.

Newchwang, April 26.—The Russian authorities here deny that there have been any important engagements recently on the Yalu, but they report the destruction of a few Japanese junks by the Russian volunteers.

The Japanese have not arrived at the Yalu in force, according to the Russians in Newchwang, nor have they crossed the river at any point. The Russian forces are still in possession of all points on the west or Manchurian side of the river which they occupied originally, and consequently the execution of the plan of falling back on Feng Huan Chen and Liao Yang, which is attributed to Gen. Kuropatkin, the Russian commander-in-chief, has not been begun.

KING EDWARD IS IN IRELAND

With the Queen Is Accorded an Enthusiastic Reception.

Several Addresses Presented to the Monarch at Dublin.

Dublin, April 26.—King Edward, Queen Alexandra, and their suites landed at Kingstown from the royal yacht Victoria and Albert before noon and soon afterwards proceeded to the Punchestown races. The sovereigns were accorded a splendid reception and large crowds assembled to greet them. The vessels in the harbor were gaily trimmed with bunting while Kingstown was bright with Venetian masts and festoons.

Several addresses were presented to the king, replying to which he expressed his delight at finding the same spirit of hopefulness of the future as evinced in the occasion of his former visit. With the improvement in agriculture and industry, the king anticipated a growth of better feeling throughout the country. He believed that the greatest hope for the future of Ireland lay in education, for the wide diffusion of cultivated intelligence was the surest guarantee of social peace and the most fruitful source of self reliance.

STREET CAR STRIKE LIKELY IN 'FRISCO.

San Francisco, April 26.—The street car men employed on the United railways, which comprise nearly all the street railway lines here, have voted to reject terms submitted by the company granting an increase in wages but insisting on an "open shop" policy. The agreement now in force between the carmen and the United railways expires April 30. It is believed that the action of the union today will culminate in a strike.

LONDON HAS A $500,000 FIRE.

London, April 26.—Four of the London and Northwestern railroad company's warehouses, in the Minories district of this city were gutted by fire during the night. While the financial loss is only estimated at $500,000, the conflagration threatened at one period to spread to adjoining warehouses and factories filled with cork, gelatine, cartridges and similar highly combustible materials. The historic church of the Holy Trinity famous for it connection with the Washington family, was for a time in considerable jeopardy, but the firemen from its roof managed to stem the approaching flames.

WEBER AND FIELDS HAVE DISSOLVED PARTNERSHIP.

New York, April 26.—Papers have been signed dissolving the theatrical partnership between Joseph Weber and Lewis Fields. This brings to an end the stage association of the comedians which began 25 years ago. The firm name of Weber & Fields is, by mutual agreement, never to be used by either of them. Weber has purchased his partner's interest in their theater at Twenty-ninth street and Broadway and will hereafter conduct it alone.

Fields is understood to have signed a contract for a term of years with another firm. In connection with this, plans are now being made for the construction of a new theater in Broadway near Forty-second street.

LOUBET REVIEWS ROMAN TROOPS

Rome, April 26.—President Loubet today drove to the Piazza D'Armi with Queen Helena and reviewed 20,000 troops. M. Loubet and the queen were accompanied by King Victor Emmanuel and the royal princes and followed by several hundred staff officers and the foreign military attaches.

The Pincio Heights, the Janiculum, and Monte Marco, surrounding the Piazza D'Armi, were occupied by several hundred thousand people, cheering and shouting, while military bands played the "Marseillaise."

The president expressed to King Victor Emmanuel the highest satisfaction with the efficiency and martial bearing of the troops, especially admiring the Bersaglieri, who, with their quick step and waving cocks' feathers in their hats, marched past in their most characteristic manner.

Returning to the quirinal through the city, the president and the royal party passed through the Piazza Di Spagna, where the historic steps of the church of the Triniti de Manti were entirely covered with flowers, producing a gorgeous effect.

ATTEMPT TO KILL PREMIER MAURA

Madrid, April 26.—Premier Maura, who arrived here this morning, was shot at, but was not wounded, while on his way here from the south of Spain. When between Alicanto and San Vicente a bullet whizzed through the roof of his car. The incident created great alarm, but no one was injured.

The official report of the incident given out by the minister of the interior says:

"As the train was running between Alicante and San Vicente, some persons fired and others threw stones. The gendarmes accompanying the train returned the fire. Neither the premier nor the other passengers were hurt. Two arrests were made."

HELPS THE CUBANS.

Chicagoan Sends Liberal Donation to Florida College.

Chicago, April 26.—Dr. D. K. Pearsons will send a check for $50,000 tomorrow to President Blackman of Rollings college, Winter Park, Fla., an institution engaged in helping Cubans and the children of American residents in Cuba to higher education. He pledged that amount a year ago while visiting in the South, on condition that $150,600 should be raised independently. Of the additional amount other Chicagoans gave $50,000. Mrs. Fred Billings, of New York, following Dr. Pearson's example, contributed $10,000.

CANADIANS ARE TO LOOK CLOSER AFTER CUSTOMS.

Ottawa, Ont., April 26.—Minister of Customs Paterson has announced that the government intends strengthening its staff of inspectors in the United States, and will inform Canadian customs offices of the home value of goods exported to Canada. At present it is said there are many United State's firms invoicing their goods at a special price, and in this way escaping payment of the proper duty.

ELOPERS

From Itasca to Be Brought Back.

Mallard, Minn., April 26.—A letter received by Mrs. Anna Tyglen, of Olda, revealed the secret of the whereabouts of her sister, Mrs. Lizzie Frankenbery, and Fred Maw, who ran away together last November, from Itasca.

The letter was from Mrs. Frankenbery, and stated that they were at Hot Springs, Kan., and going by the name of Mr. and Mrs. Moore.

Albert Frankenbery, husband of the woman, left at once for the South, and will undoubtedly bring them back.

Mr. Maw has a wife at Itasca, and Mrs. Frankenbery a husband and four children at the same place.

THREE HUNDRED GATES TO FAIR.

St. Louis, April 26.—Arrangements have ben made for employing 300 gatemen for the opening day of the World's fair. Every gate will be manned for the first time. As the vaults in the World's Fair National bank have not been completed, the automatic slot machines at the entrance will not be used.

CHOUNARD ON TRIAL FOR MURDER OF WIFE

Jury Secured and the State Is Presenting Its Testimony.

Walker, Minn., April 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The trial of William Chounard for the murder of his wife, Dora Cheunard, in a house of illfame at Cass Lake, last January, is in progress here. The whole of yesterday was occupied in getting a jury. County Attorney Delury opened the case for the state this morning. A. T. Larson of Brainerd appears for the defense. Dr. Smeallie of Cass Lake has been on the stand all forenoon. He was called immediately after the shooting and described the wound. The woman was taken to St. Luke's hospital at Duluth right after the shooting and died there and Dr. Smeallie, assisted by two Duluth doctors, performed an autopsy. He says one of the wounds was certainly mortal, another probably mortal, while the third was not. The case will possibly last two or three days.

PURSUE A WOLF

With Pitchforks and Other Weapons Lakesiders Give Chase.

Animal Took to the Lake and Ran Too Fast.

An impromptu hunting party, organized early this morning, chased a big timber wolf out on the ice over Lake Superior, where the animal is supposed to have remained all day with the intention of regaining the shore in the darkness this evening.

The wolf was first discovered by W. H. Hicken, who resides at 4027 Cooke street, near the Lakeside school house. Mr. Hicken was aroused by a terrible commotion at dawn in his stock yard, and, though scantily clad, he rushed out to find a big wolf attempting to pull down a valuable young heifer. He shouted, and the animal, clearing the high fence around the yard, loped off a short distance, turned around and began to vent his disappointment in long drawn out howls.

Mr. Hicken went back in the house, dressed hastily and hurried over to his neighbors, informing them of the presence of the animal.

Mr. Hicken, in company with J. H. Norton, has just returned from a sightseeing trip to Washington, and some of the neighbors at first disbelieved the story, accusing Mr. Hicken of still "seeing things." The howls of the wolf soon convinced them that he was in earnest, and the hunt began.

Armed with pitchforks, clubs, axes and garden rakes, nearly a score of Lakesiders closed in around the wolf, which began a lively retreat down Forty-seventh avenue to the lake, where he ran out on the ice.

The shore was patrolled for some hours, with the hope he would attempt to return, but the wolf apparently decided to remain out until dark.

Another hunting party, armed with guns and other armament was due to start out on the ice at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

It is claimed that the ice is still sufficiently firm opposite Lakeside to be safe for a hunting party, and the Lakesider's are determined that the wolf shall not escape.

George W. Buck To Be Chosen Grand Commander.

About thirty of the officers and men of the Duluth commandery No. 18, Knights Templar, left for St. Paul at 1:55 p. m. this afternoon in a special car attached to the Northern Pacific train. They go to attend the annual convocation of the Minnesota Grand commandery, and incidentally to approve the accession of George W. He is to succeed Dr. R. S. Kilvington, of Minneapolis, who was there a short time ago on his last inspection of the local commandery. This office is the highest in the grand commandery, and is attained by succession from the office of deputy grand commander, which position is now held by Mr. Buck. So that the heavy forces which went down today do not go to electioneer, but to demonstrate the power of the Duluth Knights Templar commandery, which has about 250 members, 180 of which are in this city.

When the train reaches St. Paul this evening the knights will be met by the sir knights of Damascus commandery of St. Paul in full uniform, who will escort them to the asylum in Masonic hall.

The session of the grand commandery tomorrow will be devoted to the election of officers, with the customary ceremonies that accompany such events, and the ordinary business routine. It is expected that the elevation of Mr. Buck to the grand commandership will take place tomorrow afternoon. The Duluth commandery plans to return in a special sleeper tomorrow night.

TAKING DESPERATE CHANCES.

It is true that many contract colds and recover from them without taking any precaution or treatment, and a knowledge of this fact leads others to take their chance instead of giving their colds the needed attention. It should be borne in mind that every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality, makes the system less able to withstand each succeeding cold and paves the way for more serious diseases. Can you afford to take such desperate chances when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of colds, can be had for a trifle For sale by all druggists.

TO REMAIN CLOSED

Committee of Ely People Call on President Cole.

Much Secrecy Preserved as to Result of Negotiations.

A committee of Ely miners and citizens called upon President T. F. Cole of the Oliver Mining company this morning to see if the mines at Ely cannot resume work. Everybody connected with the matter preserves absolute secrecy as to the negotiations but it is reported that the committee was informed that as soon as the miners wished to go back the company stood ready to open the mines.

This, of course, was equivalent to saying that Captain Charles Trezona will remain as general superintendent and that the company has no intention of considering a change in the position which he occupies.

This committee, which is headed by Mayor Patrick R. Vail, of Ely, as chairman, includes Peter Schafer, of the Ely Miner, a well known range newspaper man, George I. Brozich, Peter Kobe, Joseph Schmoltz, John Merhar, John A. Harri, J. Graf Lundstrom, Joseph Martinetta, John Mullen, Ande Milor and Andrew Lunduist. The mayor and some of the others came as citizens, while part of them are miners, representatives of the different nationalities employed in the mines each foreign element having chosen its own representative.

Mayor Vail would say absolutely nothing about the meeting which was held this morning with President Cole, and would not say whether the committee had seen him or had visited the building. He simply said that in times of trouble it was best to say little and that all the members of the delegation were pledged to reveal nothing of their negotiations here and this is taken to mean that they are engaged to take their answers to the miners before they give it to the public.

The mayor will not even tell whether the business was concluded here, but it is understood that the brevity of the session this morning with the president of the Oliver Iron and Mining company was such as to indicate not the slightest doubt on the part of the company to adhere rigidly to its determination to choose and have its own superintendent, if it runs mines at all. This is right in line with the statement printed in an interview in the Herald yesterday with a man who is well informed in the matter of mining labor.

President Cole, according to what little could be learned this morning, received the representatives from Ely with his accustomed courtesy and permitted them to state their business. It is understood that he will take the desire on the part of the citizens of Ely was for the preservation of peace and order, and not to gain a victory for the miners, and that the reinstallation of Capt. Trezona would mean more trouble.

The president's reply is said to have been brief and explicit, and conveyed the idea plainly that no consideration of a change would be entertained by the company.

The committee returned to Ely, leaving on the Duluth & Iron Range train that went at 3:15 p. m.

Speaking of the matter, a well-informed mining man said that the decision was the only one that could be expected, as the mining company could not afford to let the men say what man might be their superior in the work.

"The Oliver Iron & Mining company is an integral part of the United States Steel corporation, the largest concern of the kind on the earth," said he, "and it is not to be expected that any such enormous concern could permit such a breach of business ethics in the conduct of its affairs as to let a certain portion of its employes say how they shall be directed or by whom, much less after they have taken the matter in hand in such an unceremonious manner. If they had been anxious to protest against Capt. Trezona's authority, they could have done so by other means than to drive him out of their town. In that case I think their case would have stood a better chance."

FOR FAILURE TO DELIVER

Kansas Man Wants Damages For Failure to Get Potatoes.

With potatoes selling at over $1 a bushel, J. R. Greenlee, of Lawrence, Kansas, figures that he was damaged to the extent of $5000 by failure on the part of the Dalbo Warehouse company, a Minnesota corporation, to deliver twenty carloads of the homely spuds at Princeton, Minn., before Jan. 1, 1904, as per contract. He has started suit in the United States circuit court to obtain judgment for this amount, together with costs and disbursements.

The contract calling for the delivery of twenty carloads of the tubers between Dec. 1 and Jan. 1, was drawn up March 10, 1903. The vegetables were to be delivered on the car at Princeton at 35 cents a bushel. A reasonable advance of the cost of the potatoes was to be made as digging time if desired. A clause in the contract read that in case of a complete crop failure the contract should not be enforced, but otherwise it should be in full force and effect.

The complaint, filed today with the clerk of federal courts, states that the crop was not a complete failure, and that the plaintiff advanced the sum of $500 as part payment May 1, 1903, which the defendant kept. In spite of this fact, it is alleged that the Dalbo company failed and refused to deliver the precious tubers when the time came.

INSANE WOMAN IN A FRENZY

Mrs. Fern Thurston Attacks Herself With a Knife.

In a fit of insane frenzy brought on by the use of a drug, supposed to be cocaine, Mrs. Fern Thurston, a woman about 33 years of age, turned loose with a knife on herself and the jailer at the county jail this morning, and was overpowered only after a desperate struggle.

The woman was brought down from Chisholm a few days ago to serve out a short sentence for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, the charge against her, it is said, being preferred by her mother. Mrs. Thurston is a rather attractive woman about medium size, and is said to have two children now residing in Chisholm.

Other women confined in the woman's department of the jail claim that the Thurston woman has been taking some drug for a day or two past. This morning she became violent, and, seizing a knife, began to slash herself, making two slight cuts in her right side.

The other women gave an alarm and Jailer Walter Butchart, who happened to be alone in the office at the time, started to take the knife away. The woman, however, when she saw the officer, attacked him and made several passes at his head, the knife narrowly missing Mr. Butchart's face. After a hard struggle he finally succeeded in disarming her, and with assistance was able to get her on the bed in her cell, where she raved and fought like a tigress.

Medical aid was summoned and she was finally given medicine to counteract the effects of the drug, quieting down within a couple of hours.

That the woman contemplated something desperate is believed from the remark that she made to another woman prisoner whose time expired today. She declared that she, too, would leave the jail today, even if she had to be carried out in a coffin.

HILL IS AFTER COAL FIELDS

Controls Forty Per Cent of Crow's Nest Pass Company.

New York, April 26.—James J. Hill is planning to secure control of the coal fields lying in the southeastern corner of British Columbia. The better part of these fields is now owned by the Crow's Nest Pass Coal company. The Hill interest is now owner of over 40 per cent of the stock of this company.

Mr. Hill will make no statement on this matter. The fact that the Northern Securities company is owner of this amount of the stock came out unexpectedly at a meeting of the stockholders held for the purpose of reducing the capital stock. The statement was made that Northern Securities had last winter bought over 10,000 shares of the coal company stock. This was taken at the time to refer to the proportionate amount of stock which the company was entitled to subscribe for on account of previous holdings. Later facts seem to indicate that the purchase referred to at the meeting was another block of stock. It is surmised, though not admitted, that Mr. Hill engineered a deal whereby the stock owned by a Toronto firm was taken over at considerably below the market price during a period when the firm in question needed the money much more than it needed the stock.

These facts throw some light on the fight that Hill waged to obtain a strong strategic position in the southern part of British Columbia some two years ago or less, when his workmen came to blows with the Canadian Pacific gang. Mr. Hill had planned to secure the control of these coal fields, admitted to be the most promising coal fields of the West. To secure to himself and his interests a satisfactory dominacy of these coal fields, it was necessary in the first place to reach all points in the coal belt, and to this end the fight was begun that was to let a Hill right-of-way into the center of the country. The fight, so far as it went, was satisfactory. But a halt has been called because of obstacles in the way of railroad construction.

Meantime the Hill holdings of the stock of the coal company are probably growing slowly. It would appear that a 40 per cent interest in the stock would not be in keeping with the character and aims of Mr. Hill.

The property is chiefly valuable to him at present because he relies upon it largely for his own coal supply on the Great Northern. In spite of this fact, it is alleged that the Dalbo company failed and refused to deliver the precious tubers when the time came.

PARKS' PARDON

Has Been Asked By the Federated Union.

New York, April 26.—A strong effort is being made to obtain the pardon of Sam Parks, the convicted walking delegate, who is serving a sentence of four years and six months for extortion. Parks is said to be critically ill.

Delegates of the various labor organizations have been asked to sign a petition to Governor Odell. Many have signed, but others refused to do so.

Walking Delegate Smith, of the plumbers' union, asked the Central Federated union to endorse the application for pardon. The motion to sign the application for pardon was carried, but one delegate voting in the negative.

ENTERTAIN PRINCE.

Washington, April 26.—Secretary and Mrs. Hay entertained the Chinese prince at an informal luncheon today. In addition to the guest of honor there were present: President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Senator and Mrs. Lodge, Sir Chi Tung Liang Cheng, the Chinees minister, and Mr. Won Kai Kai, special commissioner to the St. Louis exposition.

CASE IS TRANSFERRED.

Newark, N. J., April 26.—The petition of E. H. Harriman and W. S. Pierce against the proposed method of distribution of the railroad stocks held by the Northern Securities company was to have been heard by United States Judge Kirkpatrick at Trenton, but owing to Judge Kirkpatrick's illness the hearing was transferred to this city. It was said today that the case probably would not be taken up before Thursday.

CATARRH DESTROYS THE KIDNEYS.

GEORGE KING.

MR. GEORGE KING, Deputy Sheriff of Rensselaer Co., N. Y., for years was a well-known merchant of Troy. In a letter written from No. 45 King St., Troy, N. Y., he writes:

"Peruna cured me from what the doctors were afraid would turn into Bright's Disease, after I had suffered with catarrh of the bladder and kidney trouble.

"Peruna is a blessing to a sick man. Eight bottles made me a well man and were worth more than a thousand dollars to me. I cannot speak too highly of it. It is now four years since I was troubled, and I have enjoyed perfect health since."—George King.

A Prominent Member of I. O. O. F. Threatened With Bright's Disease. —Pe-ru-na Restored Him to Health.

O. Fred Lindstrom, Past Grand Master Independent Order of Odd Fellows, writes from 1922 University Ave., St. Paul, Minn.:

"I contracted a severe cold several years ago, which from neglect developed into urinary trouble, and threatened Bright's disease. I used Peruna faithfully for three and one-half months, when my health was perfect once more. I have never had any trouble since."—O. Fred Lindstrom.

Catarrhal inflammation of the mucous lining of the kidneys, also called "Bright's disease," may be either acute or chronic. The acute form produces the symptoms of such prominence that the serious nature of the disease is at once suspected, but the chronic variety may come on so gradually and insidiously that its presence is not suspected until after it has fastened itself thoroughly upon its victim.

At the appearance of the first symptom Peruna should be taken. This remedy strikes at once at the very root of the disease.

BURGLARY CHARGE.

George Parker Accused of Trying to Enter Saloon.

George Parker was arraigned in the municipal court this morning on a charge of burglary.

Parker is claimed to have attempted to burglarize a Bewery saloon several days ago. He is said to have entered the rear of the building through a window, when he was discovered by one of the barkeepers who was sleeping there and fled.

He was arrested this morning by Sergeant Fritz and arraigned before Judge Windom. He asked for a preliminary examination before being held to await the action of the grand jury, and it was set for next Thursday morning, at 10 o'clock. His bond was fixed at $250.

The police have been searching for him for several days. They had a description of the man furnished by the barkeeper and they finally succeeded in locating him.

The man did not secure any valuables as the result of his attempt, being frightened away before he commenced his work.

WISCONSIN CAUCUSES.

Adams For La Follette and Ozaukee For Baensch.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 26.—Republican caucuses were held in Adams and Ozaukee counties yesterday. Adams, six delegates, was carried unanimously for La Follette, according to the returns from all except two precincts in the county, and these two were expected to report a similar result.

Ozaukee, five delegates, which two years ago was carried by the stalwarts, was carried for Baensch, with substantially no opposition so far as reported.

Perhaps the most significant pre-convention news was found in the Price county convention, which elected delegates to the congressional convention at Ashland in favor of Mr. Brown's renomination. Three-quarters of the delegates in the convention were La Follette supporters and stirring resolutions were adopted demanding the governor's renomination and the passage of a freight rate commission bill. The caucuses to elect state delegates will not be held in Price until May 7, but the convention yesterday showed unmistakably that Price's seven votes will be for La Follette.

Catarrh for twenty years and cured in a few days.—Hon. George James, of Scranton Pa., says: "I have been a martyr to catarrh for twenty years, constant hawking, dropping in the throat and pain in the head, very offensive breath. I tried Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. The first application gave instant relief. After using a few bottles I was cured.—1.

NEW POLICE CAPS.

Will Make Their Appearance Next Week.

The members of the Duluth police force will be resplendent in new caps after May 1. A consignment of the caps arrived this morning, and they will be distributed among the men during the latter part of the week. They differ slightly from those at present in use, the peak being more rounded, while the letters "D. P." are replaced by the city seal on a plate of brass.

Most of the men have also ordered new uniforms for spring wear, and the force will be second to none in the Northwest in the matter of appearance.

LARGE SUM NEEDED

Cost of Aerial Bridge Approaches Disturbing to Council.

Means Cutting Out of Other Necessary Improvements.

The members of the city council look with anything but favor upon the idea of appropriating $8000 from the permanent improvement fund for the building of approaches to the aerial bridge, although there appears to be no alternative but to do so.

The city engineer submitted his estimates of the cost of the approaches at the meeting of the council last evening, and asked that some means be taken to provide for the expenditure from the permanent improvement fund. If this is done it cannot fail to prevent some much-needed improvements in various parts of the city, while if it is not done, all the work on the bridge will be of no value.

When the conference committee apportioned off the various funds last fall the sum of $27,712.88 was placed in the permanent improvement revolving fund. Of this amount about $15,300 has already been appropriated for needed improvements. The sum of $5000 goes toward the nimprovement of London road, $2600 for the Armory addition, $2200 for the overflow sewer at Twenty-first avenue west, $1000 for the Sniveley road, and other smaller items make up the total.

When the $800 for the bridge approaches is added to this it leaves only about $4400. Out of this amount about $2000 has been paid on odd contracts, and it leaves the city in balance of between $2000 and $3000, on which to work. This means that some of the much-desired improvements will have to go over. Alderman McEwen is very anxious to secure an appropriation of at least $1000 for roads on Duluth Heights. Alderman Harker is desirious of appropriating a similar amount for needed improvements to roads in his district, and Alderman Sang wants an appropriation for the completion of the New Duluth and Fond du Lac road.

In addition to these improvements, some repairs are necessary to the bridges on Grand avenue west, and the police department is in need of a new site for the West End police station. The city will also have some assessments against school property for street assessments to pay from this fund.

The aldermen, therefore, regard with anything but favor the necessity to expend $8000 for the approaches to the ferry bridge. It is claimed by them that the ferry bridge commission allowed them to gain a wrong impression concerning the expenditures of the bridge.

The contract for the ferry bridge was rushed through the old council at the last meeting before election. Some of the aldermen, among them Alderman Cullum and Alderman Sang, closely questioned City Attorney Mitchell in regard to extra expenditures. In some manner the council gained the impression that the $100,000 would cover all the cost of the bridge, and there was a rather heated discussion when the appropriation for the inspecting of the material came up for passage. It is likely that the further appropriation for the approaches will cause some spirited remarks when it comes up for discussion next Monday night. It was referred to the council committee on harbors, parks and roads.

DAMAGE TO HORSES.

Suit Brought In Which Ill Treatment Is Claimed.

A. P. McCollor has brought suit against Robert E. White, in district court, to recover damages in the amount of $635 for the alleged misuse and loss of some horses claimed to have been hired out at Bemidji, under contract to haul ties and pulpwood last winter near Murray.

McCollor alleges that White agreed to take good care of the horses, some sixteen or seventeen in number and to make good any losses or injuries to them. In his complaint McCollor says that one horse was so abused and ill cared for that it died, that a second was drowned through an air hole in the ice on a lake because of an inexperienced driver, and another was strangled to death by reason of work in a collar too small for it. He also alleges that the rest of the horses were abused and illtreated and, when the work was completed, they were shipped from the camp in a car, going a long time without food or water. He claims that as a result of their treatment the remaining 14 horses are either sick, sore or lame.

The dead horses are valued at $150 for the first two and $125 for the third. The horses remaining alive are claimed to have been damaged in the sum of $210. H. H. Hawkins represents Mr. McCollor.

Wife Seeks Divorce.

Adell Imbleau, of this city, seeks through district court a dissolution of the bonds of matrimony between herself and Peter Imbleau. The charge is habitual drunkenness and failure to support his family. They were married in Canada in July, 1880, and have two children, 18 and 16 years old, respectively, who have been living with their mother. Mrs. Imbleau is 37 and her husband is 53 years of age. The wife asks for an absolute decree of divorce, custody of the youngest girl and adequate alimony. P. C. Schmidt represents Mrs. Imbleau.

NO CAUCUSES HELD.

Court Therefore Enjoins Recognition of Credentials.

Boston, April 26.—A temporary injunction asked for by George Fred Williams, restraining Robert M. Burnett, who was to preside over the Fourth district Democratic convention at Marlborough this afternoon, from recognizing any credentials from towns where it is claimed no caucuses have been held, was granted today by Judge Sheldon in the superior court. The petitioner who represented Dr. Herbert H. Lyons of Fitchburg, alleged that certificates for credentials had been illegally collected in towns where there had been no caucuses to elect delegates. It was further claimed that these same towns were fraudulently represented in the state convention at Boston last week.

DWELLING BURNED

Fire Destroys One of Largest Houses at New Duluth.

Caught From Stove Pipe —Fire Fighting Facilities Inadequate.

New Duluth had a bad blaze this morning, as the result of which one of the largest dwellings in the village is a mass of ruins.

The house was situated at the corner of Ninety-ninth avenue west and First street and was owned by the New Duluth Land company. The lower floor was occupied by George Reindl and his family, and Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Dietz occupied the upper floor.

The fire started in the rooms occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Dietz, and an overheated stove pipe was the cause. In some manner the flames caught the wall surrounding the pipe, and the fire spread to the woodwork and the curtains. Mr. and Mrs. Dietz were not in the rooms at the time, and the smoke was not noticed for some time by the people who were in the lower part of the house.

The fire is said to have been smouldering for nearly three hours before it was discovered by Mrs. Rendl. It had then gained a good headway, and by the time the New Duluth volunteer fire department arrived on the scene the house was enveloped in flames.

The volunteers made a valiant effort to save the house, and nearly every citizen in the community lent his assistance, but the flames had gained too big a start for the inadequate apparatus at the disposal of the firemen, and the house burned to the ground, leaving nothing but a mass of smoking cinders. The building stood alone and the flames had no chance to spread.

Some few pieces of furniture were saved by the inmates of the house, but the building itself and the greater part of the furniture is a total loss, estimated at about $3500.

Mr. and Mrs. Dietz have been married only a few weeks and had just started housekeeping after returning from a wedding trip. They lost nearly all of their furniture, clothing and other belongings.

CRUDE FORGERY DISCOVERED

Isack Eld Under Arrest For Raising a Check.

One of the crudest attempts at forgery that ever came before the notice of the local police authorities was reported this morning.

Isack Eld, a native of Finland, who speaks English very brokenly, was arrested by Captain of Police Resche for attempting to pass a check which had been raised from $26 to $126. The check was signed by the Duluth Logging and Contracting company, and made payable to the order of Eld, who has been employed by the company in the woods during the past winter. The figure "1" had been placed in front of the figures "26," but no attempt had been made to change the writing from "twenty-six" to "one hundred and twenty-six."

Eld is claimed to have attempted to collect $12 on the check from Arthur S. Hyman, a second hand dealer on the Bowery. Hyman immediately noted the discrepancy, and making some excuse for delay, telephoned police headquarters. Eld evidently became uneasy, for he was standing at the door when Capt. Resche appeared on the scene. Seeing the police captain approaching, he started to run, but the captain gave chase and secured the prisoner.

He was arraigned in the municipal court this morning on a charge of forgery. He was unable to speak English well enough to plead and the examination had to be conducted through an interpreter. He decided that he wanted a preliminary hearing in the municipal court to decide whether or not he would be bound over to the grand jury. It was set for Thursday morning, at 10 o'clock, and he was held in bonds of $250.

CAME FROM COFFEE.

A Case Where the Taking of Morphine Began With Coffee.

"For 15 years," says a young Ohio woman, "I was a great sufferer from stomach, heart and liver trouble. For the last 10 years the suffering was terrible; it would be impossible to describe it. During the last three years I had convulsions from which the only relief was the use of morphine.

"I had several physicians nearly all of whom advised me to stop drinking tea and coffee but as I could take only liquid foods I felt I could not live without coffee. I continued drinking it until I became almost insane, my mind was affected, while my whole nervous system was a complete wreck. I suffered day and night from thirst and as water would only make me sick I kept on trying different drinks until a friend advised me to try Postum Food Coffee.

"I did so but it was some time before I was benefited by the change, my system was so filled with coffee poison. It was not long however, before I could eat all kinds of foods and drink all the cold water I wanted and which my system demands. It is now 8 years I have drank nothing but Postum for breakfast and supper and the result has been that in place of being an invalid with my mind affected I am now strong, sturdy, happy and healthy.

"I have a very delicate daughter who has been greatly benefited by drinking Postum, also a strong boy who would rather go without food for his breakfast than his Postum. So much depends on the proper cooking of Postum for unless it is boiled the proper length of time people will be disappointed in it. Those in the habit of drinking strong coffee should make the Postum very strong at first in order to get a strong coffee taste." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

MONTANA DEMOCRATS

Resent Bryan's Attacks Upon Judge Parker.

Helena, Mont., April 26.—Judging by the editorial comment in the leading Democratic dailies, the speech of W. J. Bryan in Chicago last Saturday night was apparently "the last straw." These papers, which have heretofore unstintedly praised Bryan at every turn of the road, now frown upon him in no uncertain manner and are evidently getting ready to climb into the Parker bund wagon.

The Anaconda Standard, in calling attention to the fact that the Democratic standard bearer will have to stand upon the platform to be adopted at St. Louis, and not that already proclaimed at Albany, sarcastically concludes that as Bryan is criticizing the omissions of the Eastern Democracy, it will now be in order for him to hire a hall and go after the Massachusetts Democrats whose platform contains only an indorsement of Olney.

The Helena Independent, the personal organ of Senator Clark, the largest contributor to the Bryan campaign fund four years ago, intimates that Bryan makes it "tired," saying that such discussions are not interesting to the great majority of people. It holds that Bryan is manifestly unfair in holding Judge Parker responsible for the platform.

HEARST MEN BOLT

And Hold a Separate Convention at Ashland.

Ashland, Wis., April 26.—The Hearst supporters bolted the regular Democratic county convention at Ashland yesterday and elected a separate delegation which will be sent to a state convention with instructions to demand admittance upon the floor in preference to the men elected by the "regulars."

When the convention was called to order it was at once apparent that the anti-Hearst men were in the majority. The election of J. J. McEwechan, as chairman, revealed the fact that there were twenty-one anti-Hearst men and thirteen delegates favoring the newspaper man. Seeing that they were in the minority the Hearst men bolted and went over to the municipal court room, where they elected delegates.

The regular convention proceeded with its business and Thomas Bardon, Louis A. Cartier, J. Fleischbein, W. A. Redner, J. J. McEwechan, W. F. Shea and Sam Wood were named as delegates to the state convention.

EIGHT HUNDRED MEN ESCAPE FROM MINE.

Scranton, Pa., April 26.—The Pine Brook breaker, owned by the New York, Ontario & Western railroad, is on fire. There is no possibility of saving the structure. There were 800 men and boys in the mine when the fire broke out and it was feared that they would be suffocated by the smoke which entered the shaft. All of the men are believed to have escaped through the China vein, the outlet of which is nearly a mile from the shaft over which the breaker was built. The loss on the breaker will amount to about $150,000.

COPPER IS LOWER

Walker Reports Slightly Falling Off In Metal Price.

Confidence In Fourteen Cent Copper Unabated —Copper Shares.

George L. Walker reports copper lower in price and with a tendency to go lower still, but says that confidence in fourteen cent copper is as strong as ever. His discussion of the metal market and the price of copper shares is as follows:

"The market for copper is duller than a week ago, and there is a strong disposition to quote prices lower. At this writing Lake is 13¾ to 13⅞ cents and electrolytic is 13⅜ to 13½ cents; but notwithstanding this the Calumet & Hecla company has sold all the copper it cared to at 13⅝ cents per pound and yesterday it raised its asking price to 14 cents. While there is not exactly a scarcity of cash copper in the market no considerable amount could be bought. There is no surplus held by anyone, and the market is in a perfectly healthy condition. Domestic consumers are still holding off as much as conditions will permit, but there is evidence that their buying will make the market active again within a few days.

"London copper quotations are the equivalent of ½ to ¾ of a cent lower than a week ago. This applies to the speculative brand, but no decline in "best selected" has been reported. It is the foreign market that has taken the greatest portion of the Calumet & Hecla copper sold recently, and a continued strong demand for the better grades of metal there is reported, and contracts are now being made for June delivery.

"It is confidently believed in domestic trade circles that we are to have a H-cent copper market in the very near future. The refusal of many home consumers to buy copper is by no means a bearish factor. While they have hesitated they have been using up their working supplies, and at present they must be buying copper at least as fast as they are melting it. This makes the situation in a measure normal. When these domestic consumers again decide to lay in an advance supply of copper their buying will strengthen the market, regardless of whether it comes at a higher or a lower level of prices.

COPPER SHARES.

"The Lawson-Standard Oil fight continues to hang over the local copper share market and discourage trading for the advance. Few anticipate that the contention will drive prices down. Copper stocks are so generally owned outright by the holders that manipulation for a decline could not be made to pay. At present new buyers appear on every slight recession, and sagging prices do not bring increased pressure to sell. Though the level of prices is low the market is healthy. The investor can get excellent value for his money, and the Boston copper share market has a history that calls in new investment demand on every recurring period of depression.

"Several times in the past when copper stocks have been greatly depressed it has been freely predicted that public confidence could never be regained and that prices would never again recover. Such predictions have always proved incorrect, and the courageous investors who dared buy at such times have always had an opportunity to reap phenomenal profits. The present strength of the copper metal market, at a time when commodities in general are inclined to dullness, offers proof positive of the legitimacy and permanency of the copper-producing industry, and makes it certain that history will repeat itself. Another boom in copper stocks will come, and it will make new price levels in some stocks that will go down in future history just as $905 for Calumet & Hecla, $902 for Tamarack, $525 for Boston & Montana, $130 for Amalgamated, etc., are now memories of the last boom period.

"Just at the moment it is well to consider the tremendous benefits that Anaconda, Osceola, Quincy, Tamarack, Atlantic and other companies operating low grade properties will derive from high-priced copper. If the average price of copper this year is 14 cents per pound the companies mentioned will earn on the average about 50 per cent more for their stockholders than they did last year, and the companies operating on higher grade ore will also benefit, but not, of course, in the same proportion. This prosperity should be reflected by advancing prices for copper stocks.

"The fact is recalled that in the late summer and fall of 1898, just before the greatest copper share boom on record, the coppers were extremely dull and uninteresting for months in seeming disregard of the steadily advancing metal quotations. That year opened with copper selling at 11 cents and an advance of just a cent per pound was recorded in the twelve months. The following year copper sold up to 17¾ cents. When the advance in copper stocks began prices went up with a rush, some specialties rising from below one dollar to several dollars per share. If the underlying strength of the metal situation is as great now as I am led to believe it is, history should, in a measure, repeat itself."

METROPOLITAN — Kennedy Stock company in "The Octoroon."

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Thursday, "The Royal Slave."

LYCEUM—Saturday matinee and evening, Blanche Walsh in "Resurrection."

KENNEDY COMPANY

Opens Its Engagement at the Metropolitan.

The Kennedy Stock company opened its engagement at the Metropolitan Opera house last evening to a well-filled house. "The Octoroon," a thrilling story of ante-bellum days, was the bill, and the presentation of the drama was very satisfactory to the large audience. The story deals with the troubles and love of an Octoroon girl, Zoe, natural daughter of a Southern gentleman, and with whom his nephew falls in love. The girl is also loved by two other men, overseers of her father's estate, one of whom, McCloskey, is the villain of the play.

It is a production replete with stirring scenes, especially those of the slave sale, the attempt to lynch the Indian, Wah-no Teel, the fire on the steamboat and the fight to death between the Indian and McCloskey in the swamp.

Miss Nellie Kennedy made a pretty and convincing Zoe, and Royal C. Stout made a very handsome and satisfactory John Peyton, with whom the octoroon was in love. As McCloskey, Lewis Stone won approbation for his very realistic acting in a disagreeable part, and John Kennedy as Salem Scudder, the honest and inventive Yankee overseer, gave a delightful comedy turn to the story wherever it was most needed. Little Dot captured all by her clever portrayal of Paul, the little pickaninny.

The specialties between acts by Little Dot, Winnifred Dyer and Corbett, the song illustrators, and the Flamme sisters were of a very entertaining order.

"The Octoroon" will be repeated tonight and tomorrow afternoon and evening.

FLORENCE STONE COMPANY.

Florence Stone and her company continue to draw large crowds at the Lyceum in the great war play, "Shenandoah." That Miss Stone has cemented her hold on the theater-goers of Duluth is evidenced by the rousing reception she receives nightly. "Shenandoah" will be given for the last time tonight, after which Miss Stone takes her company and play to Superior for one night, Wednesday evening. Miss Stone and her company return to the Lyceum theater for six performances next week, including a bargain matinee Wednesday, when Duma's emotional drama, "Camille," will be presented. The part of Camille is considered by competent critics to be the greatest emotional part ever written. Miss Stone's emotional ability is well known to Duluth theater-goers.

"THE ROYAL SLAVE."

Thursday evening "The Royal Slave" will be at the Lyceum. The play is said to have a fascinating story with much comedy in it. The cast is headed by Louis Lytton, one of the best of the romantic actors, and Miss Pasquatina De Voe, last season with the "Quincy Adams Sawyer" company.

IS WASTING MONEY

Hearst Has Already Expended $1,500,000 to Secure Delegates.

He Has Always Believed That Money Opens All Doors.

Chicago, April 26.—Walter Wellman, in a Washington special to the Record-Herald, says:

Since the 1st of January W. R. Hearst has spent, in his pursuit of the presidency, an average of about $15,000 a day. This statement was made to me in New York last week by a man who is well informed as to what is going on in Mr. Hearst's newspaper office and political office.

Fifteen thousand dollars a day for about a hundred days amounts to a round $1,500,000, not counting the large sums spent before the first of the year.

For all this enormous outlay, the self-made candidate has to show, up-to-date, just thirty-two delegates to the national Democratic convention. He may possibly be able to bag a hundred more, though that would appear to be about the limit of his possibilities. Give him a total of 150 delegates, and it will be seen that when he looks over his array of followers in the convention he will find that they will cost him $10,000 apiece.

Another feature of the case is that, after they have "delivered the goods" by voting for Hearst on the first ballot, most of these delegates will make haste to get on some other candidate's band wagon.

One of Mr. Hearst's managers hired at a salary, and doing as good work as he can, talked pretty freely with me about the operations of his chief. I asked him if it were true that Mr. Hearst had ever really thought he could reach the presidency, or was he simply trying to advertise himself. The answer was most interesting.

"Mr. Hearst has not for one moment doubted that he could attain the presidency, and does not doubt it now," was the reply. "He may not be able to make it this year, but he has unbounded faith that he will be successful in the near future.

"It seems to me the general public does not understand Mr. Hearst. This is the sort of man he is:

"He has always had what he wanted in this world, from the moment of his first appearance in it. His fond and rich parents denied him nothing. After he was old enough to do things for himself, it became his settled principle of life that whatever he wanted he could buy.

"When he wanted a newspaper, or a yacht, or a private car, or a soubrette, or a place in politics or society, he bought it as other men would buy houses or stocks or race horses.

"It was in this frame of mind he set out for the presidency. To this day, I do not believe he has even a glimmer of an idea that the presidency of the United States is one of those things which cannot be bought with money."

LAKE NAVIGATION OPENS AT BUFFALO.

Buffalo, April 26.—Navigation from this port opened yesterday when the Marquette and Bessemer collier No. 1, cleared for Conneaut, Ohio.

The lake is still full of ice and the vessel had gone only about ten miles at 7 o'clock last night. Last year navigation opened on April 1. The outlook for business this year is good. One hundred thousand tons of coal had been loaded into vessels up to noon yesterday. The boats will clear for upper lake ports within the next three days if conditions continue favorable.

MOYER REMAINS IN BULL PEN.

Denver, Col., April 26.—The state supreme court has denied the motion for the release of Charles H. Moyer, president of the Eastern Federation of Miners, on bail pending a decision of the habeas corpus proceedings in his behalf. The hearing on the merits of the case was set for May 5. Meantime Moyer will be held as prisoner in the military bull pen at Telluride.

MILLER MAY RUN AGAINST McCLEARY

Sounding the Sentiment of the Twin City Politicians.

Little Hearst Strength Visible In the First District.

St. Paul, April 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the Minnesota congressmen return to the North Star state, with possibly three exceptions they will find their political fences in good condition. Congressman Tawney of the First district, Stevens of the Fourth, Lind of the Fifth, Volstead of the Seventh, Bede of the Eighth and Steenerson of the Ninth, are practically certain of a renomination, and none of these except Congressman Lind will have serious opposition at the election. Congressmen McCleary of the Second district, Davis of the Third and Buckman of the Sixth are the three exceptions. Buckman already has an opponent in the person of A. F. Foster, of Litchfield, and McCleary and Davis will probably have contests on their hands.

Reports were circulated in St. Paul yesterday that former State Senator Herbert J. Miller, of Luverne, who it was supposed had decided not to get in the congressional race, is sounding the sentiment of Twin City politicians and Twin City papers on the question of his candidacy, should he decide to make the run. If conditions look favorably here, according to the report, Mr. Miller will make an announcement soon.

Mr. Miller has written several editorials in his paper, the Rock County Herald, which lead many Republicans to believe that he is preparing to enter the congressional field. The first of these editorials, entitled "The Standpatter Must Go," was plainly directed against Congressman McCleary, who is considered a standpatter of the most pronounced type. The next editorial, under the title, "New Ways of Working Voters," denounced the practice of some congressman, a favorite of Congressman McCleary's, of sending garden seeds, flattering personal letters and public documents to constituents for the purpose of retaining their good will and support. This was followed by another editorial on the tariff and trust problems, in which Mr. Miller attacked Congressman McCleary's views on these questions.

Should Mr. Miller become a candidate, the contest will be waged largely on reciprocity as an issue. Mr. Miller is a strong advocate of freer trade relations with Canada and a general tariff revision along lines advantageous for this country. His friends believe that a majority of the Republicans of the district hold the same view on this question. Congressman McCleary, on the other hand, has a large personal following and has the prestige of having served many terms to the credit of his constituents.

The congressional situation in the Third district is unchanged. Frank Wilson, of Red Wing, is a probable candidate against Congressman Davis, but so far has made no announcement.

A. F. Foster, of Litchfield, is waging a vigorous campaign in the Sixth district against Congressman Buckman, and the prevailing sentiment, especially among the supporters of Judge Loren W. Collins, is that the contest will be close.

J. F. McGovern, editor of the Wabasha Herald and one of the prominent Democrats of Minnesota, who was in St. Paul yesterday, said that there is not much evidence of Hearst strength in the First congressional district.

"I believe that the Hearst boom is pretty nearly run out," said Mr. McGovern. "I do not expect him to make much of a showing in Minnesota or the United States. It seems to me that there is a feeling of uncertainty among Democrats all over the country. I do not think that the party is committed to Judge Parker for President. The portion of New York that sent delegates instructed for Judge Parker is Republican by from $0,000 to 100,000 majority. Pennsylvania did not instruct for Parker and Massachusetts instructed for Richard Olney. I infer from this that it is not settled that Parker will be the nominee. A stronger man may yet appear."

Representative T. T. Ofsthun of Glenwood, who was in St. Paul yesterday to attend a meeting of the state game and fish commission to consider plans for the Glenwood fish hatchery, expresed a belief that Frank Eddy will not get a solid delegation from the Seventh congressional district.

"I am for Eddy but I think that it will be pretty difficult for him to get a solid delegation from this district," said Mr. Ofsthun. "Senator E. C. Young of Appleton, I believe, will get practically a solid delegation."

Senator Thomas Torson of St. James is talked of for the Republican nomination for railroad and warehouse commissioner. Mr. Torson could not be elected were he nominated, on account of the law prohibiting state senators and representatives from holding office during the term for which they are elected. Mr. Torson's term as senator does not expire until 1897.

A prominent North Dakota politician, one of the two Republicans of the state that exercise a controlling influence over state politics, was in St. Paul yesterday, having returned from a four months' trip in the East. Regarding the Democratic presidential situation he said:

"The Democratic presidential situation is a three cornered contest between Judge Parker, Hearst and Senator Gorman. Judge Parker is in the lead at present and will fight it out with Hearst, who has reached practically the end of his rope. I believe that Parker has a good show of winning out against Hearst and securing two-thirds of the delegates, but should he fail to carry the day, Senator Gorman may be the man. Hearst has more strength in the East than is represented here. He has Tammany of New York, and he might manage to get one-third of the delegates and so prevent the nomination of Parker.

THE NORTH POLE.

It is often said that, when the North Pole is discovered there will be found a Scotchman doing business. The Highlander always ranked foremost amongst the pioneers of the American West. His Herculean strength fitted him for frontier life, and to his constant use of "porridge" for breakfast is attributed his spulendid physique. This generation can be as brawny by eating pillsbury's vitos.

A fine "breakfast" food, did I hear you say?

You'll be three times wiser when you've discovered that a dish of "FORCE" and cream is just what your stomach is making signs for, the last thing before going to bed.

Try it to-night, and see how you'll sleep.

Sunny Jim

"FORCE" is no mere breakfast food. It is food, breakfast or no breakfast; a food for any food need. Eat it when you're hungry. Don't relegate it to any particular meal.

Hints To Advertisers

The man who would not spend five dollars to win ten is the man who says that advertising doesn't pay.

Get your copy in early; your ad will be better set and it will not miss The Herald's Iron Range editions.

Change your business plans if they are proving to be ineffective. Increase your advertising appropriation if you are not selling enough goods.

A stock-broker is pretty apt to read the market reports. And a woman, charged with the household purchasing, is no less likely to read as carefully the store-advertising.

You can't get along without shoes—yet a shoe that is too small for you is but an aggravation. So it is with your advertising—it must fit, it must be ample, it must be as big as your business.

The day your competitor out-advertised you was the unluckiest day of your business life.

If your store is better than the other fellow's store, make your advertising better than his—otherwise you might just as well have a poorer store.

You can get your life, your store or your goods insured, but you can't get your business prosperity insured. An advertising contract is, however, the nearest approach to a "prosperity insurance policy" yet devised.

Your store will be the most interesting one in town if your advertising of it is the most interesting advertising in town.

If you don't think it pays to use The Herald want page just watch the number of people who turn to it the moment they get their paper.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The body of a young woman, apparently 20 years of age, unknown and dressed in garments of fine texture, was taken from the Mississippi river at St. Louis Monday. From indications the body had been in the river for several weeks. A bruise on the forehead was discernible.

The official weapons with which the Jefferson Guards at the World's fair will be armed, will be short swords and long metal whistles. The whistles will enable the guards to summon assistance, if necessary. The swords and whistles were distributed Monday.

The press censorship which was established at Telluride, Colo., when Governor Peabody proclaimed martial law, in San Miguel county, was removed Monday. Gen. Sherman M. Bell left Monday for Denver and Capt. Bulkley Welles is in command of this military district.

An appeal has been taken by Mrs. Grace Imogene Bennett and the other residuary legatees under the will of Philo S. Bennett from the decision of Judge Cleveland, of the probate court, by which the application for the removal of William J. Bryan, as executor and trustee, was dismissed. The matter now goes to the superior court.

Frank McNamara, who shot and killed Capt. George R. Jennings, president of the Jennings Adjustable Shade company, of Brooklyn, on Feb. 18, pleaded guilty to murder in the first degree when arraigned for trial Monday. He will be sentenced to Sing Sing for life.

W. H. Johnson, accused of appropriating funds while secretary of the Minnesota board of charities and corrections, was found not guilty after a six days' trial.

Charles Rhodes and Julia Korton were married Monday, at Cleveland, by a justice of the peace. Prior to the marriage ceremony the couple signed an agreement solemnly pledging themselves to never seek a divorce. The pre-nuptial agreement was a condition imposed by Justice Ginley, who makes that agreement a condition to any wedding ceremony that he may be asked to perform. Refusal to sign the agreement makes it necessary to seek another magistrate.

United States secret service agents arrested Abe Sachs, a Russian, 23 years of age, at St. Louis, on the charge of having passed $20 and $100 counterfeit bills in Baltimore. It is alleged that Sachs is a member of a gang, the leader of which was recently arrested. He was taken to Baltimore.

Bennie Yanger, of Chicago, was given the decision over George Decker, of Philadelphia, after six rounds of fighting on Monday night. Decker, who made an excellent impression by his clever work, held Yanger better than even in the early part of the fight, but was weakened toward the last by Yanger's blows to the body.

TOMB ROBBED OF ITS DEAD

Historic Resting Place of the Livingstons Desecrated.

Hudson, N. Y., April 26.—The startling discovery was made yesterday that the family tomb of the Livingstons, on the nearby ancient Livingston manor place had been broken open on Saturday night and robbed of its dead.

The body taken away, and of which there is no trace, was that of the wife of Gen. Henry W. Livingston (Fighting Harry), famous half a century ago for her beauty, wealth and social prestige, and known because of her undying fidelity to the memory of her husband, as the "Widow Mary."

The metallic coffin in which the body was sealed forty-five years ago was also carried off. That in which Gen. Livingston was laid a quarter of a century earlier, was demolished and the bones of teh dead soldier were strewn about the vault. The winding sheet in which he was wrapped, and which had all but crumbled into dust, was thrown upon the marble floor and partially covered the skull.

A third coffin, with the body it contained, is gone as completely as is that of Mrs. Livingston. The identity of the occupant of this casket is not yet known. All of the other coffins in the vault had been pried open, and the bones of the occupants had been dumped out.

The people of all this section are greatly aroused over the desecration of the historic tomb, which has been the resting place of members of the illustrious Livingston family ever since the days of the Dutch regime.

SECURITIES COMPANY WINS VENNER SUIT.

Newark, N. J., April 26.—Vice Chancellor Bergen yesterday denied the application of the Continental Trust company for an injunction restraining the Northern Securities compay from distributing its assets in accordance with the plan formulated by order of the directors, within a week after the United States court rendered its decision, rendering the formation of the corporation unconstitutional.

This is the so-called Venner suit, and has no connection with the pending suit in the United States circuit court, in which Winslow S. Pierce and E. H. Harriman are complainants.

FIRST MINN. REGIMENT MAY GO TO WORLD'S FAIR.

St. Paul, April 26.—Governor S. R. Van Sant yesterday had a conference with Lieut. Col. Frank T. The governor expects an opinion from the attorney general as to his power to order one regiment to St. Louis and to pay for the trip out of state funds, and should a favorable decision be received it is probable that the First regiment will make the trip.

WILL OPEN SUNDAY

Season For All Fish But Bass Will Be Open Then.

Wisconsin Date Several Weeks Later—Fishermen Going Out.

Next Sunday, May 1, will mark the first day of the open season in Minnesota for pike, pickerel, muskalonge and all other food fishes, except trout and bass. The trout season opened April 15, and it will not be allowable to angle for bass in Minnesota waters until after May 30. The open season for all food fishes, except trout, begins in Wisconsin May 25. This includes bass. The trout season opened across the state line at the same time as in Minnesota.

It is thought that by next Sunday there will be enough open water in the St. Louis river, especially at the rapids above Fond du Lac, to allow pike fishing, and a number of local anglers are preparing to try their luck on that day. Local fishermen anticipate good sport with pike in the St. Louis this year. It has been growing better yearly for some time, owing to the fact that the game wardens have kept a closer watch than formerly to see that no illicit fishing with nets was done. Up to three or four years ago dozens of seines stretched their lengths at different points in the stream, in open violation of the law, and as a consequence the law-abiding citizen had to look to foreign water if he desired what might be called good fishing. But all this is now changed, and last year any amount of good strings were caught in the St. Louis, both in its upper and lower waters.

Local anglers are preparing to enter vigorous protests against the action of the state game commission to procure breeding pike from the St. Louis river, and declare that they will use every effort to prevent the board getting spawn at the expense of the fishing there.

Members of the state board are arranging, it is said, to catch the pike through the breeding season in the vicinity of Fond du Lac, and get the eggs and milk for the purpose of having a supply of spawn on hand. It is thought that a petition, protesting against the move, will be circulated in Duluth, and, when a sufficient number of signatures have been secured, forwarded to Samuel Fullerton, state game warden.

On account of the large quantity of ice in the north shore streams there has been little trout fishing up to this time. A few strings of the speckled beauties have been caught, but not many. Several of the local anglers have tried their luck with varying success in the Brule river, North Wisconsin. The latter stream is so swift that it does not freeze at all in places during the winter months.

The spring duck-shooting season, which opened April 10 in Wisconsin, closed yesterday. The ducks had hardly more than begun to arrive from the South. Very few of them were shot, for the ice in the rivers and bays prevented their being hunted by boat in the northern section of the state. It is not allowable to shoot any kind of wild fowl in Minnesota in the spring.

WEST DULUTH

Two or three matters of interest to West Duluth came up at the council meeting last night. It was agreed that if the traction company will build a line on Grand avenue to Seventy-first avenue west, an extension of ten blocks from the present end of their Grand avenue line, the council will not require it to double-track either the West Third or the Grand avenue lines during 1904-5, or make any more extensions in West Duluth in 1904. A resolution of this nature was passed in response to requests of West Duluthians for an extension of the line to Fairmont park, which is on Seventy-first avenue west.

Favorable report was made by the committee on harbors, parks and roads, composed of Aldermen Chesney, Tessman and Olson, regarding the request to build the proposed West Duluth city dock at the foot of Ramsey street at a cost of $7500. The committee, however, recommended that as the permanent improvement fund was not at present in condition to stand the expense, the conference committee make provision for it in the levy for next year.

New incandescent bunch lights were ordered on Grand avenue at Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh avenues west, and on Fifty-seventh avenue west on the south side of the Northern Pacific right-of-way.

DEATH FROM CAR.

Saginaw Jury's Verdict on Michael McDonald's Death.

A coroner's jury at Saginaw, Mich., has found that Michael McDonald, father of John and James McDonald, West Duluth, died as a result of injuries received by being struck by a street car, and not from apoplexy, as was at first supposed.

The following clipping from a Saginaw paper will be of interest to friends of the McDonald family:

"Verdicts were rendered in two inquests at central police station Friday afternoon. In the first case, that of Michael McDonald, Lena Kundinger and Phoebe McKellar testified that they were on car 41 on Saturday night, April 16, and saw the conductor and motorman get off at the C. S. & M. depot and talk with a man leading a horse. They understood that the man had been struck by the car. Charles E. Dwyer, motorman of the car in question, was put on the stand and sworn, but refused to testify on the ground that his evidence might tend to incriminate himself.

"Dr. W. J. O'Reilly, who assisted in the post-mortem, testified that he found two clots of blood, one on each side of the brain. In his opinion the clots were produced by an injury, and were not due to apoplexy. Questioned by Watts S. Humphrey, witness stated that a brain blood vessel might be ruptured and clots form without the skull being injured. There was no evidence of fracture of the skull.

"After being out fifteen minutes the jury returned this verdict:

"'We find that Michael McDonald came to his death from injuries received by being struck by a Court street car on Bristol street bridge Saturday evening, April 16, 1904.'"

CENTRAL AVENUE WORK.

Present Weather Will Permit Its Early Resumption.

With a continuance of the present warm weather it will not be long before the work of macadamizing Central avenue can be again taken up. Contractor P. McDonnell has stated that the work will be completed as soon as the condition of the ground will permit. The depth of frost on the thoroughfare has thus far delayed the completion of the paving.

All that remains to be done is placing the surface covering of macadam. The body work, having been begun last October is now completed. It will not take long to finish up the job, once work is started, for the surfacing is only a matter of throwing on the macadam and rolling it properly.

Central avenue will be in fine condition when the work is completed. About six blocks will be macadamized. Four from Ramsey to Gosnold streets have foundation work of fine stone, while the two blocks between Gosnold and Main streets are built up with cinders and slack. There yet remains about 200 feet, owned by the Northern Pacific railroad, which will have to be macadamized to agree with the work done by the city upon the rest of the street. This work is to be done by the railroad company, and although it has not yet been begun, it is supposed that it will be started as soon as the condition of the ground permits.

ANTI-PROFANITY PRIZE

Was Given By Groff of Postal Notoriety.

Washington, April 26.—Samuel A. Groff, a former Washington policeman, who was convicted with Machen, Lorenz and others of postal frauds, has been disclosed as the man who gave a prize of $25 for the best local poem against profanity. Recently he made an offer to a local newspaper and more than 100 poems were submitted in competition. One feature of the award which aroused comment, considering Groff's affiliation with Machen, is that a prominent Roman Catholic, Maurice Francis Egan, received the prize for the best poem. On the committee which made the award was the Rev. Wallace Radcliffe of a local Presbyterian church.

There is much chagrin now that Groff's connection with the prize offer has been disclosed. Besides being under conviction of felony Groff has been suspended from the police force without pay until his appeal is decided. He is accused of having conspired with Machen and others for the purchase of letter box fasteners for the government at exorbitant rates.

"Both my father and mother," said Groff, "were foes of profanity. My father had numerous employes in a factory he conducted and would not tolerate profane speech. He was much more lenient in dealing with other shortcomings than in breaking the third commandment.

"In a brief time not one of his men used a profane word. My views on the subject therefore, in a way are inherited. It is my purpose to publish in pamphlet form for general circulation most of the poems submitted in his contest and to that end I shall ask the consent of the writers. Such a pamphlet, I believe, will be readable throughout and exert a wholesome influence upon men who carelessly and causelessly indulge in the iniquitous practice. The result cannot fail to be good.

HAS HURT HIMSELF

Bryan's Attack on Judge Parker Is the Last Straw.

Breaks Back of Party Patience With Former Leader.

Chicago, April 26.—In a Washington dispatch to the Record-Herald, Walter Wellman says: Great interest was shown among leading Democrats here in Mr. Bryan's speech at Chicago last Saturday night. It is the general impression that Bryan has gone beyond all reasonable and decent limits in thus publicly attacking Judge Parker, and that he has only hurt himself, without doing much, if any, harm to the candidate he seeks to destroy. The prevailing comment here is this public attack upon a respectable Democrat, on a man who should have had Mr. Bryan's gratitude because he supported the national ticket in both '96 and 1900, and who is, moreover, the very man the great masses of the Democracy are turning to as their most promising Moses for 1904, is the last straw which will break the back of party patience with the former leader. From now on, said several Democratic senators and representatives today, Mr. Bryan will have to be treated simply as a fanatic running amuck. The party may be compelled to listen to him, because this is the country of free speech, and any man who has the price may hire a hall, but it will pay no heed to him. It is believed that about all the strength Mr. Bryan may have in the national convention already is swallowed up in the Hearst movement, and Hearst and Bryan together cannot come anywhere near controlling a third of the convention. There is, or should be, such a thing as decency in politics, and by publicly attacking Judge Parker as he has attacked almost every other man mentioned for the presidency except Mr. Hearst, Democrats here say Bryan has placed himself beyond the pale, and is entitled to no further consideration. That he is in league with Hearst, and yet lacks the manliness and frankness to come out and say so, they say no longer admits of doubt. Many Democrats go so far as to say they hope Bryan will not only bolt the ticket, but that he will come out openly for Roosevelt. In that case, they add, Roosevelt will be hopelessly handicapped and can be defeated.

One prominent Democrat said that Bryan's speech contained little that was new except his direct attack upon Judge Parker. For the most part his address was made up of time-worn stuff, such as Bryan has been working off for many moons. This Democrat was reminded of one of Adlai E. Stevenson's stories. A hanging was about to come off down in Kentucky. The hour set was noon, and the place the top of a hill about a mile outside of the county seat, as it was the general desire of the people to make a gala affair of the occasion and give everyone an opportunity to witness the show. The sheriff took the culprit in a buggy and drove out to the hill. Arriving on the gallows he looked at his watch and found it was only 11:45. So he said to the condemned man:

"Under the sentence of the court I can't go ahead with the business of the day till 12 o'clock. The intervening time is yours. There is a big crowd gathered and you may improve the opportunity to make a speech to them."

"But I don't want to make a speech," muttered the unfortunate man.

Joe Blackburn was standing at the foot of the gallows and as soon as he heard what the prisoner said he jumped up and exclaimed:

"As the gentleman does not wish to make a speech, I hope he will yield me his time."

The culprit told him to go ahead.

"Fellow citizens of the proud state of Kentucky," began Blackburn, "I am glad to respond to your generous and insistent call that I should address you on this occasion," and for some minutes Joe continued in his well-known vein, making the eagle scream and lauding the beauty of the ladies of the Blue Grass and the gallantry of all true sons of Kentucky. But at this juncture the condemned man interrupted.

"Sheriff, sheriff," he exclaimed, "for God's sake, go on with the hanging. don't want to leave this world with that old speech ringing in my ears again."

REV. ELLISON LECTURES.

Talks to Young People on John Bunyan.

The young peoples' societies of the Swedish Baptist churches of the head of the lakes had a union meeting Sunday at the First church, on Nineteenth avenue West and First street. A musical program was rendered. The choir, the male quartet and West Duluth choir took part.

Rev. O. Ellison, of Superior, delivered a lecture on John Bunyan that was listened to with interest by the large number of young people there gathered.

"John Bunyan lived during the Sixteenth century and became one of the greatest men in England in religious work," said Mr. Ellison. "As author of 'Pilgrim's Progress,' Bunyan achieved world-wide fame. The book has the largest circulation of any book except the Bible. The author had no education to speak of for during that time the schools were not what they are today. At 25 years of age he was converted and was received as a member of the Baptist church at Bedford. Soon his great interest in the movement just beginning, for free religion, became apparent to the members of the congregation at Bedford, and his activity in the church work brought him to the front. He soon commenced preaching the gospel. So wonderful was his success as a preacher that great multitudes were converted. The new movement spread rapidly in England.

"One admirer of John Bunyan was Oliver Cromwell, the great English statesman. The state church of England did not look with favor upon the new religious movement. His idea of religious freedom has been manifested to a wonderful degree during the last century and was exemplified in the constitution of the United States of American. Bunyan was prosecuted for his teachings and was put in prison and kept there for twelve long years.

"It was in prison that he wrote his wonderful book, 'Pilgrim's Progress.' He had been famous before, but after his release he became one of the foremost ministers of the gospel of his time and his devoted love for spreading the gospel was a wonderful blessing in England."

At the close of the lecture short remarks were given by Rev. C. A. Alden, Rev. Halmar Henrickson and others. Rev. Henrickson pointed out the importance of young people studying good books and especially the influence biographies of great men have upon the young. He said he read the history of Abraham Lincoln when only 7 years old and it had been of great value to him.

Rev. A. Edstäm had charge of the program, which closed with a song by all present.

New York, April 26.—One of Judge Alton B. Parker's friends announced yesterday that if the jurist receives the nomination for the presidency by the Democrats at St. Louis he will ask Senator Gorman, of Maryland, to take the chairmanship of the Democratic national committee. He added: "Judge Parker has great faith in Senator Gorman's abilities as a campaign manager, and he often speaks of the effective work the senator did for Cleveland in 1884. Besides Senator Gorman has the confidence of the business men among the Republicans as well as among the Democrats. The judge does not know if Gorman would undertake the task."

NOMINATIONS BY PETITION.

From a suggestion made at a recent meeting by Director Washburn, the school board of Duluth has developed a plan for the nomination of members of the school board by petition. The annual election will be held in July, at which time three members of the board will be chosen. In the meantime each elector is invited to designate by petition the three individuals he would prefer to have nominated for the places.

These petitions will be found at many different places throughout the city, or can be had by application to the clerk of the board, and every voter should take advantage of the opportunity thus afforded of expressing a choice previous to the election.

It is a fact generally recognized that too little interest is taken by the general public in the selection of school board members. This matter has been left altogether too much with those few citizens of the community who have a direct financial interest in school board affairs. This is certainly an unwholesome condition, and the members of the present board, Director Washburn in particular, are to be commended for their practical efforts to induce more general interest.

It is the purpose to place on an Australian ballot at the election as many names as receive a respectable number of votes on these petitions and to leave blanks at the bottom so that the voter can write in names if he is not satisfied with those printed on he ballot. This will give every voter a free and fair oportunity to sound the sentiment of prospective candidates and express an intelligent choice.

As The Herald has already suggested, it might also be wise to submit to public vote at the annual election the most important questions concerning the conduct of the schools. For instance the matter of increasing the pay of grade teachers might be thus submitted so that the board would know to a certainty the desires of the public in this matter. There are many other matters of like import that could be submitted with propriety. The submission of such questions would also create more interest in school elections and result in much practical good to the schools.

This matter of nominating by petition is a long step in the right direction and no voter who has the welfare of the public schools at heart should neglect the opportunity of thus expressing his choice.

THE PEOPLE TO BLAME.

Picking up and quoting a paragraph concerning present-day politics which recently appeared in The Herald concerning the candidacy of S. Wesselius for the mayoralty of Grand Rapids, Mich., and of Joseph Folk for governor of Missouri, but which should not be considered except in connection with the entire article, the Park Rapids Enterprise proceeds to read the following lecture:

"We are astonished that the able editor of The Duluth Herald should allow himself to fall into the mire of prevalent pessimism regarding politics. It is acknowledged that in the realm of peanut politics—where small men hold sway and where petty motives impel them to action that there is much that is mean, tiresome and saddening. But this is no truer in politics than it is in business or social life. There is still room for high minded men in politics—and their fame can alone endure. The honest politician is the only successful one. All others are frauds, and cannot stand the wear of time."

The Enterprise points to Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, McKinley, Cleveland and Roosevelt as examples of honest and straightforward men who have been eminently successful in public life. Of course there are exceptions to every rule, and it is easy to find many honest men in political life. But the Enterprise is careful to pick out exceptions, although there may be honest difference of opinion as to some of these.

It should be remembered that Washington, Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln, about whose honesty of purpose there is now no question, have been a long time dead and they had nothing whatever to do with present-day political conditions, to which The Herald made reference. There is one, however, who is still alive and who is in politics. In reference to President Roosevelt the Enterprise says:

"He is not diplomatic. He may not be an intellectual giant. But the people believe him to be honest clear through, and as fearless as he is honest. There isn't an atom of the hypocrite about him. That is why the voters like him. That is why they are going to vote for him. He has 'pronounced opinions' and is not afraid to express them. This, and this most largely, makes him a successful politician."

The Herald is at least justified in criticising the acts of President Roosevelt, because he is a candidate for re-election, and there are many good grounds for dissenting from the claim that "he is honest clear through, that he is no hypocrite," and that "this most largely makes him a successful politician."

Before Theodore Roosevelt was a politician he was an author and in a book he wrote, he took advanced ground against imperialism, in all the name implies. Since he has been seeking high place he has become one of the greatest ranters for imperialism, not because it is right, but because he thinks thereby to win the support of the Republican party. Honest men sometimes change their minds, but only when they discover that they have been in the wrong. Honest men never change from right to wrong.

In a book written after the war with Spain, Theodore Roosevelt told about shooting a Spanish soldier in the back as though it was a heroic deed. An honest man would never do that. Whatever the president may have thought about trusts, no matter how much he may have ranted and raved about their oppression, he has never accomplished a single thing that has crippled their power. Ever since he has been an aspirant for the presidential nomination he has been playing a game of false pretense with the object of fooling the people and still retaining the support of the corrupt ring that controls the Republican party, without which he could not hope to secure the nomination.

Were not Senators Burton, Dietrich, Quay, Platt and Hanna successful politicians? Why did not the Enterprise point to these? Is not Boss Butler of Missouri a successful politician? Why does not the Enterprise point to him? Are there not a thousand rogues in American public life today who are successful politicians? Why not refer to some of these?

The Herald agrees that there is still room for high-minded men in politics—lots of room—and that the great masses of the people are honest, but the fact remains that the voters are too often guided in their political action by their prejudices and passions. Does the Enterprise believe that a member of the Catholic church could be elected president of the United States? History says no. Yet will that paper deny that a man may be a Catholic and at the same time an honest man? Was there ever any doubt that Henry George was an honest and able man? Was he a successful politician? Could he not have been successful had he been content to keep his opinions to himself?

Could a man be elected mayor of a great city who would come out openly before election and state just exactly what he would do in the matter of enforcing every law on the statute books? It is doubtful if the Enterprise could point to one.

It was for the purpose of carrying this thing home to the people, who really are to blame for the present condition of affairs, that The Herald dropped into the vein that the Enterprise is pleased to term pessimistic. Truths are often unpalatable, but they must sometimes be told. There ought to be an awakening of the people to their duty that they may lay aside their passions and prejudices and further the cause of honesty and decency in political life. Will not the Enterprise help it along?

CO-OPERATIVE PAPER MILLS.

Since the great trusts have taught the immense value of combination and co-operation in the industrial field, why should not the metropolitan newspapers of the country benefit by this experience and establish paper mills of their own on co-operative basis, and thus free themselves from the exactions of the print paper trust? Speaking of the success of one effort in this direction, the Kansas City Star in a recent issue said:

"The gratification which is felt by the Star and the Times regarding the security of their own supply of white paper does not in the least lessen their sympathy with those publishers in the East who are facing a famine of the most essential material in the formation of a newspaper. The value and convenience of the paper mill built by the Star and the Times have been demonstrated anew, almost every day since the completion of the plant, but the embarrassment which is now confronting publishers who are in the hands of the trust, and who are depending upon precarious supplies of paper, emphasizes, as nothing before has done, the great satisfaction of being independent of such irritating and annoying conditions as a number of newspapers in the East are now contending with."

The Herald has heretofore called attention to the fact that Duluth offers an exceptional opportunity for the establishment of such an enterprise. Experts have demonstrated to the satisfaction of any one who has cared to investigate that no section of the United States offers superior advantages to this. Here is an abundant supply of raw material of easy access, with plenty of streams and rivers for easy and inexpensive transportation; shipping facilities by rail and water unexcelled; cheap and convenient mill sites and an abundant supply of water both for power and flooding purposes.

With an assured market for the product there is nothing apparently to prevent the success of several co-operatove paper manufacturing plants at the head of Lake Superior. The commercial bodies of Duluth could do no better work than to call to the attention of the newspaper publishers the splendid opportunities here offered for manufacturing paper. There is little room for doubt that the time is rapidly approaching when the great newspapers will be compelled, for self-protection, to begin the manufacture of print paper on their own account.

Senator Hale thinks it useless to build more big battleships because they become such easy prey for torpedo and submarine boats and mines. There is very little use of building boats of any kind for the reason that they become obsolete about as soon as constructed. It is evident that nations must depend more upon land and harbor fortifications and less upon great naval fighting machines in future. When one comes to think of it seriously this eternal preparation for warfare on the part of a nation like the United States seems a good deal like silliness anyway. The money that is squandered on navies and armies might better be used in internal improvements.

The question "Why does popcorn pop" that is now going the rounds has brought out the information from an "old popper" that it is the moisture inside the kernel which creates steam when heat is applied and causes the pop. He claims that corn may become too dry to pop, but after being placed in a humid atmosphere will absorb sufficient moisture so it will pop proper. Now, if we only knew why the girls do not pop during leap year, everything would be satisfactorily settled.

The New York Sun refers to the administration's recent pension order as a "purchase of votes with public money." This naturally brings up the question whether the political convictions of most old soldiers are for sale to the party making the most liberal pension laws and regulations, and if so, why the Democratic party has not been more liberal in that respect? There are, of course, old soldiers who are venal and corrupt but the average man who risked his life to save the Union is possessed of a higher morality than is implied by the Sun's asertion that "it is one of the very worst of the president's executive usurpations, because it uses public money to obtain his own nomination and purchase the votes of a class."

"For the money expended by this government in the Philippine war, every quarter section of arid land in the United States could be irrigated and a splendid system of good roads established throughout the country." This statement was made by Gen. Miles in an address at Chicago recently. Up to date it has not been contradicted. It is evident that the general has a better idea of proper government than his strenuous friend Roosevelt. We have squandered the price of irrigation and good roads for our entire country, in an effort to ape the "world powers" of Europe, and have received absolutely no benefit in return. This is our punishment for abandoning the principles upon which the government was founded and fighting a war of conquest.

The hair- and side-splitter of the Minneapolis Tribune says:

The Duluth Herald is solemnly discussing the question, "Is Baseball Immoral." Some attempts at it we've suffered in times past certainly jarred our moral sense to the verge of profanity. But we can pass more intolligently on the subject after our club has been home for about a week. We look forward to receiving quite a moral uplift from the influence of Mr. Watkin's new team.

Looking at it through this hole in the fence perhaps there were some bases for a charge of immorality against last year's Duluth aggregation. But Manager Van Praagh gives assurances of having effected a reformation and the fans will in future be surrounded by a highly moral atmosphere.

The Northome News appears to have taken to heart the warning of The Herald that it would be wise to keep a close watch on the expenditure of that $50,000 road fund. In reply to a demand of the Grand Rapids Independent for a stone crusher, the News says:

It is said that the Rockefellers and the financial magnates associated with them have concluded to support Roosevelt for president. It is hardly necessary to say that this action is not due to anything that the president has done which might be regarded as a modification of his attitude toward the giants of Wall street. It is simply a recognition on the part of capital that when a man does what is right he is doing the best than can be done for legitimate and substantial business interests.

It was kind of the Minneapolis Journal to let an anxious public know this. Otherwise it might have thought otherwise.

HOTEL GOSSIP

R. E. Werkman, one of the best known immigration agents in the Northwest, representing the Great Northern road, who was at the Spalding hotel recently, says that its the people who are the chronic fault finders that are the hardest to deal with in his business. Every business has to deal with fault finders, but in his business, from what he says, it is a tougher proposition to get around their hindrances than in most lines.

"I've been in this work for the last ten years," said Mr. Werkman, "and have learned human nature. So often have I found men and even women who are always finding fault with anything that is not theirs or does not belong to the little circle they live in. If this class of people would spend a few dollars and learn the truth about the country, they would feel ashamed of what they had said before. We like to have anyone who proposes taking up a piece of land to go and see for themselves. If they would only do that we would be saved much annoyance in many instances."

After vainly hunting a suitable house for several days a Duluth man has found himself unable to get suitable quarters and has had to domicile himself and family temporarily at one of the hostelries. He thought at one time that he had the very house he wanted, but later decided that fate was merely toying with him, only to give him a severe jolt in the end, leaving him unable to keep up the search. He tells a tale of cruel disappointment in domestic affairs.

On Sunday last he was looking at a rent list and learned of a house for rent within a block of his old place. This was in the neighborhood of his best friends, where he had been located ever since coming to the city, and for this reason he desired particularly to get a house in the old locality. The house that he saw for rent was printed at No. 208 West Windy street, so he started out to look at it, and found it occupied. He rang the door bell and the door was opened by a highly respectable looking man who asked his errand.

"Is this house for rent?" he asked.

"No, sir, it is not."

"Will it be for rent soon?"

"Hardly. We've got a lease on it until April 1, 1905, and unless the unexpected happens we expect to stay here until that time, or longer."

"Well, I saw an ad of a house for rent at No. 208 and this appears to be the number."

"Yes, this is. Oh, I guess the house next door is the place you're looking for, but the folks are away, and you can't get in to see it. It's the exact counterpart of this—hardwood floors, four bedrooms upstairs and a bath. In fact, it is very modern and in every way desirable."

"What is the rent?"

"I believe they ask $35 for it, but I am sure if you go at it right you will get it for less."

"It seems to be a nice house, and if all you say is correct I'd like very well indeed to get it, for it meets my fondest wishes as to what a house should be. Well, I'm much obliged. Good-day."

So he went home and called the house of the agent on the telephone to learn if the house was let, that he might get the refusal of it. The agent was not at home, but his wife was, and she said over the telephone that she believed the house had not yet been taken. In fact, her husband was away from town but she could furnish the name of a gentleman in his office who would know. So the house hunter took the name of the gentlemen and went to see him on Monday morning. The gentleman believed the house was taken. He was sorry. Maybe it might not be, but the owner could tell. Did he know the owner? Yes, he was a tailor at such-and-such an address on Superior street.

The hunter went to the address and found a large and elegant saloon, but no tailor shop. He inquired in the bar if a man of the name of the tailor ever made headquarters in that place or at that address.

The bartender did not know but indicated a man who was just coming in the door as the possible possessor of the information. The hunter asked him, and he replied that he knew the man—knew him very well, in fact.

"Why, that scoundrel used to work for me and I had to kick him out. He own a house. The idea! Why, I run a tailor's repair shop next door here and he was working for me and was such a bum workman that I had to fairly throw him out of my place. Do I know him? Do I? Well, I guess yes. Pretty pass things have come to if people have to rent houses from that fellow. I never thought he was well enough off to own a dog house."

The hero of this adventure was a little unsettled by this explosion, and could not well reconcile the nice house with the ownership of an incompetent journeyman tailor, but was going to persevere. He told where the house was, and the bartender said he had a friend in a saloon across the way who knew the house and might be able to give some information.

Across the way went the would-be renter and inquired of the friend in the other saloon. He knew the house. Knew the renting agents, he said, and then mentioned the name of an agent, not the same one which was first mentioned. This agent, on being called up, said he had been notified on Friday that the house had been rented, but as the advertisement of the house being for rent first appeared in the public prints on Saturday the man who wanted the house was somewhat more puzzled than ever. His conclusions were something like this:

"While I don't know who the owner of the house is, I believe it is for rent, I'd like to have it, but I can't run up against this kind of a sell all the time, even to get a nice house at a low rent. I size it up this way. This fellow who owns the house is poor, in one sense, land poor probably, or house poor—and can ill spare the agent's commission on the rent of his house, but he gets an agent for the reason that he is a shabby kind of cuss and don't want to meet people and give a bad impression of his house. So he puts it in the hands of an agent. Rather, he puts it in the hands of a couple of agents, and he finally gets a grudge at one and wants to get rid of him. He telephones him that the house is rented so as to call him off the deal. Then he leaves it entirely in the hands of the other one, who advertises it in the Saturday paper. It would take a Sherlock Holmes and several Dr. Watsons to untangle this thing to me, if that is not the explanation. But I've given up hunting that house. Every seemingly good bargain usually covers an Ethiopian in the fuel. The next time I see a house for rent I'll call up the agent and let him do all the negotiating."

THE JOKESMITHS.

Judge: St Medders—So they charged ye 25 cents fer yer supper at the church fair?

Josh Whiffletree—Ye-as; they soaked it to me, b'gosh! Why, all I et was some scalloped oysters, an' stuffed veal, an' deviled ham, an' chicken salad, an' pork an' beans, an' a leetle piece o' lemon pie, an' some coffee an' doughnuts an' peacan nuts.

Town Topics: Newrich—A man can get along without ancestors.

Mack—True. But his children can't.

Yonkers Statesmen: Bacon—All the milkmen in town use that bank.

Egbert—That would be a good place to look for chalk deposits, I suppose?

Yonkers Statesman: She—You are like an old rooster. You crow over everything you do. You never hear me crow.

He—No, dear; you only cackle.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "You saw papa?" "Yes." "How did you like him?" "He struck me favorably." "That's better." "How better?" "I believe he kicked the last young man."

Washington Star: "They tell me," said the junior partner, "that the man to whom we have been sending so many bills belongs to a rather fast set."

"Well," answered the senior partner, "he may belong to the fast set, but he's a slow settler."

A certain young man of great gumption

To go—but alack,
He never came back;
They say 'twas a case of consumption.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Wadena Pioneer Journal: The lobbyist is the same the world over. They all practice the same tricks. We have heard that in Minnesota during sessions of recent legislatures members have been known to have large bills slipped into their hands, or left in convenient places about their rooms in the hotel. There have been ugly rumors to the effect that secret conference members have agreed for sums ranging from $500 up to look after the special interests of large public service corporations during the session. Money has been, and will be this year, furnished to elect men to the legislature in this state, and if the people do not defeat these candidates backed by this money, the lobby will own them after their election.

McIntosh Times: The Midway News, a rank Republican sheet, is at least honest in its advice to those Republicans who desire the success of reciprocity and tariff reform measures. It advises them all to get out and stay out of the Republican party. In this, however, it is not seconded by the party bosses. The latter know that without the reform element they would be in a hopeless minority and they therefore feed them on meaningless sops and praise their party loyalty.

Blackduck American: Andrew Carnegie has offered to give half a million dollars to the Roosevelt campaign fund, and more, if necessary. Now the question is will Mr. Roosevelt or his managers accept the offer made by the iron and steel magnate? Will Roosevelt consent to the use of money from this source for campaign purposes? If he does there will be thousands who would otherwise have given him their votes that will be forced to vote for his Democratic opponent. Carnegie may pose as philanthropist and all that but the fact remains that his millions were piled up at the expense of thousands of poor workingmen in his employ and their half starved families and children. President Roosevelt is too shrewd to accept the proffered gift.

Wabasha Herald: Some of our Wisconsin friends, both Democrats and Republicans, are much afraid of a primary election law. They remind us of the boy who refused to take his medicine until his father forced it down his throat. Then he liked it so well that he humbly requested permission to lick the spoon. If Wisconsin will only try a primary election law she will be as much pleased with it as was the small boy with his medicine. It is a law that no state should be without.

Mankato Free Press: Governor Yates refused to interfere and the hanging of the car-barn bandits was proceeded with today. Minnesota's board of pardons should take a lesson from the stand of Governor Yates and hereafter when cold-blooded murderers are sentenced to be hanged, let the punishment be meted out. If there ever were a couplet that should have dangled at the rope's end, the Nelsons are the ones, yet the board of pardons commuted their sentence to life imprisonment, and the state is now forced to support two men who are of no use to themselves or society.

Wright County Times: A liquor exchange asks for one single instance where a town has licensed saloons where the taxes have not been thereby reduced. That is easy. Moorhead pays more taxes and has less improvements than Fargo. East Grand Forks pays more taxes and has less improvements than Grand Forks which has no saloons. Winnebago City, Minnesota, voted in saloons after three dry years and their taxes went up.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Men don't get half as tired of being married as women do of not being.

A man is old when he discovers his wrinkles; a woman when somebody else discovers hers.

A girl calls them stockings when she shows them to another girl, hose when she doesn't to a man.

An optimist is a person who, if he were falling off a ten-story building, would be happy because it wasn't twenty.

THE "HEREDITY" EXCUSE.

Des Moines News: Charles Cerlew, vagrant, pleaded before a Cleveland police judge that his whole life has been cursed by his having been christened in babyhood with whisky.

What small excuses serve some people as a satisfactory justification of their failure!

It's quite the usual thing for a man to pleade that he is a drunkard and a good-for-nothing because his father was such before him.

There's the commonest plea of all—heredity, and it's the silliest.

Ninety-nine drunkards in every hundred will tell you that the taste was forced upon them under some peculiar condition.

The drunkard does not live who at one period of his life had not a natural repugnance to drink and did not, of his own accord and against the protest of his stomach and his better nature, batter down that repugnance and acquire the taste.

This is not denying that there is some force in heredity and more in early training and environment, but it is a force except in rare instances may be overcome or rightly directed.

And out of inherited faults often bloom great virtues. The knowledge that you have a weak spot is reason to guard yourself there—a reason that a man with the right stuff in him will obey.

To one of America's greatest actors was transmitted by his father a double tendency—one for the stage and the other for the bottle. The son cultivated the first and repressed the second and achieved world-wide fame. According to the commonly-accepted notions concerning heredity he should have reversed the order and gone to the gutter.

Heredity is so easy a way for accounting for wrong tendencies that it appeals irresistibly to certain classes of scientific experts" as it does to criminals, drunkards and loafers. Quacks gain repute for profundity by holding forth on "the laws of heredity," as if they were mysterious ukases issued from behind nature's veil which few can understand but none can resist. Nine-tenths of it all is mere tommyrot.

Lots of people who are not criminals, but just morally lazy, plead in defense of their sins that they are "the sum of their ancestors." Thus they derive the comforting but character-rotting conclusion that they are not responsible for their deeds.

Every man, if he be a man at all, is master of his own conduct. Yes, he is master, too, of his own thoughts, purposes, ideals and everything of high importance in the makeup of his character. There is nothing in the world that is more tractable, yet more tractable than the human will. Your will is either your best friend or your worst enemy. By cultivation you can make it which ever you please.

A man may inherit from parents or remoter ancestors a nervous weakness through which he may the more easily acquire taste for alcohol. But in all save one case in a thousand it is strictly true that it lies with the man himself to determine whether he will cultivate that weakness or overcome it. Men are drunkards, not through their father's drinking, but through their own.

CLERGUE AND HIS AID.

Toronto Star: After quoting a paragraph from this paper in which the optimism and never-say-die qualities of F. H. Clergue were commended, the Ottawa Citizen says: "In other words, Mr. Clergue, having exhausted his resources in working the public for money, and brought to the end of his tether, has succeeded, or expects to succeed, in the forlorn hope of working the Ross government for $2,000,000 to keep the ball rolling awhile longer."

Our readers will probably remember that in the hey-day of the Soo Industries the Star was not at all conspicuous among newspapers in its adulation of Mr. Clergue. Most of the daily newspapers outstripped us in praising "the magician of the Soo." He had the support of a fine press chorus while he occupied the center of the stage as a wizard of business and a worker of industrial miracles, but we doubt if the press of the country ever showed greater fickleness in anything than in the way they rounded on this man—passing from the extreme of adulation to the extreme of censure in a month, because, for reasons beyond his control—a phenomenal condition of the money market—his great enterprises were brought to a standstill.

It is plain enough to every seeing eye that the big steel trust in the United States has its knife out for the Soo Industries, and is largely responsible for the obstacles that have been thrown in Mr. Clergue's way in attempting to reorganize the business. It is plain enough, too, that the resumption of business at the Soo is a matter of the utmost importance to New Ontario. It is also quite evident that the $2,000,000 loan that the government proposes to guarantee will be amply secured, and cannot possibly be lost to the province. If this guarantee could have been given without its being made a matter of party politics, the whole country would have approved it.

MORE CARE NEEDED

Too Much Negligence Shown By Administrators of Estates.

Judge Middlecoff Has Many Instances of This Recently.

The lack of knowledge of the law, or carelessness in following it out to the letter, on the part of administrators of estates, has been a source of considerable annoyance to the St. Louis county probate court.

The law provides that administrators shall make certain reports to the probate judge regarding the moneys in their possession and the disposition of the property they are administering. Under the law they have no right to make a sale of property in their charge without first getting an order from the court.

In the past some administrators have neglected to comply with the provisions of the law and it has been necessary for the court to cite them to appear and make accountings.

The station has not been made, as a rule, with a view that the court has an idea that the affairs are not being properly administered, but because the responsibility of the appointment of the administrator rests on the court, and the law provides that he shall know at regular intervals just how matters stand.

Probate Judge Middlecoff says that there have been a number of instances in the past year where he has been compelled cite the administrator to appear, or to make a proper accounting, and to avoid that trouble in the future he is impressing on all new administrators, now being appointed, the necessity of carefully following out the instructions laid down by the state law.

This negligence to report has developed an occasional case in the past where the administrator has allowed the affairs of the estate over which he has charge to become badly entangled and it has threatened trouble for him in another court.

FAY IDENTIFIED.

Two Men Recognize the Postoffice Robber.

Eddie Fay, who was a few days ago arrested in Chicago on suspicion of being implicated in the Superior postoffice robbery last fall, has been identified by David Doble and A. Williams, of Hawthorne, as one of the three men who stopped at that place the morning following the robbery. Flaherty and Dennis, the other two men in the party, were captured on a South Shore train at Ishpeming after a fight with the officers, but Fay escaped.

Fay is credited with having assisted Flaherty to make his escape from Dane county, Wis., jail not long ago. Flaherty, it is said, has been seen in Chicago since his escape, but he has thus far eluded the officers.

SUPERIOR IS KICKING

Claims Range Towns Send Destitute People to That City.

The Superior authorities are protesting at what they claim is an attempt of the range towns to get rid of their paupers by sending them to the Wisconsin city to be supported. The case that has brought the matter to their attention is that of William Joyce and family, who are now being cared for at police headquarters in Superior until the poor commissioner can make arrangements for their care in the future.

The Joyce family, it is claimed, formerly lived at Virginia, where the father was employed as a miner. When the mines closed down he was thrown out of work and his family became destitute. It is alleged that the Virginia authorities told Joyce he could probably get work in Superior, and they furnished transportation for himself and family to get rid of them.

Mrs. Joyce has an infant child six months old and the father has been making an unsuccessful effort to procure work.

The Superior authorities say that this sending of destitute people to their city from the range is getting to be a practice with the range town authorities, and they intend to take steps to have it stopped.

SETTLERS ARE ASTONISHED

By Drastic Order of the Secretary of the Interior.

Cass Lake, Minn., April 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Consternation reigned among those who had made settlements on the Chippewa lands, in anticipation of their opening, when they read the drastic order of the secretary of the interior, published Saturday. They had fully believed that their settement rights would be protected, especially as neither the Nelson act nor the Morris law prohibited settlement on the lands prior to the opening of the lands. They were, of course, aware of the fact that technically they obtained no rights against the government, but relied upon a long line of decisions of other secretaries that even if settlements should be established on reserved lands, the settler's rights attached the moment the reservation was removed.

The settlers, in this case, had gone on the land with the honest intention of making the several tracts their homes. Two of the settlers had under construction very substantial buildings; all had structures which would answer their immediate needs, and which had been built for the purpose of making more substantial buildings. Some had already prepared the grounds for crops and gardens. To all of these it will be a useless and uncalled for hardship to pull down or remove their buildings. It seems to them that they are following nothing but the professed policy of the government to establish bona fide homesteaders on the public lands. They ask, what reasonableness is it in requiring a long line of men (and frequently women) to stand for days waiting for the land office doors to open in order that they may obtain filings, when settlers can go quietly on the lands and select a piece, and, finding the same unoccupied, establish a residence thereon?

STITCHED HEART, ALL RIGHT.

Philadelphia, April 26.—Thomas Emerson, a negro whose heart was pierced by a penknife nearly two months go, has recovered after undergoing the operation of having the wound stitched, and has been discharged from Jefferson hospital. The operation was a delicate one, and is the third successful case of the kind ever performed in this country.

Miss Alice Bailey, of Atlanta, Ga., escaped the surgeon's knife, by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to express my gratitude for the restored health and happiness Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought into my life.

"I had suffered for three years with terrible pains at the time of menstruation, and did not know what the trouble was until the doctor pronounced it inflammation of the ovaries, and proposed an operation.

"I felt so weak and sick that I felt sure that I could not survive the ordeal, and so I told him that I would not undergo it. The following week I read an advertisement in the paper of your Vegetable Compound in such an emergency, and so I decided to try it. Great was my joy to find that I actually improved after taking two bottles, so I kept taking it for ten weeks, and at the end of that time I was cured. I had gained eighteen pounds and was in excellent health, and am now.

"You surely deserve great success, and you have my very best wishes."—Miss ALICE BAILEY, 50 North Boulevard, Atlanta, Ga. —$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

All sick women would be wise if they would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and be well.

A FROZEN MAIN

Michigan Street Water Pipe Frosted For 250 Feet.

Street at This Point Freezes to an Unusual Depth.

About 250 feet of the six-inch water main on Michigan street east of Garfield avenue has been found frozen. The pipe was uncovered yesterday by a crew from the water and light department, the work being conducted off and on for some days past.

Although the pipe was frozen for such a long distance, it was found that only one or two pieces at the most had cracked and would have to be replaced.

The West Michigan street main, just uncovered, was laid about four years ago. It was laid nine feet deep at places, but the street just east of Garfield avenue is a filled street, that is, it was built up for some twenty to thirty feet with large and small rocks and earth. From the very nature of the filling the frost has penetrated deeper than in other sections where the water pipes are covered with earth, entirely. The average depth of the frost in other parts of the city has only been four or five feet, the water pipes being laid, as a general rule, seven feet deep.

The only other frozen main that the department has had this winter was the short six-inch pipe running down Lake avenue from First street to the alley and ending in the hydrant in the alley. This pipe froze up because it had a "dead end," there being no circulation of water except when the hydrant was opened.

The electrical thawing apparatus has not been used on the West Michigan street frozen main for the reason that it has not been completed by the lumber transformer, such as is used in such cases.

The department tried the apparatus on the Lake avenue main as a test, although it was not expected that it would do the work that it would on a service pipe and the expectations were realized. The thawing machine has only one 25-kilowatt transformer on it now, this being sufficient for thawing out service pipes. If it becomes necessary to use it on frozen mains another 20 or 25-kilowatt transformer will be added to the equipment, at a cost not exceeding $85 and a current will easily be procured to thaw out any sized main used in the city.

The thawing apparatus has thawed out forty-one service pipes at a cost, to place the highest figure, not to exceed $5 per pipe, or $246 for the entire work.

The records of the department on past work shows that the average cost of thawing the forty-one pipes by the old methods of digging them up and using steam, would have been $20 apiece, at a conservative calculation, or a total cost of $820. According to this figuring the machine has not only paid its original cost, something less than $600, but it has paid for itself several times over.

The predicted opposition by the council to the department's bill for the thawing machine, did not develop for the claim was accepted without any comment.

ILLINOIS SHAFT STRAIGHTENED.

New York, April 26.—A delicate and difficult piece of work—that of straightening the shaft of the battleship Illinois, bent in collision recently with the Missouri—has been completed at the New York navy yard. It was believed when the battleship arrived at the yard that the shaft could not be straightened, and that a new one would have to be put in.

WILL PREPARE EXPLANATION

Aldermen Disturbed By Herald's Recent Report of Proceedings.

Award of East Superior Street Contract Is Confirmed.

The council last evening:

Appointed a committee to explain stand taken on the removal of a house of ill-repute.

Confirmed award of contract for paving of East Superior street to P. McDonnell.

Cancelled Second street assessment and discontinued improvement.

Awarded contract for ferry service to steamer Carrington.

Directed water board to furnish list of contemplated changes in water mains.

The aldermen who voted in favor of allowing the removal of a building from one location to another on St. Croix avenue, the effect of it being to permit a woman whom Chief Troyer gives a very bad reputation, to increase her facilities for pandering to the immoral tendencies, have been very wrathy at The Herald for giving a report of what was done at the meeting of a week ago, and at the meeting last week brought the matter up.

It had been rumored during the week that The Herald would be given a vote of censure. Just what that would be, has not been explained, and cooler heads probably prevailed, for the action taken last evening was simply to appoint a committee to set forth the defense of the aldermen. This, of course, The Herald will be glad to publish.

Alderman J. A. Waugh, who has served some six weeks in the council, desired to have The Herald excluded from the privilege of reporting the proceedings of the council, because, he claimed, the report was unfair and biased, but none of the other aldermen seemed to be ready to apply the rule that the reports of proceedings must be as the aldermen think they ought to.

As to the report of the proceedings published last week, it may be stated here that the claim of the aldermen that they were simply passing upon the question of whether a building within the fire limits should be allowed to be moved from one location to another is technically correct.

That another question was involved was recognized by several of the aldermen, who made inquiry of the chief of police as to the character of the woman who would thereby be permitted to enlarge her business.

The Herald will say now what it did not before, that it was possible for an alderman to take cognizance of the purpose for which the removal was sought, or to content himself with seeing only the technical question, just as he saw fit.

* * *

The matter came up on the introduction of the following resolution by Alderman Barnes:

"Whereas, one of the daily papers, in reporting the council proceedings, assigned to the members of this body motives far different from the intent of said members in voting permission for the moving of a frame building inside of the fire limits;

"It is resolved that the president of the council appoint a committee of three to prepare a statement relative to said permit, and request the said paper, The Duluth Evening Herald, to publish the same, in order that no misapprehension may exist in the minds of the people of the city as to the import of the action taken by the council."

The explanation of the aldermen will be that the council is the legislative body of the city only, and has nothing to do with the affairs of the executive body, which is the police department. They claim that the only question they had to consider was whether or not the the risk was increased by the removal of the building. Such, in short, was the substance of the speech made by Alderman Barnes in moving the resolution.

"To my mind," he said, "it was simply a question of whether a building should be moved within the fire limits or not. As far as I was concerned I did not believe any moral issue was involved or I would have voted differently."

Alderman Chesney stated that he held the same opinions as Alderman Barnes and the others for the manner in which their votes had been misunderstood. "I believe the aldermen who voted for the resolution voted honestly and in accordance with their convictions," he said.

"I have always taken the position," said Alderman McEwen "that the council is not an administrative body, but only a legislative. All the council could do was to discuss it from the standpoint of the fire risk."

Alderman Waugh was more belligerent. He even advocated the exclusion of the members of the press from the council chamber if they gave such reports of the council proceedings in future. He was highly indignant over the proceedings and expressed himself in very forcible terms.

"I have read this report in the paper," he said, fingering a copy of last Tuesday's Herald, "and to my mind this motion is not severe enough. If reporters cannot give an account of the proceedings without bias, they should not be allowed to appear on the floor of the council chamber."

The motion was finally put to vote and passed without opposition. President Haven will therefore appoint a committee to prepare a paper giving the explanation of the aldermen for voting for the moving of the house in question.

Alderman Sang caused no little merriment among those present in the council chamber by referring to the motion as an attempt on the part of some of the aldermen to "apologize for their votes."

All doubt as to the intentions in regard to this house were set at rest by the testimony given by Lulu Marks, in the municipal court yesterday. She was arrested on the charge of being a common prostitute, and during the course of her examination she stated that she had been making arrangements with Madam Gain, the present owner of the house, to use it as a colored resort after it had been moved.

P. McDonnell, the local contractor, was awarded the contract for the paving of East Superior street with tar macadam. The old curb is to be redressed and new Kettle River sandstone added wherever it is needed. The whole is to be set in concrete, and the sewer and water connections are to be made to the curb. The bid of Contractor McDonnell was $40,592.58. This does not include the cost of the sewer and water connections.

The contract was awarded without opposition. It was expected that a fight might be made by some of the supporters of creosote blocks, or those who advocated the readvertising of bids, but the board of public works submitted its report awarding the contract to Mr. McDonnell, and it was confirmed without discussion or opposition.

The council discontinued the Second street improvement and ordered the assessment to be cancelled. The water and light board was also requested to make the necessary changes in the Second street mains and report to the council what other changes are necessary this year in the water mains of the city, together with an estimate of the cost of such charges.

"The assessment might be continued from month to month," said Alderman Moore, "but it is only fair to the property owners that some definite steps should be taken. Many of them would use the money set aside for the assessment for other purposes and it would be a hardship on them to allow the matter to drag along."

* * *

The contract for the ferry service to Park Point for the summer months was awarded to Charles F. Hartman, who will operate the steamer Carrington. City Attorney Bert Fesler submitted an opinion in regard to the power of the council to award a contract to any but the lowest bidder. He stated that other things could be taken into consideration in addition to the actual price.

In accordance with this report the council awarded the contract to the Carrington. The price will be $30 per day, and the contract can be terminated on fifteen days' notice.

The aldermen committed themselves to the erection of a dock in West Duluth at the foot of Ramsay street. The council committeee was asked to make a provision for the cost of the dock, which will be $7557, in making its award to the different civic funds next fall.

* * *

On a resolution introduced by Aldermen Schaffer, Barnes and Harker, members of the committee on railroads, telephones and telegraph lines, the council agreed not to insist on the double-tracking of any of the lines of the street railway company in West Duluth during the years of 1904 and 1905, or to insist on any further additions in 1904, if the company would extend the Grand avenue line to Seventy-first avenue this summer. The motion was carried and the matter will be taken up with the officials of the street railway. It is in accordance with the understanding arrived at in the recent conference with the officials of the company.

The armory board requested the city to again assume control of the armory, and operate it under the state laws governing such buildings. The armory board has paid all the expenses of maintenance since November, 1899, and has had in return the privilege of renting the hall on the nights when it was not used for drill purposes. The addition of the naval reserves cuts down the number of nights it can be rented, and the board would operate it at a loss. The matter was referred to the proper committee.

* * *

Alderman McEwen introduced a motion calling for a Saturday half holiday for the employes in the different offices in the city hall from the first Saturday in May to the last Saturday in September inclusive. He stated that he was in favor of the movement to secure the Saturday half holiday during the summer months and he believed the city should do all in its power to encourage it. The motion carried.

* * *

The following appointments as poundmasters were announced by Mayor Cullum: First district, Michael Moore; second district, Chris Ottinger, fourth district, Thomas Garden; fifth district, Clarence Freeburg.

* * *

Mayor O'Hare and Alderman Hislop, of Superior, were present at the meeting, and on a motion by Alderman Barnes their presence was noted on the records, and they were asked to address the council. Mayor O'Hara made a brief address of thanks for the welcome, on behalf of himself and his companion.

* * *

Alderman Waugh introduced a resolution authorizing City Comptroller McCormick to attend the meeting of the National Municipal league in Chicago at an expense of not to exceed $40.

* * *

City Engineer McGilvray submitted plans for the concrete approaches to the ferry bridge and asked the council to make provision for the necessary expenditure from the permanent improvement fund. The cost will be about $800. The matter was referred to the proper committee.

* * *

Alderman Sang made a fight for some extra lights in West Duluth and the following new lights were finally ordered: Grand avenue and Fifty-sixth; Grand avenue and Fifty-eighth; Fifty-seventh avenue and the railroad right-of-way, Twenty-third avenue and London road, Twenty-first avenue east and Superior street, Sixteenth avenue east and Second street, Superior street and Fifteenth avenues east.

COMPANY DISSOLVED.

New York and Nevada Goes Out of Business.

New York, April 26.—An order has been entered by Vice Chancellor Pitney, in Jersey City, dissolving the New York and Nevada Copper company. The company became involved about two years ago and two receivers were appointed, one in New Jersey, the other in New York. The liabilities were placed at $155,000. The assets, consisting of the mines and plant in Nevada, were sold by the receivers for $400,000.

Frank McDermott, counsel for creditors, to whom he said the company still owed about $75,000, objected to the dissolution, but the vice chancellor said the receivers had ample funds to meet these claims.

MONEY SYNDICATE DISSOLVES.

New York, April 26.—Preparations are being made to wind up the affairs of the stock conversion syndicate of the United States Steel corporation, the life of which dates back to April 1, 1902. It expires by limitation July 1 next, but is likely to be wound up May 1. Since Nov. 19 last, when the operations of the syndicate were terminated and the agreement with J. P. Morgan & Co. was cancelled, syndicate members have been awaiting news of the dissolution. The last work of the syndicate was to handle the $250,000,000 bond issue of the corporation.

NEW YORK BREWERY FAILS.

New York, April 26.—One of the oldest breweries in this city, The John Kress company, has been placed in a receiver's hands with estimated liabilities of $800,000 and assets of about $900,000. It was stated by the petitioners, that the company is short of ready money and cannot meet its obligations, owing to general dullness of business and inability to make collections. The brewery was established in 1853.

FRIGHTENED TO DEATH

Negro's Death Is the Result of Brutal Jest.

Hamburg, Iowa, April 26.—John C. Goodlow, an old negro, was the victim of a fiendish practical joke perpetrated by a number of young bloods a few nights ago. All of the participants maintain a discreet silence about the affair, and the victim was buried with a certificate from the coroner's jury that death was due to "natural causes."

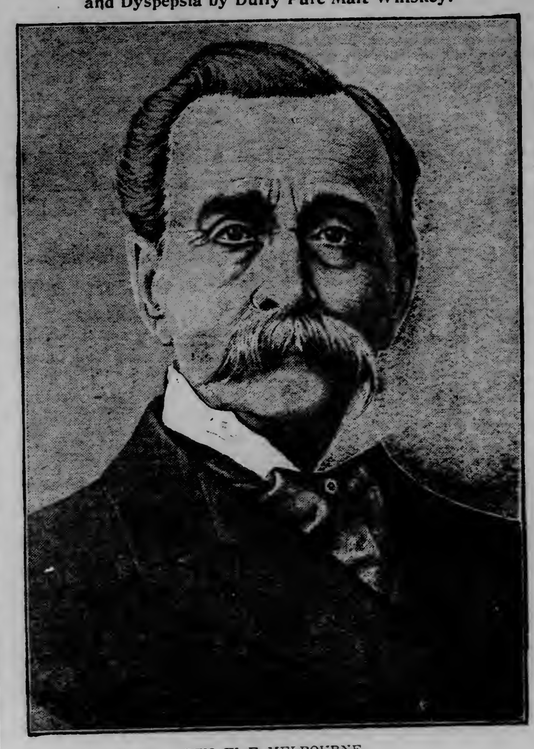

It has, however, leaked out that Goodlow came to his death as the result of tortures and torments at the hands of his white companions in an orgie. The affair was intended as a joke. Goodlow was accused of some imaginary crime and the jokers proceeded to mete out to him the punishment which they pretended he deserved. After tying him with ropes and nailing his feet to a board, he was covered with wood and shavings and a kerosened rag placed near his nose so that he would get the smell. A bucket of water, which the victim was informed was oil, was thrown over him and preparations were made to apply the torch and the old man ceased his cries. Then the jesting ceased. The jokers realized their fun had been carried too far. They removed the debris and began to untie the negro.

When it was discovered that he was dead he was quietly carried away and dumped in a corn crib, where he was found the next day.

The tragedy was enacted across the Missouri line near what is known as the state line saloon, the proprietor of which has disappeared from the neighborhood.

Noted Indian Fighter and War Veteran

Gen. W. F. Melbourne, Famous Indian Fighter and Mexican War Campaigner, Tells of His Wonderful Cure of Indigestion and Dyspepsia by Duffy Pure Malt Whiskey.

GEN. W. F. MELBOURNE.

"I am an old campaigner, veteran of the war with Mexico, the several campaigns against the Indians on the frontier, the expedition for the suppression of the Free State and pro-slavery imbroglio in Kansas, 1856; the Utah Expedition (Mormon rebellion), 1857, and the Civil War. Was also engaged in the late war with Spain.

I enjoyed general good health until some months ago, when I suffered from a severe attack of stomach trouble, dyspepsia and indigestion. I tried many so-called 'cures' without relief. Upon the recommendation of an old comrade, I was induced to take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and used it right along. My health is now good and indigestion a memory of the past. I find it invigorating and rejuvenating in a very marked degree and cordially commend it especially to those getting along in years." W. F. MELBOURNE, Sec. Nat. ## "GHOST DOG" DEAD.

Boy's Pranks Cost Death of Valuable Mastiff.

Chicago, April, April 26.—George P. Macklin, of 1834 Jackson boulevard, has lost his valuable mastiff because a number of boys in his neighborhood persisted in making a "ghost dog" of him. The mastiff, which was of gigantic size, and weighed 180 pounds, was enticed away from the home of Mr. Macklin and night after night the boys would smear his head and face with phosporescent paste and then turn him loose on the streets. So many complaints were made to the police of the number of children frightened by the "ghost dog" that officers were sent out to hunt the animal. The climax came last night when a neighbor of Mr. Macklin reported that his six-year-old daughter had been thrown into convulsions by the sight of the animal. The officers hurried out after the dog and shot him. They are now looking for the boys who painted him.

IN WOMAN'S SPHERE

Social, Musical and Art Circles.

After the last program of the Matinee Musicale year, held yesterday at Temple Recital hall, the annual business meeting was held, at which the officers for the ensuing year were elected. They were chosen as follows: President, Miss Jack; vice president, Miss Mary Bradshaw; recording secretary, Miss Berenice Crowley; corresponding secretary, Miss Carlotta Simonds; treasurer, Miss Winifred Holmes; librarian, Mrs. Percy A. Gough.

Three directors for a term of two years were elected as follows: Mrs. John Millen, Mrs. J. A. Stephenson and Mrs. Emily Woodward. Miss Mildred Cleland was elected a director for one year.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read, showing the club in a prosperous condition considering the disadvantages it has worked under during the year. A neat little sum is in the treasury with which to begin next year's work.

Changes in the constitution and by-laws were voted upon which will enable the work of the society to be carried on in a more satisfactory way. An amendment was adopted by which the constitution of the club may be changed, a provision which was overlooked when the constitution was drawn up. The annual business meeting will be held immediately following the last program of the year, instead of the third Monday of April.

The question of whether the tickets of associate members should or should not be transferrable has been a mooted one since the organization of the club. They have not been transferrable up to this time, but yesterday a change was adopted, whereby an associate ticket belonging to a member who is to be out of the city for two months or longer, may be transferred to one other person, who is to be registered with the secretary of the society. The ticket may be returned to the original purchaser after a period of two months.

Another question which has been much disputed is the admittance of outsiders to the artists' concerts, given by the club during the year. Heretofore no one but members have been admitted. This year, owing to this rule, the society was able to bring only one outside artist, whereas, if they might have sold tickets to outsiders another outside artist might have been brought. A change was also instituted, that outsiders might be admitted to the artists' concerts at the discretion of the board.

The program yesterday afternoon was a request program, and was thoroughly delightful. The first number was the fine "March Heroique," by Saint-Saens, played splendidly by Miss Rogers, Miss Simonds, Mrs. J. A. Stephenson and Miss Cleland. Mrs. James F. Walsh, who is always heard with delight, sang two dainty numbers, "Autumn Sadness," by Nevin, and "Thou Art Like Unto a Flower," by Rubenstein. Both were sung in clear and beautiful tones, with artistic interpretation. Mrs. Woodward was the other soloist of the afternoon, and she sang "When Celia Sings," by Moir, and Nevin's "'Twas April," charmingly. Miss Jack played Rhapsodie in G. Minor, by Brahms, in a musicianly manner, and for an encore a "Marionette," by Poldini.

The last number was one of the best heard at the meetings this year. It was a suite by Olson, consisting of five numbers, "Devil's Dance," "Mazurka," "Serenade," "Humoresque," and "Butterfly," played by Mrs. A. B. Ross with an orchestral accompaniment by Miss Rogers. The composition was typical of the music of the composer's country, and each number was an ideal of its kind. The performers played as one person, and the number roused enthusiasm among the musicians.

This was the last meeting of the year, but during the summer the board will be busy laying out the work for the coming year, which will commence the first Monday in October.

LUNCHEON AT NORMAL.

Domestic Science Department Entertains Women.

At one o'clock today the members of the Women's Council were entertained at luncheon at the Normal school by the domestic science class of the school. It was through the efforts of the council that the department was established in the school, which is the only one in the state with a domestic science department. The class has reached the end of its course and the luncheon today was prepared and served by the members. Once before has the clas entertained when the faculty of the school were dined.

About twenty-five of the council members were guests and the luncheon which was so daintily prepared and served was ample reward for their ceaseless efforts for so many months to make the department possible. Miss Eaton is in charge of the department and her work has been most satisfactory and efficient.

FASHIONS IN HATS.

Effect of War Found In These Creations.

"Silently one by one in their infinite variety of colors Blossom the lovely hats, the forget-me-nots of the milliners."

Apparently they appear silently. One day one sees a friend garbed in the dull hallments of winter and the hat seems in a way the worst offender of all. Old, rusty, out of shape—it is impossible, utterly impossible. This all appears one day and the next—low, new, chic, smart, bright, spring-like is the new hat.

But silence has been the smallest part in its product for the talk that has preceded the final decision of that hat, is something not of small quantity. Should it be a torpedo or a colonial shape, blue, brown, or high; trimmed with flowers, or ribbons, or quills, and so on ad infinitum. The rich fortunate milliner, the poor unfortunate family must all listen to these questions and when a tuscan stray in a torpedo shape is decided upon with quills and ribbons and peace reigns, then suddenly it breaks out again and they have it all over again just because of a little tuft of grass.

Although the weather is not causing suffering for the want of hats, they are coming out one by one. It was suggested the other day that Duluth had perfectly ideal spring weather as far as the feminine portion of the city went. If you had your pretty spring things, wear them for it is the time of year appropriate. If you haven't them wear your winter ones with the consciousness that you are dressing appropriately according to the weather.

The spring hats are lovely as they always are. The effect of the war is apparent in the shapes, the names themselves are stirring and warlike. The torpedo shape is popular. It is the exact shape of a torpedo boat. One may accept the milliner's statement for that, for one girl in fifty dosn't know the shape of a torpedo from a whale back. The name and shape may be warlike, but the dainty decidely feminine materials used in their make up are a far cry from the blusterous name of the shape.

The colonial is another popular shape although it has been seen in other seasons but it has a jauntiness all its own. It offers little protection from the sun's rays and that will be a drawback to the girl who has freckles, and then, too, it has been seen in the late winter shapes. Other hats that are not military in shape are seen with a bit of gold braid that gives the war like touch. Red appears on many of the early hats and it has a bright spring-like look. But later in the year it is too hot and those who wear their first hat through the summer must take that into consideration. The latitude given in choosing a hat is almost endless so that one's own hat may be an individual creation. With these days of rather spring like sunshine the hats will appear more quickly and when no more winter hats are seen spring has surely arrived.

Man, Poor Man.

Man is a creature—
Of vast honesty.
Of straightforwardness.
Of impetuosity.
Of little sense where woman is concerned.
Of queer taste in amusements and pleasure.
Who loves to domineer.
Who thinks he has a right to be imperious.
Who fancies he was foreordained to rule.
Of more honor than most women ever know.
Too often ruled by his appetites.
Who never relishes a joke at his own expense.
Who seldom gets the worth of his money.
Who secretly admires the tenets of Brigham Young.
Who is a great lover of variety, whether in food, in amusements, in sweethearts.
Who can keep a secret perfectly.

PROPOSAL BY GIRL

To the Man Who Rescued Her In a Blizzard.

They Meet After Many Years and Get Married.

Chicago, April 26.—Of all the strange romances that come out of the boundless West, one of the oddest is that which recently culminated in Kanab, Utah.

Ten years ago, when Rose Farley was a little girl and George Blair was a herder on her father's ranch, Rose went for a long walk and was overtaken by a blizzard and lost. All of the cowboys searched for her. The afternoon and the wintry night passed without a trace of the child.

The next forenoon the search was resumed. Toward noon the searchers came to the bank of the Muddy river, then frozen over, and crossed to the opposite shore. There they found the tracks of a horse in the snow. The tracks led to a nearby hill, in which they found a cave, extending back twenty yards. As the men peered inside they noticed smoke coming out of the rear of the tunnel. Seated at a fire was George Blair. Lying on an improvised bed of sagebrush was the missing child asleep.

When the father and the other men crowded into the cave, Blair told his story. Leaving the others the night before, he took a course parallel with the river for some distance and then made for the bank of the stream. At a point where the bank reached a height of 15 or 20 feet his horse stopped and whinnied. Blair dismounted, slid down the bank, and there he found Rose Farley unconscious and with a broken collar bone. Breaking the ice in the river, George obtained water and succeeded in reviving the little girl. By this time the storm was at its height. They were only partially sheltered under the bank of the river. To carry the child home or his horse with her broken collar bone was out of the question.

Blair knew of the cave and, carrying the child across the river, he placed her in its shelter. He built a fire and then, with the crude surgery known to men of the ranges, he managed to set the collar bone and bind it in place. The operation was painful, but the rancher's daughter bore it like a heroine. Then, exhausted and hungry, the child lay down by the fire and went to sleep.

Since that time George Blair and the little girl he saved from the blizzard had seen little of each other until a few months ago. George was working most of the years across the Arizona line.

On the first day of the new year Blair paid the Farley ranch another visit. They chatted about old days and looked at some old photographs. Pointing at the likeness of Rose, taken when she was 8 or 10 years old, Blair remarked laughingly, "I was once fond of that little girl."

"And I was once fond of that young man," she retorted, displaying an old photograph of her rescuer. "And what's more," she continued, blushing rosily, "I think I'm still fond of him—this is leap year, you know, and—George—let's get married." And they did.

BURNS THE STUFF.

Sheriff Butchart Destroys Gambling Apparatus.

With the courthouse employes as interested spectators at the windows, yesterday afternoon, Sheriff Butchart made a bonfire in the courtyard that was very costly in its nature for the reason that the fuel consisted of two inlaid roulette wheels, two craps tables and a bookmaker's table, all valued at about $200.

The conflagration took place at the order of Judge Ensign before whom a hearing was had last Saturday morning for the disposition of the gambling devices.

The tables and wheels were brought from one of the range towns, where they were taken out of a saloon last fall, the operator being fined $200 in the September term of court.

The men who are said to own the gambling appliances never appeared to claim them so that County Attorney McClintock had smooth sailing when he asked for their destruction by order of the court.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Same Brand Will Not Do For Horses and Cattle.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Pierre—The state brand commission has adopted a rule which will be of interest to the users of brands. By the new rule the same brand for both cattle and horses will not be accepted. The reason for this change is that it causes great confusion when the same brand is used on both classes of stock, and the owner sells the one class alone, with the brand in several such cases there have been disputes over the right to use the best policy to refuse to register the same brand for both classes of stock.

Dr. C. M. Young, of the state university, who has been director of the National Educational association for South Dakota, has resigned, and State Superintendent G. W. Nash has been selected to fill the place.

The state educational department will recommend that eighth grade examinations be held on uniform dates in the different counties. Superintendent G. W. Nash is conferring with county superintendents as to the best date.

The trains which carried the excursion crowds this week brought about 250 land seekers to this city.

Aberdeen—Five thousand Mexican cattle are being shipped through here to the Canadian Northwest over the Milwaukee road. The animals are from the districts in Old Mexico where the drought is most severe, and they are terribly emaciated.

Eight hundred animals were unloaded here for feeding and held for a week on account of washouts on the Canadian Pacific. Over 100 died, being too weak to recuperate.

The casting of lots for alderman of the Third ward in Aberdeen to decide the tie between the Democratic and Republican candidates, resulted in Wood Harrington, Democrat, winning over I. D. Davies. This makes the council five Republicans to three Democrats. Alderman Zirbes, of the Third ward, has resigned. He will be chief of police under Mayor Aldrich.

Volga—Much building is being done and there is talk of more later on. Byron Pay is building a $3000 residence. John Hall two ten-room cottages for rent, and George Williams a nine-room house. C. W. Smith has let the contract for a two-story block to be built of brick and stone. The lower story will be used for a drug store.

Mrs. Huff, wife of a farmer, fell on a defective walk near the station and has brought suit against the Northwestern Railroad company for damages.

Thomas Dahl died after an illness of a few days. He lived for many years in this vicinity and was highly respected. He leaves an aged wife and two children.

Wessington Springs—Chris. Gleim died of diabetes. He was a native of Germany, serving in the war of 1866 against Prussia, and in the war of 1870 against France.

J. H. Collins has sold his lumber yard to an old line company of Minneapolis, the transfer to take place May 1.

A lawn tennis club has been formed with the following officers: President, J. W. F. Davies; vice president, Dr. Wetherell; secretary, W. F. Bancroft; treasurer, H. Gregory.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Pembina—The Red river is still rising. The Tongue river, about four miles from here, has overflowed its banks and hundreds of acres are covered with water. Bathgate has two feet of water on its streets from this river. A serious flood from the Red is not expected, but the water will be two feet higher before it begins to recede. The country is very wet and the land will not be in condition to seed for several weeks.

QUEER LOSS OF BALANCE

Trifle Believed to Have Upset Nels Ekstedt's Mind.

Probate Judge Middlecoff has written to the authorities at the state insane asylum making a suggestion which if acted on he believes will have a beneficial effect on Nels Ekstedt, of Brevator, who was a few days ago committed to the institution.

Last January Ekstedt brought an insane man to Duluth, named Adolph Holer. At that time he signed a statement for his fees. Ever since he signed the paper he has been worrying for fear that it would get him into trouble as he did not seem to understand that he was merely following out the usual custom in such cases.

Judge Middlecoff has suggested that Ekstedt be allowed to see Holer and that the significance of the paper be explained to him. It is thought that the scheme may, to some measure, take away the worry and Ekstedt will soon recover his mental balance.

BAY STATE DEMOCRATS

Holding District Conventions to Elect National Delegates.

Boston, April 26.—Democratic conventions will be held in all the fourteen congressional districts of this state today to elect two delegates from each district to the national convention. Ten of the conventions are to be called in the afternoon, while the remainder, those in the Eighth, Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh districts, the so-called Boston districts, are arranged for this evening. The friends of Richard Olney claim that the delegates chosen must vote for Mr. Olney at St. Louis for the presidential nomination, inasmuch as the state convention passed resolutions making this obligatory. On the other hand the advocates of Hearst, led by George Fred Williams, declare that the action of the state convention is binding in no way upon the district conventions. The Hearst men have predicted that a majority of their delegates would be elected today. The friends of Olney make a similar claim.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Millions of Gallons of Water Raised From Vulcan Mine.

Iron Mountain—The bottom of the fifteenth level of the West Vulcan mine at Vulcan, after twenty-nine days of continuous pumping, has been brought to view. This mine was flooded several months ago and three levels with all their vast openings, some of them 300 feet long, were filled with water.

For some time no attempt was made to do more than hold the water to the twelfth level and in the meantime additional boilers were installed and a long list of pumps, some thirty in number, instituted for effective work.

Boilers developing 1400 horse power were fed coal at the rate of ninety tons a day and millions of gallons of water have been raised to the surface.

The normal flow of water before the flooding was 650 gallons a minute. Now it is at least 2100 gallons a minute.

Antonio Geravaglia, aged 35, fell down the Hamilton shaft of Chapin mine, a distance of 150 feet, and was killed almost instantly. He was a miner.

The worst log jam in years at Sturgeon Falls, near Vulcan, has been broken after five days of hard labor by a large crew of men. The danger is yet to be averted, for should there be a spring freshet and a heavy rush of water the immense mass of logs extending over a mile in length and all frozen together might be carried like an avalanche over the falls down the river, carrying with it the dams and other property.

Menominee—The merchants of Menominee have signed an agreement to buy no goods of any kind from traveling men who do not stop at Menominee hotels while transacting business in this city. Heretofore a large percentage of the traveling men who came to Menominee and Marinette have stopped at Marinette hotels.

The city of Menominee has engaged the services of Dr. Floyd Davis, an expert biologist of Des Moines, to make a thorough examination of the water furnished by the Menominee Water company, a private concern. He will fit up temporary laboratories and will be here about twenty days. There has been much typhoid fever and it is thought it is due to impure water.

Calumet—William Klokas has arrived in Calumet after walking every foot of the 2361 miles between Mass City and San Francisco. This wonderful feat of pedestrianism was not accomplished on a wager, but because of dire necessity. He was in search of work and only succeeded in obtaining it here. He followed the railroad track all the way.

Sault Ste. Marie—President Cornelius Shields of the Consolidated Lake Superior company says the steel plant will be ready for operation as soon as navigation opens.

DULUTH PROOF

H. Pierson, of 924 Third street east, a carpenter by trade, says: "For two years I was troubled with kidney complaint, and while not severe enough to lay me up, it affected my entire system and I felt generally run down. There was an extreme weakness of the kidneys and the secretions were very irregular. I tried a number of different remedies and took a lot of medicines, but nothing seemed suited to my case. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills very highly recommended and being advised to try them, I procured a box at a drug store. I had not taken them long before I was satisfied they were doing me good, so I continued their use and improved rapidly. In a short time they thoroughly relieved me of the trouble."

SCHOOL OF TRUANTS

How New York Cares For Youngsters Who Dodge Schools.

Breaking a Boy of Swearing—Manual Training's Help.

New York, April 26.—The principal of the truant school carefully locked the front door and pocketed the key before leading the visitors to the office.

"Excuse me," said he pleasantly, "but we must make sure of our outside doors. The temptation for some of the truants to play hookey is very strong. It would never do to have truants from the truant school."

The visitor found himself locked inside the New York truant school. The interior was sunny, faultlessly clean and withal homelike. There is no other school just like this, and the interior comes as a surprise. It is a curious combination of the conventional schoolroom and the public home. One large room is crowded on one side with desks in orderly rows, while on the other are tables and cooking apparatus. The same building contains dormitories, gymnasium machinery of all sorts for teaching manue training, reading rooms—in short, everything required in the education of the New York boy.

A yard carefully fenced in on all sides gives opportunity for exercise. Just as a great ocean steamship is complete in itself, the truant school brings together everything needsful in a boy's life under a single roof. For all its attractive rooms, the truant school is, of course, after all a plate of detention.

The endeavor throughout the truant's day of school is to keep him constantly busy. This, in a word, speaking generally, is the motive of the entire curriculum. From much experience with these delinquents the instructors have discovered much mischief is found for the hands of idle truants. The day from early morning until bedtime is therefore systematically and very thoroughly filled. The entire school rises promptly each morning, winter and summer, at 6 o'clock. Breakfast is served at 7, but the hour intervening is taken up completely with bathing, dressing and assisting with the preparations of their common breakfast. The meal is served in a single large room. The long rows of tables are set with the mathematical accuracy of the tables of public institutions.

The regular school hours from 9 until 12 are taken up with lessons and exercises identical with those of the regular public school classes throughout the city. The only original feature of the regular school work is in the application of the manual training instruction. The boys are taught to make lumps of wrought iron, and much of their work has considerable mechanical as well as artistic value. They make the napkin rings they use at table and many practical utensils of their daily life. So far at least nothing has ben observed which appeals so strongly to the truants as the manual training features. Give the boys a forge and anvil, with plenty of material, and the truant school no longer has need of locked doors.

Many picturesque stories are told of the means sometimes used by the teachers to enforce discipline. As a matter of fact, moral suasion accomplishes most of the reforms in the truant school. Among half a hundred boys there are, of course, likely to be several so-called incorrigibles. With these at times polite methods are of no avail, and in such cases the truant school resorts to methods peculiarly its own.

Here is, for example, the "padded cell," where particularly unruly boys are sometimes incarcerated. The punishment is not so severe, however, as the name might suggest. The cell is actually a small closet, with the floor and walls covered with thick rope matting. The offender is imprisoned in this dark interior and the door fastened. The average boy, when locked in a closet, will, of course, revenge himself by kicking against the door.

In the truant school the boy, however angry he may be, finds himself utterly powerless in the padded cell. He cannot get out, nor while he is in can he possibly annoy the teachers by his most vigorous kicking and shouting. A short stay in the padded cell will usually bring the most vicious of the truants to terms. The treatment at the same time is much milder than whipping, besides being far more effective.

The treatment for curing boys of swearing is also remarkably effective without being cruel. The boy who offends is remonstrated with until patience ceases to be a virtue. He may also be deprived of his play hour, or his pie at dinner, as a punishment. But should all these conventional methods fail the boy is stood up and a small quantity of some bitter medicine is dropped on his tongue. A flavor is chosen which will leave a very bad taste in the mouth for some hours. The most confirmed case of profanity has been cured in this way in one or two treatments.

The average age of the truants who are taken to the school is from 8 to 14 years. The majority of them are nearer ten years of age than either of the two extremes.

FINLAND'S WOE

How They Were Deprived of Their Constitutional Liberty.

Ten Per Cent of the People Driven to This Country.

Everybody's Magazine for May says: On the ground floor of the Battery Park building, New York, is a great bare room. * * * In this common place New York office there is an atmosphere that can be felt of fiery emotion, of intense enthusiasm, of suppressed despair—and well there may be, for it is the office of Axel Hornborg, agent for the Finland Steam Navigation company, and the headquarters of the "Finnish Exiles' club." Here, owing to the kindness of Mr. Hornborg who carries on all his work in a little den at the back of the main room, is the daily meeting-place of the men whom the tyranny of Russia is driving from their beloved country.

Tsar Nicholas II. issued his initial decree depriving the people of Finland of their constitutional liberty in 1899. This action was the result of severe pressure brought to bear on him by his government officials. Finland was the single Russian province having a constitution and its own local government, independent of Russian bureaucracy. Finland was progressive, prosperous—much more so than any section of the Russian empire; therefore Finland was, in the eyes of the Russian administration, a bad example for all other section of the Tsar's dominions. Its prosperity roused discontent and set the people elsewhere yearning for similar constitutional privileges.

The Tsar's decree gave the Russian administration the powers it had long sought. A systematic plan of oppression was at once inaugurated in Finland, and the Finns began to leave the country in hordes. In 1898 the number of Finn immigrants to America was less than three hundred thousand. In 1899, when the Tsar issued the fatal decree, the number increased to 12,000; in 1900, to 25,000; and in 1903, to half a hundred thousand. Since 1898 more than one hundred and fifty thousand Finns have come to the United States, and there are now over two hundred thousand Finns under the American flag. In 1898 Finland's population was 2,000,000, so that ten per cent of all Finland's inhabitants in the year previous to the Tsar's decree are in the United States today. Amazing these figures become when compared with those for Italy, which is the country that at present is sending the largest number of immigrants to this country. Italy's population is 32,000,000. The Italians in the United States number 500,000, or only one-sixty-fourth of all Italy's inhabitants, as compared with the fact that one-tenth of Finland's population in 1898 is now in America. A further startling fact is that since the Russian oppression the population of Finland has actually decreased from 2,000,000 to 1,700,000, showing that, in addition to the 150,000 who have come to America, another 150,000 have sought freedom in other countries. How long at this rate, before Finland will be depopulated? This is the query which the exiles at the New York headquarters anxiously put to one another, following their eternal questions: "What next?" and "Who next?" * * * Has the reader ever seen the beau brummel of the Roosevelt administration, Secretary of State Hay? Imagine the polished Mr. Hay in shabby clothing, and you have a proper conception of the appearance and manner of the Mr. Brofelt who is the manager of Hornborg's office.

"My Mr. Brofelt," continued Mr. Hornborg, "was not only a writer of distinction, but the president of the college in Knoplo. He was given four days in which to leave the empire, and when he asked the reason of his banishment, the Russian police officials laughed in his face, saying, 'We don't give reasons for driving out disturbers of public tranquility.' He was not at home when the order of expulsion was served, so the police forced their way through his house, breaking open doors and drawers in search of incriminating documents.

"The other man," continued Mr. Hornborg, pointing to a young fellow of pleasing appearance, "may be seen here any day poring over the newspaper advertisements headed 'Help Wanted.' His name is John Repo. 'I was a school teacher and the president of my home village,' he said to me during one of our talks. The Russians drove me out of both school and office, and when I dared to appeal to St. Petersburg for redress, I was driven out of the country. I am simply one of the many who have been exiled for no other reason than the personal spite of some local official under the Tsar.'

"We are daily expecting the arrival of the most distinguished of Finnish patriots," added Mr. Hornberg. "I mean Regual Wolff, the Pierpont Morgan of our country. He was the chairman of the board of directors of the steamship company which I represent. He was one of its founders indeed, and it was while attending a directors' meeting to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the line that he was served with an order of expulsion from the Russian empire. With interests in a score of enterprises, he was allowed only forty-eight hours, instead of the usual four days, to settle his varied affairs and leave the land of his birth, perhaps forever."

Among other exiles whom I frequently meet at Hornborg's are three who were of a secret dinner party in Helsingfors, at which I was present, the scene on that occasion being the most interesting in which I was permitted to play a part in Finland. The three exiles referred to are Messrs. Erro Erkko and A. Fabritus, and Count Amminoff. These three Finns were men of distinction in their country, citizens of wealth, position and influence. What a contrast to meet them only a few months later at Hornborg's, as exiles, impoverished and without a country!

Ten out of the twenty men gathered round the board that evening were banished during the two following months (April and May.) That very evening each of those ten patriots knew that he was on the "secret list;" that is, booked for deportation or exile. They instinctively felt that they were to be the "first to go," and the real purpose of the dinner was to discuss the situation.

"But why not go while there is time to go voluntarily?" I asked, for it must be stated that not all of these men were merely exiled from the empire, but that some were taken to Siberia as political prisoners, a fate far worse than that of simple banishment.

"It is the duty of the educated men and those of position in any country," was the reply, "to stick to that country to the last, same as the captain of a ship. We will stay and take our chances for the sake of the example to the peasants, who are even now emigrating in ruinously large numbers to the United States."

All this took place, it should be remembered, in March, at the beginning of the reign of terror, which reached its culmination within forty days, when ten of the party, surely enough, were "the first to go." Three of the ten, as already stated, are now in this country beginning life anew amid a strange people as best they can.

Of the army levy in his country, still another refugee said: "Imagine the extent of the failure of the levy when I tell you that out of 26,000 men called for last year, the tsar got only 126. Every Finn has a loaded gun in his house, and it is all we can do to keep the men in check. To fight would mean our extinction, but the young men would rather at once exchange shots with the Russians and have the thing over."

As to the distribution of the Finns in this country, the figures show that of the 50,000 who arrived in 1903, 16,000 went to Michigan, 10,000 to Massachusetts, 3200 to Ohio, 2400 to Pennsylvania, 1600 to Wisconsin, 1000 to Washington, while 7000 stayed in New York state and the remainder went West.

The localization of Finns in America by towns includes also Allentown and Bessemer, Pa.; Crystal Falls, Covington and Kearsarge, Mich.; Carbonado, Wash.; Mountain Iron and Sandstone, Minn.; Red Lodge, Mont.; Smuggler, Col.; Lead City, S. D.; Point Arena, Cal.; and Douglass City, Alaska. Among the largest colonies in towns, outside of Michigan, are those at Worcester, Fitchburg and Gardner, Mass.

In respect to the occupations of the Finns of the peasant class, the largest number are, of course, unskilled laborers. Nevertheless, thousands of skilled workmen arrived last year. Many Finnish seamen are employed on American yachts, and a still larger number, who arrive here as sailors, forsake the sea to engage in the more lucrative occupation of "bridgemen," working in mid-air on the steel frames of upgoing sky-scrapers. To farming, however, the Finns in the United States are turning more and more, especially those in Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Dakotas. There are many Finnish farmers conducting successfully their own farms in the Middle West, and also Finnish farming communities of no small size in the Eastern states.

In New York, Jersey City, Hoboken, Brooklyn and Newark there are fully 15,000 Finns. Of these, nearly all of the women, of the peasant class, of course, are in domestic service, while the majority of the men are carpenters, iron workers and bridge and house builders.

From the revolutionary propaganda which that pretty Finnish maiden handed me here are a few extracts: "The Russian authorities have had their eyes opened to the dangers of the revolutionary spirit, which may give rise to grave results for the existing system of government. The revolutionary party in Russia grows day by day more powerful. Between the people and their rulers stands the army, and for the present the army obeys the rulers. But will it long continue to do so? That is the question on which much hangs for the Russian government.

The gulf that divides the people of Russia from the government of Russia grows perceptibly wider, and the ministers do not hesitate to fling the Jews to the people to distract them from the growing discontent with their rulers. This discontent applies chiefly to Finland, where a field of Western culture has been devastated. Sooner or later the price for this devastation will be exacted and will be paid. * * * A revolution in Russia there is bound to be, the sooner the better. It all depends upon how soon Finland breaks loose, for that will be the signal for a general uprising. The drain of taxation in the provinces is making the poor peasants poorer year by year. With the people squeezed dry, and foreign credit gone, there will soon be no money to pay the immense army, and the minute the soldiers are not paid, the streets of St. Petersburg will run with blood: 100,000,000 peasants will rise as one man, and there will be a revolution more bloody than any the world has ever seen. The first shot in the forthcoming revolution will be fired in Finland. Meantime, with the heavy emigration to America and the presence there of so many exiles and refugees, it is safe to say that most of the propaganda preceding the revolution will be prepared in the United States, and that the course of events in Finland will be guided by those in that land which once accomplished what Finland hopes to do now."

It is said that he will be made manager of the Washington American league team. # A MICHIGAN SLANDER SUIT

"Smart Set" of Onaway Splintered Into Contending Factions.

Onaway, Mich., April 26.—The "smart set" of this town is splintered into contending factions over the slander suit brought by Mrs. O. De Carrie, wife of a prominent merchant, against Mrs. Dr. C. A. Carpenter, wife of the city's leading physician.

One fatal day, in the bosom of the Thimble club—which is the ladies' swell social organization of the city, of which both ladies were members—Mrs. Carpenter, in the absence of Mrs. De Carrie, is alleged to have said something dreadful of her fellow member. Thereafter seven or nine of the club ladies told Mrs. De Carrie what the dreadful thing was Mrs. Carpenter had said about her.

It is stated that Mrs. De Carrie was later expelled from the club as a result of Mrs. Carpenter's charges and through her influence.

Mrs. De Carrie and friends immediately got busy and demanded of Mrs. Carpenter that she make a denial of her statements over her own signature. In the papers. This Mrs. Carpenter refused to do, and, it is alleged, reiterated her charges and said she could prove all she said.

Mrs. De Carrie thereupon consulted Attorney A. A. Stegman, who went to Prosecuting Attorney Reid, with the result that a suit was begun before Justice of the Peace Thomas Shaw against Mrs. Carpenter for slander.

The trial of Mrs. Carpenter, who was defended by Attorney C. F. Hill, was the liveliest sensation the city of Onaway ever saw. It lasted three days. Members of the Thimble club had to go on the witness stand and, in the presence of the horrid men, tell the court and the jury of the dreadful things Mrs. Carpenter said about Mrs. De Carrie. The most annoying thing to the ladies was that the men refused to take the matter seriously, and in the stores and postoffice and on the sidewalks exhibited much merriment over the affair.

The court and jury had, of course, to consider the legal aspects of the case. So the jury found that Mrs. Carpenter did say things she should not about Mrs. De Carrie and did not sufficiently prove that her allegations were true, for which reasons she was found guilty and the court assessed her $25 fine.

Mrs. Carpenter has appealed, it is said, and the matter will be reviewed in the circuit court of Presque Isle county and all the society ladies will have to go to Rogers City and say it all over again.

But the sad thing of it all is that the Thimble club has lost prestige. The meetings are no longer viewed with that reverence by the uninitiated that erstwhile formed their crowning glory. And the horrid men continue their nerve-wrecking snickers.

Grippe kills millions yearly. People lack blood and vital force. Take a body builder, strength producing remedy like Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, and throw off diseases. 35 cents, tea or tablet form. Ask your druggist.

BECOMING A MOTHER

Is an ordeal which all women approach with indescribable fear, for nothing compares with the pain and horror of child-birth. ## Market Has Strong Rally Following Weakness After Opening.

Bullish Crop News From Central States—Flax Weaker.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 26.—After weakness during the early part of the session the wheat market had a sharp rally. It was a natural turning after the slump and was aided by crop news of a bullish nature. The Illinois government and state reports were unfavorable, showing unusual lateness. Reports were also out saying that Ohio and Indiana promise not more than a third of a crop. The cash situation shows no improvement and buyers hold off as completely as ever. Bradstreet reported an increase of 8,000 bushels in the world's visible supply of wheat. The Liverpool market closed ¼@⅝d lower. Weather conditions were favorable in the wheat growing districts.

The Duluth market showed gains of 1½c for both May and July. Chicago 5c for May and ⅝c for July; Minneapolis, 1¼c for May and 2⅞c for July and New York ⅝c for May and ¾c for July.

Car receipts at Duluth were 16, against 20 last year, and at Minneapolis 70, against 65 a year ago, making a total for the Northwest of 86, against 94 a year ago. Chicago received 16 cars, against 78 a year ago. Winnipeg receipts were 183, against 118 a year ago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 264,000 bushels; last year 339,462 bushels. Shipments, 198,743 bushels; last year, 555,988 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 74,853 bushels.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼d lower.

In the Chicago market July corn closed ⅞@⅞c higher, July oats closed ⅝@¾c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 429,075 bus, last year, 413,630 bus. Shipments, 281,758 bus, last year, 406,578 bus. Clearances were 15,347 bus. The world's visible supply of corn showed a decrease of 706,000 bus, according to Bradstreet.

In the Duluth market trading was fairly active. The May option opened unchanged at 87⅝c, sold off to 87c at 10:07, rallied to 87⅞c at 10:35, fell again to 87½c at 10:47 and then steadily advanced to 88¾c, at which price it closed, 1½c higher than yesterday. July opened unchanged at 88c, fell to 87⅜@87c and worked up to 89¼c, the closing price, 1½c higher than yesterday. The September option did not keep pace with the advances in the others, closing ⅝c higher at 90⅝c.

Cash offerings were light and prices unchanged.

Flax was fairly active and weaker. May opened ½c lower at $1.06¾ and sold off to $1.04¾ and then worked up again to $1.05⅝, at which price it closed, a loss of 1½c from yesterday. The July option closed 1¾c lower and September and October ½c lower. The cash seed advanced ½c, closing at May price.

Oats advanced ⅝c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Sentiment In the Wheat Pit Rather Bullish.

Chicago, April 26.—The sentiment in the wheat pit today was rather bullish, the opinion of a large number of traders being that the market had been oversold yesterday. There was a good demand for all deliveries but offerings were light notwithstanding the weak tone of cables. July opened 5c lower to ⅛c higher at 82c to 82¼c and quickly advanced to 83⅝@83¾c. Later the price settled back to 82¾c. Duluth, Minneapolis and Chicago reported receipts of 302 cars against 156 cars last week and 172 cars a year ago.

On active buying by pit traders and shorts, due to reports of a big export business, the market became extremely strong during the latter part of the session. July advanced from 82c to 83⅝@83¾c. The close was at 83¼c, a net gain of 1½c.

In spite of selling by pit traders due to lower cables and increased receipts the cornmarket exhibited considerable firmness. The factors contributing strength to the situation were the improved tone of wheat and rains in the West. July opened a shade lower to a shade higher at 47½c to 47¾c. After touching 47¾c, the price steadied at 47½c. Local receipts were 305 cars, with 74 of contract grade.

Heavy purchases of both May and July deliveries by a leading commission house, supposing to be acting for a big trader, started a general buying of corn. The result was a sharp advance, July selling up to 48⅝c. The market closed strong with July up ⅞c at 48⅜@48½c.

Under the influence of covering by shorts and a good commission house demand oats ruled firm, with only light offerings. Wet weather in the West, some improvement in cash demand and small receipts were the bull factors. After opening ½c to ⅝c up at 36½ to 36¾c, July sold off to 35⅞c, but rallied again to 36⅜c. Local receipts were 75 cars.

Provisions were firm on a fair demand from packers and pit traders. Owing to an improved tone in the hog market offerings of provisions were light. July pork opened 2½@5c to 50@7½c up at $12.25 to $12.27½. After selling at $12.35@12.37½, the price steadied around $12.30. July lard was up 5c opening at $6.85. An advance to $6.90 was followed by a slight decline to $6.85@6.87½. Ribs opened 5c up at $6.02½, sold up to $6.70, and steadied at $6.65.

Close: Wheat—May, 88¾c; July, 83¼c; old July, 83¼@83½c; September, 79⅝@80c; old September, 81¾c. Corn—April, 45½c; May, 46⅝c; July, 48⅛@48½c; September, 47¾c; December, 44c. Oats—April, 37¾c; May, 37½c; July, 36⅝@36¾c; September, 30¾@30⅞c. Pork—May, $12.00; July, $12.30; September, $12.45. Lard—May, $6.70; July, $6.87½; September, $6.77½@6.80. Rye—May, 62c; July 64c. MINNEAPOLIS WHEAT.

Minneapolis, April 26.—Close: Wheat—May, 89⅝c; July, 89¼@90c; September, 89½@89¾c. On track, 1 hard, 92¾c; 1 northern, 91⅝c; 2 northern, 90¾c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: The question with the wheat speculator now is whether the decline has discounted the situation; and whether, with some crop uncertainties, 86c for September and about 85c for July is low enough to keep the reserves going into consumption. The milling situation will have much to do in deciding this. It has been about the only demand the cash market has had; and for some weeks the smallness of this has had most to do with the declining tendency. But the miller could buy his wheat at the end of the week 5c cheaper than at the beginning of it and more than 22c cheaper than two months ago. There are indications that selling base of the forward under favorable conditions, but that cold weather has prevented any rapid development and growth. Receipts are moderate and the demand is fair. It does not seem to be much in the cash situation to move prices much either way.

Provisions—Market 7½@10c higher. Receipts of hogs again rather light and the shipping demand in excess of a year ago. It was a rather quiet market, but only moderate liquidation and a steady absorption of offerings by local receivers. We can only repeat that the buying of provisions is better than the selling, and that with the culmination of the liquidation of seasonal holdings which May deliveries are likely to bring about, we are inclined to think the market is likely to do somewhat better.

Cox Commission Co.: The wheat market opened easier and fractionally lower, but soon firmed up. At the slight advance from the opening there was considerable selling, which caused a quick break of nearly 1c a bus, the market recovering just as quickly and halted very erratic. Looks as if the selling of the past few days had been overdone and shorts were trying to make weak spots to cover their sales on. The general situation is unchanged; the weather is still too cold to be seasonable. Local cash wheat is dragging on the bottom and a rally of from 3c to 5c a bus is in order. Advise buying September wheat for a 5c profit. Minneapolis reports a big decrease of 200,000 bus so far this week. Good cash demand for the better grades of wheat.

Corn—The May option is still weak; the July is strong being up 1c from yesterday's close at this writing. Advise buying the July corn on all soft spots.

Oats opened strong and higher and have ruled strong all morning. Cash demand continues good and seeding is very backward.

Provisions—A great deal of the buying of provisions lately has been for packers. Provisions have been very strong lately in face of the weakness in grain. We believe they have seen the low point and are a purchase for a good advance.

STRENGTH SHOWN

In the Late Dealings In the Stock Markets.

Little Stock For Sale and the Closing Was Strong.

New York, April 26.—Stocks showed no important changes from last night in the opening dealings today. Variations did not exceed ¼ in any case and the majority of stocks were unchanged.

Secondary prices were slightly lower, the market easing off about ¼ all around on the heavy selling of United States Steel second fives which declined a point. But little pressure was evident in other quarters and the market recovered later to yesterday's figures. Republic Steel preferred fell 1, General Electric 1½ and St. Paul preferred 2. Pressed Steel Car preferred advanced 1.

The market was somewhat irregular but the undertone was firmer. A rise above 56 by United States Steel preferred was a sympathetic influence. Sugar gained a point and Virginia-Carolina Chemical lost 1½. Bonds were irregular at noon.

Sugar was rather more actively dealt in and crossed 128 but other favorites were neglected. Scarcely any movement could be perceived in the market. What few stocks were dealt in did not vary from the level established several hours earlier.

United States Steel preferred touched a level ⅞ over last night, but the general market was lightly affected. General Electric dropped 4¼ and St. Louis Southwestern preferred, Colorado & Southern second preferred and Pullman a point. The closing was heavy and stagnant.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Just another swing of the dullness which has prevailed for some time. Traders sold stocks short yesterday on the dullness and, as heretofore, bought them back today on the small offerings. There seems to be nothing else in the market at the moment. It is wholly a waiting market with the owners of stocks evidently well satisfied with their property. The large exports of gold are not considered of importance and there is nothing in sight to disturb the easy money situation. With an indifferent public anything in the way of a continued advance does not seem likely, but on the other hand, the bears have not much to go on, and when they are disposed to sell stocks cheap, they may be bought for moderate profits. There is all the time a tidy short interest.

C. G. Gates & Co. to B. E. Baker: The report from the West that an agreement had been made between the Atchison and Southern Pacific for an equitable division of traffic organizing in Northern California is taken in the street to reflect a better understanding between these two interests. There are some people who believe that some of the recent buying of Atchison by Union Pacific interest had its move from this arrangement.

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today at the opening was very dull and trading light. This state of affairs continued until afternoon when traders began to bid up some of the active stocks. Shorts covered and the market became strong. There was little stock for sale and the market closed strong. The tone was much better and general feeling was that a rally was in order.

Dick to B. E. Baker: Atchison net income after taxes, etc., increased $22,115; gross earnings increased $272,198. For nine months Atchison net income increased $569,2—. Lake Copper has been advanced ⅛c per pound.

* * *

S. T. Welch & Co.: The stock market had a firmer opening. Atchison, Gould shares and Mexican were steady. Eastern rails, firm. United States Steel preferred steady and tractions firm. There was no news of particularly adverse character. London prices were unchanged to a few fractions higher.

* * *

Dick Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: Market has been very dull but the tone was considerably firmer than yesterday. The closing showed slight recessions, but most of the stocks made slight net advances. Late in the day it was rumored that the Panama payments had been made in Paris and that drafts will be made direct upon the United States treasury. Atchison made a very favorable March report but the figures did not help the stock much. The close was featureless.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, April 26.—Close: Money on call, easy, 1@1¼, closing bid 1, offered at 1¼ per cent. Time loans, nominal; sixty and ninety days, 2@2½ per cent; six months, 3@3½ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 4@4½ per cent. Sterling exchange, easier, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.87.20@4.87.25 for demand, and $4.85.10@4.85.15 for sixty days; posted rates, $4.86 and $4.88@4½; commercial bills, $4.85. Bar silver, 54½c. Mexican dollars, 43½c. Bonds, government, easy; railroads, steady.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 26.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 1@2 points, showing considerable activity and some excitement with shorts covering and houses with Liverpool connections fair buyers, all along the line. The advances followed much better cables than expected. The weather map, however, while showing rather cold weather in Northern Texas, was on the whole less unfavorable than expected and shortly after the opening liquidation in the new crop months started a decline that since carried the market off about 10 to 14 points from the best prices of the call. At the decline early sellers covered checking the decline somewhat and the market turned irregular and slightly less active.

Cotton spot closed dull, middling uplands, 13.75; middling gulf, 14.00; sales, 400 bales. Futures closed barely steady: April, 13.41; May, 13.44; June, 13.57; July, 13.67; August, 13.25; September, 11.85; October, 11.35; November, 11.22; December, 11.21; January, 11.22.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: As a result of the two days' pressure the market is again loaded up with short contracts and the bears were unable to cover at this morning's low price. Very few stocks come out on the declines and the rallies do not meet any volume of selling orders. The new short interest is believed to be large enough to carry the present rally some higher. Copper is up ⅜c to ½c today and trade advices are all very bullish. This is said to be the first day in two years that copper advanced in London while Amalgamated declined in New York. The great strength of the metal ought to start an upward movement in copper stocks soon, and we believe it will.

CONDITION OF CROPS

Washington, April 26.—The weather bureau's weekly summary of crop conditions is as follows:

From the west gulf coast, northwestward to the middle Rocky mountain slope, the temperature conditions was generally favorable, but elsewhere it was much too cool for germination and growth although the latter part was warmer and more favorable. Heavy rains in the Lower Mississippi valley and portions of the spring wheat region interrupted work, while the drought conditions in the middle and south Atlantic and gulf states have generally increased. Freezing temperatures and frosts generally throughout the central valleys, lake region, New England and the middle Atlantic states were injurious to a greater or less extent.

Very favorable reports respecting winter wheat are received from Nebraska except the extreme western portion and an improvement is indicated in portions of Oklahoma. In Missouri the crop has made slow growth and in the states eastward of the Mississippi river, the outlook is less favorable than previously reported, although the warm weather in the latter part of the week caused some improvement in Ohio, a large acreage in Indiana is being devoted to other crops. On the Pacific coast winter wheat has experienced a general improvement and is growing rapidly in Oregon and Washington.

Over the northern portion of the spring wheat region practically no seeding has been done and in North Dakota, where about one-half the crop was sown at this time last year, most of the lowlands are flooded and with favorable weather cannot be worked for one to two weeks. Seeding is well advanced over the southern portion, being completed over a considerable area in South Dakota. In Washington and Oregon, seeding continues and the early corn is germinating and growing rapidly. Over the greater portions of Illinois and Iowa, oat seeding is nearly finished and is progressing favorably in Ohio and in Indiana. Seeding is not yet general in Michigan and very little has been done in Wisconsin except over the southern portion. With frosts and freezing temperatures generally throughout the central valleys and middle Atlantic states, the outlook for most fruits in these districts has been further impaired early peaches apparently suffering most.

JAPANESE MOVING

Believed They Have Commenced To Cross the Yalu.

Sensational Story of Attempt To Blow Up Battleship.

St. Petersburg, April 26.—It is believed in military circles that the Japanese have commenced a movement to cross the Yalu river.

ATTEMPT TO DESTROY SHIP.

Cronstadt, April 26.—A sensational story is afloat here of an attempt to destroy the battleship Alexander III. According to the reports, a sailor saw a stranger, wearing the uniform of an officer, going down into the engine room of the battleship, followed him and saw the stranger attaching something connected with wire to the dynamos. After the stranger left the sailor examined the attachment and found it to be a bomb. The sailor at once cut the wires, ran up on deck to tell what had happened, and found that the stranger had hanged himself. The crew of the Alexander III. it is added, were instructed not to speak of the occurrence, and it is said that the stranger was a madman or a member of some revolutionary organization to whose lot it had fallen to blow up the Alexander III.

TOOK TO THE HILLS.

Gensan People Were Alarmed By Russian Fleet.

Seoul, Monday, April 25.—(Delayed in transmission.)—When the attack of Won San (Gensan) was made this this morning the townspeople sought refuge in the hills, and the garrison prepared to resist a possible landing party from three Russian cruisers which were sighted in the offing. The cruisers, however, retired without damaging the town.

The attack was regarded as being allied with the Song Jin expedition and designed to discover the Japanese strength on the east coast, and as being a diversion from the Yalu river campaign. The garrison of Won San, numbering 800 men, has been reinforced during the past week and has thrown up earthworks, and has artillery at its disposition.

While the Japanese authorities consider the situation serious, no apprehension is entertained as to the result.

AT A DISADVANTAGE.

Makaroff's Fleet Forced to Depend on High Water.

St. Petersburg, April 26.—A letter dated March 29, written by Col. Agapeiff, a member of the staff of Vice Admiral Makaroff, who was lost at the time of the Petropavlovsk disaster, April 13, throws considerable light on the conditions prevailing at Port Arthur. He said:

"Our squadron suffers from the great disadvantage of not being able to go out of the harbor except at high tide, which is especially awkward if it is high water before dawn. The enemy has not failed to profit thereby, coming up with impunity on the ebb tide and attacking the whole morning if the squadron was inside. I mentioned this to Makaroff, thinking he would not take notice of it, but the next time it was high tide before daylight he ordered the fleet out the previous afternoon, by which he spoiled the Japanese game, and also avoided the danger of collision in going out of the narrow entrance after dark.

"During the cruise to the Mia Tao Islands, March 25, we overhauled four British steamers going to Yin Kow and a Japanese steamer with some junks. The wireless telegraph electric bell at that moment reported the enemy's fleet in sight and we hurriedly sank the steamer and junks.

"We afterwards found it was a false alarm. In the haste of going into battle order the Peresviet slightly rammed the Sevastopol.

"During the fire ship attack of March 27 I went out with Makaroff in a launch."

ADDRESSED BY SKRYDLOFF.

St. Petersburg, April 26—Vice Admiral Skrydloff, recently appointed Russian commander of the naval forces in the far East, today visited the barracks of the naval guard. Addressing the latter, he made his first public reference to the going out of the Baltic fleet, saying:

"Twenty-eight years ago I went with your predecessors to fight for the emperor's country against the Turks. It is now the monarch's wish that I should lead you again as commander-in-chief of the fleet which you are going to join on board the battleship Alexander III."

COMPLAIN OF PAPER TRUST

Publishers' Committee Calls Upon Attorney-General Knox.

Washington, April 26.—Conde Hamlin, of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, Don C. Seitz, of the New York World and John Norris, of the Philadelphia Ledger, and the New York Times, representing the American Newspaper Publishers' association, called on the attorney general and laid before him a complaint against the so-called paper manufacturers' general trust, alleging violations of the Sherman anti-trust act.

The attorney general explained to them the distinction between what could and what would not be accomplished under the Sherman act and particularly the distinction the courts have drawn between combinations affecting production and combinations affecting interstate commerce directly. Yet, upon a showing of evidence which seemed to indicate that a combination exists in the paper business, whereby different paper manufacturers have agreed to adjust the supply of paper and to divide among themselves the territory of its consumption, the attorney general stated that he would have an investigation made and if it were found that this feature of the charge could be sustained he would institute appropriate proceedings to stop it.

KILLED AGED MAN TO KEEP HIM QUIET

Kalamazoo, Mich., April 26.—Difenas Van Hoft, an aged inmate of the Brook farm colony here, is dead as the result of an awful pounding given him by George Montague, another inmate, which fractured the old man's skull. Montague said Van Hoft talked so much at night that he could not sleep and when he would not stop, Montague says he rose from his bed and pounded Van Hoft's head on the floor until it quieted him.

TORNADO IN OKLAHOMA.

Guthrie, Ok., April 26.—A tornado struck the town of Pawhuska, the capital of the Osage nation. The Catholic school building, a large three-story stone structure and many smaller buildings were wrecked. Only one person was seriously injured.

TAFT GOES TO ST. LOUIS.

Washington, April 26.—Secretary Taft left today for St. Louis, where he will represent President Roosevelt at the opening ceremonies of the Louisiana purchase exposition.

VAN STILL SIGNING

Adds Another Fast Player To the Duluth Bunch.

Shortstop From Connecticut League—Dispute As To Annis.

Still another new man has been added to Van Praagh's list of pennant chasers. His name is Berry and he comes from the Connecticut league.

Manager Van Praagh received word from him this morning that he had accepted the terms and would report immediately for spring practice with the team at Eau Claire.

Berry was one of the best short stops in the minor league of the East last season. He had a batting average of .342, coming third in the official list. In fielding he was sixth among the shortstops of the league, with an average of .882. He will be tried out in the infield along with Ball and Annis.

There has been some dispute concerning Annis, who is claimed by both Winnipeg and Duluth. He has been playing with the Little Rock team in the Southern league this spring and Van Praagh claims he has secured his release from that club. Should Berry make good, however, Annis may be released to one of the other clubs. With three candidates for the position of shortstop, Van Praagh should be able to pick a good man for the position and also a substitute infielder, which it is the intention of the Duluth manager to carry during the early part of the season at least.

Van Praagh still has a pitcher on the string, whose name has not yet been announced. Negotiations have been underway for the past two or three weeks, but he has not yet been secured and the Duluth manager fears to make him name public lest it jeopardize his chances of landing him.

* * *

The Duluth team left last evening for Eau Claire to continue the spring training in that city, playing games with the Eau Claire team Friday and Saturday. The grounds in Eau Claire are in better condition than those at Chippewa Falls, and the change was decided upon for that reason. The White Sox will play in Minneapolis on Sunday, and will make their first appearance in Duluth on May 9, when they will meet the Duluth Fashions in an exhibition game.

"Si" Bennett is working out with the White Sox. He will not play with the Superior team this year, as was expected. Manager Cameron thought he needed a little more experience before butting into the ranks of the Northern league. "Si" has the earmarks of a player, and with a little more experience should develop into a fast infielder. He has not signed any contract with Van Praagh, but is working out with the team and will be available if needed.

* * *

Manager Cameron's bunch left today for La Crosse to commence spring practice. Cameron states that he has material for a winning nine, and that Superior will be offering a different position from what she was at the close of last season.

MAKES STATEMENT.

Bethel Board Makes Statement to the Public.

The Duluth Bethel society requests the publication of the following:

TO THE PUBLIC:

Much is being said in the papers as to the dismissal of Mr. Spoonts as pastor of the Bethel. The situation is this: Mr. Spoonts was employed by the Bethel Board about a year ago for a year, beginning May 1, 1903. Two or three months ago the board unanimously determined that the best interests of the Bethel society required that he should not be employed, and the executive committee was directed to notify Mr. Spoonts to that effect.

Card of Thanks.

I wish, through the columns of the Duluth Evening Herald, to thank the pastor and members of the Bethesda Norwegian Lutheran congregation for the sympathy and kindness extended to us during the sickness as well as after the death of my husband, Peter J. Hagenson.

I also wish to thank Major Ewe and Resche and their respective companies of the militia for contributions, floral gifts and for the honor bestowed by giving my husband a full military funeral.

I further wish to thank the Third Regiment band and its director, J. H. Flaaten, as well as the members of the A. O. U. W., for favors extended in this trying time. At last I wish to thank friends and the public generally who in so many ways have shown their sympathy in my great affliction.

THREW SLOPS ON VISITOR.

"Mrs. Wiggs of Cabbage Patch" In Trouble.

Louisville, April 26.—Mrs. Mary Bass, the original "Mrs. Wiggs of the cabbage patch," was present in police court today on the charge of throwing a jar of slops on the head of Mrs. Emily Smith, of Hazelwood, a suburb of Louisville. The scene occurred in the rear of Mrs. Bass' domicile whither Mrs. Smith went after repeated knocks at the front door failed to get a response. Mrs. Bass contended that her life had been made miserable by the visits of people from all sections who were prompted by no other motive than curiosity. Mrs. Smith on the other hand maintained that she was prompted by a spirit of charity, gaining the impression from the book that "Mrs. Wiggs" was in need of assistance. The case was adjourned until next Friday.

BROWN ARRAIGNED.

Former Minneapolis Secretary Accused of Malfeasance.

Minneapolis, April 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles H. Brown, secretary of the board of corrections and charities under Mayor Ames, who went on the stand in the trial of William H. Brown sought to secure immunity by testifying against Johnson; but the latter was acquitted by a jury last night.

Diamonds Made by Electricity

The recent experiments in making diamonds by electricity was a success. The manufactured gems are not imitations, but genuine diamonds, made under the same conditions that nature employs, that is, heat and pressure, and these are obtained by means of the electric furnace. If the stomach is weak, the liver and kidneys inactive, the conditions are contrary to nature, and the only way to restore them to a normal condition is to resort to nature's best remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Then you not only obtain a safe medicine but the best ever compounded. It never fails in cases of insomnia, dizziness, nervousness, indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness, kidney ailments, la grippe, colds or spring fever. # HOOSIERS MEET

Indiana Republicans Hold State Convention to Elect Delegates.

Congressman Watson, Temporary Chairman, Makes Address.

Indianapolis, April 26.—The Indiana Republican convention was opened today by State Chairman Goodrich, who at once called for the report of the committee on permanent organization chosen earlier in the day, with members of the other committees at district meetings of delegates. The convention will complete its work tomorrow after having nominated a state ticket, adopted a platform and named delegates and alternates at large to the national convention, and presidential electors at large. The platform is being considered by the resolutions committee, which will report tomorrow. There will be a vigorous indorsement of President Roosevelt's administration, and the delegates at large will be Senators Fairbanks and Beveridge, Governor Durbin and State Chairman Goodrich, who will be instructed for him. The presidential electors at large agree upon are George A. Cunningham, of Evansville, and Joseph D. Oliver, of South Bend.

The convention met at 2 p. m. with one of the largest and most enthusiastic gatherings of delegates ever seen in Indiana.

The report of the committee on permanent organization named Representative James E. Watson, of Rushville, for chairman, and Harry Strom for secretary. The report was unanimously adopted and Chairman Goodrich introduced Mr. Watson who said:

"What will the issue be? Who knows? Isn't it true that the Democratic party is utterly without an issue in this year of our Lord 1904? Without a platform, without a principle, without an issue, without a leader. Such is the present sad state of the once great party. That is the penalty they pay for ninety-six being wrong. That will disintegrate any institution on earth. Permanent organization can be effected only by the standard of the right. The Democratic party dare not reaffirm a single vital issue it has had in any platform in the last eight years. And when they hold a convention it is their principal business to dodge the issues and the candidates they last had. When they come to write a platform, the first thing they discard will be the last thing they adopted.

"They will not dare to renominate the only man they have ever been able to elect president since the civil war. They will not dare renominate the candidate they had in the last two presidential campaigns. And they are engaged in doing their level best to find some one for a candidate who has never expressed the faintest opinion on any question that is now or has been before the people of this country for the last quarter of a century. All of its past platforms dishonored by the very men who adopted them, all its past leaders repudiated by the very men who nominated them, they are adrift as to issues and are seeking some voiceless hero to lead them on to victory.

"From having a candidate who did nothing but talk they are about to nominate a man who never talks at all. Who is Parker? Doubtless an upright man and an honorable gentleman. But what does he believe? What are his views on the tariff? Is he a free trader, a tariff for revenue advocate, a revisionist or a high protectionist? How does he stand on 16 to 1? It is said that he voted for it. If so, did he believe in it? If he did, he ought not to be president. If he did it without believing in it he ought not to be president. Where is he on expansion? Does anybody know? What is his opinion on any living question? Can anybody tell? Do we propose to elevate a man to the loftiest station in the world that has no views on any of the vital questions he will be called on at once to deal with? He reminds me of a phonograph into which no sound has ever been uttered. When you start the machine to grinding it gives off absolutely nothing. And yet they say he is eminently safe. I deny it. It is a travesty on our government to so assert. I deny that any idealless, viewless, opinionless man is to be trusted at all in that exalted place. The mere fact that the Democratic party in sheer desperation is forced to take him or do worse is no reason why our people should accept their reason for so doing. They want a man without a record. They know that, if a Democrat has a record at all, it is a bad one, and they are forced to take a man without a past; but the country can and will be spared that infliction.

"Thank God, we are not so impoverished. We know what our principles are. We know what our platform will be. We know what candidate we will nominate. We are not engaged in any device of 'now-you-see-it and 'now-you-don't' with past problems. There is not a man here today who would be willing to change a single plank in any platform ever adopted by the Republican party in all the years of its history; in all the years since the patriots of other days, whose presence so inspires us here, were aroused to heroic action. Venerable fathers, you built better than you knew for you planted your feet on the enduring rock of human liberty, and, with the accumulated results of fifty years all about you, undreamed of then, are you not today filled with pride because you added in the organization of a party devoted to the freedom of man and the fullest possible development of our land?"

The platform as completed for presentation to the convention, instructs for Roosevelt, indorses Senator Beveridge, and indirectly suggests his re-election, approves the courses of both Senators Fairbanks and Beveridge and recommends a railroad commission to protect shippers; approves the course of the government in Cuba, Panama and the Philippines; approves the president's order on service pensions, and refers to the administration's policy in handling trusts as an evidence of the Republican party's policy concerning trusts.

THE DOINGS OF CONGRESS

Washington, April 26.—When the house met today, Mr. Jenkins (Wis.), chairman of the committee on judiciary, moved the adoption of the resolutions recently favorably reported by his committee inquiring what action had been taken by the department of justice regarding an investigation of the coal trust and whether or not any criminal prosecutions have been instituted by that department against the individuals found guilty of violations of the anti-trust law in connection with the merger decision. The resolutions were adopted without discussion or division.

The conference report on the District of oClumbia appropriation bill was agreed to.

The house, by a strict party vote, 133 to 117, resolved to consider the bill regarding the employment of United States vessels for public purposes.

IN THE SENATE.

If there is a desirable house to let in Duluth you will find it advertised in these columns. It is not worth while hunting around to find the sort of houses that are not advertised.

The American is a born trader. Our pioneers "swapped" with the Indians—"swapped them into oblivion, mostly. Now we "swap" with each other—exchanging guns for cameras, cameras for phonographs, phonographs for encyclopedias, encyclopedias for—guns; and we feel that we have a little better gun than we started with. The Herald want columns are for "swappers."

Do the hardest part of your house-hunting in your easy chair at home, with The Herald classified ads for a guide.

People have made valuable business acquaintances through Herald want ads.

You have not yet done your best to remedy that stroke of ill-fortune unless you have advertised.

Taxes, repairs and interest cost as much on vacant as on occupied property. Timely classified advertising keeps rent-incomes from lapsing.

You lose time as well as money, patience and equanimity when you place your want ad in a poor medium. Herald want ads bring results.

JAPANESE ATTEMPT TO CROSS YALU RESULTED IN SEVERE LOSSES FROM RUSSIAN FIRE

Unexpectedly Shelled By Enemy on Opposite Bank.

But One Division Succeeded In Getting Across Safely.

The Russian Fleet Has Appeared Again Off Gensan.

St. Petersburg, April 27.—The general staff believes that one of the Japanese columns, while attempting to cross the Yalu river at Turenchen, sustained severe loss, owing to unexpected shelling by a Russian battery from the opposite bank, which destroyed the Japanese pontoons. The Japanese, the general staff says, tried to cross the river at six or seven different points and succeeded only at one point. The staff has no further news.

St. Petersburg, April 27.—The crossing of the Yalu river by the Japanese forces did not impress the Russians in view of the reports of the ensuing Japanese reverse. These reports became more persistent at noon and caused an all-round rise in prices on the bourse, but, so far, there has been no confirmation of them officially.

London, April 27.—A special dispatch from Kobe, Japan, says several vessels, believed to be Russian, were again sighted off Wonsan (Gensan), Korea, today.

St. Petersburg, April 27.—It is reported that an attempt of the Japanese to cross the Yalu has been frustrated.

CROSSING THE YALU.

Japanese Build Pantoon Bridges In Several Places.

Liao Yang, April 27.—On April 23 the Russians observed that the Japanese were making preparations to cross the Yalu river. On the night of April 23 two steamers and two torpedo boats were noticed at the mouth of the river. They approached the shore at daylight and the Japanese commenced to build a pontoon on the left tributary. A second pontoon is being prepared ten miles up the river.

At 2 o'clock the same afternoon the Japanese occupied the island of Somalind, to which they carried pontoon boats, etc. The night passed quietly, the torpedo boats maintaining a careful watch in case the troops ashore should be attacked and examining the mouth of the river by means of searchlights.

At 3:30 next morning the Japanese crossed the river near the village of Tchindiakon, where, however, the Russian outposts commenced firing upon them. The Russian advance guards had been furnished with a small gun and they succeeded in destroying the pontoon constructed near Wiju. The wrecked pontoon was carried away by the current and further Japanese bridging operations ceased, but the Japanese continued to cross by another pontoon southward of Wiju.

A Japanese column with a battery of artillery, approached Turenchen at midday, but the Russian skirmishers met them with sharp firing, evidently giving them trouble, as they retired with the battery, which made no attempt to answer the Russian fire.

RUSSIAN SUBMARINES

Will Assist Greatly In Defense of Port Arthur.

St. Petersburg, April 27.—The entrance into the service of four submarine boats at Port Arthur means the addition of a new and formidable weapon for the defense of that stronghold. The dispatch of the boats in sections over the railroad has been shrouded in a secrecy and even today many in St. Petersburg are inclined to doubt the report by officials of their presence at Port Arthur or to accept the information as trustworthy.

An effort now to close or blockade Port Arthur will be too dangerous, it is thought, for Vice Admiral Togo to attempt.

The defenders of the port will be able to guard against Japanese submarine vessels entering the harbor and attacking the Russian ships at anchor.

The officials here are not certain that the Japanese have submarine boats, as they possessed none before the war, but since the beginning of hostilities they undoubtedly have laid down a number of them.

Port Arthur, April 27.—The successful trials of the submarine boats here are regarded by the Novi-Krai as opening fresh prospects for active operations on the part of the Russian fleet.

FAITH IN IMAGE

New One to Be Sent to Port Arthur.

St. Petersburg, April 27.—M. Bonbnoff, who has been awarded $12,500 for improvements in submarine boats, in an interview, says:

"There is less danger in navigating a submarine boat than a torpedo boat, and during a battle the former is safer than other vessels."

Admiral Verkhovsky has shown the empress an image of the Virgin for which is claimed miraculous properties, which the Russians fervently hope is going to turn the tide of battle at Port Arthur. The admiral told the empress the story of the image, which depicts the Virgin as she appeared in a vision to a sailor, a veteran of the siege of Sebastopol. Two months before the outbreak of the present war the Virgin came to the sailor in a dream and said: "Many woes are going to befall Port Arthur until my image is sent there. Then Port Arthur will be victorious."

The sailor went on a pilgrimage to the great monastery of Rieff and told his dream to the 10,000 pilgrims there. Each of them gave 5 kopecks (2½ cents) to have the dream depicted, but the artists who made the image refused to receive payment. The ikon eventually was sent to Admiral Verkhovsky as senior admiral. It represents the Virgin bearing an image of Christ with archangels on either side and God the Father above, saying: "There can be but one flock and one shepherd."

SENATOR CULLOM REVIEWS DIPLOMATIC QUESTIONS DISPOSED OF RECENTLY

The Status of International Affairs Is Fully Explained.

Washington, April 27.—The senate met at 10 o'clock today, but the attendance was very slender.

Mr. Hale presented the conference report on the general deficiency bill, which was agreed to without debate.

Mr. Burrows, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, presented a resolution, authorizing that committee to sit during the recess of congress for the purpose of prosecuting its investigation into the charges against Mr. Smoot. The resolution was referred to the committee on contingent expenses.

Mr. Allison presented the report of the conference on the sundry civil appropriation bill.

Mr. Platt (Conn.) commented upon the feature of the report dealing with the proposed extension of the capitol, expressing the opinion that the act definitely committed congress to the extension and that in the future nothing would be said against it.

Mr. Hale and Mr. Allison expressed disagreement with this view, saying that congress was in no wise committed.

In response to a request from Mr. Aldrich, Mr. Allison made a statement bearing upon the senate amendment covering the purchase of silver bullion for subsidary coins. He said the amendment had been disagreed to because the provision which it had been proposed to insert is already law and that there is now no limitation on the power of the secretary of the treasury to purchase silver bullion for the subsidary coinage.

Mr. Aldrich agreed with Mr. Allison, saying that the finance committee had given the attention to the subject and had concluded that under the provisions of the sundry civil act of 1903, the secretary's authority for the purchase of silver for subsidary coinage is complete. He referred to the agitation of the question in connection with the amendment as "hysterical," saying that there is no more danger that the secretary will corner the silver market than that he will corner the copper market, or any other metal.

The conference report on the sundry civil bill was agreed to.

Mr. Cullom then addressed the senate on the subject of the country's foreign relations.

The speech of Senator Cullom, who is

CANAL COMMISSIONERS RETURN FROM PANAMA.

New York, April 27.—Among the passengers who arrived today on the steamer Yucatan, from Colon, were the following members of the United States canal commission:

Admiral J. G. Walker, Professor F. M. Burr, Gen. G. W. Davis, C. E. Grunsky, Col. F. J. Hecker, B. H. Harrod, Maj. R. M. Black, Col. W. C. Gorgas, Capt. C. E. Gillette, Drs. La Garde, Ledbetter and J. W. Ross. Mr. Grunsky said that the commissioners had accomplished the object of their visit, which was the general inspection of the physical features of the canal zone. William Barclay Parsons, the remaining commissioner, returned here last week.

STEAMSHIP ASHORE.

The Craigneuk Diasbled Off New Jersey Coast.

Atlantic City, April 27.—The British steamship Craigneuk, sugar laden, from Matanzas for Sandy Hook, went ashore near the South Brigantine life saving station today during the severe northeast storm. It is believed that the ship will float at the high tide. The vessel is lying in an easy position.

SHOULD OBEY HER HUSBAND.

Chicago, April 27.—Edward Travis and wife, of Baltimore, were today acquitted on the charge of shop-lifting. This is the case in which the plea was made for the wife that she should be held innocent because what she did was by her husband's command, and, according to the Bible, a woman must obey her husband at all times.

CORRESPONDENTS.

They Must Observe Rules In Every Particular.

Port Arthur, April 27—The regulations to be observed by war correspondents with the Russian army were published in today's issue of the Novi-Krai. Correspondents of foreign newspapers must have letters of recommendation from their governments to the Russian foreign office, and every correspondent must promise, in writing, not to divulge secret dispatches, or criticise the orders of these in command, and must similarly agree to give a true account of events and avoid irresponsible reports. They are warned that in the event of infraction of these regulations, indiscretion, or want of tact, they will be sent home. All correspondents are absolutely prohibited from visiting the admiralty dock, warshops or naval establishments, or from using boats in the harbors or roadsteads of Port Arthur or Vladivostok. Correspondents must undertake not to ask that exceptions be made in their favor, and on arriving at the front must report to headquarters with their credentials and an authenticated photograph.

The headquarters staff will then assign the correspondents to various staffs or districts. The rest will depend on the staffs concerned. Correspondents will be held responsible for their servants. Before they can stay at any fort the consent of the commander must be obtained.

Correspondents are required to wear a distinguishing badge on the left arm. Code messages are prohibited. All messages will be censored at headquarters by the staffs of the Manchurian and Amur armies at the administration of the various military districts and at Harbin by the governor, while censorship will also be established at the island of Sakhalin, Yin Kow and at the forts at Port Arthur and Vladivostok.

KOREAN MINES WORKING.

Seoul, Korea, April 27.—The German steamer Amigo has arrived at Chemulpo with bullion from the American mines at Unsan. It is reported that the imperial Japanese mint at Osaka has guaranteed to supply monthly the specie necessary to insure the running of the British mines at Ensan, contracting to take the total bullion output of the mines. The wage payments of the mines amount to about $7500 per month. The mint will pay, in the value of gold, the difference between the mines bullion output and the amounts advanced. The uninterrupted operation of both the American mines at Unsan and the British at Ensan is assured, while the Japanese are paramount.

CHINESE OVERREACH.

New York, April 27.—Owing to the great fear entertained by the Chinese government of unknowingly violating neutrality, it interprets the rules concerning contraband of war in such an exaggerated manner as to seriously interfere with legitimate commerce, according to the Pekin correspondent of the Herald. At present it is detaining at Shanghai, an American cargo of tin plate, tea and lead. The American minister has protested to the ministry of foreign affairs.

BRINGS IN N. P.

Harriman Files Amended Complaint Against Securities Company.

An Additional Section Also Appears In the New Bill.

Trenton, N. J., April 27.—An amended bill of complaint, making the Northern Pacific railroad company a party defendant, was filed in the United States circuit court here today in the suit brought by E. H. Harriman, Winslow S. Pierce and others to restrain the proposed plan of distribution decided upon by the directors of the Northern Securities company, in the carrying out of the decision of the United States supreme court, holding the Securities company to be an illegal combination.

Judge Kirkpatrick has made an order permitting the filing of the amended bill and fixing the first Monday in June for the Northern Pacific company to make answer thereto. The amended bill is ordered filed without prejudice to the proceedings already had, or to the restraining order granted on April 20. The restraining order already granted is continued.

The amended bill, besides making the Northern Pacific company a defendant, contains a new section which sets out that after the distribution provided for there will remain in the treasury of the Northern Securities company property in no way involved in the suit in the Minnesota district court of a value in excess of the $3,654,000, to which the capital stock of the Northern Securities company has been reduced.

The old section reciting the passage by the board of directors of the Securities company of the distribution plans has in the amended bill the additional words that the company by the acts of its directors "determined to fully and unobservedly abandon and terminate said unlawful combination."

SUPPLY OF COTTON

Should Be Greatly Increased, Says President Wamsley.

Boston, April 27.—In his annual address to the members of the New England Cotton Manufacturers' association, which began its yearly convention here today, President Herbert Wamsley said that one of the most pressing questions engaging the attention of the cotton world today was that of the development of the resources of the Southern cotton belt. He held that it was essential to the interest of the United States, as a producer, manufacturer and exporter of cotton, that the supply from our fields be increased, and its cost reduced, so as to retain an enormous source of wealth to the country. He expressed the belief that the trade would never be free from "unlawful high prices, speculation and unsatisfactory and harmful fluctuations, until there is ample supply of the raw material."

FATAL FALL.

St. Paul, April 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—August Haase fell through a stairway in the St. Paul dye works new building on West Third street yesterday. He died today at the city hospital. He fell thirty-five feet.

REPUBLICANS OF INDIANA NOMINATE J. F. HANLY FOR GOVERNOR ON FIRST BALLOT

J. FRANK HANLY,
Nominated for Governor By the Republicans of Indiana.

What Promised to Be Warm Contest Easily Settled.

Delegates to National Convention Instructed For Roosevelt.

Platform Indorses Fairbanks, Beveridge and All Things Republican.

Indianapolis, April 27.—At the opening of the second session of the Indiana Republican convention today the report of the credentials committee was accepted and the platform was presented. It says:

The Republican party in convention assembled, presents with profound satisfaction the achievements of the nation since the party was founded, and intrusted by the people with the control of our government.

It has reunited a divided country, freed the slaves, established the monetary system on a gold basis, restored the national credit and developed the American system of protection, until the United States is the leading industrial nation of the world.

In the cause of humanity, it fought a victorious war on land and sea that other peoples might be released from the burdens of oppression.

These and other national deeds of peace and war under Republican administrations have won the respect and praise of the world, and placed our country in the first rank amongst the nations. And now, under continuing wise and patriotic leadership the Republican party moves forward, maintaining and extending its policy and its purposes, and with unabated confidence again invites the support and suffrages of the people. We heartily and unreservedly endorse the wise and patriotic administration of Theodore Roosevelt. The president has met the tremendous responsibilities of his great office upon the high level of national duty and national honor. His administration has been thoroughly Republican and genuinely American. It has advanced prosperity at home and maintained our national interests abroad. The laws have been fearlessly and impartially enforced as they were enacted by congress. Evil doers have been driven from the public service.

The people demand a continuance of the present stable and prosperous conditions and we therefore favor the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for president and hereby instruct the delegates chosen by this convention to support his candidacy.

We pledge anew our confidence in the wisdom and efficacy of the protective tariff. This great Republican policy has abundantly justified itself and its maintenance is essential to the continuance of our industrial independence and national prosperity. It is demanded alike to the interest of both American labor and capital.

We favor changes of schedules as conditions demand, but such changes should only be made consistently with the policy of protection.

The Republican party has firmly established the gold standard against violent Democratic opposition. Our monetary system, which is the best in the world, is the rich fruit of Republican statesmanship. We have more money among the people than we ever had in the history of the republic and it is of unquestioned soundness and purchasing power.

We commend President Roosevelt for his faithful enforcement of the laws applicable to combinations of capital in restraint of wholesome trade and commerce, which the Democratic party when in power, refused to execute; and to further prevent corporate evils we have placed on the statute books additional laws providing for publicity, preventing rebates by railroads and creating the department of commerce and labor for the more effectual supervision and enforcement of laws.

We approve the reciprocity treaty with the republic of Cuba. Our relations with the new republic should always be such as are dictated by justice and generosity, to the end that the ties which bind the two peoples together in commerce and amity, may continue close and unbroken.

We approve the course of President Roosevelt in protecting the imperiled interests of Americans upon the isthmus of Panama; in promptly recognizing the independence of the people and the republic of Panama and in securing a treaty with that republic under which the United States may construct an inter-oceanic canal in the interests of the commerce of the world; and we further commend the president for the promptness and energy with which he is pushing forward the work of this great enterprise.

American administration in the Philippines has resulted in peace to the people, honest government, equal justice to all, improvement in material conditions and the spread of education. No nation's work for civilization has surpassed that of the republic in the archipelago. To that policy we will steadfastly adhere.

We favor the principle of arbitration in the adjustment of international disputes where they do not involve the national honor, and we commend the administration of President Roosevelt for its efforts to embody this principle in treaty compacts with other powers.

The Republican party can never forget the heroic services of our soldiers and sailors upon land and sea.

We believe in a just pension policy towards those who have borne the burden and heat of battle, their widows and orphans.

Senators Fairbanks and Beveridge are heartily indorsed as well as the state administration.

Nominations were made as follows:

For secretary of state—Daniel E. Storms, Lafayette.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE FOR PRESIDENT TO START THE FAIR

When He Presses the Electric Button at Washington, All Machinery Will Move, the Cascades Will Start and Flags Will Unfurl.

St. Louis, April 27.—All arrangements have been perfected by the Postal Telegraph company for transmitting to St. Louis the electric current to be started by President Roosevelt at the White House in Washington, which will formally open the Louisiana Purchase exposition on April 30.

Two separate circuits will be used to guard against possible interference by storms in any particular section of the country.

The key to be used by President Roosevelt is of gold, and after it has been used by the president, it will be presented by the Postal Telegraph company to President Francis of the World's fair. The telegraph wires will be brought in underground conduit to the speaker's stand at the base of the Louisiana purchase monument, at the fair grounds. P. V. De Graw will handle the key at the St. Louis end of the wires. Maj. B. F. Montgomery, formerly executive secretary to President McKinley, will handle the key at Washington. Both circuits will be used, conversations being conducted over one preparatory to sending the message over the other.

When President Roosevelt touches the key in Washington he will not only start all machinery on the fair grounds in motion, but the current will also start the cascades, and, at the same time, unfurl all the flags on the several buildings.

The arrangements at the speaker's stand in St. Louis will be in charge of Thomas S. Cunningham, who represents the Postal Telegraph company at the World's fair.

Solomon H. Mudge, superintendent of the Postal Telegraph company in St. Louis has been notified that a special key, to be used at the World's fair, has been sent here.

FIERCE FIRE AT BRAINERD

Greater Part of the Business Portion Was Destroyed.

Brainerd, Minn., April 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—A fire which started at midnight in the Hartley block destroyed the greater part of the business portion of this town, causing a loss which is estimated at $150,000. Among the buildings burned and the individual losses are: Hartley block, loss, $25,000, insurance, $8000; Wise building, loss $10,000, insurance $8000; Stipp Bros., hardware, loss $15,000, insurance $8000; R. F. Walters, boots and shoes, loss $6000, insurance $4500; C. Burnet, jewelry, loss $5000, insurance $2000; J. F. Murphy & Co., clothing, loss $13,000, insurance $9000; A. E. Mowbery dry goods, loss $30,000, insurance $11,000; Olaf Kange, drugs, loss $10,000, insurance $5000; M. K. Swartz, drugs, loss $12,000, insurance $6500; J. F. Hawkins, loss $3500, insurance $1500.

At 3:30 o'clock this morning it was confidently thought the entire block between Fifth and Sixth streets would go up in smoke, but by the energetic work of the firemen the fire was confined to the Hartley block. Those who were located in the Wise block, a large frame structure, next to the Hartley block, moved out and the large stocks of goods were strewn along the street and their losses will be heavy. Some of these merchants moved out as late as 3 o'clock, thinking that the whole block would go. The excellent water pressure and the prompt work of the department avoided one of the most disastrous fires in the history of the city.

WATER TOO COLD

Would-Be Suicide Clambers Out After Jumping In Bay.

Took Place at Coal Dock —Man Is Thought Crazy.

The icy temperature of the water in the harbor saved a would-be suicide from ending his life a few days ago in the slip of the Pioneer Fuel company.

The man was willing to face the prospect of heat for eternity, but the temperature of the water was more than he was prepared to stand.

The man appeared on the dock of the coal company about the middle of the afternoon. He walked out to the end, and getting down on his knees, held up his hands in the attitude of prayer. One of the employes of the company noticed him and watched his actions.

The man then stood up and took off his coat and waistcoat, folding them in a neat bundle. By this time the employes of the coal company thought there was to be something doing, and started toward the man. But the stranger lowered himself into the water, feet first, and sank out of sight through a hole in the ice. The would-be rescuer ran for a pike pole, and returning, found the man clambering up the timbers of the dock.

"Ugh! That water is like ice," said the man as he calmly proceeded to don his coat and waistcoat over his drip ping garments, while the workman watched him with eyes that could be knocked off with a hammer.

"What in thunder ——," commenced the man with the pike pole, but he was interrupted by the dripping stranger.

"Do you know I have been watching that sun for half an hour and it hasn't moved an inch," were the words that fell from the lips of the unsuccessful suicide, as he walked off with the water trickling from his shoes, and giving no explanation of his sudden desire for a bath in the ice water, and his equally mysterious remark concerning the sun.

"I'll have to quit drinking," said the workman, as he watched the retreating figure of the man whom he expected to pull up from the bottom of the bay with a pike pole.

Nothing has been seen of the stranger since by the men on the dock, and they are convinced that he is out of his mind and attempted to kill himself while in a temporary fit of insanity. No other explanation of his queer actions, and still more peculiar remark, can be offered. The matter was never reported to the authorities, as the stranger's name could not be secured.

DEATH LURKS IN SICK KIDNEYS

The kidneys are the weak link in the chain of life, and are daily carrying thousands of victims to untimely graves. Ninety men and women in every hundred have kidney trouble and don't know it, because it's only when the trouble reaches an advanced stage that it's recognized as kidney disease.

We imagine we have dyspepsia, heart disease, nervous prostration and a hundred and one ills, but nine times out of ten the real trouble is that the kidneys are so weak and diseased that they are utterly unable to carry the waste matters out of the body, and the uric acid accumulates in the system, and slowly but surely paves the way for Bright's disease, diabetes, blood poisoning and a horrible death in convulsions. Ask your doctor if this is not good, solid, common sense.

EXAMINE YOUR URINE

It's the infallible test of kidney trouble. If your morning urine, on standing still 24 hours, contains a sediment, is cloudy, or shows floating particles, your kidneys are seriously diseased and must be treated at once.

There is only one remedy that can be used with absolute safety and confidence, Warner's Safe Cure, put up for years at Rochester, N. Y., by the Warner's Safe Cure Company, and sold at all drug stores, 50 cents and $1 a bottle.

Warner's Safe Cure is used by leading physicians, and in hospitals, as the one certain cure for all diseases of kidneys, liver, bladder and blood—the remedy that cures when all else fails, and leaves no bad after effects. Get a bottle today; it will save you years of suffering.

INTERESTING TO BOYS.

M. S. Burrows Introduces New Feature In Boys' Clothing Department.

A particularly interesting feature has been introduced by M. S. Burrows in connection with his boys' clothing department, in the American Boys' Library, which contains the newest works of leading authors of books for boys. This will interest parents, as their boys can now obtain good books by such authors as Henty, Oliver Optic and others of equal prominence, at no expense whatever. Nothing is better than good books for boys, and Mr. Burrows has gone to considerable expense in having this new feature introduced.

LOSSES ARE VERY HEAVY

Nearly Three-Quarters of Von Glassenapp Officers Dead.

Berlin, April 27.—Capt. Danlhauer, the Lokal Anzeiger's special correspondent with Maj. Von Glassenapp's column in Southwest Africa, has sent a dispatch announcing that the losses of the column through deaths, wounds and sickness since immediately prior to the battle of Owikokorero, March 13, were officers 63 per cent and privates 35 per cent.

Forty-four men are now sick with typhus, besides those sent to Windhoek. The column was not molested by the enemy, but apparently is unable to undertake military operations. The troops are suffering from night frosts and heavy rains and are awaiting reinforcements to make good their losses.

OFFICE CHANGES.

Said to Be Few In Duluth Buildings This Year.

Very few of the office buildings are seeing many changes in their tenants this spring—in fact, fewer than usual. While the Palladio and Manhattan are under new control, the former loses no tenants, while some new ones have come in. The rents have been raised, which is said to have been for the purpose of covering extensive improvements. There are a few changes in the Manhattan, which is also being improved, but the rents are said to be comparatively unchanged.

The Lonsdale building agent reports no changes of any consequence, and rents about the same, while the American Exchange bank is said to have adjusted its rates by putting some up and others down. The Burrows block reports little change in tenants and none in rents, having raised the scale a year ago. The Lyceum and other buildings are seeing comparatively no spring flitting.

CROSSING MATTER

More Discussion of Switching Across Fifth Avenue West.

Omaha Road to Equip Several Divisions With Block Signals.

While at different times the subject of the switching across Fifth avenue has been brought before the Commercial club, this body has never had the matter up in such a way as to cause any action to be taken. Chances are the subject will come up again soon. It is said that there is an agreement between the Omaha road and those who use the tracks of the Northern Pacific that the latter people shall never hold the crossing within five minutes of the departure of or the arrival of an Omaha train.

It may be the violation of this agreement that caused General Agent Smith, of the Omaha, to resent the inconvenience of it and declare himself to a Herald reporter the other day. But he stated very plainly at the time that he had no fight against the railroad company, but merely wanted the ordinance enforced, and that his contention was solely along this line.

At any rate, his open stand on the matter has caused considerable talk on the subject and no end of flurry among some of the railroad men of the combination which uses the Northern Pacific depot, and as a man expressed it this morning, it looks as though "some of the old dry bones might rattle."

The Northern Pacific people were asked by a reporter for a statement of their side of the matter and declined to give any, but an agent whose road does business over the combination tracks said that there was not any doubt that the agreement between the companies had been violated and on that score he could say nothing. But he asserted that the switching was necessary, owing to the freight house being located at Fifth avenue and Railroad street.

"The switching is necessary in order to get cars at the doors there so they can be unloaded," said he. "They have to be moved in such a way as to put the car doors just opposite the freight house doors, so that the stuff can be taken out, and the only way you can move them is with an engine."

It was suggested that a system of doors could be arranged along the side of the freight house which would open at practically any point along the track, thus heelping to do away with the switching. To this he made no reply. But he did criticise the suggestion of Mr. Smith that the engineer be arrested, and said that to arrest the engineer and leave the engine standing there would be dangerous to the public.

A gentleman who was formerly interested in business on Lake Avenue said that when he was located there and before the viaduct was built it was a common occurence for a congestion of cars across that street.

"Now, since the viaduct has been put there to avoid the trouble that used to be so common, the railroad people have moved their scene of operations to Fifth avenue," said he. "They will keep it up there until they kill a few people and then it may be stopped. It was only through the killing a few years ago of Emil Kritz, a well-known merchant, that anything was ever done to relieve the trouble there. He was a member of the wholesale grocery firm of Call, Cannon & Kritz. There isn't any question but what the railroad people have more sway at that crossing than they have any right to.

"I remember an incident, however, that was an effective scare for one engineer near Lake avenue some years ago before the viaduct was built, and which stopped him from switching as frequently across Lake avenue. A certain man who is now well known in Duluth was removing some lumber and it was across the tracks between some houses. The engineer bumped his machine into it, and the man ran after him with a revolver, threatening that if he ran into any more lumber he would kill him. The engineer did not run into any more lumber."

Another railroad man said that the fault was probably with the Northern Pacific people allowing the responsibility for obeying the ordinance to rest with the engineers and firemen, who could be heedless of the city regulation at their own risk. He said it was hardly natural that the company would penalize the men if it was not made responsible directly in the matter.

BLOCK SIGNALS.

Omaha Road to Equip Several Divisions.

Fifty-two more stations on the northern district of the Wisconsin division of the Omaha will be equipped with new block system of signals, to cost $15,000, and to be in use about the middle of June. The extensions will include between Duluth and North Wisconsin and Ashland to North Wisconsin and from Spooner to Eau Claire, to promote the fast running of the new Duluth limited.

By the new system trains can be governed between stations, enabling them to run farther before being held up. In other words they can be stopped or started at block signal points other than the regular telegraph stations, and is expected to save half the time ordinarily taken in stops. The dining car on the new Duluth limited will be operated between this city and Eau Claire only, not being serviceable on the lower end of the line.

Railroad Notes.

H. E. Still, assistant general freight agent of the Northern Pacific, is here from St. Paul.

The Great Northern office yesterday did the greatest amount of business at any time within three years, and Agent Brostedt thinks it breaks all records before that as well. It was a day of low rates generally for westbound traffic, including coast passengers.

Mr. Martz leaves in office a record of three years of consistent and faithful service to the city. Both of the other members of the board paid high compliments to him this morning in speaking of the approaching change.

"Our associations have always been most pleasant," said Mr. Holgate. We have always noticed that the advice of Mr. Martz is pretty good advice to take."

"We are sorry to see Mr. Martz go," said Mr. Kennedy. "He has been a very valuable official to the city during his term on the board, and his experience as a civil engineer has proved of great assistance to us in settling the engineering problems that come before the board from time to time."

DECIDE ON CALL

Democrats Fix June 4 as Time For Party Caucuses.

Convention to Be Held June 11—Committeeman For Hearst.

At the St. Louis yesterday afternoon, a meeting of the Democratic committee of St. Louis county was held, with John Beutner, of Proctor, the chairman, presiding.

The county convention is to be held on June 11, and it was decided to make the hour 2 p. m. and the place of meeting the city hall. The caucuses were set for June 4, between 7 and 9 p. m., and are to be held for the primaries in the usual polling places of each precinct in the county.

The basis of representation will be one delegate for each fifty votes or fraction thereof cast for Bryan for president in 1900, with the provision that each precinct is entitled to at least one delegate. This provision will take care of any precincts that have been established since the last presidential election.

Most of the members of the county committee are for Hearst for president and they are confident that the convention in this county will elect delegates to the state convention who are Hearst men. They say that is the only thing for the Bryan Democrats to do.

CAN SAVE MONEY

East Superior Street Owners of Vacant Property Have Chance.

Should Inform City of How Connections Should Be Made.

Owners of unimproved property on East Superior street will find it to their advantage to inform the city engineer of the manner in which they intend to improve their property.

At the last meeting of the council P. McDonnell was instructed to make water, gas and sewer connections from the curb to the mains in the street. This will enable the property owners to connect their lots with the mains without tearing up the pavement in the street. All that will be necessary will be to complete the connections from the curb to the house.

The cost of the work is assessed against the owners of the vacant property, and is not included in the contract for the pavement.

The owners of such vacant property may be able to save themselves a considerable sum of money if they take the matter up with the city engineer and inform him of the manner in which they intend to improve. The engineer is empowered to order a connection made for every vacant 50-foot lot. Several of the owners have two or three lots and intend to build but one residence. In such cases only one connection will be necessary, and by informing the city engineer of the fact they will doubtless save themselves the expense of two extra connections.

"Nothing smaller than a 6-inch sewer pipe can be used for these connections," said City Engineer McGilvray this morning in discussing the matter. "A pipe of this size is amply sufficient for two or three ordinary residences, and where there are adjacent lots which are to be improved for residence purposes only one connection would be sufficient for the two, and the property owners can save a considerable sum of money by getting together in this manner and making only one connection, with a 'Y' to the different houses.

"If flats are to be constructed, a connection for every 50-foot lot might be necessary.

"The same conditions apply to the water and gas connections, and it would be well for the owners of vacant property to look into the matter."

The object in ordering the connections made at this time is to prevent the street being torn up after the pavement has been laid.

DIFFERENCES CLEARED UP

House and Senate Conferees Agree on Sundry Civil Bill.

Washington, April 27.—The conference agreement on the sundry civil appropriation bill reported today clears up all differences between the two houses on this measure.

Senate amendments making appropriations for lighthouses, beacons and fog signals are retained for the following stations:

Depot for ninth (Lake Michigan) lighthouse district, Presque Isle, Mich.; tenders for Lake Superior lighthouse district and Prestigo Reed light vessel, Wis.

The house provision making the appropriation hereafter made for the enforcement of the Chinese exclusion act available for the Bertillon system of identification is restored.

The senate amendment providing for an office building for senators is restored. In relation to extention of the east front of the capitol substitutes are provided for house and senate provision for a joint commission of three senators and three representatives to inquire and report at the next session of congress, plans in detail and estimates of cost for the extension and completion of the capitol building.

The senate amendment appropriating $50,000 for a statue of Thomas Jefferson is stricken out and a provision adopted to create a commission to report plans and designs for a statue to cost not exceeding $100,000.

The senate amendment increasing from $900,000 to $1,500,000 for construction and enlargement of buildings at military posts is retained.

The senate increase from $20,000 to $32,000 for Shiloh national park is retained.

The house provision regarding the national home for disabled volunteer soldiers, is restored.

The appropriation for the enforcement of the anti-trust laws is made available as proposed by the house for the fiscal year 1905. The house provision of $5,000 prevails instead of the senate provision of $125,000 for assistant attorneys in special cases.

The following senate amendments are retained: Appropriating $2000 for an international congress to consider the subjects relating to collisions at sea and salvage; $2820 for the international sanitary bureaus; $500 for legation building at Pekin; $5000 for the international exposition at Liege, Belgium; $2000 for the purchase of a bust of Gen. Lafayette; authorizing medals for the Louisiana purchase exposition.

The senate provision removing the limitation as to the amount of subsidiary silver coinage is stricken out.

THEY PASSED QUEER MONEY

Two Men Arrested at Eveleth For Passing Counterfeit Bills.

Eveleth, Minn., April 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two men were arrested here this morning for passing $10 counterfeit bank bills. They tried to pass one in the saloon of August Kirkula, and when arrested had $150 of the queer stuff in their possession, which they tried to throw away.

The bills are photographic reproductions of Denver, Colo., National bank bills.

The men, who gave their names as Isaac Frantillia and Frank Hill, claimed to reside in Biwabik, but they are not known here and it is thought they are part of a gang that is trying to flood this part of the country with bad money.

CAN RATTLED BY A GHOST

Family Driven In Fear From Port Huron Home.

Port Huron, Mich., April 27.—Supernatural causes—tins rattling noisily and unseen bodies walking across the floors with tramping feet—are said to have reduced Mrs. Edward Glover in one week's time from a plump woman to a thin nervous wreck. A week ago Mr. and Mrs. Glover moved from Bancroft street into the house owned by Frank McGraw, at 1105 St. Clair street, and since that time they and many of their friends have heard these uncanny noises. They assume they are caused by ghosts that haunt the place.

The first day they were in the house, the 7-year-old daughter of her sister, Mrs. George Ryder, of Elwood street, came toddling downstairs from the chambers with awful fright pictured on her face. Rushing into the arms of Mrs. Glover, she cried: "Don't let that man touch me, aunty."

Mrs. Glover supposed the child was only frightened by babyish fancies and did her best to soothe her distress. Later Mrs. Glover heard a tin rattling upstairs and went to investigate. She found a tin which was used to cover a stovepipe hole making the noise, and taking it down placed it upon a bed. She returned downstairs and soon heard the tin rattling harder and louder than ever. She rushed upstairs again. Step, step, step, the floor was creaking as if under the feet of a moving body, but nobody was visible. The sound passed at round her and the tin rattled again. Her nerves were unstrung and she rushed to the lower floor. When her husband returned she told him of the affair and he was not convinced until he also heard the noise, not in the same room, however, but all over the house. This occurred on Monday and that night she was too nervous to sleep in the house and they went to the neighbors. On Tuesday night they decided to stick it out and went to bed. The light was left burning brightly, but the noises continued. This settled it and they did not sleep in the house again. The next day a number of their friends were called in, but the unnatural noises could not be located and the place was declared to be haunted.

Mrs. Glover could not stand the strain and a house was rented two doors away. Their neighbors helped them move their household goods and now for the first time in a week Mrs. Glover is resting comfortably.

It is said that the landlord of the house has threatened to shoot anyone found fooling around his home at night.

SAVE WOMAN MURDERER

New Jersey's Governor Will Estop Mrs. Salvatini's Hanging.

Hackensack, N. J., April 27.—The duty of signing a death warrant of a woman, as a convicted murderer, has greatly worried Governor Franklin Murphy, and he has started a movement to have the sentence of Mrs. Salvatini commuted to life imprisonment.

"It is not necessary for me to say whether I have conscientious scruples against the hanging of women," said Governor Murphy, "but if any effort of mine can prevent it, my administration shall not be stained with a woman hanging.

"It may be something unprecedented for a governor to start, of his own volition and unsolicited, a movement for the extension of clemency to a lifetaker; but if I am setting a precedent to save a state the disgrace of hanging a woman, I feel that it is one worthy of being followed."

The governor had no sooner read of the imposition of the death sentence than he busied himself to avert the execution. He had arranged to be absent in Europe until June 1. The hanging was fixed for May 19, and, that he might intervene to save the woman, he immediately signed a reprieve extending her lease of life to June 16.

Then he asked the court of pardons to appoint a committee to inquire into the surroundings of the tragedy. The court of pardons can extend no clemency without the consent of the governor; nor can the governor act for mercy without the consent of a majority of the members of the pardoning board. But even the prosecutor who secured Mrs. Salvatini's conviction is understood to be ready to aid in the effort for mercy.

The committee of the court of pardons, which has already made a casual inquiry into Mrs. Salvatini's case, is disposed to think that there may be mitigation in the excitement and provocation under which she committed her crime. She says that Mrs. Salza, the victim, lured from her the man who had been the head of her household for eight years, and afterward taunted her and even accused her of being an abandoned woman. Goaded by the abuse the Salza woman poured upon her from the window of her house as she passed one day a few weeks ago, Mrs. Salvatini rushed in for vengeance. Mrs. Salza met her with a dagger, and there was a struggle for the possession of the weapon. Mrs. Salvatini finally managed to grasp it, and then inflicted seventeen wounds. She left her dead rival and walked miles to the Hackensack jail to surrender herself. She said she had nothing to live for, now that her husband had been stolen and her rival was dead and her vengeance complete, and that she was ready to die.

When moving why not engage covered vans. It costs no more.

By Many For Getting the Republican State Convention.

Accommodations In the Twin Cities Are Not Sufficient.

Minneapolis, April 27.—The Times today says: It is by no means certain that St. Paul will entertain the Republican state nominating convention, which will be called by the state central committee, which will meet in St. Paul a week from today.

At the lowest estimate this convention will be composed of over 1000 delegates, and the question of securing a hall which will permit the seating of them all on the same floor is a problem.

It has been suggested that the Metropolitan Opera house might be used for the purpose, but it will be impossible to place all the delegates on the main floor.

In view of the fact that this convention promises to be a most interesting one, it is argued by the supporters of all the candidates that the conditions which obtained at the St. Patrick's day ratification meeting in Minneapolis should not prevail.

The delegates believe they should not be scattered on several floors of a theater and compelled to rush up and down stairs when it is desirable to make a trade or consult with the leaders. Again, it is impossible for the men in the balcony to see or hear the speakers in the rear of the paraquet.

The impression prevails that unless the Saintly City can provide accommodations superior to any it has offered, the convention will go to Duluth. The Democratic state convention will be held in the Zenith City on June 22, and it is announced that the railroads will grant a $2 round trip rate from the Twin Cities. Therefore, the indications are that the candidacy of Duluth will have strong support.

YOUR VOICE BETRAYS YOU

Club Women Can Hear Character In Tone and Timbre.

Chicago, April 27.—"Character reading" became out of date in Millard avenue Monday; from now on "character hearing" will be the vogue. At the meeting of the Woman's Literary club of Millard avenue, held in the afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Charles E. Curtiss, the president, Mrs. Clyde Pence told her fellow members how to "hear" a man's character in his voice. She gave the following rules:

Those who have a deep, sonorous voice, like that of a donkey, are indiscreet and quarrelsome.

Those having a sharp thin, husky voice are weak and yield easily to temptations.

A full, abrupt voice denotes a strong, impulsive, bold, enterprising man.

A powerful, deep voice generally indicates cowardice.

The man possessing a voice which is deep at first, but raised to a high key as he finishes speaking is noisy, irritable, and of unhappy disposition.

Those having a thin, shrill voice are peevish, ill tempered, and passionate.

A low, sweet voice is an "admirable thing in woman."

The speaker's subject was "The Influence of Music on Health and Life." She said that music is prescribed as a good tonic for the sick.

"It is successfully employed in our insane asylums," she said, "for sadness, depression, or despondency. It performs wonders in cases of longing for new excitement, cheering all who suffer from low spirits. If we would apply music to the treatment or relief of disease we must necessarily be acquainted with the patient's manner of life, his character, temperament, habits, and passions. If the patient is morose, avoid songs likely to keep his mind in the condition into which he has fallen."

Mrs. Pence then prescribed the following kinds of music for use in the different cases described:

Lively and vigorous music for a delicate, weak, and nervous child.

Those of a dull, sluggish nature should be gradually roused by means of powerful and impressive music.

Those of a nervous disposition must be soothed by sweet and tender melodies.

Those of bilious temperament should hear songs that are light, short, and tinged with gayety.

"Even those not ill," continued Mrs. Pence, "will find music useful in strengthening mental energy and ideas, in refreshing the imagination, and relieving fatigue."

The speaker urged that music is essential to war.

"An army," she said, "would as soon think of leaving its gunpowder at home as its harmony. I believe that the music more than the cause, during our war with Spain, made the flower of the manhood of our nation fall into line and go down to Cuba to combat not only the Spaniards but the fever."

Mrs. Pence declared that the influence of music on animals is as potent as upon human beings.

"The passions of animals, like those of human beings," she said, "have naturally rhythmical character, totally independent of all education and customs. Tenderness, melancholy, grief, gayety, merriment, and rage sometimes can be aroused and again calmed by songs, especially if the songs are simple and the phrases which compose them are short and easily comprehended."

Then the club tested the power of music. The club chorus sang a number of selections, and Mrs. Edward Tibbitts sang a lullaby.

PROF. SHERLOCK HOLMES

Has a Case In Yale College Grounds.

New Haven, April 27.—Yale professors are conducting a scientific search, which they hope will divulge the identity of a man who struck down Augusta Peterson, dragged her into the grounds of the Yale school of forestry, and left her unconscious with a fractured skull, to find her way dazed to the home of Professor Yandell Henderson, where she is employed.

Professor Henderson heads the search for evidence. He says he believes the person who attacked the girl was a well dressed man. He has found two pieces of evidence to support his theory. He has measured the heel marks made in the soft mud of the forestry school grounds. They indicate that the shoes the ruffian wore were of high price. On the trail he left was found a cigarette case. The brand of cigarettes in it is of an expensive kind, such as some Yale students smoke. The heels of all the employes in the school of forestry have been measured, but none of them fits the marks in the soft earth.

Miss Peterson lies in a critical condition in the New Haven hospital. She says she was struck down from behind as she was going home, near the grounds, and the next she knew, an hour afterward, she was lying under the shrubbery in the grounds, her skull fractured, and bearing other marks of rough treatment.

Professor Henderson offered a reward of $500 for the conviction of the man who attacked her. Several Yale professors, who live on Prospect Hill, threaten to lynch the culprit. Several millionaires of New Haven live on Prospect Hill, and all the wealthy Yale professors have homes there. They are contributing financial and other assistance to Professor Henderson in his efforts to run down the ruffian.

AUTO MAKES UNCEREMONIOUS CALL

Minneapolis, April 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large blue automobile, driven by John Thomas, got beyond control last evening and crashed into a big plate glass window in Bradshaw Bros.'s store. The automobile was not damaged and the chauffeur escaped injury, although he did not jump. A heavy metal cap protected his head from flying glass. The front wheels of the machine entered the store, striking the desk of one of the members of the firm. The janitor, who was in the basement, was struck by a piece of glass. One hundred and twenty-four square feet of glass was destroyed.

FIGHTING IT STUBBORNLY

Weyerhaeuser Interests Opposing Brooks-Scanlon Condemnation.

The hearing in the condemnation proceedings brought by the Brooks-Scanlon interests at Scanlon, Minn., to secure a right-of-way for a switch road and certain water rights on Lake Alden and the Cloquet river, is developing into what promises to be a stubborn and long-drawn out fight with the Weyerhauser interests in the opposition.

The hearing was begun before Judge Cant yesterday and is still on today. Both parties in the action have a large array of legal talent from Duluth and from outside the city.

The attorneys retained by the Brooks-Scanlon people are J. A. Keyes, Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell, of Duluth; Ripley & Lum, of Minneapolis, and J. N. Searle, of St. Paul.

The Weyerhauser interests are represented by H. Oldenburg, of Cloquet; W. B. Phelps, of Duluth; John R. Vanderlip, of Minneapolis, and Warner E. Lawrence, of St. Paul.

Among those in attendance at the morning session were Dr. Brooks, of Minneapolis, R. M. Weyerhauser, H. C. Hornby, and various other lumbermen from Cloquet.

The testimony this morning was mainly regarding the proposed plans of the Minnesota & Northern Wisconsin Railway company as shown by a number of blueprints and drawings showing Lake Alden, the sorting works and the Cloquet river.

CLEANING THE STREETS

Board of Public Works Has Force at Work.

The work of cleaning up First street was commenced this morning by the employes of the board of public works.

"We are gradually working up the hill," said Alexander Kennedy, of the board, this morning. "We started in with Superior street which had to be cleaned first. Then we cleaned the avenues in the business section from First street to the lake. The men are now working on First street, and as soon as that is finished they will clean up the avenues between First and Second streets and then move up to Second street. We will work in this manner until all of the central part of the city is cleaned up.

"In the meantime men will be put to work in the other parts of the city, cleaning the most important streets and avenues first. This fine weather is of great assistance to us in the spring clean-up and if it lasts a little longer we will have the streets of the city in good shape before long."

The board of health has not yet started its work on the garbage piles and ash heaps. The frost is not yet out of the ground and the work would be an expensive and difficult proposition at the present time. If the present fine weather continues, however, a large force of men will be put to work shortly after the first of the month and the work rushed to as early a completion as is possible.

A Telephone Message.

CUPID'S PROMISE.

"HELLO, Central! Give me No. 663 Main, please. Yes. Hello! Is this Miss Poindexter? Yes. This is the little god of love speaking to you. You knew my voice in a moment, didn't you? You think me a little darling for what I did for you? Yes. Well, you know L-O-V-E don't spell marriage. 'There is many a slip twixt the cup and the lip.' You think I called you up just to quarrel? No. What I want you to do is to make yourself 'fit.' Let 'your uncle' give you some advice. When a woman is nervous, irritable, almost hysterical, at times melting into tears or laughing at small provocation, she should brace up, get out of doors, breathe in good strength bearing oxygen, and in other ways put her body into physical condition so that she may be proud of her womanhood and strong to bear the burdens of life. What's that? You think me extremely amusing! Well, now, let me tell you that Cupid is almost out of business at times, because the young girls are so frail and ill so much of the time that they don't 'make good.' You don't know what I mean, dear? Well, I tell you what, if I was a young man and I found a young woman I was courting was all the time sick, ill, pale, suffering from weaknesses, peculiar to the sex, I wouldn't stand it very long." Take the advice of little Doctor Cupid and build up your strength with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—a remedy prescribed only for just such cases as yours, by a physician who is known the world over.

CUPID'S PLACE.

Cupid has no place in a girl's heart if she is nervous and irritable, feels dragged down, worn out for no reason that she can think of. In such cases the body is not sound. The nervousness and other symptoms are telegraphed all over the body by the nerves, which are the telegraphic system of the human body, because the weak spot demands attention. The weak back, dizzy spells and black circles about the eyes are only symptoms. Go to the source of the trouble and correct the irregularity. The drains on the womanly system and the other symptoms disappear. This can be done easily and intelligently.

The correctness of this advice is amply proven by the experience of many thousands of women—a large number of whom have written of their experiences. So sure of it is the World's Dispensary Medical Association, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that they offer $500 reward for women who cannot be cured of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus or Falling of the Womb. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure. Their financial responsibility is well known to every newspaper publisher and druggist in the United States. This wonderful remedy therefore stands absolutely alone as the only one possessed of such remarkable curative properties as would warrant its makers in publishing such a marvelous offer as is above made in the utmost good faith. It is a medicine which has stood and numbers its cures by the thousands. It is a perfectly safe tonic in any condition of the system, being entirely vegetable and without alcohol.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives new life and new strength to weak, worn-out, run-down women. It establishes regularity, dries unhealthy drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Miss Emma Weller, who is Secretary of the Young People's Christian Association, at 1818 Madison Avenue, New York City, says: "Your 'Favorite Prescription' is a boon to sick and tired women, for it cures them when other medicines fail. I know whereof I speak, for I have had experience with it. For fourteen months I had constant headaches; seemed too weak to perform my daily duties, and when the day was over I was too tired to sleep well. I suffered from nervousness and had nervous indigestion, and everything I ate distressed me. Doctored with different physicians but received no relief. After reading one of your books I decided to give your 'Favorite Prescription' a trial. Am very glad I did, for I found it was just what I wanted. I commenced to improve at once and kept getting better until, after seven weeks, I was entirely cured. I have remained in perfect health ever since, and remain a firm friend of your 'Favorite Prescription.'"

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" is only seeking to make the little more profit afforded by a less meritorious medicine. His profit is your loss. Therefore, turn your back on him as unworthy of your patronage.

HOW TO ASSIST YOUR GIRLS.

"The change from maidenhood to womanhood is one that involves the whole body—it manifests itself in the voice and the nervous condition," says Dr. Pierce. "It should be natural and like gradually falling asleep. Owing to present modes of living, however, the nervous energy of young girls is forced—the necessary nutrition for tissues, blood and nerves is wanting, and consequently the young girl fades like a flower in some bad atmosphere. Tight lacing is another cause for this condition. The strain at this time upon the blood-forming structures may be too great. Disorders of the functions peculiarly feminine are nearly always dependent upon the defective nutrition. Hygienic measures are most important. Fresh air and sunshine are more than ever necessary—then I have found in all such cases that my 'Favorite Prescription' is just the vegetable tonic for the female system at this time."

HOT TIME IN HOUSE

Congressmen Dalzell and Cockran Engage In Bitter Debate.

Cockran Demands Investigation of Charges Made By Dalzell.

Washington, April 27.—The heavyweights had another bout in the house yesterday, with Messrs. Dalzell and Cockran as the combatants.

The speeches were a renewal of last Saturday's debate, but were more personal in their character. As on Saturday, the speakers were greeted with vociferous applause by their respective colleagues, and the bitterness of party feeling ran high. Mr. Dalzell had Mr. Cockran on the rack for nearly two hours, during which time he dealt largely with that gentleman's political history, which, he said, showed him to have been consecutively a greenbacker, a sound money man and a free silver man.

He reverted to his statement of last Saturday that he had been informed that Mr. Cockran had accepted money to support the campaign of McKinley, and read extracts from several newspapers to show that that was the general impression at the time.

Mr. Cockran, thoroughly indignant at times, denied the accusation of Mr. Dalzell, whom he arraigned for making statements which could not be substantiated. If what Mr. Dalzell had said were true, he declared, he (Cockran), was unworthy of membership.

In emphatic and positive language, Mr. Cockran denied that he had received money from the Palmer and Buckner campaign committee, or that he had ever received money for supporting McKinley in 1896. If Mr. Dalzell, he said, believed the charges against him, it was nothing but a confession of the Republican party's corruption, and proof that the presidential election had been purchased.

The climax came when he offered a resolution providing for the appointment of a select committee of five members of the house to investigate the charges which had been made against him by Mr. Dalzell. He and other Democrats, including Mr. Williams, the minority leader, demanded immediate consideration, but the speaker declined to pass on a point of order against the resolution until he had examined precedents.

Mr. Dalzell referred to the colloquy between himself and Mr. Cockran last Saturday, and called attention to the reply of Mr. Cockran that he had never made a Republican speech, and that he had supported McKinley when he thought it right, "but the gentleman from Pennsylvania would support him when he thinks it profitable."

Mr. Dalzell, with some feeling, declared that he had asked Mr. Cockran a civil question.

"I got a brutal reply," said he.

He insisted that he did not question Mr. Cockran's honesty. The query might have called into question Mr. Cockran's consistency.

"The reply," he said, "was that the gentleman from New York stood upon the high plane of conscience, while I was playing politics for profit."

Mr. Dalzell provoked loud Republican applause when he said that while he was first an intense partisan, his "brethren on the other side will admit that generally at least I am a gentleman."

Judging by certain press dispatches appearing after Mr. Cockran's speech, Mr. Dalzell said, it would be inferred he had made an unjust attack on Mr. Cockran. "On the contrary," he said, warmly, "he made a mean and contemptible attack on me," and he added that the man who would have made any other response than he did would have been a poltroon and a coward.

Mr. Dalzell explained his remark of last Saturday by saying that he had been "informed" that it was profitable to Mr. Cockran to support McKinley when he did. He vehemently declared that he was so informed. "I say now," he exclaimed "that I was justified in making that charge because it is the current belief to this day that the gentleman received money for political work."

To support his charges he said he would mention some facts and circumstances connected with the history of Mr. Cockran. He then read from a number of documents to show that Mr. Cockran started as a greenbacker and in 1896 stood with the McKinley side because he was for sound money. "For sound money in 1896," he said amid Republican applause, "traveling all over the continent; in 1900 in support of Bryan; greenbacker, sound money man, free silver man. He has been a Bryanite and an anti-Bryalte. He was for Bryan in 1900. Is he for Bryan now?

So far as he could judge, Mr. Dalzell said, he was for "some gentleman up in New York and maybe from New Jersey," and Republican laughter was renewed when he added: "If he is for Grover Cleveland he has more wisdom than I think some of his brethren have." With some sarcasm, Mr. Dalzell said that "possibly Mr. Cockran is for some respectable political nonentity, who, not known to have a single conviction upon any public question and who is willing to stand on any platform that may be made for him."

Looking Mr. Cockran in the face, Mr. Dalzell, speaking in derision, said that Mr. Cockran "has been a Tammanyite and as such has been a member of congress; he has been an anti-Tammanyite, and as such ceased to be a member of congress." The Republicans were roused to a high pitch of enthusiasm and approval when Mr. Dalzell softly inquired, "would not that make one suspicious that it was more than a matter of conscience with a gentleman having a harlequin career?"

The Democratic side of the house, he said, had gotten hysterical when on Saturday he would not disclose the name of his informant. He then read from the New York Journal, published by Mr. Cockran's colleague, Mr. W. R. Hearst, in August, 1896, a statement that Mr. Cockran was for McKinley, "a position which," said the publication, "to those who remember his career in congress does not seem to involve such a strain on his feelings as might be supposed, especially with rumors in the air of $250,000 checks of "Hanna's 'educational fund.'"

He quoted from an article in the New York Tribune, in 1893, in which the statement was made that Mr. Cockran evidently had been deeply incensed by the charge that he had sold his oratory to the fusion cause, but had been hired for a larger price by Tammany.

Mr. Dalzell then appealed to the house to know whether or not when he was accused of being in politics for profit he was not justified in saying he had been informed that Mr. Cockran practiced politics for profit.

Mr. Dalzell made a comparison of the various campaign utterances of Mr. Cockran, and said that if in 1896 he was combatting the destruction of the supreme court of the United States, in 1900 he was aiming a blow that would have resulted in such destruction; if in 1896 he was opposing the nullification or abridgement; if in 1896 he was fighting with the fortunes that represented the fundamental conditions of civilized society; in 1890 he was exercising all his power to the contrary.

Mr. Dalzell closed amid wild Republican applause with a most bitter denunciation of Mr. Cockran. He referred to that gentleman's speech before the Democratic convention which sent him to congress, in which Mr. Cockran said:

"We have reached a point where the country is regarded as an international hoodlum." Facing the Democratic side and looking directly at Mr. Cockran, Mr. Dalzell declared that that utterance was of as much interest to them as it was to himself.

"If there be any hoodlums amongst us," he said, speaking with much vehemence, "they are not the product of American soil, American institutions or American civilization. They are to be found rather amongst these adventurers who, having left their own country for their country's good, find in the field of American politics a prolific source of notoriety and pelf, men who without conscience and without conviction find an opportunity now with one party, now with another, to get a market for their peculiar wares, among which is not respectability." He took his seat amid another storm of Republican applause.

Mr. Cockran had sat through the entire speech of Mr. Dalzell unmoved and waited for him to finish. Then rising he was greeted with tumultuous applause by the Democrats.

Personaly, he said, he did not care to engage in a war of abuse with that "gentleman" from Pennsylvania, referring to Mr. Dalzell's application to himself. Mr. Dalzell, he declared, had thought it proper to justify a charge of infamy against a fellow-member by searching the various channels through which anonymous culmination circulates in a political campaign, and with hands no cleaner than those with which it deals, hurls it over a body of deliberative men.

Mr. Cockran denied the charge that he had received $15,000 from the Palmer and Buckner campaign committee. He also denied in the most positive manner that he had ever received money for supporting President McKinley's election in 1896.

He denied the charge that he ever was a greenbacker, and said that in the campaign of 1896 he combatted with all his energy what he believed to be a heresy regarding the finances advocated by Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Cockran then reviewed his welcome back to congress, saying it had been most cordial on the part of members on both sides of the chamber and had been participated in by Mr. Dalzell.

"We are now told," he continued, "that I was all the time regarded as a mercenary whose services were for sale. I can always protect myself from the gentleman from Pennsylvania by choosing my own side of the street. Before I sit down I shall ask this house to agree with me on this, that if what the gentleman said is true, I am unworthy of its membership. If what he said is false, he is unworthy of membership."

Mr. Cockran was interrupted with loud cheers from his Democratic colleagues. He continued:

"This will take a wider range than our personal virtues. I shall ask for a committee to investigate this charge and shall ask for power to send for persons and papers."

Mr. Cockran said he had a resolution ready to offer "that represents my attitude and the attitude of the honest man in the face of (pausing and measuring his words) one that cannot be described in parliamentary language."

Loud Democratic applause followed Mr. Cockran's reading of the resolution. He then resumed and said that when that resolution was adopted in all its terms, something more important than his conduct or the action of the member from Pennsylvania would be made clear.

"We will see," he said, "just how the election in 1896 was conducted, and we will all know whether, in fact, the presidency was bought or whether it was won in honorable political conflict."

Continuing, Mr. Cockran, still facing the Republicans, said:

"You have a distinguished candidate already named, in the White House, who is strident of voice in professions of reform. We always have elevated Democrats to dignity who have known how to prosecute the men who violated the law and brought reform into disgrace. Your candidate denounces corruptionists, between elections, and utilizes them at the primaries." More Democratic cheering and applause greeted this utterance.

"We will," he said, "go before the people, whoever may be nominated, whether it be the young giant of reform, who has won his spurs in Missouri; whether it be that upholder of the law who administers justice in New York"—at this reference to Judge Parker the Democrats broke out into unrestrained applause, which did not for some time subside—"or whether it be the man whose great achievement on the Monroe doctrine evoked the sentiment which the gentleman from Pennsylvania read from my speech in the usual garbled method, suppressing the context."

Mr. Cockran denied having referred to the United States as an "international hoodlum."

The minority leader, Mr. Williams, asked unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the resolution.

"I make a point of order," shouted Mr. Grosvenor, who was prevented from further speaking by groans and jeers from the Democratic side.

Both Mr. Cockran and Mr. Williams were contending for immediate consideration, when the speaker vigorously brought his gavel down and announced that the "resolution having been presented and the point of order made upon it, the chair declines to rule on the point of order until it has had opportunity to examine the precedents."

FEAR OF A BREAK

Water Comes Through Asphalt Pavement at Twelfth Avenue East.

Causes Apprehension That Break In Water Main Exists.

The presence of water on the asphalt pavement, and inside the street railway tracks, near the corner of Twelfth avenue east has been causing some uneasiness in that locality for fear that there is a leak in the water main underlying the pavement.

The water apparently comes from underneath the asphalt, oozing out of the asphalt, where it had broken away from the sandstone blocks lining the upper rail. While the water is not present in a very great quantity, it has been coming out at that point for several days past and has run along next the rail until it reached a sewer connection.

Trouble is anticipated in case there should be a leak in the water pipe, because it will be a difficult matter to locate the leak, and it is possible that a large area of the asphalt pavement might have to be torn up to reach it.

Owing to the concrete foundation under the asphalt the water might circulate for several yards or rods under the asphalt before it finds an opening to get to the surface and some fear such is the case at Twelfth avenue east. At first when the moisture was apparent it was thought to be due to the frost, but the rest of the street for many blocks is now entirely dry and water is still found in the locality mentioned.

"In case of a leaky or broken water main on East Superior street," said a public official yesterday, "trouble is going to be encountered wherever there is asphalt pavement for nobody can tell under what portion the leak actually occurs. Leakage or breaks in iron pipes are something that we can not very well guard against. The manufacturers exercise all the care possible in making the pipe, but flaws will happen and nobody knows when or where the leaks will develop. All the city can do is to take out the pipe as soon as it is known that it is defective, and replace it with another."

OPEN AUCTION SALE FAVORED

Washington, April 27.—Land Commissioner Richards favors an open auction sale for the disposal of the eleven towns of Red Lake reservation land opened for settlement under the Steenerson bill.

He has requested Senators Clapp and Nelson and Congressman Steenerson to confer with him on the subject. The sealed-bid plan is favored by Secretary Hitchcock and there are some officials who favor drawing by lots.

Mr. Steenerson says that the better method will be by auction as it will tend to dispose of the matter more quickly than by other methods. Hundreds of inquiries are pouring into the department every day asking for information about the several big reservation openings that will take place this summer.

No definite circulars have as yet been issued and prospective settlers must rely to a great extent on the statements given to the press.

It seems to be settled that the Rosebud reservation, in South Dakota, will be opened by the lottery system the same as was carried out in Oklahoma. Commissioner Richards will send experienced men to superintend the drawing. Registration by each intended purchaser will be required and at least thirty days' notice will be given.

Scrofula

It is commonly inherited.

Few are entirely free from it.

Pale, weak, puny children are afflicted with it in nine cases out of ten, and many adults suffer from it.

Common indications are bunches in the neck, abscesses, cutaneous eruptions, inflamed eyelids, sore ears, rickets, catarrh, wasting, and general debility.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Eradicate it, positively and absolutely. This statement is based on the thousands of permanent cures these medicines have wrought.

"My daughter had scrofula, with eleven sores on her neck and about her ears. Hood's Sarsaparilla was highly recommended and she took it and was cured. She is now in good health." MRS. J. H. JONES, Parker City, Ind.

BUILDING TRADES STRIKE.

Contractors Firm In Refusal of Union Demands.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 27.—The promised settlement of the lockout and strike that has involved every building tradesman in the city, numbering nearly 3000, and has tied up all kinds of construction work for more than a week, failed to materialize yesterday. Instead, the application of men for work at their old places and the failure to agree served to widen the breach more than ever. Contractors had advertised that the lockout was at an end. The union men thought the contractors would subscribe to their terms when they returned to work, but they were mistaken. They were asked to work under non-union bosses with non-union men, and in case of the carpenters at a lower scale than was demanded. Indications are that a settlement is as far off as ever, plumbers and electricians being especially bitter in their attitude.

MONTANA MAN

Arrested on Charge of Killing His Wife.

Helena, Mont., April 27.—A special from Belt, Mont., says that Sheriff Benner and County Attorney Berry came from Great Falls, and after an investigation, placed Ed Johnson under arrest on a charge of killing his wife, who was found dead on the 15th. Johnson will be taken to the county jail at Great Falls.

The sheriff declined to state what evidence he had against Johnson, but said he felt he had enough to justify him in making the arrest.

Ever since the death of Mrs. Johnson persistent rumors have connected Johnson's name with the affair. About all this was based upon was the fact that he would be the only person to profit by her death, she having a small estate. There is another suspect, a negro, but he has not been arrested.

SCIATIC RHEUMATISM CURED.

"I have been subject to sciatic rheumatism for years," says E. H. Waldron, of Wilton Junction, Iowa. "My joints were stiff and gave me much pain and discomfort. It is certainly a most wonderful liniment." For sale by all druggists.

A HEINOUS CRIME

Archie Peyton, Woodsman, Attempts Assault on Young Girls.

Belongs to Degenerate Class, Mind Apparently Being Weak.

Charged with attempting to criminally assault two little girls, whose ages were seven and nine years, Archie Peyton, a woodsman about 40 years of age, was arrested by Special Watchman Walker of the Northern Pacific railroad last evening about 6:30 o'clock.

The two little girls were Evaline Eckholm, the 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Eckholm of 117 South Nineteenth avenue west, and Josephine Flood, the 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luke Flood, of 1830 West First street.

The man is said to have been caught with the young girls in a Northern Pacific box car standing in the yards near the Twentieth avenue depot. He was arrested by Watchman Walker.

When arraigned in municipal court this morning he waived preliminary examination, and was bound over to the grand jury by Judge Windom. His bail was fixed at $1000.

"I can't raise it," he said to the court.

"I know you can't," replied Judge Windom. "If I thought you could have raised $1000, your bail would have been $2000."

He informed Captain of Police Ress he that he would like to plead guilty.

"You can't plead guilty here to that charge," said the court. "I am glad you can't for I could only give you 90 days and a man who would do what you are charged with, should be hanged."

Peyton seemed to have little blame or remorse for what he is claimed to have done. The police place him in the class of moral degenerates and think he is not wholly in his right mind. He appears to have no sense of right and wrong, and his expressionless eyes indicate a vacant mind.

He stated this morning that he was unmarried and had been living in the vicinity of Duluth for some time past, working as a laborer and a woodsman.

The maximum penalty for the crime with which he is charged is imprisonment in the state penitentiary for a term of seven years.

He was measured and photographed by the police this morning and sent up to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury next Wednesday.

SEAT SALE LARGE.

William J. Bryan Will Have Large Audience.

The seat sale for the lecture by William Jennings Bryan at the First M. E. church Friday evening, it being the closing of the Star Lecture course for this year, is large, and the famous speaker will be greeted by a large audience. While the sale is large, there are, however, many seats that can be still had, for the church has a great seating capacity and is so well arranged that seats in any portion of the auditorium give an excellent view and hearing of the speaker on the platform.

Mr. Bryan's visits to Duluth have always been triumphs for him from the day he first spoke here in the Lyceum theater, before the campaign of 1896, which brought him so prominently before the country. While his lecture will be of a different nature from his political speeches, his friends will be pleased to hear him, and those who do not agree with him in politics will be glad of the opportunity to hear him. He will speak on "The Value of an Ideal."

FOR STATE CONVENTION.

Sunday School Superintendents to Hold Conference.

A supper and conference of Sunday school superintendents will be held this evening at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian association at 7 o'clock. The members of the Duluth Ministerial association will also be present, and the object of the gathering is to make plans for the entertainment of the state Sunday school convention which will be held in Duluth beginning June 14.

Rev. C. R. Sine will respond for the Ministerial association, and short speeches will be made by Dr. Weston as a Sunday school teacher, M. W. Bates as a Sunday school superintendent, and Rev. Charles Fox Davis from the standpoint of a pastor, and presenting the meaning of the convention to Duluth.

A meeting of the general committee in charge of the arrangements for the convention will be held at 6 o'clock. The members are: Watson S. Moore, John J. Moe, A. J. Frantz, Mrs. J. O. Milne, Charles L. Rakowsky, Anton Rinsgred, Rev. Charles Fox Davis, S. S. Williamson, Dr. R. W. Bowden, William Anderson, Rev. R. J. Mooney and M. W. Bates.

SENATOR CULLUM REVIEWS DIPLOMATIC QUESTIONS

chairman of the committee on foreign relations, was a careful review of the diplomatic or international questions which had been disposed of under the McKinley-Roosevelt administrations, since 1897. He said that under these administrations more important diplomatic questions had been brought to a successful conclusion than under any previous administration in the history of the United States. He then discussed in their order the acquisition of the Hawaiian islands, the war with Spain and its results, the Philappines, Cuba, the Alaskan boundary, international arbitration, the Panama canal, our relations with the Orient, the Russia-Japan war, reciprocity and the consular service, concluding with a glowing tribute to President Roosevelt and Secretary Hay.

The acquisition of the Hawaiian islands, he said, was the first important achievement in the conduct of our foreign relations after McKinley became president. They gave to the United States a foothold in the Pacific and were the beginning of our great expansion under the McKinley administration.

"The war with Spain awoke us to a realization of the fact that more than a century of remarkable internal industrial development rendered us an important factor in the world's system. Under the administrations of McKinley and Roosevelt the United States has obtained a position among the nations of the world which it never occupied in any former period of our national life."

He discussed the Philippines mainly from a business standpoint, and said that under American rule their exports had increased nearly $12,000,000 in the last year. The resources of the islands were boundless, he said, and it was not unsafe to say the total value of the trade would eventually amount to several hundred millions annually. Manila in no far distant day would become the great commercial center of the Orient.

Discussing international arbitration the senator declared that, "no previous administration and no country have done more toward the settlement by peaceful methods, rather than by war, of the differences which arise among nations, as have the administrations of McKinley and Roosevelt."

Regarding the disposition of the diplomatic complications which stood in the way of an inter-oceanic canal, he said: "This is only another illustration of the success of the Roosevelt administration in bringing to a successful termination a question which other presidents had failed to settle. During the three years of the Roosevelt administration more progress had been made towards the construction of an inter-oceanic canal than in the three-quarters of a century of our present history."

Bearing on our relations with the Orient, the senator said the United States had stood for the open door in China and in our dealings with that country we had pursued a disinterested policy of disavowal of territorial aggrandizement, a disposition to protect its rights and confine our interests to the peaceful development of trade. We had not hesitated on all proper occasions to exert our influence to preserve the independence of China and prevent its dismemberment. Secretary Hay very recently had gained a diplomatic triumph in obtaining the consent of Russia and Japan that the "neutrality of China and her administrative entity shall be protected by both parties." A measure the senator said so wise and so generally commended by the nations that it had been accepted by Russia and Japan themselves.

Mr. Cullom said that thirty important treaties had been proclaimed during the period under consideration and that the reciprocity arrangements entered into under the Dingley act had in every instance materially increased our commerce with the countries affected, without in the least interfering with any American industry. He paid a high compliment to the consular service, saying that one officer alone had increased the receipts from customs by preventing frauds nearly $1,000,000 a year since 1898. The senator concluded substantially as follows:

"Under the beneficent administration of Republican presidents, the Union became consolidated into one nation and in the recent crisis through which our own nation and the nations of the world have been passing, the party of Lincoln and Grant and Blaine and McKinley and Roosevelt, is still faithful to duty and manifests the wisdom and statesmanship necessary to meet every emergency and wisely disposes of all questions with an eye single to the welfare of the people, the stability of the Union and the good of mankind.

"I believe I voice the judgment both of the people and our administration when I say they are for peace with all the nations, and are not in favor of a policy of aggression in order to secure expansion of territory in any direction.

"A word about our president and secretary of state. In guiding and caring for the interests of the country, the nation is in safe and able hands. Never in our history has our nation been more fortunate. With Theodore Roosevelt as president and John Hay as secretary of state, the people may rest in the assurance that our international rights will be cared for, the honor of the nation well guarded and so far as our interests may be effected by our foreign policy, they will be wisely conserved."

Before completing his speech, Mr. Cullom yielded to Mr. Penrose, chairman of the committee on postoffices, to present the final report of the conference committee on the postoffice appropriation bill.

Mr. Clay and Mr. Gorman expressed regret that the senate conferees had found it necessary to eliminate the senate provision permitting rural free delivery carriers to take subscriptions for newspapers and Mr. Simmons objected to the striking out of the senate amendment providing that the condition of the roads in any proposed district should not be allowed to prevent the establishment of rural free delivery routes.

Mr. Bailey thought no government employe should be allowed to become a solicitor for private persons.

The report of the conference committee on the postoffice bill was agreed to, Mr. Bailey casting the only negative vote.

The senate, at 11:50 a. m., adjourned the session of Tuesday and immediately afterward reconvened for the session of Wednesday.

Mr. Cullom then continued his speech.

IS BOUND OVER

Frank White, Who Shot Managie, Waives Preliminary Examination.

Victim Suffers Considerably and Condition Is Little Changed.

A charge of assault in the first degree was preferred against Frank White, who was arrested last evening by Patrolman Roberg for shooting Jerome E. Managie in the Northland saloon.

White today waived the preliminary examination in the municipal court, and Judge Windom ordered him to be confined in the county jail to await the action of the grand jury, which will meet next Wednesday. He was not allowed to furnish bail.

White, when seen this morning by a Herald reporter in his cell at police headquarters, feigned the appearance of a man who is just recovering from the effects of intoxication. He carried his head down on his chest and spoke in a rambling manner.

He was reluctant to talk about the affair, and evidently had assumed the appearance of a half-drunken man to avoid answering questions.

When asked if he knew Weston before coming to the city, he asked who Weston was?

"How long have you been in Duluth?" he was asked.

"Oh, about a week, I guess," he replied.

"Where did you come from?"

"Down in Michigan."

At this juncture he leaned up against the side of his cell and apparently fell into a peaceful slumber.

Further developments occurred this morning which make the police practically certain that Weston and White are the men who committed the burglary in Superior Sunday night.

As Patrolman Wilcox entered the patrol box at the corner of Fifth avenue west and Michigan street to report this morning, he noticed a bundle in the pocket of an old overcoat which was hanging in the box. On examination it proved to be a revolver wrapped up in two old handkerchiefs. The revolver was a new one and had apparently never been discharged. It tallied exactly with the description of one of the guns lost from the store, bearing the number "353," which had been scratched on the butt by the proprietor.

Officer Roberg had locked his prisoner in the box while awaiting the arrival of the patrol wagon, and it is believed by the police that White tried to dispose of the weapon in this manner, knowing that it would be discovered when he was searched at police headquarters. The weapon is a cheap one, of the style known as a "bulldog." It has six chambers and it is plain that it has never been discharged. The weapon with which the shooting was done is an expensive and modern revolver of the Smith & Wesson make, and has great penetrating power.

The police departments of both Duluth and Superior have been congratulated on the quick work done last evening. As soon as the revolver was examined at headquarters, Detective Schulte recognized it as being one of the guns stolen in Superior Sunday, and the Superior detectives were notified. They came to Duluth, examined the weapon, and returned to Superior. Within fifteen minutes of the time they reached Superior again a telephone message was received, stating that Weston had been placed in custody and would be held to answer the charge of burglary.

White was photographed and measured by the Bertillion system at police headquarters this morning, and will be sent up to the county jail this afternoon to await the disposition of his case by the grand jury.

Reports from the hospital this afternoon state that Managie is suffering intense pain, and that no improvement is noticeable in his condition. The doctors say it is still too early to predict whether or not he will recover.

ANXIOUS TO LEAVE DULUTH

Pat Ryan Convinces the Court of His Sincerity.

"I hope the next boat that brings me to Duluth will sink to the bottom of Lake Superior."

Such was the emphatic manner chosen by Pat Ryan to express to Judge Windom his determination to stay away from Duluth in future, if the court would give him a suspended sentence.

Pat was arraigned on the charge of being drunk.

"You have been here before," said Judge Windom, sizing up the prisoner.

"Yes, sir," admitted Pat.

"What is there about this case?" asked the court of Chief Troyer.

"He was just drunk," replied the chief of police. "I believe he will promise to get out of town if he is given a suspended sentence. He is a seaman and wants to go down the lakes to get a job. He has enough money to get out with."

"How long will you stay out?" asked the court.

"Ten years," replied Pat, and emphasized his promise by expressing the hope that the next vessel that brought him here would sink.

"Twenty dollars or thirty days," said the court, "and I will suspend sentence providing you leave the city before 4 o'clock this afternoon."

Pat hurried from the court room, preparing to catch the first train out of the city and shake the dust of Duluth from his feet for a term of ten years.

A LESSON FOR AMERICA.

When one reads of the course of the Russian government toward Finland, depriving that people of their constitutional liberties and subjecting them to the most cruel of oppressions, banishment, imprisonment and the confiscation of their property, he should be glad, indeed, not only that he is an American citizen, but that this country is yet large enough to offer a safe refuge to the oppressed and downtrodden of all the world.

The open doors of America have saved the monarchies of Europe from many a revolution, because once the exiles from these foreign lands are happily settled and prosperously employed in America they forget in a measure the grievous wrongs inflicted upon them, and their minds are turned toward the arts of peace and the serene enjoyment of life in a land where their liberties are guaranteed and each has an equal voice with every other citizen in matters of government.

The Finnish people come of a brave and noble race that has accomplished great deeds and wonderful achievements in the arts of civilization. Before Russia, the ruthless destroyer, laid its heavy hand upon that people, they enjoyed a political liberty and a free educational system equal in many and superior in some respects to our own. Every just consideration decrees that they should have remained an independent nation, free to enjoy the liberties they had so dearly bought by centuries of earnest endeavor. But the greed of a "world power" decreed otherwise and they have been conquered, betrayed and humbled, deprived of their political rights so dearly bought with the blood of their fathers, subjected to taxation without representation and many of them forced to flee as exiles from the land they love so well.

But what is Russia's loss in this migration of Finnish people is the gain of America. For it was by just such oppressed people as these that America's free institutions were founded, and their arrival and settlement in this country will have a tendency to keep alive that spirit of liberty and equality upon which so much depends the ultimate emancipation of all mankind.

As citizens of a free republic we ought to read in this migration from Finland a warning against our own violation of our national code of honor. Although, no doubt, our representatives in the Philippines have sought to govern the people of those islands with justice and fairness, our sin in depriving them of their right to govern themselves, without even a promise of ultimate independence, is greater than that of Russia toward Finland because we have been better taught.

Even if a citizen of this country should desire to go to the Philippines to make that place his home, under present conditions he would be deprived of those rights and privileges guaranteed to him by the constitution of the United States. If we acknowledge that this country has the right to fight a war of subjugation and deprive a people of their right to govern themselves, then by that act we acknowledge the divine right of kings and Russia's course in regard to Finland is fully justified. There is no middle ground.

WHERE ANARCHY PREVAILS.

It is now made plain by a writer in McClure's for May that the present reign of lawlessness and anarchy in Colorado is a direct result of the very same crime that has recently brought disgrace upon the state of Missouri. A dishonest legislature which refused to obey the popular will and preferred to take bribes from lobbyists of the mining corporations has brought upon the people of Cripple Creek, Telluride and other sections of Colorado a reign of terror, while the laws are disobeyed and defied by union miners, by the corporations' representatives, by the Citizens alliance, by the militia, by the governor of the state and by the courts.

The first strike in these mining camps resulted in the killing of a number of non-union and "scab" miners and their complete rout by the forces of the union, which had ordered guns and ammunition from Denver for the purpose. At this time "Bloody Bridles" Waite was in the executive chair and the mining company was compelled to give in to the union, as it was impossible to secure any assistance from the governor. The union men, led by alleged Socialists, who are in reality anarchists, counted this a great victory and naturally became more and more arrogant, domineering and unreasonable as time pased.

But it may be that this development of anarchistic notions within the ranks of the miners was a result of lawlessness and oppression on the part of the greedy rascals who control the mines and smelters. At any rate it is evident that these latter are more to blame than the men themselves for the present-day conditions. Anarchists themselves, they have bred anarchy among their employes, and the curse of their own cupidity and devlishness is now upon them.

A few years ago the employes of the smelters demanded an 8-hour day, as it was universally admitted that to work longer in these institutions was exceedingly dangerous to health. The smelting trust refused to grant it. The legislature was appealed to and passed an 8-hour law. Still the trust refused to give in; the matter was tried in the courts and the law declared unconstitutional, although similar laws had been found constitutional in several other states. Then an appeal was made to the people of Colorado for an amendment to the constitution and the justice of the smelters' demand was shown in the fact that the amendment carried by nearly 50,000 majority. The amendment expressly commanded the legislature to pass an 8-hour law, yet in defiance of the popular will and in consideration of smelter trust boodle, the legislature refused to pass the law.

The smelter employes are members of the Western Federation of Miners, and in sympathy with their strike against this palpable injustice the union men in the mines went out, with what terrible results the reader is probably aware. The present governor, Peabody, is in sympathy with the trusts and is using the power of the state militia, in defiance of all law and justice, to crush the union, even permitting the corporations to pay the wages of the soldiers, openly and bodly proclaiming it his purpose to crush and destroy the union, which he is pleased to term an organization of anarchists, while he himself is nothing less.

It is not surprising that even the women voters are corrupt in a state that will tolerate such conditions as are now existant in Colorado. It is a shame and a disgrace upon the nation. And it all comes from the anarchy and lawlessness of those in high station, in place and power. The people are ground between the lawless capitalisti: trust and the lawless labor trust, while a lawless executive and lawless courts seek to administer the laws.

IS CRIME HEREDITARY?

In sentencing a prisoner recently to a term of fourteen years in the penitentiary, Judge Newburger, of New York, called attention to the fact that an uncle of the prisoner is a convict, that his father has been in jail, and that the prisoner himself was an old offender. "You come from a family of criminals," said the judge.

It is likely that in giving expression to this arraignment the judge endeavored to convey the impression that crime is hereditary, and possibly with a mental reservation that it was a special evidence of wickedness in the prisoner that he did not choose a more respectable family to be born into.

Those who contend that crime and disease are hereditary, (and what is crime but an evidence of a diseased mind), have many statistics at hand which seem to prove their case. On the other hand there are many good arguments to be used by those who claim that crime is not hereditary, but simply a result of environment and vicious education.

Whichever theory is entertained it is plainly evident that crime and its concomitants do run in families, and it is reasonable to suppose that both heredity and environment are responsible to some degree. Not every child born of criminal parents and brought up improperly becomes a criminal, although the rule is that the majority do.

For these reasons it is evident that society owes something to the child born of criminal parents besides putting him in jail after he has been convicted of crime. It would seem to be a public duty to try to counteract the evil influences surrounding such a child. In that way, if crime is not hereditary, it might eventually be wiped out. At least it is unfair, if heredity and environment are responsible, to point an accusing finger at the victim and charge him with being responsible for the taint in his family. Rather there should be universal pity that he had such an unfair start in life.

If absolute justice were done the enormity of a man's crime would be measured by the opportunities he has enjoyed and the kind of moral training he has received. The man who steals knowing it is wrong commits a much more serious offense than the one who steals after being brought up to think it is right. For this reason some highly respected individuals who remain out of jail are really greater criminals than many who are confined within the walls of a penitentiary.

THE FIELD SURVEY.

One of the unpleasant features connected with burial of the dead is shown in the fact that the recent flood at Toledo unearthed and washed away a lot of skeletons that had lain in an old and forgotten graveyard. How much better, safer and more sanitary if those bodies had been reduced to ashes at the time of death. Duluth has had experience in the removal of bodies from old graveyards that was not at all pleasant if not actually dangerous to the living. When people are entirely civilized so that their prejudices will no longer control, they will cease to lay away their dead in the ground to become a menace to the living.

The union machinists of Chicago want the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln celebrated in picnic time so that they can have a good time out of doors on these holidays. The machinists have a precedent in the act of the English people who celebrate their king's birthday long after the event, so that they can enjoy the outdoor air. But the farmer whose work is in the open air through summer's heat and winter's cold would probably prefer to have matters remain as they are.

HOTEL GOSSIP

"Winnipeg is on the hustle just now," said Judge W. B. Holman, of Grand Rapids, at the McKay this morning. The judge just returned a few days ago from a trip of inspection to some property he is interested in west of the Manitoba city.

"They are building a bank there that is twelve stories high, to cost $700,000, so they tell me. It is being put up by the Union bank people, and is all steel. It will be a beauty, according to predictions that are made for it. They are badly off for hotels in Winnipeg and need more accommodation for the public. They can't begin to take care of the people that come.

"I got into the city there about half past twelve or one o'clock in the morning on a train from the West and I wanted to stop at a hotel. Went up to the Leland and found it was just as full as it could be, and all the other places seemed to be in the same boat. But the clerk was very kind and said he would telephone a friend of his and see if they could not help me out with something. So he 'phoned his friend, who replied that he had a place for just one person, and I got it—just barely got it. If it had not been for that I would have had to sit up in a chair all night.

"The governorship fight has not warmed up much up around Grand Rapids yet, but it looks to me as though it was going to be pretty close, unless there's some change takes place between now and the testing time. Of course the Democrats are not mentioning any Democrat for the place, as our own local politics up there are about all that the Democrats ever get a chance to do any good in. It looks as though a whole lot of the Democrats were for Dunn, while there are also a number of very good people who are anxious for Judge Collins. Of course, Collins may not be as strong as Dunn, but if he finds Dunn would be too strong for him he could stay out and run as an independent."

"That would hardly be fair to the party would it?"

"Pretty nearly all's fair in war and politics. I'm for Collins." Dunn may be a good man, but I believe Collins is the more desirable candidate.

"Grand Rapids is growing rapidly and there are lots of houses building now, good ones that are costing from $3000 to $5000 each and there is a good demand for houses by the people coming in there. If it were not for the high taxes there would be many more houses, but the disadvantage of the high taxes is that if a building should come along the property had time should come along the property would not be a very good investment. The population of our town is about 2500 now, having grown a great deal in the last couple of years, and if it should get up to 3000 before the end of this year I should not be surprised. The time does not look far off when Grand Rapids will be to its end of the range what Hibbing is to the middle. All sorts of people are coming in there, not only people in the lumber business, but people who are taking up different kinds of mercantile work."

"I heard one on Duluth the other day which was new to me," remarked a man sojourning in one of the chairs at the St. Louis the other night. "You have a very lively town here and from what I hear there is a great demand for houses, dwellings being wanted all the time, and very scarce. A man who was talking to me about it said that it was often the case that a house hunter, who was afraid of his chances, got so eager that he would watch vacant lots to see if a house he would nose around to see if he could not rent the house before it was built—if it was to be a renting house.

"That did not sound very new to me and I told the man so. He said that was not the worst part of it, but that if the house hunter failed by this means to get track of a place to live he would go to the yards and watch wagon loads of lumber as they departed. He would follow them and see if the material was to be used in putting up a new dwelling, and if so he would try to lease the place. I said that might be a new method. But I believe the fellow who gets at the root of things in this respect is the one who goes out into the woods and trails the stuff from the time the axmen cut the trees."

A traveler who was in Alaska a few years ago says that while there he ran across a white man who had an Indian wife at whose intelligence he was surprised.

"It was during the Yukon gold excitement and I went up there to see if I could not make a little stake," said he. "I ran across a fellow there who invited me to his house and when I got there I found two Indian women, one of whom he introduced to me as his wife. The other, he explained, was his wife's sister, who lived with them.

"I was at the house several times for meals and this Indian woman demonstrated to me that you can find plenty of brains almost anywhere if you go to the trouble to dig them up, for she was about as bright as the next one. The ordinary American Indian is smart, of course, but he is closer to the advantages of civilization and gets all the education he wants without having to go far to get it, but away in that remote country you cannot expect to find intelligence in the Indians that you do down here.

"But she was the exception. She had been married to this man a number of years and seemed to be impregnated with his bright, up-to-date character. He had gone up there about twenty-five years ago as a representative of the Hudson Bay Fur company. She would take part in a conversation on almost any subject and talk with freedom and a keen perception of the different sides of the question. But she could not understand a joke. Both those women would sit by while that man and I cracked jokes or laughed at something we thought funny. But they would look perfectly serious, and did not understand.

ABOUT OVER-EATING.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Nearly every one eats too much, says Professor Russell H. Chittenden, of the Sheffield scientific school of Yale, who has recently conducted a series of experiments to determine if the average human being is not eating too much. "The average man," he finds, eats from two to three times as much food as he needs to keep him in perfect physical and mental health and vigor. If he will divide an ordinary meal into three meals he will be healthier and happier and never will have a "grouch."

Professor Chittenden is not the first to tell us this, and the effect of his statement is somewhat weakened by similar previous declarations by health food manufacturers. One reason why there is not a more impetuous rush of "the average man" into this new regimen of eating less is that every time he arbitrarily decreases the size of his breakfast or his luncheon he is most astonishingly attacked by a distinct and very unpleasant feeling of hunger within two or three hours afterward, and must nurse his inner woe for an hour or two before he can assuage it at the next meal. The "average man" eats enough, and we have no reason for believing that any but the gluttonous eat more than enough.

There is an inward monitor in the average man, much more clearly defined than conscience, which tells him he has had enough and to depart from the table with a number of wrinkles in an only partially inflated organ of digestion is to invite genuine discomfort very soon afterward. There is much claptrap talk about "overeating." The most unnourished looking, realy suffering specimens of humanity are those who either must or voluntarily do spend considerable gray matter in experiments with their stomachs. The stalwart, healthy, rosy and robust are those who eat when they are hungry, who no more consider starch and proteids and what is "going on inside them" than the lily of the field is concerned in her raiment. They just "grow" that way.

There is overeating, but no sensible man does it, and the average man is an average sensible man. We might "get along" on less food, but a man who would go about feeling uncomfortable because he is hungry, when there is no excuse for it, has simply reached the level of the health cranks, of which there are too many.

THE FIRING LINE.

For glory? For good? For fortune or fame?
Why, ho for the front where the battle is on!
Leave the rear to the dolt, the lazy, the lame;
Go forward, as ever the valiant have gone;
Whether city or field, whether mountain or mine,
Go forward; go fight on the Firing Line.

Whether newsboy or plowboy, cowboy or clerk,
Fight forward, be ready, be steady, be first;
Be fairest, be bravest, be best at your work;
It and be glad; dare to hunger, to thirst,
As David—as Alfred—let dogs skulk and whine—
There is room but for men on the Firing line.

Aye, the place to fight and the place to fall—
As fall we must, all in God's good time—
It is where the manliest man the wall.
Where boys are as men in their pride and prime,
Where glory gleams brightest, where brightest eyes shine,
Far out on the roaring, red Firing Line.

—JOAQUIN MILLER, in Success.

When a Girl Is Twenty-Nine.

The hurrying months are passing,
Another birthday near;
And some one is lamenting
In secret, so I hear.
The idle gossips whisper
That it is much too late
To hope for any miracle to save an old maid's fate.
What base insinuation!
What falsehood, line on line!
For lots of nice things happen when a girl is twenty-nine.

"Young things" may still be pretty.
No doubt. Yet critics state
They're really quite old-fashioned
And somewhat out of date.
Our dramas, poems and novels,
As any one can see,
Have relegated "sweet sixteens" to tales of ancestry.
If heroines are older,
It's certainly a sign
That lots of things may happen when a girl's "sweet twenty-nine."

So do not grow too wistful
O'er long forgotten teens,
With sighs of retrospection
For whispered might-have-beens.
But if you smile as sweetly
And then, and are as easy
And never show that you prefer a graybeard to a boy;
In short, if you're your own true self,
You'll never have to pine!
For everything can happen when a girl is twenty-nine.

—Life.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: When a man is willing to admit he can't afford a thing it is sure proof that he can.

A girl always has an idea that her feet would be much smaller if she could afford to wear made-to-order boots.

Widows must be awfully honest to admit they don't know anything about things married women know.

When she sits right down and thinks about it hard, there is nothing that astonishes a girl more than that her legs were really made to walk with.

A woman gives her husband much more credit for generosity if he hands her a twenty-dollar bill once a month than a dollar every day for thirty days.

Washington Star: "That dress is becoming, my dear," said the man who thinks he is a diplomat.

She looked at him coldly for a moment and then replied: "Yes. It is becoming threadbare."

"Of course. He couldn't get off before."

Chicago American: "That's the seventh time you've watered that plant today, Marie, and the florist said twice a week would be enough."

"Yes, I know, John; but I can't bear to be so stingy when water is so cheap."

Cincinnati Enquirer: "Well, what's the use of arguing?" said the shiftless individual. "Talk is cheap."

"My dear sir," replied the taxpayer, "did you ever take into consideration the actual cost of a session of congress?"

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

St. Cloud Times: Col. A. F. Foster, of Litchfield, was in the city today. He is looking over the congressional field, and finds a largely increased growth of Fosterites voters. Indeed, he declares that the indications are immensely more favorable than two years ago, when he came within 31 votes of defeating Buckman for the Republican nomination. For the good of the party, Col. Foster acquiesced in the result, upon Buckman's promise not to enter the field this year. This pledge has been broken, and Foster is again camping on the trail of the Little Falls statesman. The strong probability is that the Litchfield candidate will win by a great majority at the primaries.

St. Paul Globe: Child criminals are reformed, not reformed. In the average reform class as it exists today. The work of prevention will have to commence before the child reaches the reformatory or the reformatory will have to be materially changed. Fiction is not fact, of course, but it is rather curious that such works of fiction dealing with the criminal class as have been published within recent years have laid particular stress on the unreforming character of children's reformatories. Perhaps the pen of an American Dickens will yet stir the public to a realization of the necessity for more thorough preventive work.

Virginia Enterprise: In speaking of things political Register of Deeds Palmer informs the Enterprise that he will shortly file for a renomination for the position. There will likely be no opposition, and there should not. Mr. Palmer is the only range candidate that has been mentioned thus far in the coming contest, and his candidacy, in view of the efficient method in which he has attended to the duties of the office, will meet with the approbation of all.

Ely Miner: For many years, as far as we can remember many delegates from St. Louis county have paid their fare to the Twin Cities to attend the state conventions. Now the other end of the state can reciprocate somewhat by giving Duluth the convention next July. The city is the third largest in the state and has abundant facilities for caring for the convention.

The Way of the World.

God sent a wise man to the earth with a thought
That was worth to the earth many mountains of gold;
And the man, in a squalid obscurity, wrought
His idea into substance; then starving and old

He bartered his work for a few meals of bread
To a brain-sucking schemer—and perished in grief.
And the world gave the worker a six by two bed
And erected a statute of gold—to the thief.

God sent a poor fool to the earth with a jest
That was old when the earth was a baby in arms;
And the fool wrapt his jest in new motley was dressed,
Sent it forth with a confident faith in its charms.

And the world was so tickled it rolled with delight,
Sat and shook its sides for a year and a day,
And hestowed far more wealth on the fool than he might
In the course of a century squander away.

It Looks That Way.

Chicago News: Has the Mormon church grown to be such a power in politics that it does not care who knows it?

BIBLICAL CRITICISM.

Indianapolis News: Much of what Canon Henson says is accepted as true by many Christian people. For instance, when he says that inspiration is not now allowed to certify to the truth of any statement in the Bible which can not be substantiated at the bar of reason and evidence," he simply says what was said long before his time by great Anglican divines. We are not going into the vexed question of inspiration, but we may say that there has been a great change in men's ways of looking at it, and we predict that there will be further changes. So-called inspiration certainly can not make true what is palpably false. A wrong date is not made right by being used by an inspired writer. We suppose no one now believes that Moses wrote the account of his own death as given at the close of the Pentateuch. Inspiration is limited by the capacity of the mind of man to receive it and convey it to others. On this line there is wide room for discussion, and as we value our religious and intellectual freedom—nay, as we value our religion—we dare not abridge the right to full and free discussion.

There are those that think there will have to be, in the near future, not a change in men's ways of looking at it, but a new interpretation of statement, but a new adjustment of it to the faith and a new adjustment of it to present conditions. Much of the trouble comes of modern—comparatively—theories of the Bible and revelation. It is well to remember that Christianity does not depend wholly on the Bible. Churches had been organized before a single line of the New Testament was written. This is not said with the idea of depreciating the Bible, but simply for the purpose of stating a fact which too many of us forget. Canon Henson is right in many of his suggestions that—and this reinforces the suggestion that there may have to be a new adaptation—when he makes this observation:

"It would be idle to deny that the credit of the Scriptures is seriously shaken in the public mind, nor can it reasonably be doubted that the tendencies of popular life, as at present prevailing, are in the main hostile to Christian tradition."

* * * * * * *

The very fact that so many of us are blindly and painfully groping for the light ought to suggest the need for wise conservatism and much caution in dealing with the great mysteries of life. Finally, it might be well for Canon Henson to discriminate between poetry, parable, allegory and—lies.

Uncle Joe Took Chances.

Memphis Commercial Appeal: Speaker Cannon is something of a czar himself. The other day the Philippine bill was up and when he called for the "ayes" the response was very faint from the Republicans.

"All opposed say 'No,'" continued the speaker. There was a thunderous burst of "No!" from the Democratic side.

"The 'noes' seem to make the most noise," said the speaker calmly, "but the 'ayes' have it and the bill is passed."

Uncle Joe is evidently not afraid to take chances.

MAY MEAN ANOTHER DULUTH HANGING

Deliberately Planned Attempt to Murder In Bowery Saloon.

Jerome Manaige, Bartender, Near Death—Frank White, the Assailant.

Duluth is in sight of another hanging. A shooting affray took place last evening which was a cold-blooded premeditated affair, and if the victim, who now lies in a hospital hovering between life and death, does not recover, a jury is very likely to find his assailant guilty of murder in the first degree, which means a murder deliberately planned and executed.

Jerome E. Manaige, a bartender for Ernest Gustafson, at 601 West Superior street, lies in St. Mary's hospital with a bullet in his abdomen, and Frank White is locked up in police headquarters.

The affair took place last evening, about 7:20 o'clock, in the Northland saloon. White was in the saloon drinking, and according to the statements of the bystanders was somewhat under the influence of liquor. He attempted to persuade one of the other men in the saloon to drink with him, but the latter refused. White is claimed to have insisted, until finally Manaige interfered, ordering White to leave the man alone if he didn't want to drink.

"Are you protecting him?" retorted White angrily. "Do you think you could protect him?"

"I guess that I can protect him and myself too," replied Manaige. "You had better get out of here, and stay out, if you can't act decently."

White wheeled about, facing Manaige, and after muttering some threats, turned and walked out the door. Those who were in the saloon at the time thought they had seen the last of him for that evening, but in about ten minutes he reappeared and looked in at the side door, which was standing open.

Suddenly he raised his arm and fired a revolver point blank at Manaige. The bullet struck the latter on the point of the jaw, glancing and burying itself in the wall.

Manaige ran around from behind the bar and attempted to close with his assailant, but the latter ran across Michigan street to the viaduct, with the bartender close at his heels. He gained on the flying man and just as he closed with him, White turned and fired two more shots, one of which penetrated Manaige's arm, while the other entered his abdomen.

Patrolman John Roberg had heard the firing and appeared on the scene just as Manaige received the second shot and sank to the ground. White attempted to club the prostrate man with the gun, and as Roberg appeared, turned the weapon against the officer, but the latter knocked it from his hand and pinoned his arms. A crowd was gathering and the officer hurried his prisoner to the patrol box, while the bystanders summoned a physician and carried Manaige to his rooms in the Leland hotel.

White was perfectly sober and told the officer while waiting for the patrol wagon, that he had better let him go or some of his friends would "put a bullet through the officer's head some dark night."

Officer Roberg paid no attention to him, but hurried him into the wagon and to headquarters.

Meanwhile, Manaige had been taken to his rooms, where his wounds were hurriedly dressed, and he was then removed to St. Mary's hospital. He stated to the police that he had never seen White before and that during the earlier trouble no blows had been struck, nor had he laid hands on White. He stated that he did not think the revolver was loaded when the first shot was fired and that he did not think White meant to kill him until after the third shot.

When Officer Roberg arrived at headquarters with his prisoner, it was found that the revolver with which the crime is claimed to have been committed answered to a description of one that was stolen from the City Gun Store in Superior, Sunday night. The weapon was a 38-calibre, numbered 189,924, which tallied to the description of the weapon in the hands of the police.

The City Gun Store had been burglarized on both Sunday and Monday evenings. Sunday night the men secured about $300 worth of goods, and on Monday night, $75 worth. White and a man named M. L. Weston had been in the store Saturday and spent considerable time looking around. The proprietor became suspicious and called the attention of the police to them. Since the burglaries were committed the Superior police have been watching them closely in the hope of seeing them dispose of some of the property.

As soon as it was discovered that White's revolver answered the description of one stolen from the store, the Superior police were notified and Weston was also landed in jail within a couple of hours from the time the crime was committed.

White and Weston have been hanging around Superior for about two weeks. Little is known concerning them. White gave his occupation as a tailor. He is a man about 30 years of age, and rather shabbily dressed.

At police headquarters he feigned drunkenness, and when questioned pretended to be overcome by the stupor of intoxication. When asked if he had had any trouble with the bartender, he replied that the latter had tried to do him out of some money. He refused to talk further than that, and as soon as the grated door was locked upon him appeared to drop off into a peaceful sleep.

Manaige has been employed by Mr. Gustafson for about a year, and has a reputation for being of a quiet and peace-loving disposition. He came here from Mankato, and about a month ago married a Duluth girl. His young wife was hysterical over the shooting, and spent the night at his bedside in the hospital.

The hospital authorities stated this morning that Manaige had passed a restless night and was in a serious condition, although it was impossible to predict as yet whether or not he would recover.

Patrolman Roberg has made a record for himself during the past winter, through good luck and good judgment combined. He has happened to appear at just the proper time in several robberies and assaults during the past winter, and has been connected with practically every important police case that has occurred in the last few months.

ARMED MEN FINED.

Crusade In Chicago Against Carrying Concealed Weapons.

Chicago, April 27.—Considering the practice of carrying concealed weapons being responsible for much of the crime that has been reported of late, the justices of the peace have begun a crusade by imposing large fines on all offenders. Justice Caverly, in the Harrison street police court yesterday, fixed the standard penalty at $5, and fined several at that sum. With each fine went a warning that a second offense would bring a heavier penalty.

"The people of Chicago are firm in their belief that since the car barn murderers have been hanged their lives are safer," said an inspector of police. "But the numerous burglaries and a double murder in the last two days must lead them to believe their lives are in as much danger as though no one had ever been hanged. Only last night a restaurant was robbed a few feet from my office."

TAMMANY'S FIGHT

On Parker Proceeding Vigorously and With Apparent Success.

Cockran, Towne, Murphy and Grady Maliciously Knocking Parker.

Chicago, April 27.—A Washington special to the Tribune says: Tammany hall is knifing Parker systematically, industriously, and apparently successfully.

The braves have started a fire in the rear, and under the inspiring leadership of Bourke Cockran have set out merrily to nullify the action of Mr. Hill's convention. Cockran made a brilliant speech in the house on Saturday, and the Democratic members have bowed down and worshiped him, recognizing that the brilliance of his oratory might be a deciding factor in the next campaign. It is extremely significant, therefore, to find that Cockran and all the Tammany men in and out of congress are maliciously knocking Parker.

Bryan at Chicago said nothing a tenth part as severe about the platform as Cockran and his Tammany cohorts have been intentionally saying today. Men who are to go to St. Louis as delegates from New York have made a great impression among the other Democrats, because when asked as to their opinion of Parker they reply inevitably: "I am under instructions."

The significance of this is explained when it is found that Tammany delegates without exception are openly denouncing Parker as a colorless candidate upon a flavorless platform. Tammany men will vote for Parker in the convention under their instructions, but they will not vote his way during any of the preliminary skirmishing, and this position of the Tammany braves at St. Louis may be sufficient to insure Parker's downfall. They hate Hill, and hate him hard, and everything they can do to hurt Hill's candidate will not only be done at St. Louis but it is being done in Washington tonight.

Bourke Cochran's immense popularity in congress has given a weight to his words they might not otherwise have. Southern and Western congressmen have taken their cue from the activity of the Tammany bulligerents, and the word is being passed along that the interior states should as far as possible adopt the unit rule, but avoid instructions for Parker. Bourke Cochran, Thomas F. Grady, Bob Van Wyck, Charles A. Towne and Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, are all district delegates to St. Louis. They are responsible personally only to their own district, but of course are bound by the instructions of the state convention. Each one of them is hammering at Parker's head, denouncing the tyranny of Hill, and ridiculing the platform adopted at Albany as undemocratic, meaningless, and cowardly.

To cap the climax, some of the Tammany leaders go so far as to find fault with the remarkable grammar of that remarkable document, this being the first time that grammatical criticism has been an official stock in trade of the Tammany delegation.

There is more than appears on the surface in this open rebellion of the Tammany delegates. They intimate in so many words that Hill, August Belmont or Judge Parker can never, by any possibility, roll up enough votes south of the Bronx to offset the heavy Republican vote of the state. This has startled some of the Southern and Western Democrats, and the result is a notable subsidence of the Parker wave, which only a few days ago threatened to sweep everything before it.

There are signs of something like an understanding between Murphy, the Tammany leader, and Senator Gorman looking toward a consolidation of their interests in opposition to Hill and Belmont. It has long been known that Murphy and Gorman were good friends, and that if Cleveland had no show the Maryland senator could have the Tammany strength.

Under the unit rule, of course, Murphy himself will have to vote from beginning to end exactly as Hill dictates. The unit rule does not begin its beneficent work, however, until the convention is organized. Until then the Tammany delegates are at liberty to hit Mr. Parker between the eyes, and they are missing no chances to follow this program.

Southern and Western Democrats, who were thrilled with Bourke Cockran's eloquence on Saturday, are now giving close attention to him and to the personal talk of his associates. Tammany men say in so many words that Parker was never intended to be a serious candidate, that no one knows where he stands, that he was chosen merely to kill off Hearst, and that he has, therefore, outlived his usefulness, because it is now admitted that Hearst can by no possibility have anything more at St. Louis than a disorganized and disgruntled minority.

Tammany men have taken the ground that the rest of the country should not force them to submit to Hill's dictation. They call attention to the fact that Greater New York will have to furnish a Demeratic majority to carry the state, and they insist that it is unfair to permit Hill to dictate to Tammany hall. Leader Murphy, Bourke Cockran, Charley Towne, the Silver Tongued Grady and other Tammany spellbinders, are hard at work endeavoring to stop the tide of instructions, and there is evidence that they are having remarkable success in their propaganda.

WORK IN SHELLS.

Boat Club Members Turn Out For First Time.

The first work in the shells on the part of the members of the Duluth Boat club, was indulged in yesterday afternoon, when fourteen members of the club turned out for a short spin on the bay.

It is still a little cold for the work, but the men are eager to get in shape for the regatta in June, and all of the other crews which are to be entered have been at work for some time past. Only the four-oared shells were used yesterday. They showed good form and were in the best of condition, owing to a month of hard training in the gymnasium.

The men will continue the outdoor work regularly until the date of the regatta arrives.

Joseph Borek's Fishy Defense Against Robbery Charge.

Joseph Borek, accused of robbing Felix Matel of $460, was bound over to the grand jury by Judge Windom yesterday afternoon.

Borek claimed he found the money in the room and that he did not know it belonged to Matel, although he knew Matel had a considerable sum in his possession. County Attorney McClintock had to conduct the prosecution through an interpreter, as Borek declared he could not understand English.

COMMENDS MACHINE.

C. R. Rust Tells What Electrical Thawing Apparatus Does.

The work of the electrical thawing apparatus purchased by the water and light department to thaw out the frozen service pipes in the city, is practically completed for this season and the machine will not be in use again probably, until next winter. Commendation of the results brought about by the use of the machine are heard from many of the property owners who have saved money and trouble and avoided heavy plumbers' bills.

C. R. Rust, of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company says: "The work that the machine did on the service pipe at our stables is indeed remarkable. There was more than 200 feet of lead pipe frozen solid and upon which we had expended, in digging it up, something like $130, and even now the expense is not over. With the street torn up for several rods it will require a large amount of labor to get it in shape again.

"The electrical machine did the business in ten to fifteen minutes and we have not been bothered since.

"We consider that the city could not afford to be without this apparatus even if it cost $5000. It is indeed a wonderful labor-saving device."

STRANGE CHARGE

Made By the Son of Ex-President Harrison.

Indianapolis, April 27.—In a mysterious brief filed in the probate court by Col. Russell B. Harrison, son of the late President Harrison, he declares that certain stocks, which had been set aside for the fund of $125,000 for Mrs. Harrison's support, should not be so included because his father had not paid for them either in money or services. The clause reads:

"The late Benjamin Harrison was not called upon to render any services to said company, therefore the delivery of the stock to him from year to year was only retaining or hiring him not to appear against the company in any litigation, and was therefore not clearly a case of exchange or barter, as he did not pay for said stock, even in services, but simply took engagements not to appear against said company."

The stock to which Col. Harrison refers in his mysterious clause is sixty shares of the Safety Car Heating and Lighting company. It was appraised at $6000 and is now said to be worth $7200.

The brief, which covers thirteen closely written pages, sets forth exceptions to the report of the Union Trust company, trustee of Gen. Harrison's estate. It contends that the stock converted into the trust fund should be so paid in at their present actual market value, rather than at their cost when purchased.

MONEY PAID FOR PAROLE

Convict Shercleff's Case Is Embarrassing to Secretary Shaw.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 27.—Frank Shercleff's confession regarding the part Tom Denison, the Omaha policy king, played in Polock diamond robbery, constitutes a political volcano, the upheaval of which is said to be seriously embarrassing to Secretary Shaw.

When Secretary Shaw was governor of Iowa he paroled Shercleff, who had been convicted of one of the most daring train robberies on record, securing diamonds valued at $20,000. It was always a mystery here how the parole was secured over the protest of the trial judge, the county attorney, the Pinkerton detectives and the Jewelers' Protective association. It was without precedent and caused more criticism of Governor Shaw's much-advertised "abuse of the pardon power" than any one feature of his administration.

Now comes Shercleff's confesion resulting in the indictment of Denison, who has long been notorious as the nerviest political boss Omaha ever knew. It has resulted in bringing to light an itemized statement of account by Denison showing that he paid out $14,450 for political influence to obtain Shercleff's parole.

The crime for which Shercleff was convicted was committed in 1892. He beat his victim into insensibility, stopped the train and escaped, after a running fire with a posse that lasted several hours. He was captured several days afterwards. He was sentenced to seventeen years' imprisonment and was paroled by Governor Shaw in 1893. He at once resumed the career of a desperado, was recaptured and returned to prison by Governor Cummins.

THE LIBRARY IS A DISGRACE

Seattle Attempted Too Much With $200,000 Given By Carnegie.

Seattle, Wash., April 27.—Andrew Carnegie gave Seattle $200,000 for a public library, but it will take half as much more to finish the building after the contract is completed. The Seattle chamber of commerce finds the contract incomplete in so many ways that the contractor cannot be forced to finish his work.

Disclosures made by accident, as the Carnegie committee was trying to find a way of substituting a better grade of building stone than was required, show that, instead of being an ornament to the city, the building, completed in accordance with the contract, will be a disgrace. Architect Weber, of Chicago, has drawn the first installment of his $10,000 fee and can't be made to supervise the construction.

To come within the limits of Mr. Carnegie's gift, it will be necessary to cut down the specifications to an absurd degree. The second floor will be left entirely unfinished, without woodwork, doors or floors. Concrete was substituted for granite steps. Roof of tar and paper instead of slate, the back of the building common instead of pressed brick, the interior soft wood finish, no electric lighting, steam heating or ventilating systems, elevators cut out of the specifications, no reading tables, benches or furniture, no book stacks, and copper skylights and cornices changed for galvanized iron. The book stacks alone will cost $3000 after the building is completed.

"Now good digestion waits on appetite, and health on both." If it doesn't, try Burdock Blood Bitters.

THE BEST CITIZEN.

President Roosevelt Compliments Mother of Ten Children.

Washington, April 27.—That a woman who is the mother of ten children is a better citizen than her husband, or the president of the United States, was the declaration made by President Roosevelt to the Rev. M. H. Deming, formerly pastor of the Tremont Temple, Boston.

The Rev. Mr. Deming and his wife were among the delegates to the Florence Crittenton mission conference who were received by the president. When Mrs. Deming was introduced it was stated that she is the mother of ten living children.

"I am delighted to meet her," said the president, giving Mrs. Deming a hearty handshake. "You and I may be good citizens, Mr. Deming," he continued, "but Mrs. Deming is the best citizen of the three."

"I had a running, itching sore on my leg. Suffered tortures. Doan's Ointment took away the burning and itching instantly, and quickly, effected permanent cure." C. W. Lenhart, Bowling Green, Ohio.

It's another straw that shows how thoroughly Gray-Tallant Co. have won the confidence of the people by living up to every proposition they offer.

Tomorrow we offer more attractive values in handsomely tailored suits, coats and skirts. Quality for quality you will find these prices lower than anywhere else. Bear in mind that there are no last season's suits among them—every one is fresh from the tailor's hands this spring.

They have not been carried around the country as samples, nor refused by other stores, but every one was made to our order in the stylish, dressy fashion which distinguishes all garments that are accepted by us.

$8.50 for Suits selling up to $12.00, in plain colors—blues, grays and blacks; natty little Etons and runabout or dress length coats, in every size; plain tailored or dressy effects. These are very remarkable values for so little money.

Many of these suits have been sold by us up to $18.50. There are all colors but not every size in each color. Compare these suits with any in the city at half again as much as we ask.

$20.00 for Suits that have sold regularly up to $30.00, in broadcloth, cheviot and voile, trimmed in stylish effects to harmonize with the material. The most charming fashions of the season were among these suits which sold up to $25.00 and $30.00; this special lot is from the odd sizes—if your size is among them it means a big saving to you tomorrow.

$4.50 for Covert Coats selling as high as $8.50, in smart handsome styles—a coat that is exceedingly popular this season. These are from lines that we cannot duplicate now as the makers are working on fall samples. Most of the sizes are small. # FAR FROM HAPPY

Are the Brokers and Bankers of New York City.

Money Cannot Be Loaned Even at One Per Cent.

New York, April 27.—The brokers and bankers here are not happy. Stocks and bonds are dull, inactive, stagnant. Railroad earnings are very fair, taking the country over, somewhat limited it is true, owing to inclement and unseasonable weather, yet encouraging in every way. Nothwithstanding the very great astivity in all lines of manufactures, the extensive distribution of merchandise throughout all and every section of the country, the general, nay, it can be truthfully said universal, good times, the demand for securities is of the most meager character. The cause of lack of demand can be found in the methods and results of the promotions, combinations, syndicates and mergers of the last three years.

The investing public has been hard hit for three years, and the people who now have funds to use are timid and extremely cautious as to where to invest and when it will be safe to part with their holdings of cash. There is sure to be another era of heavy buying, but it may not commence until after the next presidential election, and when it does set in flood tide no one can at this time certainly predict in what channel it will flow the strongest. It may take steam railroads, or it may show up the strongest in the line of electric trolleys, which are rapidly becoming profitable in the thickly settled portions of our country. It may be that capital will go heavily into industrials, and the various lines of manufactures and mines. Time alone can determine which course the sentiment which governs investments will declare the most profitable and by that declaration make it the most popular.

During the interval real estate in the cities is sure to have a season of great activity, and in the majority of the cities of the United States is sure to advance in price this present year. Money is rapidly being put into ground and building now in all the centers of population, and the urban population is increasing by leaps and bounds. One thing can be counted upon as a certainty, and that is that another great step in business progress, another great industrial movement, a period of still greater business activity than even that of the immediate past will be in full swing in the United States within the next twelve months.

It cannot be held in leash longer unless by some sensational political event or some tremendous catastrophe of nature. All conditions are most favorable to its coming, and come it will to aid and perpetuate the welfare and prosperity of the people of this country.

As said before, the brokers and bankers are not happy, and they will have to go to work to help others along in business ventures in order to make a living for themselves.

Never in the history of New York have such conditions prevailed as can be found in Wall street and Broad street today.

The strongest railway systems are not placing bonds or stocks with the public, but are borrowing money upon notes and certificates at very low rates of interest. The financial institutions are able to accommodate the railways by loaning them funds upon these notes and certificates, because they, the institutions, hold the deposits of investors, who are fearful of purchasing the stocks and bonds of these very railways. The railways are strong in every way; able to care for their paper; earnings great enough to give every confidence to investors, but they, the investors, are in no mood to buy while at the same time this disinclination to purchase keeps the deposits great and enables the banks and trust companies to make large loans and thus use a portion of their surplus cash. With all these large loans to the railways there is a steady increase in the pressure of funds to loan.

Last Saturday more than $1,000,000 was loaned at 1 per cent per annum on call. It is stated that upward of $10,000,000 more could be placed even at that unprecedented low rate. Loans aggregating millions have been made during the last month for one year at 4 per cent per annum.

The Bank of England on Thursday reduced its rate of discount to 3 per cent per annum, the second reduction of rate within the last two weeks.

It is because of these facts that the brokers and bankers are not in a comfortable frame of mind at present. The bankers, many of them, are paying 2 and 3 per cent upon deposits, and are unable to place the money at even 1 per cent per annum. A schoolboy can figure out their predicament under these conditions. There must be an end of the situation in a very short time. The bankers must induce live business men to become active in new fields or they must create still greater activity in existing lines of business, or they must cease paying interest upon deposits.

If they succeed in the first two ways open to them business throughout the country will boom, and with more people employed and possibly higher wages paid, there will be a greater and more extended distribution of money and a stimulus found to all forms of commercial and industrial life. If they cease paying interests on deposits they will force depositors to become investors or they will force them to become both workers and investors, and this will bring equally good results to business throughout the country.

A man who has wealth may not work, and yet he may prosper, but his wealth surely has to produce it or it will not increase.

The banker or the depositor must have results from the dollars on the books, and if they cannot make dollars work to produce other dollars they will have to look out for some person who will take those dollars and put them to work producing. The dollars that lie idle in the bank vaults bring the banker no returns, but if he is paying interest on them as deposits he is being surely eaten up, and he must change conditions is he desires to survive. The pressure of cash is steadily growing with every week. Sterling exchange has declined, for neither London ner Paris holds cash at this time and have plenty to loan at low rates to any one who has the collateral to get it.

As one of the financial writers of the New York Journal puts it: "More gold is coming into our Pacific ports than is going out of the Atlantic ports," and unless the millions now idle are set to work the bankers and brokers will continue unhappy.

These millions will surely be put to work. Their owners will see to that. The bankers will have to help themselves by stimulating business to still greater activity and the active men in business and the industrious steady worker in all branches will have plenty to do with remunerative results for a long time in the future years.

TRAGEDY IN WISCONSIN

Man Kills His Wife and Daughter at Woodstock.

Richland Center, Wis., April 27.—Henry Morrison murdered his wife and daughter yesterday at Woodstock, an inland village, thirteen miles north of this city. Morrison is about 55 years old, a carpenter by trade, and has a wide acquaintance throughout the northern part of this county. He and his wife have been having trouble for several years. About two weeks ago he left home and went to Ohio, but came back to Richland Center last Friday and from here went home. Yesterday he hitched a team which he drove to Woodstock. He put the team in a barn and walked over to his home, where he seems to have become involved in another quarrel with his family. As an end to the dispute he shot his wife in the face.

A married daughter was at home with her two children, one 7 years old and the other a babe. She started to run with the babe in her arms, but her father overtook her a short distance from the house, threw her to the ground and shot her also in the face. He then went to the home of Mathias Klingaman, where he attempted to shoot Mrs. Klingaman, claiming Mrs. Klingaman had been the cause of a great deal of his trouble with his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Klingaman were sitting at the dinner table when he entered the house. He aimed the revolver at the woman, but her husband struck him with a chair, knocking him down, and then took the pistol from him.

Morrison was arrested and brought to Richland Center.

HEARING IS HELD.

Judge Cant Considers Objection to Condemnation.

A partial hearing was had before Judge Cant, yesterday, in the condemnation proceedings brought by the Minnesota & North Wisconsin Railway company whose road runs northeast from Scanlon, Minn. The company seeks to condemn a right-of-way for a switch road from Allen Junction to Alden lake, also certain storage rights and right to assort lumber in the lake. It is claimed that the road will enable the company to haul logs over its own tracks to the mill at Scanlon, 10 points where they will connect with other roads.

Objections to the proceedings have been made by the lumber interests at Cloquet on the ground that they have the sole right to use the Cloquet river and Alden lake, and have already appropriated them to public use.

THE CIVIL SERVICE

Five Examinations to Be Held Here In Month of May.

Variety of Government Positions to Be Offered Applicants.

Five civil service examinations will be held during the early part of May in the federal court room, under direction of the local examining board. The positions which are open, however, are of such a nature that it is thought the list of applicants will be very small. In two or three cases there may be no examinations held at all, as was the case yesterday when applicants for the positions of naval cadets were to have been examined, but failed to put in appearance.

The first examinations, May 3 and 4, will be to secure eligibiles from which to make certification to fill a vacancy of assistant draftsman at the large Rock Island arsenal, Ill., and other similar vacancies as they may occur. The subjects will be mathematics, practical calculations, materials and drawing. This position draws a $900 a year salary.

Four of the examinations will be held on May 11 and 12. They will be for applicants for positions as die maker in the mint and assay service at Philadelphia; medallist in the same branch, and for assistant steam engineer, for service in the United States penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga. These will be held on May 11, and examination of applicants for appointment as assistant biologist and editor, in the division of biological survey, department of agriculture, will be held both May 1 and 12. To this latter position is attached a salary of $1200 a year. Applicants will be examined in ornithology geogrpahic distribution of animals, physical geography of North America, and editing and proof reading.

Those desiring positions in the mint and assay service will be examined in letter writing, penmanship and copying from plain copy. All applicants for positions in the government service must be 20 years of age or over.

BEVERIDGE SPEAKS

To Indiana Republican State Convention at Indianapolis.

Senator Fairbanks Also Makes Brief Address to Delegates.

Indianapolis, April 27.—At yesterday afternoon's session of the Republican state convention, Senators Fairbanks and Beveridge were greeted with much enthusiasm. Senator Fairbanks made a brief speech, and was followed by Senator Beveridge, who said in part:

Our theme is the American people. Their business, prosperous, homes happy, prestige high, relations cordial with every power, they are the most hopeful human force the twentieth century beholds. The last eight years will be known in history as "the beginning of the American era." How shall the standard be maintained? So far as government goes, our record and that of the opposition answers that question. The test of statesmanship is results. Let others exploit theories—we stand upon the facts.

We have upheld the historic tariff system which Henry Clay named "the American policy." We will adjust schedules to conditions as they change, maintaining always the principle of protection. Business is adjusted to it. Business never failed to flourish under it. Business never failed to decline without it. A policy which makes good business it is bad business to abandon. Yet the opposition would destroy it. Let the opposition explain—there stands the fact.

Home markets have been preserved, and at the same time foreign markets have been captured for the American producer. Our domestic trade is greater than the entire international commerce of the world; and American exports have passed those of the British empire, and the republic is at last the first commercial power on earth. Let the opposition explain—there stands the fact.

Our reciprocity with Cuba redeemed American honor, opened Cuban markets to American products and will eventually close them to America's rivals. The opposition denounced but could not hold their votes against it; and the sheer wisdom of our policy made patriotism victor overpartisanship. Let the opposition explain—there stands the fact.

Without disturbing the nation's ordinary business, we have applied existing laws to organizations of industry; and that these servants of the people shall be preserved from tendencies hurtful to the republic and to themselves, we have, in addition, provided publicity and established in a new department of the government, the beginnings of national supervision of every corporation doing business across the boundaries of states. The opposition, clamoring for their destruction, which is impossible and wrong, proposed no remedy for their evils, refused when in power to enforce existing laws; and finally, in house and senate, by their votes testified to the merit of our measures. Let the opposition explain—there stands the fact.

We have made certain the canal, that historic purpose of the American people. The opposition resisted, but in the end half their votes sustained us; and artisan hope was wrecked by collision with the will of the nation. Let the opposition explain—there stands the fact.

In a period so short, history tells of no achievement for the betterment of an undeveloped people equal to our work in the Philippines—work to Filipino uplift, ment and American advantage. The opposition violently attacked our policy, which was their right; but after withdrawal had become impossible they still assailed every step to establish civil government, every measure to improve Philippine conditions, every plan to promote American interests, every effort for the advance of civilization. Let the opposition explain—there stands the fact.

To whom credit is due, and no more credit than is due! We ask no unjust praise. Some mind planned what we have done—a mind greater than any one man's intellect, greater than the plans of parties. It was the mind of the American millions. We were only the executing hand.

Resisting and then half yielding, obstructing yet finally dividing, denouncing yet forced to applaud, the opposition is divided even in its objections. In affirmative policies it is confused and stormy. These are not partisan words, for even ex-President Cleveland declares that the best that can now be said of the opposition is that it shows symptoms of returning sanity; and Mr. Bryan answers the opposition's cry of "get together" with the question, "What shall we get together for?" Is this Babel of dissensions a fit council to rule the country? Is business willing to hazard the government to such incoherent control? Could the wisest, strongest man, made president by such an assemblage of antagonisms bring out of that chaos of contradictions either unity or wisdom?

Contrast with this, the unity of our work. Harmony has ruled our councils. Behind each act our votes massed solidly; and under the leadership of our fellow-worker, Theodore Roosevelt, strong and honest, we have sought to accomplish the people's settled purposes. American character is conservative, and our party is organized conservatism. That is why our measures have even captured votes of our adversaries in congress.

The man who faithfully represents the instincts of the people can not go far or frequently wrong. Ability, courage, industry, integrity are indispensable; yet even these do not necessarily mean safety. Too much may depend upon the man who heads the voice that comes from the homes of the nation. Such is our leader. He has the great gift of advisability. Note his cabinet and its unity in spite of the towering individuality of its members. Witness the concord between congress and executive. But above all address Theodore Roosevelt prizes the people's judgment.

By this man, who is their personification, the American people will therefore be shaken by appeal of faction. To stand unbroken by appeal of faction. To stand unbroken by appeal of faction. To the party which has thus realized their purposes the people will again deliver their commission. And to the people we will continue faithful. We will keep close to farm and shop and mill—close to the American home. For there lies the springs of our republic's wisdom, purity and power; there is the country's safety and salvation—there, the homes of the millions, whence comes the will that we obey and expect to make this their permanent home.

Following Senator Beveridge, short addresses were made by Governor Durbin, Representatives Fred Landis and Holliday and others.

The convention then selected by acclamation for delegates-at-large to the national convention: Senator Charles W. Fairbanks, Indianapolis; Senator Albert J. Beveridge, Indianapolis; Governor W. T. Durbin, Anderson; State Chairman James Goodrich, Winchester.

LINEMAN LIVES

After Receiving Shock of 45,000 Volts.

Galesburg, Mich., Apri 27.—After receiving one current of 45,000 volts and another of 25,000 and falling forty feet to the ground, Harry Elsey, an electric lineman, is alive, with the loss of two toes, the only permanent injury.

Elsey has returned from Kalamazoo where he has been six weeks in a hospital recovering. His recovery is considered one of the most remarkable on record. The current was so strong that it melted the soles of his rubber boots.

CARL SATHER IS ELUSIVE

Man Wanted In Duluth Slips Out of Minneapolis Hospital.

Carl Sather, a fugitive from justice from this county, who was shot in the back by a pal, in Minneapolis, a few days ago, escaped from the city hospital in that city last evening.

Sather's wound did not prove as serious as first thought and yesterday the surgeons said he might be remover from the hospital. The police were sent for and Sather was dressed awaiting them. Two hospital attendants were told to watch him until the officers arrived, but he managed to elude them and left the hospital.

The Minneapolis police will make every effort to recapture Sather and will hold him for the county authorities here.

Sather, when he jumped the rock-crushing gang in this city, April 8, had been sent to the county jail to serve a ninety-day sentence for vagrancy. He was suspected of being implicated in an attempted hotel robbery, but the evidence was not strong enough to warrant a conviction, and he was given a sentence for vagrancy.

Sather refused to give further information of his assailant at Minneapolis, further than that his name was "Charlie." He said that the shooting affray had nothing to do with his operations in Duluth. Sather's home is in Minneapolis.

QUICK LUNCH PLAN

To Be Adopted By the Congressmen.

Washington, April 27.—The house restaurant has been abolished. The committee on accounts said the service was bad and the proprietor was obliged to run his business at a loss.

Next session the house will have a restaurant on the quick-lunch plan. Whether a statesman can make as good a speech after eating "sinkers" and coffee or a ham sandwich and a glass of buttermilk as he could on terrapin a la Maryland, remains to be seen.

The real reason for the failure of the restaurant to make money is that congress stopped the sale of liquor.

ITALIANS' RUSH

From Their Country Reaches Half a Million a Year.

About 25,000,000 American Dollars Are Sent Home Every Year.

Rome, April 27.—More than 2,000,000 Italians have gone to the United States in the last thirty years. It is estimated that about 1,000,000 of these people remained permanently in their adopted home. It is also estimated that these people send to their relatives or friends in Italy from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 every twelve months. The amount is so great as to form the principal part of the business of all the Italian banks in New York, and to furnish a large proportion of the exchange business of a number of institutions in Italy. In return for this money, however, the Italians give their labor, and it is contended that in this way, taking also into consideration the amount they spend for subsistence, the net result is beneficial to the United States.

There is considerable antagonism among the American people to the very large Italian immigration, but a disinterested investigation of all conditions at both ends of the Atlantic ferry develops two sides to this much-discussed question. The bulk of the Italian emigration to the United States is from Southern Italy. The Southern Italians are not as presentable, or apparently as desirable, citizens as the people of Northern Italy, but their early environment and the economic condition of the country at their birth. Removed from the oppression of these conditions and given the opportunity they desire they soon become a different class of human beings, responding quickly to the advantages presented in America, those of industrial and political freedom and increased earning power.

In Northern Italy many peasants are land owners. Southern Italy is held by large land owners in great estates, and the peasant is merely a white slave. He lives in a grass hut or miserable field, for in some localities the wages run as low as 10 cents a day for each laborer. Their food consists largely of fruit and green vegetables, this resulting in the underfed appearance of many of the people. The Italian tariff system imposes high import duties upon the necessaries of life and low duties upon the luxuries. Even salt, that cheapest of all commodities in most parts of the world is beyond the reach of many Italian families, owing to its high cost. Petroleum, now used by the poorer peoples of all the earth for lighting their homes, is an expensive luxury in Italy. In fact, unless the Italian peasant can secure the necessary food from the ground about his hut, he slowly starves to death or emigrates to the United States.

Unimproved land is hardly taxed at all. The moment the plow is put into the ground the tax collector appears upon the scenes and tithes the owner, the tenant and the laborer to such a degree as to discourage the breaking up of the large holdings of Southern Italy into cultivated fields. The result of this system is that vast areas remain wild or are kept in pasture, the wage worker is unable to lay by enough money to secure any land for himself, employment is scarce and wages forced down to the minimum. The prosperity of the Italians who have gone to the United States is in sharp contrast to this poverty and distress. Communication between those abroad and those at home is frequent, and it is little wonder that the imagination of even the poverty stricken illiterate and ignorant is excited to such an extent as to induce every effort to reach the new world.

Family affection is a marked trait of the Italian character, and not only do the exiles send money home for the support or transportation of their relatives, but they even do this for their friends. While there is little or no violation of the United States law prohibiting the importation of contract labor, few Italians leave their homes without the assurance that employment awaits them on their arrival in America.

The building of a new railroad in the United States, the extension of street car systems in an American city, or, in fact, the conduct of any great enterprise requiring a large amount of manual labor, is marked by a decided increase in the movement of emigrants. The building of the underground railroad in New York city is held responsible for the large Italian immigration of the past two years, and whereas in the earlier days of American development it was the Irishman who wielded the pick and shovel upon construction work, it is now the industrious and patient Italian peasant who is moving the earth.

The Italian government does not encourage or discourage emigration. It is regulated for the purpose of protecting the emigrant, and the right to claim the military services of all citizens abroad is retained.

The economic conditions already explained have been responsible for draining certain districts of a very large percentage of the population. In some small villages 80 per cent of the people have gone to the United States, and the island of Sicily is now almost depopulated. One feature of Italian country life which contributes not only to the poor physical condition, but to the unfavorable appearance of the people, is the scarcity of water. In 1500 more there is water, but of such quality as to be unfit for household use. Necessarily, therefore, these people have not much opportunity for cleanliness, and as a distinguished Italian statesman has remarked, "Cleanliness is an acquired habit, but one to which our people take readily when given the opportunity."

The total population of Italy is now estimated to be thirty-one millions. The annual emigration is fully one-half million people—men, women and children. Notwithstanding this tremendous drain, there is a steady annual increase of from between 6 and 7 per cent in the population of the country. There is no immigration. This increase results, therefore, entirely from a preponderance of births over deaths and losses through departure.

When an Italian emigrates to the United States he invariably expects to return, materially benefited by his trip. About 40 per cent do return, but in the end most of these go back again to America. On their return they find conditions about as they were when they first left, and the attractions of the new world compel them to emigrate again, generally taking with them other members of their families or convoying a party of friends to the land of plenty. More of the Southern Italians stay in the United States than those who go from Northern Italy. The northern Italians leave early in the spring, work six months in the United States, and return to Italy in the fall. Their average earnings during this period are about $50 per month, and it is estimated that each one of them, after paying his steamer passage both ways and living expenses in the United States, has about $150 when he reaches his home.

SAYS CARTER IS INNOCENT

Savannah Friend Strongly Defends the Disgraced Army Engineer.

Kansas City, April 27.—Harry C. Brown, of Savannah, Ga., who was closely associated with Oberlin Carter, the ex-captain of United States engineers, who recently was released from the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, was in Kansas City recently. He gave another and not altogether well-known side of the ex-captain's character and his standing in the community where he was said to have perpetrated his steal of a million dollars.

"Capt. Carter is today as well liked and about as much trusted as any man in Savannah," said Mr. Brown. "This, of course, is surprising in the light of the stain of a prison record upon his reputation. He is one of the finest men I ever met. His charm of manner completely captivated the men with whom he was associated in the immense deal involving $4,000,000, that has given Savannah one of the finest harbors on the Atlantic coast. The people of the Georgia city have believed in him through the long course of the trial, conviction and sentence. They still believe in him. To them, at least, he is not a thief. They look upon him as a gentleman of fine instincts, courtly manners, upright dealing and profound engineering ability.

"The public knows only of the man's disgrace, of his failure to prove his innocence, and of his prison career and subsequent discharge. The real charm of the man is not known generally. His energy, ability, fineness of action and regard for honorable dealing have been hidden beneath the opprobium of the charges against him. I met him, found him a man among men, and like him.

"Speaking of Savannah reminds me of artillery punch. Ever drink any artillery punch? 'Tis the most innocent and also the most insidious beverage that ever cooled and also thrilled the inner regions of men. 'Tis as deceptive as a woman's smile, and sweeter, too, if a Southern girl may be pardoned for saying so. It looks like every-day punch and produces the effect of 'forty rod' whisky. At a congressional committee meeting in Savannah recently, to which I had been bidden, staid teetotalers sipped the ruby beverage and forthwith forgot the training of years. Solemn preachers of the gospel drank of it, not knowing its contents, and became like howling Commanches. 'Tis a gay drink. 'Tis a dangerous drink. 'Tis likewise a nectar fit for the gods to drink.

"Artillery punch is made of lemonade whose staid religious characteristics are debauched by the addition of a bottle of brandy, plus four or five bottles of chompaigne and a bottle of rye whisky."

Mr. Brown is here in the interests of a Cincinnati newspaper. He represented Savannah when the plan for the deep water project was forming, and visited the governor of every state and commercial clubs in all the large cities to secure their indorsement of the plan to present to congress when the appropriation was asked for, and subsequently given.

DEAD AT HIS POST.

Ferry Engineer Fails to Answer Pilot's Signals.

New York, April 27.—As the ferry boat America, after leaving the foot of Grand street, Manhattan, last night, was nearing its slip at the foot of Broadway, Brooklyn, with 50 passengers on board, Charles Kelly, the engineer, fell dead of apoplexy, and there was no one in the engine room to answer the pilot's signals. The boat crashed into the bulkhead, which tore away the rail of the starboard side of the boat and wrecked the ladies' cabin. Then it careened to the other side of the slip and the rail and cabin on the men's side were wrecked. There was great excitement on board and several passengers were injured, none seriously. The steam was not shut off until after the landing bridge had been wrecked. Kelly was found lying on the floor dead, his hand still grasping the lever.

PARDON IS DENIED FREDERICK W. AMES.

St. Paul, April 27.—The state pardoning board has denied the application for the pardon of Frederick W. Ames, formerly chief of police of Minneapolis, who is serving a sentence of six and one-half years in the Stillwater penitentiary for accepting "graft" money. Similar action was taken in the case of former Chief of Detectives Norm W. King, who is also serving a penitentiary term for connection with the Minneapolis municipal scandal.

HIPPOLOGY SCHOOL

Fort Riley Officers Have Completed the First Term.

The Instruction Probably Will Be Continued and Increased.

Fort Riley, Kan., April 27.—Although several days remain until the close of the school term for officers, the first school of equitation in the United States army has just been successfully terminated at this garrison, and every student has qualified to the satisfaction of the school staff. Schools of equitation for officers are no new thing in several foreign military establishments. France particularly, which has by far the finest in the world in Saumur, but it was a decided innovation, as far as our service was concerned, and the war department doubtless will hereafter be greatly influenced by the results which have been attained at this school.

The course which began in January was confined to cavalry officers of less than ten years' service. The object of the school is to make these students practical horsemen in all that the term implies, as far as the service is concerned. It has been the aim of the instructor to make each student a thorough trainer of the army horse, and in addition give him as well a working knowledge of horseshoeing and farriery, so that he will be able to impart the instruction to the enlisted man.

The work has progressed steadily five days of the week for the greater part of four months, and the results have been all that could be desired. Busy hours in the riding hall struggling with an obstinate mount have alternated with equally trying times in the horseshoeing shop, where shoes have been made and fitted by tired and blistered hands. Lectures in the lecture room, on farriery and hippology, although less exciting and interesting from a physical standpoint, have been none the less exacting and fatiguing. The "conformation" and "points" of a horse have received practical illustration in these lectures. Each student in turn pointed out the defects or good points of an animal as he was led before the class. The methods of caring for a horse in accident or disease have received careful study, with practical work at the operating table. If a horse had a defect in gait, the officer was instructed how to shoe him to correct it, and was required to ride the horse and demonstrate that the defect had been removed.

The cowboy and his ways may be of the past, but the usefulness of the rope and how to use it have been considered important enough to be included in the course of instruction. With horses loose in a corral or on herd, the occasion for its use may often arise, and at such times it is badly needed. Several officers have become quite expert in the use of the lariat. Several days ago, prior to the close of the course, the student officers gave an exhibition in the riding hall, which demonstrated the worth of the training they had undergone. First on the program was "school riding," which is a course preliminary to what is known as the "high school" course of the horse. Each officer in turn came down the hall on the mount he trained, showing the animal's gaits, passaging and turning. Next came the cutting and shooting at the heads, which is done at the gallop. The hurdle is used in this instance. Perhaps the handling and riding of bucking horses was the most interesting to the spectators. One rider only went to the tan-bark, but he was thrown before he was fairly in the saddle, and although he landed on head and shoulders, he was up and on his mount in a flash—and there he remained despite the broncho's best efforts. The rope was thrown also. One horse cleared more than six feet in jumping.

The authorities are in every way satisfied with this trial year. Hereafter there will be two classes under instruction—a first and a second year class. The course just terminated will be adapted for the first year, and for the second year there will be advanced work in "high school," training of green horses, and the execution of feats of horsemanship as accomplished by French and Italian officers.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

CONSUMED BY A FIRE THAT WATER WILL NOT QUENCH

Only those who have experienced the awful itching and burning of Eczema can know how it feels to be consumed by the blistering, fiery acids oozing out through the pores of the skin. There is no other skin disease that compares in severity with Eczema. It begins as a mere redness of the skin, or comes in little watery blisters and pimples, discharging a thin sticky fluid which hardens into scabs and scales, leaving a raw and inflamed surface as they peel off, while the itching is almost intolerable. Eczema is the most vicious and violent of all skin diseases, appearing in many different forms; the dry and scaly kind with brownish white crusts, which gives the skin a rough, leathery appearance, and producing sometimes painful fissures and sores. In other cases the skin has a swollen, moist appearance, with occasional profuse discharges of watery matter. But all the varieties and types of this aggravating disease are akin and are caused by impure blood and an over-acid condition of this vital fluid that seems to set the skin on fire, kindling a flame that water will not quench, and an itching, stinging eruption that lotions, soaps, salves and powders cannot suppress. As the poisonous acids in the blood increase the eruption spreads and becomes more angry looking, and the itching and burning more unbearable. Eczema is the commonest of all skin diseases, and the most aggravating and treacherous, disappearing at times, then returning suddenly and in a severer form than ever. It is particularly bad in warm weather, because at this season the skin is reacting and the blood is making extra effort to throw off the morbid secretions and acid impurities that have been accumulating during the long winter months, and there is an overflow of the acrid matter and acid poison through the pores, producing irritation and redness of the skin and all the terrors of Eczema. Soothing applications are beneficial and advisable, but not curative, because the seat of the disease is in the blood, and external or surface treatment cannot change bad blood into good blood or purge the system of impurities. Only a blood purifier can do this, and while treating the skin the blood must be looked after or the disease is sure to return when the blood is again overcharged with acids.

Dear Sirs:—In the summer of 1898 I was attacked with a breaking out, which doctors said was Eczema. It commenced on the inside of my arms and gradually spread. The doctors who examined me said they could cure it, and treated me for some time, but it grew worse all the while. I then wrote you, and upon receipt of a reply to my letter I got six bottles of S. S. S. and began taking it according to directions.

I had used four and a half bottles before seeing any effect at all; then the Eczema seemed to get a great deal worse, but I kept on taking the medicine, and in three or four days the eruption commenced to shed off. I could rub it off like bran, and this was the end of the Eczema. I took in all nine bottles, and never spent that much money for anything that did me so much good. Have felt better in every way since. I am 68 years old, and was so stiff that I could hardly walk and was compelled to quit work, but since taking S. S. S. have been on the go all the time. Very truly, J G. McNAIR.

Garth, Va.

SSS

S. S. S. to purify and cleanse the blood, and some non-irritating, soothing salve or lotion, is the proper treatment for all forms of Eczema. S. S. S. has made some remarkable cures of this stubborn skin disease—cases that had become chronic from long neglect or wrong treatment. S. S. S. is the only guaranteed strictly vegetable blood remedy. It is without a single mineral ingredient, but of medicinal roots that come from the fields and forests or Nature's store-houses. S. S. S. combines both purifying and tonic properties that enter into the circulation and destroy the impurities, and at the same time tone up the general system. Skin diseases are, after all, only symptoms of impure and vitiated blood and external signs of disordered systems, and when you cure the blood the eruptions disappear.

If you have Eczema or any blood disease, sore or eruption, write us and our physician will gladly advise you and furnish any information desired without cost to you. Book on the Skin and its diseases free. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY, ATLANTA, GA.

IN A SERIOUS PREDICAMENT

Are the "Half-Cured" Patients of a Philadelphia Doctor.

Philadelphia, April 27.—Fire destroyed electric apparatus in the sanitarium and electro-therapeutic institute of Dr. Thomas R. Eldridge, 1639 North Broad street. This apparatus had been used by Dr. Eldridge in a series of experiments he had been conducting, having for their end the turning of negroes into whites. There are no other machines of the kind in existence, and until the surgeon builds others, half a dozen negroes in various transitionary stages will be kept guessing.

For some time Dr. Eldridge has been experimenting upon negroes. He had discovered a means to bleach the skin, and in at least one case had almost succeeded in turning the whole body of the black white. This was accomplished by throwing an X-ray light through radium, thus destroying the pigment in the skin.

The apparatuses which the surgeon had perfected were the only ones of their kind in the world. There were two of them, and it took Dr. Eldridge some years to construct them. It was these which were destroyed.

Those negroes who were being treated are now in a state of dermatological suspense. They are neither white nor black. Dr. Eldridge is uncertain what the result of the suspension of the experiment will be. He is sure that the white portions of the body will not turn black. He is not sure, however, that the bleaching process may not proceed in the advanced cases without the aid of the apparatus.

It will take several months before dupliecate apparatuses can be completed, and in the meantime half a dozen negroes are feeling uneasy.

THE CURE WAS MIRACULOUS

Case of Leprosy Contracted By Missionary Is Cured.

New York, April 27.—From India to the board of foreign missions in this city has come a strange tale of a miraculous cure of leprosy, the victim of which was Miss Mary Reed, who left her home in Cincinnati about ten years ago to go to the East as a missionary under the auspices of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church.

It was while Miss Reed was visiting home on her first furlough, several years after her original departure, that traces were discovered of a disease which the physicians pronounced leprosy, believing that she had contracted it while working among infected East Indians. Informed of the nature of her ailment, Miss Reed did not become despondent, but considered it a divine call for her to devote the remainder of her life to alleviating the miseries of her fellow-sufferers.

Without bidding good-by to her family she secretly left home, and it was not until she reached India again that she informed them by letter of her misfortune. Arriving in the East, she resumed her work in one of the worst camps of the leper colony and achieved remarkable success.

Not long afterward, according to report, the marks which specialists had declared to be those of leprosy began to disappear, and since then not a sign of the malady has reappeared. Despite this condition, however, Miss Reed continued to isolate herself until she has become broken in health and her nerves in a distressing state.

In consequence of this the mission authorities have granted her a vacation for eighteen months, which she is spending in Palestine. Her colleagues in her work in India have long refused to consider her a victim of the disease, and have raised the question whether she may not be permitted to return to America and visit her friends and relatives.

The case probably will be again submitted to American and English physicians for decision.

GUARDS CANNOT GO

To St. Louis Fair at Expense of the State.

St. Paul, Minn., April 27.—Attorney General Donahower has put a quietus of the hope of the National Guard members, who hoped to make a trip to St. Louis this summer. In an opinion given the governor yesterday afternoon, he holds that the National Guard appropriation cannot be used for that purpose.

A legislative resolution gave the governor and adjutant general the right to use the funds for such a trip, but the resolution is held not to have the force of law and the law provides that the standing appropriation for the Guard is for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the military code. The attorney general holds that the military code does not authorize the governor to order the troops outside the state.

The point was raised by the regimental commanders in letters to the adjutant general.

CHILDREN FARMING

Vegetables and Flowers Grown Among New York Factories.

Plan of Woman Member of Board of Education.

New York, April 27.—When Mrs. Henry Parsons was appointed to the school board she found seven schools in her district, 30,000 children, residents of the middle West Side, with its Hell's Kitchen, its slums, its race problem. She set out to get acquainted and did this first through the distribution of potted plants and seeds. A children's farm garden on the waste land of what will next year be De Witt Clinton park was the next step in establishing a nucleus for reaching the people of this great section.

This year a larger plot was fenced in, top soil laid on and a tiny model farm house added. Any afternoon, challenging the hottest suns, beneath a wide straw hat, may be found this mother of seven who has adopted the hundreds. There is a possibility that in developing the park the farm garden may be lost. It is a remarkable enterprise, this plan of getting children swarming from the vast tenement district like ants from the ground. Some are homeless waifs, and all are divided into bands, with leaders, girls as well as boys, soon to be men and women, citizens of New York. To put a little joy into their wild, vagabondish life, to give them friendship and awaken the angel in them, is the object of the playgrounds and the sweet little gardens there, bordered with turf and flower beds.

They call it the children's farm. It all belongs to them, every foot of it, every plant and vegetable raised. In this feeling of ownership and pride in the work done by the boys and girls lies the secret of the success of the scheme. In 1902 the little farm was an experiment, but considered successful. Last year it attracted attention from all parts of the country, so much so that Miss Helen C. Bennett, Mrs. Parsons' superintendent, was asked to accept a similar position in Philadelphia, and she is now in charge of a model garden school.

The New York De Witt Clinton farm garden was a plot 100 by 200 feet, divided into areas to accommodate 277 children. A flower bed was in the center, with other beds of flowers for "cutting" grown at appropriate points. The gardens of the plots were planted with clover, rye, wheat, oats and buckwheat. The season extended from July 18 to Nov. 1, and the number of children participating was 141 boys and 136 girls.

Here is what the children raised: Radishes, 20,214; beets, 1745; beans, 350 quarts; peas, 140 pints; turnips, 942; cornstalks, with ears, 900; lettuce, 300 heads; spinach, 400 quarts; kale, 400; cabbage, 475 heads; celery, two plots; endive, 6032. Packages of corn plants were sent to 134 public schools for nature study.

The vegetables and plants raised were large, thrifty and of the best quality, and so wide was the interest in the enterprise that experts came to study it from Paris, the agricultural department in Washington and from the imperial department of agriculture of the British West Indies.

At the close of the season, notwithstanding the congratulations poured in on every side, Mrs. Parsons wanted to test the interest of the children and their parents in what had been done. Postal cards were sent to one hundred and fifty of the young farmers of the previous season, and one hundred and twenty replies were received asking that plots be again assigned to them. The children not only showed enthusiasm from the beginning and cheerfully did all the heavy work of clearing the ground and preparing it for planting, but not once did their interest flag.

A small building in the park, a little larger than a New York election voting booth, was used as the farmhouse. In it the younger girls were taught household duties, with a boy to do the heavier chores. Two hundred and fifty girls took part and seemed to enjoy it. The house was equipped with a stove, cooking utensils, dishes, table linen and everything that was necessary for performing housework neatly and economically.

At the end of the season two visiting nurses confessed to Mrs. Parsons that they had been watching some children troubled with lung disease, and to get the benefit of the exercise in fresh open air children in their care had been allowed to join the farming school. To the delight of the trained nurses they found a steady improvement in the condition of the little ones, and by autumn they had nearly, if not quite, recovered from the terrible menace of tuberculosis.

The improvements this year in the De Witt Clinton park are on a more elaborate scale. Engineers are in charge of the work and a small army of laborers are transforming the bare, open fields into a well laid out park, to be as handsome as any portion of Central park—all for the benefit of the neighborhood.

Three-quarters of an acre of rich, newly carted in garden mould is to be devoted to the children's farm. There will be a big, twenty-foot flower bed in the center, with a daisy plot for each child radiating to the border. Everything is figured out by the engineers and Mrs. Parsons. Each child, a girl or boy, has a plot four by eleven feet. The crops will be chiefly corn, cabbage, radishes, kale, peas, turnips, lettuce, spinach and celery. There are three hundred plots in all.

On the river side of the little farm will be the headquarters building, called the Pergola—an ornamental park building two hundred feet long and thirty-three feet wide. As it will not be finished before late in the season Mrs. Parsons will use last year's structure, making it a bower of beauty, with piazzas and ornamental cornices, projections, screens and everything calculated to transform the place into a home of delight for the children.

The park department is much interested in the work, which is an instructive, beautiful and certainly most useful feature of New York park life. Mrs. Parsons is doing all this work without pay from the city, but receives contributions from friends at home and abroad, who have the enterprise at heart.

Engineers and workingmen agree that a great change has been wrought in the disposition and habits of the children. Even the boys no longer throw stones, smash lamps and windows and turn the neighborhood into bedlam.

Wendell Phillips' idea is carried out in the work: "Fill the empty chamber of the mind with a motive and the devils will be driven out." Mrs. Parsons says: "We had not been two days on the ground when the workmen told us that malicious mischief had changed to wholesome fun. We found courtesy, willingness to work and obedience left over from last year, ready to be of service again.

Beer is Good for You

When the patient is weak, the doctor says "Drink Beer."

When the nerves need food, beer is the usual prescription. So in insomnia; so in nervousness.

The doctor knows that malt and hops are nerve foods and tonics. And he knows that most people drink too little fluid to rid the system of waste.

He knows that pure beer is good for you.

That is why he says "Schlitz." He knows that Schlitz beer is brewed in absolute cleanliness. It is even cooled in filtered air. And every bottle is sterilized.

Half the cost of our brewing is spent to insure absolute purity. Ask for the brewery bottling.

A "JACK THE HUGGER" CAUGHT

Eight Women Accuse Chicago Man of Embracing Them.

Chicago, April 26.—The stockyards "Jack the Hugger" has been identified as Alex Moor, 4459 Union avenue, before police of the stockyards station, and Moor now is their prisoner. He is married, and because of the fact the police at first thought he could not be the hugger they were seeking. When eight women, married and single, yesterday identified him they decided to retain him in custody.

"It is a shame," Moor's wife said, tearfully, when she learned of the charge against her husband. "Alex never hugged anybody but me, and I know it."

Nevertheless the eight women who called at the stockyards station were positive that Moor had pounced on them from alleys at different times during the last three weeks but always at night—and had put his arms about them. After hugging them he had fled before they could have him arrested.

All agreed to appear in Justice Fitzgerald's court this morning when Moor was arraigned on the charge of "disorderly conduct." The following say they will testify that Moor hugged them:

Mrs. M. McCarthy, 4539 Emerald avenue.

Miss Maggie Moriarity, 4539 Emerald avenue.

Miss Celia Dwyer, 4444 Wallace street.

Miss C. Murphy, Forty-fifth street and Lowe avenue.

Miss L. Burns, 4505 Union avenue.

Miss Nellie Burns, 4515 Union avenue.

Miss Anna Cahill, Forty-fifth street and Lowe avenue.

Mrs. Fred Shell, 757 West Forty-third street.

The Burns sisters will testify that Moor tried to hug both of them at once, but became frightened and ran before his arms fairly had encircled either of them. They will insist, however, that they were hugged "technically."

"The man's intent was plain," Miss Nellie Burns is quoted as saying. "He was scared away by our screaming."

The police have long been looking for Moor "on description." For weeks hardly a night passed that some woman did not call at the station and tell of a hugging. Always the appearance of the one who did the hugging was the same:

"A tall, good looking man, middle aged, with a military mustache, and wearing a light overcoat and a derby hat."

Such is Moor's description. But the police were unable to find Moor until he was pointed out to them Friday night by Mrs. Snell as the man who had hugged her one night a week before.

"There is your 'Jack the Hugger,'" declared Mrs. Snell, when she saw Moor standing at Forty-fifth and Halstead streets.

Mrs. Snell's husband was with her and the police had hard work trying to protect Moor from violence. Meanwhile, Moor indignantly denied the charge that he was a hugger.

LIGHT THROWN ON REAL SAGE

Phrenologist Finds Financier's Passion Is Desire to Win.

New York, April 26.—Russell Sage's "bumps" have been diagnosed by a phrenologist. Dr. Edgar C. Beall, who made the examination, has prepared a study of the noted financier. Among other things the doctor says of Mr. Sage:

"The one tender strain in his nature is his love for animals. If he had had children his life might have been far less cold. The crown of his head is high at firmness and justice. Self-esteem is medium, but approbativeness is very large. The desire to excel, to command recognition, to conquer in the battle of life, is his master passion, and not the abstract love of hoarding money, as is commonly supposed. In discussing this point, Mr. Sage fully agreed with the writer in this analysis. And such is the record in the contours of his brain.

"Acquisitiveness in Mr. Sage is shown in every line of his face and hand more than in the diameter of the side head, for two reasons: First, in men of his temperament the brain naturally develops in length and height rather than in width. Second, in his case saving money is a means to another end—namely, the guarantee of victory in the commercial game. And as economy is a deeply rooted habit of his mind, it is reflected in the drawn expression of his face and in the closeness with which his fingers fit together. There are no chinks between them that would allow the thinnest coin to slip through.

"His great fault is that the habit of resistance to evil forces has been cultivated to the point of resisting all softening influences, whether bad or good. He has so thoroughly learned to say 'no' that he says it now from habit when he should say 'yes.'"

LEPROSY CURE IS CERTAIN

Specialist Says That Every Case Treated Shows Improvement.

New Orleans, April 26.—Dr. Isadore Dyer, professor of skin diseases in the New Orleans polyclinic, one of the founders of the leper home at Indian Camp and the first and only physician in this state, and perhaps in the world, who has cured leprosy, in a lecture here on "Leprosy at Home and Abroad," said that he and his two assistants at the leper home had succeeded in curing ten patients. Several others, he said, were on the road to recovery, and the time will soon come when leprosy will be classed as a curable disease. Dr. Dyer said:

"The marine hospital service states that there are 278 lepers in the United States. Of these 15 were reported by me from Louisiana as having been noted between 1890 and 1899. This represents a part only of the actual occurrence of the disease.

"Is there any hope for the leper? I can tell you that here in Louisiana my assistants and I in ten years have removed all evidence of the disease in nearly a dozen cases. Will you be impressed with the statement that in two years, since the last part of 1902, every case at the leper home not too far gone has been improved by treatment, and that three of the present inmates are almost well?

"Treatment means a perseverance, not for days, but for months and years, in following directions. If the remedy given is taken early enough, maintained long enough, and is taken in large enough doses, the patient will get well. This is my belief, and I may state here that in another decade the catalogue of eradicable ills burdened upon the frail body of the human kind will bear among its number the name of leprosy, as it does now those of typhus, typhoid, yellow fever, cancer and tuberculosis."

Y. M. C. A. WORK

In the Southern Cotton Mill Towns.

New York, April 26.—The management of the Monahgan mills, of Greenville, S. C., are erecting and completely equipping a large building for the use of the Young Men's Christian association recently organized by their operatives. The mill managers have been making a study of the social conditions existing in the new mill villages which have sprung up in the South with the coming of cotton mills to that section.

The state and international Y. M. C. A. specialists have been conducting investigations of conditions in co-operation with the mill companies. They found in the South many mills recently established which have brought together 75,000 people, mostly from country and mountain districts, many of whom lack the rudiments of education and are without knowledge of life in town or city. They are not accustomed to the use of money, having conducted most of their trading by barter, so that the possession of money in any amount leads to wasteful and foolish purchases. A savings department will be a feature of the new association, and thrift lectres and instruction in the use of money will be given. These new towns have few, if any, wholesome attractions for leisure time. Churches are new and weak. For the large number of boys employed in the mills, a considerable portion of whom cannot read or write, educational classes will be conducted, brass bands will be organized, music taught, and social and club features of the building will be extended, gymnastics and outdoor athletics will be conducted under a physical director, and the usual religious work of the association. Bible classes and men's meetings introduced.

The association will find a large field of influence in these new towns, and will be able to give character to them. Several other large mills in the South have decided to co-operate with their employes by the erection of buildings if this first experiment proves successful. I. E. Munger, of Iowa, who has been connected with the association for twelve years in this country and in India, will direct the organization of this first cotton mill association in the South.

FINANCIER BELMONT

New York's Growing Interest In Representative of Rothschilds.

His Work as an Inspector on the Elevated Road.

New York, April 27.—The people of New York are taking more than their usual interest in August Belmont just now for two reasons. The subway which he is going to run is nearly completed; that is one reason. He is very much interested in the candidacy of Judge Parker for president; that is another reason.

August Belmont is an interesting man under any circumstances. As head of the Belmont house, he represents the great banking interests of the Rothschilds in America, and as head of the corporation now running the elevated lines and to run the underground lines when they are ready, he is making a most interesting transportation experiment. Incidentally, of course, he expects to add millions to his fortune. If he performs his task properly he will add enormously to the comfort of New Yorkers, and also to the growth and prosperity of the city.

There are some points of resemblance between August Belmont and Russell Sage, who for many years was the head of the Manhattan elevated. Each of these men pays a great deal of attention to detail.

Down town a short time ago Mr. Sage was in the habit of looking very closely after the affairs of banks, merchants and other business men who borrowed money from him. When a new applicant for a loan went to Sage he generally visited the applicant's place of business before deciding what to do. If it were a store he entered, benerally unobserved, because the mass of New Yorkers do not know him by sight, and strolled about the place awhile. If he found the clerks and salesmen neat, courteous and obliging, if he found the floor clean and the stock in good shape, if he found the customers apparently well satisfied with their treatment, these things went a long way toward securing the required loan.

Mr. Belmont looks after the elevated railroad in much the same way. Like Mr. Sage, Mr. Belmont is not well known to the majority of New Yorkers by sight. For some time after he assumed the management of the elevated lines it was his custom to leave his office in the Park Row building at about the rush hours in the afternoon, go to the Cortlandt street station of the Sixth avenue line and ride uptown as a passenger. He had heard that the trains were unnecessarily crowded, that the gatemen and ticket sellers were not always properly obliging, that the guards were careless. All complaints, of whatever nature they were, made about his road were brought to his attention. He wanted to remedy the cause of as many complaints as possible. There was no way in which he could learn how to do this without hanging on a strap as a passenger himself.

That he found many of the complaints well founded was shown conclusively by many of the changes he has instituted during the past year. It was because of one terrific jam in which he was personally hustled about altogether too much for comfort that he ordered a new set of trains, especially for shoppers, put on the Fifth avenue line. It was because of another terrific crush at the Cortlandt street station of the Ninth avenue line that he is having a lot of changes made at that station.

For a long time the employes of the elevated road did not recognize Mr. Belmont when they saw him, and it is rumored that on three occasions he was treated with personal discourtesy. It is rumored also that the discourtesy in these cases was expensive to the men involved.

Little by little, however, it is understood that the men got on to Belmont, and, although he still travels up and down the line occasionally, he does not find so much to remedy now as formerly, because when the men see him they get on their good behavior instantly.

Mr. Belmon is not an impressive person to look at. He is below the medium height, and he dresses in a commonplace manner. His movements generally are sharp, quick and altogether unlike what you would expect to see in a man of his wealth and power.

August Belmont and John B. McDonald, the chief contractor for the subway, possess much regard for each other. It was Belmont who came to McDonald's rescue after McDonald's bid for the subway contract had been accepted.

McDonald expected that Belmont could be induced to stand by him before he made the bid, but wasn't sure of it, and it took nerve to make a bid on a $50,000,000 contract without being positively sure of the financial backing. It is quite probable that admiration for that kind of nerve had something to do with Belmont's final decision to stand by McDonald.

McDonald is about the same height as Belmont, but, whereas the capitalist is slender and produces the effect of personal diminutiveness, the contractor is broad and round; whereas the capitalist is thin in face and neutral in coloring, the contractor is ruddy and burly looking; the capitalist has a rather light voice, the contractor's voice is full and strong.

McDonald knows the contracting business from the ground up. His father was a contractor before him, and John B. began his active life earning a living with a shovel in his hands. He isn't ashamed of the fact that he started out as a laborer, either. In fact, is rather proud of it, and those of his lieutenants who admire him most take delight in telling stories of their chief's democratic ways.

It was McDonald who turned the first shovelful of earth at the beginning of the subway in City Hall park, when he took the shovel in his hand exactly as if he were using it every day, he grinned. "To the manner born," was what he said.

BEST COUGH MEDICINE FOR CHILDREN.

When you buy a cough medicine for small children you want one in which you can place implicit confidence. You want one that not only relieves but cures. You want one that is unquestionably harmless. You want one that is pleasant to take. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy meets all of these conditions. There is nothing so good for the coughs and colds incident to childhood. It is also a certain preventive and cure for croup, and in the whooping cough when it is given. It has been used in many epidemics of that disease with perfect success. For sale by all druggists.

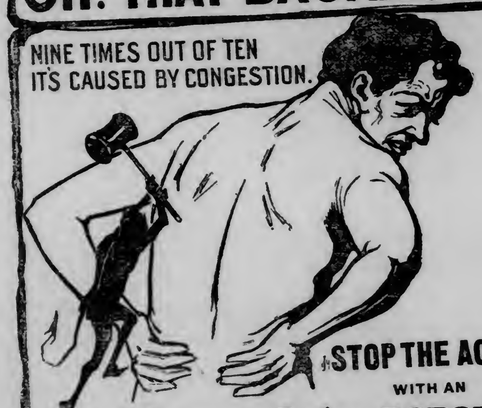

Grippe kills millions yearly. People lack blood and vital force. Take a body builder, strength producing remedy like Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, and throw off diseases. 35 cents, tea or tablet form. Ask your druggist.

IN WOMAN'S SPHERE

The members of the Epworth league of the First Methodist church entered some eight weeks ago into a contest which was waged between the young men and the young women of the league. The contest was in the interest of attendance, and during the Sunday evenings that the contest was on the attendance at the meetings was very large. The last Sunday of the contest, which was a week ago, the attendance was nearly three hundred.

For the last few meetings the sisters, cousins and aunts, or the brothers, cousins and uncles were pressed into service and in the end the young men were victorious, and last evening were the guests of the losing side, the young women, at a banquet which was served in the dining room of the church.

The girls proved good losers, which everybody knows is infinitely harder than to receive the honors of the conqueror, and the banquet was a delightful one. The tables were prettily decorated with ferns and carnations and softly shaded candles shed a soft glow over the table. After the banquet, several bright and witty toasts were given by the guests. H. F. Michael presided as toast-master, and B. N. Wheeler, president of the Epworth Union, spoke on "The League." Miss Mae Cummings responded to the toast, "The Boys," which is a toast always well received and the one last evening was bright and original. "The Bachelor" was spoken of by E. N. Thomas, and Miss Grace Robinson responded to "Our Social Life." "Our Contest" was spoken of by Herbert Blair and "Combination" was H. C. Fulton's toast. "Leapyear" was the interesting topic of Miss Nellie Ober, and E. H. Hess ended the toasts with one to "Our Girls."

The whole event was a delightful one to the members of the league and following the dinner, an informal musical and social was enjoyed.

"THE MANNERLESS SEX."

Some Comments on a "Mere Man's" Reflections.

"The Mannerless Sex by a Mere Man," is the talk under which the Toledo Blade disposes of woman in this wise:

"Let a man utter any criticism of a woman, and she will accuse him of ungallantry. She will not thank him for telling her of the fault; she will simply hate him for having seen it.

"She expects mere man to yield to her in etiquette at least, if not in ethics, to sacrifice himself for her and sugar his opinions of her always.

"That word 'gallantry' has spoiled woman.

"It has saved her from seeing herself as men see her.

"It has rendered her secure and complacent in her ignorance, her vanity and her inefficiency.

"And being used to exacting unjustiy from men, women exact unjustiy of one another; all unconsciously they are shamefully selfish and disgracefully ill-mannered.

"It may be ungallant to say it—but it is the truth—that if the average man went through life with the insolence of speech and manner that marks the average woman he would get knocked down every day, and deserve it.

"Wherever you find her, under any conditions you choose, in any mood you want, the woman of modern civilization has manners that are abominable.

"Enough has been said—and seen—of her in the street cars. And every man—and every woman, too—knows that her return home from her shopping just at the hour when the cars are most crowded, taking the seats of tired man or workgirl, just as though it were her right, is without any reason or excuse whatever, unless perhaps she likes to appeal to the gallantry of men and impose upon other women.

"Did you ever see her at a railway station or postoffice window quietly take her place in line, patiently await her turn, transact her business promptly, without stopping to fumble in her purse or ask needless questions, and pass on and out, without delaying or annoying or scolding, or glaring at anybody else?

"If you ever see a woman who can do that you may be sure she has rubbed up against men enough to learn some manners of them. She is no mere woman.

"Not one woman in ten will wait for another person to finish speaking before beginning to speak herself.

"Not one woman in a hundred recognizes the importance of an engagement, and hardly one in a thousand but is rather pleased and flattered than otherwise to think that for her sake some one else has been inconvenienced.

"Yes, woman is shamefully mannerless. But why say more about it? Everybody knows it but herself, and she, at mention of it, only cries 'ungallant!' and unmannerly stops up her ears."

Among the other synonyms offered for "mere" is "unqualified," and after reading the above, one is sure that the latter would have been the better word with an "an" preceding it. In reading his article one doesn't know whether to decide that he was one of the men raised in an orphan asylum or since reaching manhood has become cynical and sour because one woman refused to allow him to teach her manners from his point of view for the rest of her life. He has accepted so unconditionally the criticisms of women that have been offered for the past fifty years that in his shortsightedness he, without observance, used the same arguments which a half day's real observance of the average woman would have shattered. "That word 'gallantry' has spoiled woman," he says, and it must have been the word, for not much else of the real article is handed out to her in the present day.

Enough has been seen of her in the street cars and of men too. The man who stands aside for a woman to enter a car first is a small percentage of the whole. The man who keeps his seat is all right. He paid for it and is entitled to it for the full length of the ride, and he is really to be preferred to the one who rises and walks to the other end of the car without a glance at the woman to whom he is offering his seat. Her "Thank you" is often sent after a sulky, grouchy-looking man. The postoffice and ticket office window is another source of worry to the "man." In spite of all the talk, a woman likes to get in line in the order she came, and does not care for men to give way to her, nor does she particularly enjoy to have them come in and because they are business men, take her place.

She can buy a theater ticket with about three remarks. "In the parquet, please," "Are they behind a post?" and "How much?" She does not keep engagements? Count up the time you have waited for a dentist, or a man teacher, and it will quite balance the times he has waited for you. Of course, there have been cows that hooked and years when navigation did not open until June 1, but everybody knows that they are exceptional, very exceptional. And so with the woman and manners. There may have been women "mannerless," but not to such an extent that all the rest of the sex may be called with a like epithet.

Might Improve Matters.

The woman who was bent on improving the race had explained matters with great care, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

"The trouble is,' she said, 'that few of us have proper training for our duties. Our servants are not trained.'

"Yes,' said the girl, 'they ought to be trained.'

"Assuredly,' assented the woman. 'They should be trained for their duties before they undertake them. Then our husbands are not trained.'

"Some of them are,' the girl declared. 'After marriage,' said the woman, 'but they should be trained before. A man should be properly fitted to assume family responsibilities before he is permitted to assume them. It isn't fair to expect his wife to train him.'

"Some wives seem to like it,' suggested the girl.

"But it would be far better to have them properly trained beforehand,' insisted the woman.

"Yes,' admitted the girl, 'husbands ought to be trained.'

"And the wives ought to be trained.'

"Don't you think every girl is a natural born wife?' asked the girl.

"Not exactly,' replied the woman. 'Still, she comes nearer to that than to being a natural born mother. I believe in preliminary training throughout, especially for motherhood. It would make lots less trouble in the world if mothers were trained to be mothers before they are mothers.'

"Of course,' she said, 'but don't you think it would simplify matters if babies were trained to be babies before they are babies?'

WEST DULUTH

Messrs. Davis and Ferguson, the two boys living on farms a few miles from West Duluth who put in the winter trapping along the St. Louis and Cloquet rivers, completed their season's work a short time ago. In figuring up their profits for the months of November, December, January, February and March the young trappers find that their five months' work in the woods netted them the neat sum of $295 each, or about $60 a month. The check for their last bunch of furs was received from a Chicago house Sunday.

The boys set out on their trapping expedition early last November, taking with them fifty traps. This number was later increased. They say they would have met with much better results had they gone further from home, up into the Big and Little Fork country, but feel satisfied as it is. At first their operations were confined to the banks of the St. Louis river, between West Duluth and Fond du Lac, both sides of the river, later working towards the head waters of the Cloquet and St. Louis rivers. Most of the money was made from mink and muskrats, though several martin were captured.

A GREAT INITIATION.

St. James court, No. 614, C. O. F., held its regular meeting last evening in Gilley's hall. After the routine business of the order had been transacted, State Chief Ranger Martin, who has just returned from the big initiation ceremony at Oelwein, Iowa, gave a short description of the affair. He said that it was one of the grandest and most imposing sights that he ever witnessed. Over 6000 Foresters were present, delegations coming from a number of states. There was a special train from the Twin Cities which carried over 400 members.

At this celebration a class of 700 candidates was initiated into the Catholic Order of Foresters. Plans are under way to have such a ceremony in this state next fall, when the courts of the state of Minnesota will endeavor to beat their Iowa brothers. Mr. Martin says he will never forget the sight that he witnessed last Sunday in the Iowa town.

BURN OLD CARS.

Passengers on West Duluth cars this morning witnessed the unique spectacle, in passing the car barns, of a huge bonfire made from burning street cars. The cars weer four or five old ones which have ben stored in the barns for several years, having long ago outlived their stage of usefulness. They are looked upon as being as good as valueless, and burning is regarded as the easiest method of getting them out of the way, making room for the new batch of big cars that recently arrived.

City of Deadwood Has a Fifteen Thousand Dollar Fire.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Deadwood—Fire Monday night destroyed the large pressed brick plant owned by Thomas Whotaker of this city and Sioux Falls capitalists. Loss $15,000, nearly covered by insurance. The plant will be rebuilt.

Brookings—State's Attorney W. M. Cheever has shown some signs of improvement, but is yet in great danger. If he can withstand the ravages of the disease a few days longer he will probably recover.

Lead—The official canvass of votes cast at the recent municipal election proves that John Gilroy received a majority of 104 over J. W. Freeman for mayor. There was a total of 619.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—While Mayor Duis has not announced any changes in the fire department, he and a committee of the council are engaged in formulating a reorganization ordinance that will be presented at the May meeting. The mayor wants to reorganize the department on a civil service basis, and it is understood that A. H. Runge, for many years chief of the Minneapolis department, is to be made chief of the new department. Mr. Runge has been here several days conferring with the mayor and his committee.

Railroad detectives and officials along the system are engaged in an effort to arrest some of the men who have been engaged for several weeks in robbing passengers on the overland trains, Nos. 1 and 2. Within two weeks several persons have been robbed in this immediate vicinity, but so far no arrests have been made. The men are believed to make headquarters in the Twin Cities and apparently are well organized.

Julius Lou, who lives in Iowa and owns the townsite at Penn, this state, was robbed of $160 while the train stopped at the station here. A young man who came into the coach at Fargo shared the seat with Mr. Lou until this city was reached. The train had hardly stopped when another young man came up and requested that they get up while he fixed the seat. Mr. Lou complied, thinking he was an employe of the Great Northern, and the two men robbed him as he stooped down to get his grips.

The Great Northern passenger station at East Grand Forks has been completed. It repiaces the one burned some months ago, but is several blocks nearer the business portion of the city.

Fargo—It has been decided that J. W. Arctander, of Minneapolis, will deliver the chief address at the dedication of the Bjornson bausta sten in Fargo May 17. He and Bjornson are personal friends and Mr. Arctander was the choice of the local committee for that honor.

The trio of self-confessed burglars, Theodore Rush, Frank Carroll and Roy Norton were before Judge Pollock. Rush seems to have planned the robbing deal while the other boys stood watch. He while the other boys stood watch. He was sent to the state reformatory till he is 21, and the other boys were let off on probation.

District court was convened here and the call of the calendar made. Judge Pollock will hear court cases and adjourn the term till a later date, when the jury will be called.

F. W. Rasmusson won out in his land contest against Mrs. Hollingsworth, of Lamoure county. While Mrs. Hollingsworth was Miss Glover she filed on a claim adjoining that of John Hollingsworth. Their acquaintance led to marriage and they built a house across the section line. Hollingsworth proved up and Rasmusson began a contest against Mrs. Hollingsworth. The local land office decided in his favor, and the appeal to the commissioner was affirmed.

Edmore—Mrs. S. F. Sterrett has been stricken with paralysis, the result of a blood clot forming on the brain. Her power of speech is completely paralyzed and she has not uttered a word since afflicted, and is only able to move her hands slightly.

Lisbon—The boom above the dam broke and the ice went out with a rush, piling up against the railroad bridge, which was in great danger for a few hours. A blast of dynamite relieved the pressure and it is thought all danger is past.

Lakota—Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Johnson, of Enterprise township, have lost five of their six children by diphtheria. The remaining child is very ill. The parents are heartbroken.

Mandan—Alfred Edwards and Elmer Foster were sentenced to the penitentiary for three years for stealing money and a watch from Milo Kendall.

Ice In Streams Unfavorable to Log Driving on Peninsula.

Calumet—Thus far conditions are extremely unfavorable for driving. In Ontonagon county the middle branch of the Ontonagon is the only stream upon which any work is being done. The Diamond Match company put in 13,000,000 feet on this river, and the rear of the drive is down some some five or six miles from the starting point. There is still much ice for several miles up from the mouth, and unless the weather shows a decided change the logs will become blocked a short distance below Rockland. The Baltimore is still frozen soildly. The east branch is opened, but there is not enough water for driving.

Pelhuemer & Eddy have started their season's cut of logs down the Trap Rock river. John Phillips expects to start the drive on the Traverse river this week.

Officials of the Menominee River Boom company are at sea in regard to the time they will be able to open the sorting gaps and start sorting timber. There is much ice in the river and the sorting of logs will not begin until conditions improve.

Mrs. Mary E. Cox, widow of Thomas Cox, who was killed in a saloon in this city last fall by Peter Falotti, an Italian, has begun suit against Mat Quellhow, the proprietor of the saloon, and his bondsmen, Thade Gourd and Charles Mugford, for damages. Cox, who was from Bay City, where he was prominent in politics, left his wife and family destitute.

The annual meeting of the upper peninsula association of the Knights Templar will be held in Calumet on July 6 and 7.

Manistique—At the meteing of the state board of pardons at Lansing this week, a petition asking the parole of John Gonyea, of Manistique, and signed by influential citizens, will be presented. Favorable action is expected, Gonyea was convicted last year of killing an 11-year-old boy.

Ishpeming—Several Republic men who shipped cordwood to Chicago to fill orders sent by an alleged firm, find themselves to have been bunccod. The so-called concern, it develops, was composed of sharpers, who by selling their commodity at cut rates, disposed of it in short order and then disappeared.

Bessemer—James Gulich, a Hungarian, fell down a chute in No. 7 shaft of the Tilden mine and died without regaining consciousness. He left a wife and several small children.

Sault Ste. Marie—A company of Detroit men has taken an option on a portion of the farm of Frank Osborn, six miles from the Soo, and will prospect for gold.

JUSTICE PRITCHARD TO BE A CIRCUIT JUDGE.

Washington, April 27. — President Roosevelt today nominated Justice Peter C. Pritchard, of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, to be United States circuit court judge of the Fourth circuit, in succession to the late Judge Charles H. Simonton. The Fourth circuit includes the states of Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia, and under the law the appointee had to be selected from one of these states. Justice Pritchard, who formerly was a United States senator from North Carolina, has served on the supreme bench of the District of Columbia but a short time. He presided at the trial of Machen, the Groffs and Lorenzs, who recently were convicted of postal frauds.

WHEAT IS FIRMER

Market Sells Up Sharply From Bottom, Then Recedes Some.

Closing Prices Are at an Advance—Flax Gains Cent.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 27.—The wheat market soon after the opening today had a decline but soon after turned stronger and advanced not far from 2 cents above the low point. A considerable portion of the gain was lost toward the close, though the market closed with better prices than yesterday. The cause of the advance was the oversold condition of the market about as much as anything. There were frost reports from Kansas and some effort was made to advance wheat on the weather conditions in the Northwest, more rain being forecasted. The Chicago correspondent of the Modern Miller reported an advance in flour prices and a good demand for flour to go to winter wheat territory.

The Liverpool market closed ½d higher, Antwerp and Berlin were unchanged and Budh Pest ⅝c higher. A Liverpool cable said that it will take constant bull news from America to sustain values.

Primary receipts continue to be much below those of a year ago. The cash situation shows no improvement. Bids received by local exporters from foreign buyers today were on a still lower basis than has been the case recently. On the other hand Manitoba wheat, which has been the only wheat exporters could work, was stronger. Liquidation thus apparently having subsided for the time being at least.

In the Duluth market May wheat advanced ¼c and July the same. In Chicago May was up ⅝c and July ½c. In Minneapolis the gain in May was ½c and in July ⅝-½c, and in New York May was 1⅝c higher and July ½c. In the Duluth market the September option gained ⅝c and in Minneapolis ½c.

Car receipts at Duluth were 5, against 17 last year, and at Minneapolis 58, against 84 a year ago, making a total for the Northwest of 63, against 101 a year ago. Chicago received 17 cars, against 51 a year ago. Winnipeg receipts were 37, against 102 a year ago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 183,525 bus. last year, 317,788 bus. Shipments, 158,046 bus. last year, 246,747 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 169,000 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed higher.

In the Chicago market July corn closed ½c higher. July oats closed 1½-⅝c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 366,500 bus. last year, 366,000 bus. Shipments, 125,200 bus. last year, 542,400 bus. Clearances were 16,000 bus.

Trading in the Duluth market was very light. May wheat opened unchanged at 88⅝c and sold off to 88⅜c in the first ten minutes, it then rallied to 89¼c at 11:35 and fell off again, closing ⅛c up at 89c. The July option opened ⅜c lower at 89c, sold up to 90⅜c and closed at 89⅝c, which was ⅛c higher. September closed ⅜c higher at 90⅝c.

Cash offerings were light and No. 1 northern continued at May price and No. 2 at ⅛c under.

May flax opened unchanged at $1.06½, and sold up to $1.06¾ and closed at $1.06½, which was 1c up from yesterday. Other options all made the same gain.

Oats advanced 1⅛c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Realizing In Wheat Gave Prices a Setback.

Chicago, April 27.—Indifferent cables and warmer weather caused considerable realizing of wheat today, the result being a temporary set-back in prices. Shorts were active buyers on the decline causing a quick recovery. Strength in coarse grains was a supporting influence. July opened unchanged to ⅛@¼c higher at 83¾c to 83¾@84c. After selling off to 82¾@83c, the price rallied to 83½c. Duluth, Minneapolis and Chicago reported receipts of 71 cars, against 135 cars last week and 152 cars a year ago.

The market became stronger as the day advanced, the bulls apparently making capital out of predicted showers in the Northwest which would further delay seeding operations. Reports from Ohio wheat fields were decidedly bullish and brought out numerous buying orders. On the bulge July sold up to 84¾. There was some influential selling late in the day resulting in a reaction, but the market closed strong with July at 83¾c, a net gain of ⅛c for the day.

Active covering by shorts caused strength in corn, the May option showing the greatest gain. Cables were firm and receipts small. There was some selling of distant futures by commission houses, but offerings were well taken after opening a shade to ⅛@¼c higher at 48¾c to 48⅝c. July advanced 48⅝c. Local receipts were 146 cars, with 22 of contract grade.

Purchases of 1,000,000 bushels of July by a prominent commission house forced the price of that delivery up to 49⅛c. Considerable realizing resulted on the advance, July selling off to 48⅝c. The market, however, continued strong and July closed up ⅛c at 48⅝@48¾c.

Oats were strong on a fair commission house demand. Small receipts and strength in the cash situation were the buying incentive. The opening on July was a shade to ¼@⅜c higher, at 30½c to 30¾c. The price steadily advanced to 31¼c. Local receipts were 22 cars.

Under the influence of a moderate demand from packers provisions became firm after an easier opening. Lower prices for hogs at the yards were the depressing feature at the start. The strength in grains was a bull factor. July pork opened 5c lower at $12.25, but soon recovered the initial loss, selling up to $12.37½. Lard opened down 2½c, at $6.82 and sold up to $6.92½. Ribs were off 2½c to 5c at $6.60 to $6.62½; hog advanced to $6.67½.

Close: Wheat, May, 87c; July, 83¾c; old, 84¾c; September, 80c; old, 81¼@¼c. Corn, April, 46⅝c; May, 47⅝c; July, 48⅜@⅝c; September, 48¾c. December, 46c. Oats, May, 33⅜@¼c; July, 31¾c; September, 31⅜c. ### GRAIN GOSSIP.

Minnesota Weekly Crop Report: The early morning temperatures were low all the week, being below 32 degrees at many or all points till the 21st, and a few points on the 22nd. The day temperatures were low till the 23rd, which was a moderately warm day, the temperatures reaching from 60 degrees to 65 degrees at some southern places. The weather was dry till the evening of the 21st, when rain began which continued into the 23rd, and in northern portions into the 23rd. In southern counties the rain was accompanied by thunder and lightning, the first thunderstorm of the season. In northern portions the slowly melting snow keeps the fields wet, and no work has been done during the week. Remains of the snow drifts were still to be seen in shaded places as late as the 23rd. In middle and southern sections, except the southeastern counties, the soil on high rolling lands has dried nicely, and seeding would have gone on rapidly but for the fact that the soil was frozen so hard in the mornings that work was stopped most of the time. The till upon or shortly before that time. The rains in Sunday on the evening of the 21st stopped all work for the week. In extreme southeastern counties the soil continues wet and only a little plowing has been done and small areas of oats seeded; in the central and western parts of the southern section wheat seeding is probably half finished on the high lands, and oat seeding is well advanced, while a little barley and flax have been seeded. Early seeded wheat is not yet up, and there are some who fear that it is rotting in the ground. Reports regarding the condition of winter wheat, clover and rye are still conflicting.

Chicago: One of the largest implement works in the country has received over 100 reports from its agents and writes as follows: "Shortage 100,000,000 bushels of wheat east of Kansas City; not over half crop in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas. Seeding three weeks late in Northwest. No old wheat in farmers' hands east of Mississippi river."

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—Market unchanged to ⅝c higher. It did not hold all the advance of the day but the tone was on the whole a little stronger. Nothing in cables and cash situation anywhere. Strength in market came from weather, which seems probable, we are inclined to think it will be difficult to maintain an advancing market.

Corn—There was quite a sharp advance but best part of it before the close. Buying seemed largely covering of shorts, induced partially by strong market in wheat and oats. Cash situation is moderate with a good shipping business done. Very little is reported to lay on account of the advance in the prices. The indications are that on the weak spots corn will strike a shipping demand. Current prices are supposed to be not very far from an export basis.

Oats—Market was from ⅝c to 2c higher. Principal strength in May and least in September. It was again a day of large covering of shorts. Cash situation is not an urgent factor, although receipts are moderate and demand fair. Some oats are being taken for shipment but local stocks are fairly liberal.

Provisions—Pork is 2½c higher and lard and ribs from 22½c to 27½c higher. The tone of market strong and prices were upwards. The buying was principally for local account, partly covering of shorts and partly accumulation of long stuff. There was less pressure from outside scattered liquidation. Receipts of hogs are in excess of last year and the shipments about the same as a year ago. The buying, we think, is better than the selling.

Chicago: Concensus of opinion among the best traders abroad develops the fact that sentiment leans strongly to the view that all grains have had their break and that esomething else than declines is now in order. There is more bull news than for several days past and there is popular desire for a bull movement.

* * *

Coe Commission Co.: Wheat—The wheat market opened steady to firm. The market sold off quite sharply on selling by St. Louis. There was a good commission house buying at the declines, some of this buying being credited to Armour. The situation in the Northwest is really serious. There will be but very little wheat planted in the Red River valley for three weeks; the whole valley is under water, and north of Grafton the snow has not all disappeared yet. This is an unprecedented condition at this time of the year and is bound to diminish the wheat acreage in North Dakota considerable. Cash wheat is in good demand by millers.

Corn—There has been a good demand for corn by commission houses all morning. May being relatively the stronger option.

Oats—The weekly crop bulletin of the Illnois weather bureau says oats mostly sown. The soil has been cold and germination slow and many early sown fields will require replanting. The oats market opened strong and has continued so under continued buying by commission houses, May oats up 2c and July up 1¼c in fuss from last night's closing. Advise buying July oats. There is 5c a bus profit in buying July oats.

Provisions—There is the same situation in provisions that there has been for a week or more. The packing interests continue buying products. Shipments of meats and lard are better than last year. Advise buying July pork.

Chicago: O. W. Clapp & Co. have numerous crop reports from Indiana, Ohio and Kansas. The following from Troy, Ohio: "I live in the great Miami valley. I rode eighty miles yesterday and counted fifty wheat fields being broken up and failed to see one that could be called fair. When we fail there is no use trying elsewhere. Were the sunshine and showers made to order, we cannot make a crop. It is gone. At least 25 per cent is plowed up and what is left will not make 30 per cent of a crop. You will have to come down to these facts eventually."

B. E. Baker's Chicago grain letter: Wheat—Wheat developed into a strong market after some uncertainty early in the day. There was a slump towards the close on local selling. The government weekly crop bulletin was bullish on the winter wheat condition in the Ohio valley and on the slow progress of seeding in the northern sections of spring wheat belt, but reports improved condition in Kansas and Oklahoma. This, with the feeling that some reaction at least was due after the long decline changed sentiment to moderately bullish. The good export trade yesterday and the domestic sales early in the week were still fresh in traders' minds. Flour demand was better, and prices 10c up. Inquiry comes chiefly from Ohio and Indiana, and from western and Kansas City markets were strong with buying here by the former a morning's feature. Receipts were unusually small, totaling but 180 cars. Sellers at all primary points. The weather was favorable, although temperatures are still a little low. The forecast is for rains in Kansas, clear in the Northwest and warmer everywhere. Export orders were more of a factor, although trade still is large professionally. We think the old and new July keeps the fields wet, and no work has been done during the week. Remains of the snow drifts were still to be seen in shaded places as late as the 23rd. In middle and southern sections, except the southeastern counties, the soil on high rolling lands has dried nicely, and seeding would have gone on rapidly but for the fact that the soil was frozen so hard in the mornings that work was stopped most of the time. # DULLNESS RULED

In Stock Market and Closing Was Without Decisive Tone.

Sentiment Favors the Bull Side on All Weak Spots.

New York, April 27.—Prices of stocks were helped by the strength in the London market this morning and opened generally higher. There was no feature, gains being quite uniform at a small fraction. Trading was light. Locomotive preferred lost a point.

Opening advances were extended, but the movement did not make much progress owing to the free selling of United States Steel preferred. This stock sold nearly a point below yesterday's close and the advance elsewhere were largely reduced. Lackawanna advanced 1½.

The market dragged on a nominal volume of business and was virtually immovable. Brooklyn Union Gas rose 4 and Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred a point. Rock Island preferred lost 1. Bonds were steady at noon.

Speculative interest was largely concentrated in Consolidated Gas which made a rapid rise of 2 points and fell back 1. The dealings in all other stocks barely reached 5000 shares for the hours business. United States Steel preferred recovered about all its losses and a light demand for the coalers developed. Lackawanna rose 4½, Delaware & Hudson 1¼ and Central of Jersey a point. Allis-Chalmers preferred dropped 3.

Brooklyn Union Gas rose 6 in all. Pressed Steel Car 1¼, with a reaction. Anaconda 2⅜ and Copper nearly a point. The general list was unresponsive. The stagnant closing was without decisive tone.

STOCK GOSSIP.

New York to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Unless some radical change shall occur in the general situation which seems hardly probable at this writing, the stock market is not likely to more than moderately extend the short covering rally, although some of the specialties may be sent into prominence to facilitate selling. There is little but manipulation to cause a general advance of substantial proportions, and but little reason exists for a serious decline. For the present the market is entirely professional and of course subject to quick changes, but it looks to us like a sagging traders affair, as a whole, as stated yesterday morning, in which small losses and small profits will be taken by the wise operators.

* * *

S. T. Welch & Co.: Stocks—Sales to noon, 81,000 shares. That is about all there is to say about the market up to this writing. The market continues extremely dull. Holders of stocks are not afraid of their position and are adding to their holdings on all the dips. The market is a waiting one with no new developments. The sentiment favors the bull side on all weak spots. We advise buying Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Atchison and St. aPul for a long pull.

* * *

Dick to B. E. Baker: It is reported that the Western offices of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads will be consolidated, thus effecting a very large saving of expense and increasing incidnetally the net earnings.

Walker Bros to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was steady and inclined to be strong. There was little pressure to sell and this caused some short covering. The high-priced specialties all advanced and the active railroads all showed improvements. In the afternoon there was further buying and prices held the advance. The close was strong with much better feeling and traders inclined to take bull side.

* * *

Randolph to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today has been one of the dullest and most uninteresting which we have seen for some time. The tone has been strong throughout, but the only movements of importance have been in specialties. There was no news of importance to affect trading one way or the other and the professionals are having a hard time to make a living by scalping eighths out of each other.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 27.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 2@5 points on active covering in response to a very bullish set of Liverpool cables. Sentiment here seemed to be bearish, however, and the room element selling on the advance restricted the upward tendency to some extent through following the call bullish advices from New Orleans, where the market leaders were bidding for large blocks of new months, helped to maintain the local market which influenced also by continued covering believed to be for Wall street account ruled generally firm and reached a level about 10 to 13 points net higher. Trading was moderately active with commission houses buyers of late positions, while Philadelphia spot interests seemed to be buying May and July.

Cotton spot closed steady, 10 points up. Middling uplands, 13.85; middling gulf, 14.10; sales, 810 bales. Futures closed steady: April 13.57; May, 13.52; June, 13.52; July, 13.46; August, 13.45; September, 11.94; October, 11.48; November, 11.33; December and January, 11.32.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The action of the copper market still continues to offer encouragement to the bulls and discouragement to the bears. The traders who sold on the last advance did not get their stocks back, and the bulls who bought on the reaction already have a profit. The market advanced more easily than it declines and if it will only develop a little more activity it will offer great opportunities to the day trader. The coppers have shown a real improvement in tone today, even Amalgamated Copper is acting better. We continue to get good reports concerning the condition of the metal market and everything indicates that the copper will soon sell at 14 cents. There appears to be very few copper stocks for sale around present prices.

PRESIDENT INSISTS

That Senate Must Act on the Appointment of Crum.

Congress Desires to Adjourn on Thursday, If Possible.

Washington, April 27.—Legislation which now stands in the way of adjournment tomorrow and the weight these matters will be permitted to have on the program for concluding the session at that time, were taken up today, at a meeting of the Republican steering committee of the senate. The Panama canal was placed above all other measures and it was agreed that some legislation must be had before adjournment. An informal report was received from the senate conferees to the effect that no agreement is in sight. The house amendment to the Kittridge bill places the entire matter of control of the canal zone in the hands of the president to make regulations to govern the strip until the next session of congress, while the Kittridge bill goes extensively into the question of law for the isthmus in a manner that is said to be said to be satisfactory to the administration.

Following the meeting of the steering committee, Senator Lodge on the floor of the senate, practically served notice that there could be no adjournment until some legislation is enacted for the canal zone. Senator Gallinger announced that at the first opportunity he would move for an executive session. He has in charge the nomination of W. D. Crum, to be collector of the port of Charleston, S. C., and will ask for confirmation. The Crum nomination was discussed in the session of the steering committee and it was agreed that if by any chance the conference on the canal bill would delay adjournment, the Crum case will be pressed in the senate.

The conferees on the canal bill have hopes, however, that they will be able to report an agreement tomorrow and that congress will adjourn during the day.

President Roosevelt may call an extraordinary session of the senate if final action on the nomination of Dr. W. D. Crumm to be collector of the port of Charleston, S. C., is not taken at the present session. He has considered, with several leading members of the senate, the advisability of such action and it is known that some of them, at least are in favor of the extraordinary session. Senator Alger, with whom the president talked today, said he was in favor of remaining here until the nomination of Dr. Crum is confirmed. Other Republican senators entertain the same view.

The president feels that both he and the appointee are entitled to definite action on the nomination by the senate. It has been suspended in the air for nearly two years, being postponed from time to time and for various reasons. Crum is serving as collector at Charleston, but is unable because of the failure of the senate to take action of his case, to draw his salary. A definite decision as to the calling of an extraordinary session of the senate probably will be reached by the president before the adjournment of the present session.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, April 27.—The house today passed a bill to regulate the disposal of public lands released and excluded from public forest reserves.

The conference report on the general deficiency bill was adopted unanimously.

The conference report on the sundry civil appropriation bill was adopted; yeas, 183; nays, 129.

The conference report on the postoffice appropriation bill was adopted, 139 to 88.

The conference report on the military academy appropriation bill was adopted, which disposes of the last of the supply bills.

Speaker Cannon ruled that the Cockran resolution for an investigation of the Dalzell charge that Cockran had campaigned for McKinley for hire in 1896 was not a privileged matter. Mr. Williams (Miss.), appealed from the decision of the chair and Mr. Payne moved to lay the appeal on the table. On this the yeas and nays were ordered. By a party vote 160 to 125, the speaker was sustained in his ruling on the Cockran resolution.

IN THE SENATE.

Washington, April 27.—In the senate, the bill authorizing school districts in Oklahoma to borrow money at the rate of 6 per cent was passed. Mr. Platt (Conn.) presented the request of the committee on Cuba to be discharged from the further consideration of the petition of Major E. G. Rathbone, late director of posts of Cuba, for an investigation of his conduct of that office. He said that committee was in doubt as to whether congress had jurisdiction and also if it has jurisdiction, whether relief could be given. The petition was referred to the committee on judiciary.

Confer Informally.

Capt. Charles Trezona, the Ely mine superintendent, and his brother, R. R. Trezona, superintendent of the Fayal mine at Eveleth, and Peter Schaefer, of mine at Ely Miner, had a sort of informal conference in the St. Louis this morning. R. R. Trezona arrived last night and Mr. Schaefer has been here a couple of days, having come down with the Ely delegation which waited on President Cole.

Later in the morning the Trezona brothers called on the Oliver Iron Mining company officers in the Wolvin building, and Mr. Schaefer was not with them. He will leave Duluth this afternoon.

IS NOT PREDICTING.

D. M. Gunn Not Making Claims For Himself.

Daniel M. Gunn, of Grand Rapids, who is a candidate for the office of railroad commissioner, is at the St. Louis. He says the governorship fight has absorbed all the political interest in his district, although he is still in the night for the commissionership. He says it looks for himself all right up in his neighborhood, but the lower part of the state is a section he does not care to make predictions on.

"There are so many men in the field for the place now that it is pretty hard to tell much about it," said he. "I saw in The Herald just a day or two ago that Tom Torson was out for the place. He is the man who introduced the bill in the senate to have the office filled by vote of the people. You cannot tell anything about the situation this early in the proceedings, for almost any kind of a combination is likely to be worked before it comes convention time. So far as the Labor league is concerned as an element to oppose me, I know nothing whatever about it."

J. W. Sargent, a well known railroad conductor, who has been mentioned as a candidate for the same office as Mr. Gunn, was at the hotel at the same time.

About Fifty to Go.

About fifty baseball fans have announced their intention of going to attend the game of ball between the Duluth and Minneapolis teams at Minneapolis Sunday, for which one fare for the round trip has been offered by the railroads. The Great Northern is arranging for a couple of special sleepers for the crowd, and those who want to go are asked to make themselves known to Seecamp's cigar store, Manager Van Praagh or Alfred W. Kuehnow, of the Boston-Duluth Land company, Fifth avenue. It is expected to have 100 people in the party, to go Saturday night and return Sunday night, but it is said that the tickets will be good going Saturday afternoon and returning Monday evening.

LA FOLLETTE

Made a Clean Sweep In Douglas County.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 27.—Governor LaFollette won out in Douglas county yesterday, gaining eighteen votes in the state convention. Speaker Lenroot will be renominated unanimously, as he carried every ward in his district. Assemblyman Andrew will also be sent back to Madison, as he won out easily. On the popular vote Governor La Follette received more than double the vote cast for Banensch.

In Washburn county, the delegates, as far as heard from, are evenly divided between the governor and the opposition, and the result will not be known until the county convention is held.

IVERSON'S POSITION

On the Governorship Fight Is Subject of Discussion.

L. P. Hunt Not Likely to Run For Railroad Commissioner.

St. Paul, April 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Twin City Republicans are discussing the fact that State Auditor S. G. Iverson favors the nomination of Judge Loren W. Collins, of St. Cloud, as against Robert C. Dunn, of Princeton, under whom Mr. Iverson served as deputy state auditor for eight years, and many have vainly speculated as to the reasons for Mr. Iverson's attitude on this question. Mr. Iverson has made no statement on the gubernatorial situation, believing that there is no reason for him to do so, and so far no explanation of his attitude has appeared in the press.

Some Republicans have been free to criticise Mr. Iverson for, as they term it, "going back on his old friend, Bob Dunn." They have stated that Mr. Iverson would never have been elected state auditor if Mr. Dunn had not gone into the northern part of the state and brought down some of the counties for Iverson in 1902. "Bob Dunn made Iverson; he practically made him state auditor," is the statement often heard in St. Paul.

A Republican who is a close friend of Mr. Iverson and who knows better than anyone else other than Mr. Iverson why the state auditor does not feel under obligation to Mr. Dunn, said yesterday:

"The statement that Mr. Dunn practically made Mr. Iverson state auditor is untrue. It is equally untrue that the former state auditor went into the northern part of the state and brought some of the northern counties for Mr Iverson. Dunn did not spend a day nor an hour to promote the candidacy of Iverson, and more than that, Dunn supported J. F. Jacobson, of Madison, for the place, and would have been glad if Mr. Iverson had been defeated.

"Mr. Iverson is under no obligations whatever to Dunn, any more than he is to everyone of his friends and the men who have served in the office with him. Mr. Iverson recognizes the ability and the honesty of Bob Dunn, and he does not lose an opportunity to say a good word for him. Whenever he has been questioned on the former state auditor's record he has not hesitated to say that it is excellent in every respect. But he does not agree with the statements of some of Mr. Dunn's friends that because he worked under Dunn he is obliged to support him for the nomination. Mr. Iverson is trying his best to keep out of the gubernatorial contest, and all he asks is to be let alone."

Reports are being circulated in St. Paul that the C. A. Smith interests of Minneapolis have purchased a large quantity of the stick of the Minneapolis Times, and that paper will soon come out for Judge Collins. The Collins men say they know nothing about the deal, if one has been made. Some time ago the Times was very pronounced for Dunn, but lately it has treated the gubernatorial situation from a more impartial view.

Republicans from the Second congressional district say that one of the reasons why L. P. Hunt, of Mankato, has not come out for railroad and warehouse commissioner, is that his friend, Gen. Gus Widell, who plans some day to be a candidate for secretary of state, does not favor the idea of a man from his own town getting a four-year-term office.

Gen. Widell, several weeks ago, had a strong idea of coming out for secretary of state against Peter E. Hanson, of Litchfield, but finally decided not to make the run. It is generally conceded that the Second district is entitled to a place on the ticket, and the friends of Gen. Widell have held that he is the best man to put forward when the time comes. Their plan, therefore, is to present Mr. Widell as a candidate two years hence, when Mr. Hanson will have had three terms.

Should Mr. Hunt, however, be nominated end elected railroad and warehouse commissioner, it would be at least four years before there would be an opening for another Second district man. Moreover, Mr. Hunt would expect a second term, which would extend the time to eight years.

Senator A. T. Stebbins, of Rochester, who was in St. Paul yesterday, expressed the belief that Mr. Hunt will not get in the race.

"Everything is going on satisfactorily," said Mr. Stebbins. "Of course most of the talk now is on the governorship and it is pretty hard to find how people stand on such positions as railroad and warehouse commissioner, but I am very well satisfied with the outlook so far."

Senator Thomas Torson, of St. James, who was in St. Paul yesterday, said he is considering the question of becoming a candidate for the Republican nomination for railroad and warehouse commissioner.

"Some people say that the law prevents a state senator from being elected to state office during his term as state senator," said Senator Torson. "I am going to look this matter up and if there are no legal difficulties in the way I may be a candidate. The second congressional district, I believe, is entitled to a place on the ticket."

S. A. Laugum, secretary of the last senate, is in St. Paul. He is a strong supporter of Robert C. Dunn, of Princeton, and believes the former state auditor will get a good share of the delegates of the First congressional district. Houston and Winona counties, he believes, will be solid for Dunn.

Senator Samuel Lord, of Kasson, and former Representative W. B. Anderson, of Winona, are in St. Paul.

MISSISSIPPI STILL RISING

Expected Thirty-five Foot Stage Will Be Reached Thursday.

St. Louis, April 27.—Early today the Mississippi river registered 32.2 at the government gauge here and is still rising. It is expected that the predicted stage of 35 feet will be reached by tomorrow.

There was a slight break in the levee north of St. Louis, on the Illinois side, and the flood is threatening Madison, Venice and Granite City. The water has risen to the level of the streets in West Madison and the people are abandoning their homes and seeking safety on the high ground near Edwardsville.

It is estimated that 150 families have been forced to leave their homes in the Missouri river bottoms and that 10,000 acres of farm land are inundated.

SWAMP LAND DECISIONS

Land Commissioner Rules Against Five Applicants to Contest.

Five swamp land decisions were received at the local land office from the general office at Washington today. Application to contest the state's right to the land as swamp is rejected in every case. The cases are as follows:

William J. Wallace against the state, involving portion of section 7, township 55-10; Patrick Culligan against state, section 25, 57-8; William A. Eaton against the state, sections 14 and 15, 69-23; W. C. Robinson against the state, section 22, 65-13; George A. Gamble against state, section 28, 62-25.

The last case has attracted more than the usual interest because of features which are out of the ordinary. It was brought before the department of the interior upon the appeal of George H. Gamole from the general land office decision of Jan. 4, 1904, reversing the decision of the local office upon field notes of survey that the land involved is of the character contemplated by the swamp land grant.

Hearing on the contest was had Sept. 25, 1900, prior to the suspension of the swamp land cases in this state by the departmental order of Jan. 14, 1902, except that one of the witnesses in the case had not signed the testimony, and for this reason the local office had not rendered a decision. This was the status of the case March 15, 1903, the date of the decision of the department wherein it was directed that all existing contests or controversies in which there was no claim of actual and bona fide homestead or preemption settlement, would be disposed of under the original plan of following the field notes of survey, there being nothing in such contests which would equitably entitle the claimants adverse to the state to have the contest disposed of under the rule.

But by paragraph five, of the same decision, it is provided that "no contest or controversy which has heretofore been carried to a hearing and decision will be in any manner disturbed or affected by these directions."

A portion of the departmental decision reads as follows: "It is argued with sure force that where a contestant has instituted a proceeding under the regulations then in force, and under such regulations done all that was required of him to do to establish his claim, it is inequitable and unjust to change these regulations to his hurt and to deny him the fruits of his labor. If facts of this case sustain the assumption upon which this argument is predicted, the department would give it most careful consideration, but it appears from the records and from the facts hereinbefore stated that at the time the regulations governing the swamp land rights of the state of Minnesota were changed the contestant in this case had not done all that was required under the law to establish his claim."

ADDRESSED BY WOODRUFF

Philadelphian Reads Paper Before National Municipal League.

Chicago, April 27.—The tenth annual meeting of the National Municipal league began in this city today with delegates present from every large city in the United States. President Charles J. Bonaparte, of Baltimore, called the assembly to order. Addresses of welcome were responded to by Vice President Charles Richardson, of Philadelphia. His address was followed by Clinton Rogers Woodruff, of Philadelphia, who spoke on "A Year's Disclosure and Development." He said:

Investigations, indictments, trials, convictions for municipal shortcomings and dishonesty have been the order of the day throughout the whole country during the past year to an unprecedented extent and, from one view to an alarming extent. But in considering the development of a year's municipal activity, we must not dwell so long on the undoubted evils that we form an erroneously exaggerated view of their importance and significance.

"As a matter of fact it is better to unearth scandal and punish thieves than to allow them to pursue their work unmolested in the dark, while the people hug the delusion that they have honest public servants.

"The New York election of 1903 is quite generally regarded as a setback to the cause of reform. Every friend of the cause of good municipal government was sincerely and earnestly anxious for Mayor Low's re-election. As to the progress of reform, however, it seems to be unquestionable. The administration which has been in control since Jan. 1, has thus far given to New York the best partisan government that it ever has experienced and it is manifest that the enlightened mayoralty of Seth Low has created a public demand that must hereafter be reckoned with. Mayor McClellan gives every evidence of a sincere desire to administer the city's affairs conscientiously.

Philadelphia has a mayor in John Weaver, who confers with those who for years have been working for the city's welfare. This is a new experience. Possibly other cities may not consider this an advance, but it is a considerable one on Philadelphia, where this same class of men has been accustomed to having its rights of free petition insolently disregarded.

"In the matter of municipal civil service reform the year has been one of activity rather than one of completed results. While there are many difficulties and dangers in the path of our municipalities to a higher life it cannot be denied that there is a distinctive trend toward better things all the time, and all along the line. There is an immense amount of work yet to be done and members of the National Municipal league need not sigh for other problems to solve. Nevertheless a calm review of the disclosures and developments of the past year justifies the conclusion that there has been a steady and substantial progress toward better conditions.

DECLINES BEQUEST.

Missionary Society Evidently Objects to Its Terms.

Milwaukee, April 27.—A Journal special from Kenosha, Wis., says the trustees of the missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church have refused to accept the bequest of the late Willis W. Cooper under the terms of whose will the church would probably have received in the neighborhood of $50,000. There was a provision in the will that they should make an allowance for the wife and daughter of Cooper and it is thought that this is the reason for the declining.

Lawrence university received a bequest almost as large as that of the Methodist Episcopal church. Doubt is now expressed among lawyers as to whom the church portion will revert. Cooper lost his life in the Iroquois theater disaster.

CARROLL LIVINGSTON DEAD.

New York, April 27.—Carroll Livingston, grandson of General Harry Livingston and "Lady Mary" Livingston, and a collateral descendant of the chancellor who administered the oath of office to President George Washington, is dead at his home here. He was 71 years old. News of the desecration of his ancestors' tomb at Hudson, N. Y., may have hastened his death. Mr. Livingston retired from the banking business many years ago and devoted much time to amateur sports. He won many prizes in live bird shooting tournaments in France and the United States.

RUSSIAN TORPEDO BOATS SINK A BIG JAPANESE TRANSPORT WITH NEARLY ALL ON BOARD

Those Who Would Surrender Were Taken Off as Prisoners.

Russian Submarine Said to Have Sunk Another Transport.

Russians Have No Further Information From the Yalu.

St. Petersburg, April 28.—Russian torpedo boats belonging to the Vladivostok squadron sank a Japanese military transport, the Kin Shiu Maru, of 4000 tons, during the night of April 26, with all on board, with the exception of seventeen officers, twenty soldiers, sixty-five of the crew and eighty-five coolie carriers. The others, who refused to surrender, were sent to the bottom with the ship.

The official report of Rear Admiral Yeshen to the emperor is as follows:

"During the night of April 26 two Russian torpedo boats met at sea the Japanese military transport Kin Shiu Maru, of 4000 tons, loaded with military stores and about 500 tons of coal. The transport was armed with four Hotchkiss guns of 47 millimetres. The Russians captured on board seventeen officers, twenty soldiers, eighty-five military carriers or coolies, and sixty-five of the crew, who surrendered. The remainder of the men, who were to form a landing party, and who were left without officers, obstinately refused to surrender or go on board a Russian cruiser. Furthermore, they offered armed resistance to the Russians. In the end they were sent to the bottom with the transport."

The number of men drowned is not given.

Admiral Yeshen also reports that, besides the sinking of the Japanese steamer Goyo Maru, at Won-San (Gensan), April 25, the Russians sank at sea the same evening the Japanese steamer Nakamura Maru, of 220 tons, whose crew were saved.

Paris, April 28.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Journal reports that a Russian submarine boat has sunk a Japanese transport which was convoying 600 men to Korea, and that all the troops were lost.

St. Petersburg, April 28.—No official dispatches were given out this morning. The Associated Press is informed that no further news has been received here from Won San, Korea, or from the Yalu river. Communication with these places is necessarily slow.

FORESTALL JAPS.

Russians In Lines They Propose to Occupy.

Chicago, April 28.—A special to the Daily News from Newchang says: If official Russian advices from Mukden can be relied upon, Gen. Kuropatkin's deployment is so far advanced that it covers the very lines the Japanese purpose to occupy. Should the Japanese succeed in driving the Russians north, the Muscovite line of defense will extend from Newchang to Liao Yang and from Liao Yang to the Yalu river. The Russian general professes confidence that the Japanese can make no headway by frontal attacks, while the Russians can cope with the widest flanking operations the Mikado's men are likely to undertake.

When these operations begin, say the Muscovites, Kuropatkin's counter-strokes will bring down the Japanese scheme of defense like a house of cards. The continued delay on the part of the enemy is a great surprise to the Russians.

RUSSIAN PRESS AROUSED

Over the Current Talk of Foreign Mediation.

St. Petersburg, April 28.—The Russian press is aroused over the talk of mediation and is inclined to attribute the responsibility for the proposal to the Anglo-French agreement, the result being the agreement does not obtain favor.

The Novoe Vreyma declares the Anglo-French understanding has rendered poor service to Russia in promoting the idea of mediation, and adds:

"It is idle to expect an Anglo-Russian understanding as a result of the Anglo-French entente. It will take a long time for Great Britain to reach Russia's confidence."

The Port Arthur correspondent of the Russky Invalid writes: "The Japanese have invented a new combustible, which is inextinguishable. They tried to burn the battleship Retvizan by setting adrift rafts loaded with this burning material. The Retvizan sank them, but the combustible continued to burn under water.

"A Japanese 12-inch shell exploded in the yard of Gen. Stoessel's house, outside Port Arthur. It broke a rooster's leg."

JAPANESE REPULSED

Liao Yang, April 28.—The Japanese troops which crossed the Yalu north of Euitjiou (Tchangdjiou?) charged, during the night on April 26-27 the Russian position near Lizavena, a village on the Manchurian bank of the Yalu. They were repulsed, but their loss is not known.

Two gunboats steamed up the river to the support of the Japanese, when a Russian field battery at Amisan opened upon them, resulting in a duel which lasted for twenty minutes. The Russian fire was too hot and the gunboats were forced to turn and steam out of range.

The Japanese were facilitated in crossing by their occupation of the island of Samalinda.

SEVERAL ENGAGEMENTS.

Tokio, April 28.—The Japanese gunboat Maya, escorting a fleet of torpedo boats, entered the mouth of the Yalu river on Monday and went toward Wiju. En route it fought a series of small engagements with the Russian corps protecting the right bank of the river. These encounters transpired frequently throughout Monday and Tuesday. Admiral Hosoya, commanding the third squadron, in reporting the operations, says:

"Our detachment reached the Yalu river Monday and while going up stream the enemy's field guns opened agaistn us without effect. We discovered a force of the enemy on an island in mid-stream and when we fired on them, they fled. On Tuesday the enemy's cavalry, 100 strong, attacked our launch. Our torpedo boat No. 69 replied and the enemy fled into the mountains. From Antsu Shan we replied to he enemy's guns and silenced them after half an hour. There were no casualties on our side."

STRONG PLEA FOR HONEST SETTLERS

J. Adam Bede Addresses President on the Swamp Land Order.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Bede today received a letter from the secretary of the interior transmitting a copy of the petition received by him from residents of Minnesota asking that swamp land circular K, promulgated April 4, 1903, be suspended. In answer to the petitioners the representative has addressed a letter direct to President Roosevelt, setting forth his position on the proposition.

"The circular provides," Mr. Bede states, "that all contests or controversies hereafter begun respecting the swampy or non-swampy character of lands in Minnesota, whether heretofore or hereafter surveyed, must be determined by the field notes of the surveyor.

"This works injustice to homesteaders. These settlers took up homesteads under the law of congress and made improvements on what are in fact dry and tillable lands, but the field notes of the surveys show these lands to be in swamps. If this order is enforced these homesteaders must lose their lands with the improvements they have made thereon. Can the ruling of the department take from a citizen his rights under an act of congress?

"The ruling makes field notes of future as well as past surveys conclusive evidence of the character of the lands. To decide in advance that whatever field notes shall be made by any surveyor, regardless of blunders, malice or caprice, must be conclusive, even though he has traversed the section lines, and has never fully seen the lands, and that all living human testimony must be excluded though a cloud of witnesses appear, is to do violence to every sense of justice and to rob the citizen of his fundamental right to the testimony of his neighbors and the judgment of his peers. By an act of congress citizens are invited to settle on surveyed lands and it is the practice of the government not to make surveys until petitioned by a considerable number of settlers to do so. But under this order these settlers have no standing at the land office and must trek again if the field notes say so.

"As all desirable surveyed lands are immediately taken, this order is practically a repeal of the homestead law in Minnesota, for settlers will not go in and make improvements if field notes to be made afterwards and made without reference to ascertaining the character of the lands, can oust them from their claims. I trust it may not be invidious to suggest that these settlers, braving all the hardships of frontier life, are the kind of citizens that make and save the country and that, however humble they may be, they have rights which our government should respect. Some have come from Norway, Sweden, Finland, Germany and other countries to find homes among us. But it was this same class of settlers, who, coming to this country and settling in the North and West half a century ago, made it possible to preserve the Union for the sons of the revolution were divided and the prairie schooner saved the day.

"I ask for them not even the benefit of a doubt, for no one doubts their rights. I ask only that the government keep faith with these people under an act of congress and that the department modify its order to the end that such law be observed."

THE SECOND SESSION OF FIFTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS IS DECLARED ADJOURNED

Brought to Close at 2 O'Clock By Joint Order.

Nearly All Measures of Importance Were Passed.

Public Manifested But Little Interest In Closing.

SPEAKER CANNON, Who Declared the House of Representatives Adjourned.

PRESIDENT PRO-TEM FRYE, Who Declared the Senate Adjourned.

Washington, April 28.—The second session of the Fifty-eighth congress was declared adjourned at 2 o'clock by President Pro Tem Frye in the senate and Speaker Cannon in the house.

Washington, April 28.—President Roosevelt arrived at the capitol today at 11:25 a. m., to attend to his official duties incident to the adjournment of congress. Nearly all the members of his cabinet had preceded him, and were waiting in the president's room. He was accompanied by Mr. Loeb, his secretary, and the whole executive force of the White House. A number of bills passed last night and today, received his signature.

At 11:25 the president affixed his signature to the last of the general supply measures, the postoffice appropriation bill. Prior to that time he had signed the sundry civil, the general deficiency and the military academy bills, in addition to scores of measures of minor importance.

The president was in almost constant consultation with senators and representatives concerning measures presented to him for signature. Bills relating to the various departments were referred strictly to members of the cabinet, who were present, as usual, and they passed upon them before they were signed by the president.

At 12:45 p. m. the joint committee of the two branches of congress, consisting of Senators Hale and Cockrell and Representatives Payne, Hemenway and Williams, appointed to notify the president that the congress was ready to adjourn, called upon President Roosevelt in his room at the capitol. The president informed the committee that he had no further communication to make to the congress. The committee remained with the president less than five minutes.

The last of the important bills to receive the signature of the president were the river and harbor and Panama canal measures. All of the surveys which the senate provided for in the river and harbor bill were stricken out in conference. In one of them the president had a personal interest, as it was a survey near the president's home in Oyster Bay. When he noted the fact that among the other surveys it had been eliminated, he signed the bill and remarked laughingly that it was pretty evident that he had no influence with the present administration.

THE SENATE.

Washington, April 28.—The senate began business promptly at 10:30 today in continuation of Wednesday's legislative session, and immediately afterwards agreed to the conference report on the emergency river and harbor bill.

The Philippines bond bill, at the instance of Mr. Lodge, was taken up and read at length, the house measure being substituted for the senate measure.

Mr. Lodge said he would not attempt to press the bill at this session of congress, as he was aware that there would be opposition to certain features of it. He also said that he was anxious to guard against the admission of Chinese immigrants into the Philippines, and the purpose of section 6 was not to change the United States immigration laws in the Philippines, but merely to shift their administration to the Philippine authorities.

Mr. Allison, chairman of the committee on appropriations, submitted a series of tables showing an increase of $28,000,000 over the appropriations for last season.

He gave the principal items of increase as follows:

For the navy, $16,000,000; on account of the postal service, including rural free delivery, $8,000,000. He also stated that there is an increase of $8,822,000 in the permanent annual appropriations, the chief item being $5,000,000 for the bank note redemption fund and the next most important item being $2,250,000 for the irrigation reclamation fund.

Mr. Allison also spoke of the increase in the deficiency appropriations, the principal statement in that connection being the loan of $4,600,000 made to the St. Louis exposition. Replying to an inquiry from Mr. Aldrich, he said that outside of the loan to the exposition, the cost of that institution to the national treasury, including the cost of the government exhibit, is about $6,500,000.

Mr. Allison said the appropriations were in the main for the conduct of the government, and he expressed the opinion that they would not be criticised. He also referred to obligations assumed, and said those of this year are less than for many years previous.

Mr. Kittredge presented the conference report on the Panama canal bill, and it was agreed to without comment.

The house resolution fixing 2 p. m. today as the hour for the final adjournment of the session was presented and was adopted without being reported to a committee. Resuming, Mr. Allison said the obligations aside from appropriations incurred at the present session amount to $24,000,000.

Mr. Culberson presented a review of appropriations for the past twelve years, covering the last administration of Mr. Cleveland and the McKinley and Roosevelt administrations. He said the total expenditures under the Roosevelt administration had been $2,640,000,000 or $211,000,000 greater than in the four years of the Cleveland administration. These increases he subdivided as follows:

Civil administration, $160,000,000; naval, $231,000,000; military, $284,000,000; he also said that for 1905 the total appropriation on account of the military, including pensions, would be $387,000,000, and said that excluding the expenses of the Boer war, the military expenditures of the United States for 1903 were $32,000,000 more than those of Great Britain for that year, $131,000,000 greater than those of Germany and $129,000,000 in excess of those of France.

Replying to Mr. Allison, Mr. Gorman placed the total appropriations of this session at $781,000,000 and the obligations incurred at over $24,000,000 or more than $800,000,00 all told, not including the appropriation for the Panama canal.

He said the figures were amazing and predicted that it would be impossible to continue expenditures at this rate without increasing taxes. He attributes the rapid increase to the ambition of the president to make the United States "a great world power" and said that we had reaped no harvest except the loss of life and demoralization in every branch of the governmental service.

THE HOUSE.

Washington, April 28.—The house resumed its session at 10:30 o'clock, it still being the legislative day of Tuesday. Although it was admittedly the last day of the second session of the Fifty-eighth congress, the usual crowds

FORMER SPEAKER HENDERSON IS DISGUSTED WITH NEW YORK

DAVID B. HENDERSON.

New York, April 28.—Regarding reports from Dubuque to the effect that he will return to Iowa and reside there permanently, Gen. David B. Henderson, formerly speaker of the house of representatives, admits that he will never spend another winter in New York. The ex-speaker has been practicing law since retiring from politics, and is now attorney for several large corporations, but he declares the streets are too crowded and the sidewalks too slippery in winter for a person with only one leg to get about without risking his life.

"As for leaving New York entirely I have no definite plans," he said. "I wish to go where I please, and there is no reason why I should not. My family is scattered from the East to California. I can go South in the winter if I wish, or to California. One thing is certain, and I said it three years ago, that I shall never give up my Iowa residence.

THE DANGER FROM FLOOD ABOUT OVER

Breaking of Levee on Mississippi Gives Waters Chance to Spread.

St. Louis, April 28.—The local forecaster of the United States weather bureau announces today that from indications the rise of the Mississippi river at St. Louis would not exceed a stage of 34 feet. The river has reached a stage of 33.4 and is rising slowly.

The conditions on the Illinois side above East St. Louis are considered favorable, the break in the levee above Venice having spread the water over a large area and removed the danger of the flood forcing the embankments protecting valuable property in that vicinity. The area inundated consists of farm lands, the inhabitants having left their homes when the danger of a flood was first reported.

Below East St. Louis there is a break in the Conlogue road embankment, and the little town of Rush City is entirely inundated. The residents were forced to desert their homes, the water in places having reached a depth of six feet.

The Mobile & Ohio railroad embankment, south of the Conlogue road, has been pronounced unsafe, and the trains over that system are entering East St. Louis over the tracks of other roads.

TERMS OF THE DISTRIBUTION OF THE FAIR ESTATE MILLIONS

New York, April 28.—It has just been learned that the terms of final settlement between the Fair estate and the heirs of Mrs. Charles L. Fair will entail a total payment to the Nelsons, of New Jersey, representing Mrs. Fair's family, of nearly $775,000, exclusive of personal property estimated to be worth $50,000 or $60,000.

It is understood, says the American, that the Nelsons have accepted $250,000 in cash as a compromise for their claims, and that the battle for the Fair millions is ended. Besides this sum, they will eventually receive approximately $100,000 additional. As they received $425,000 in September, 1902, their total inheritance amounts to nearly $775,000. This final settlement is in accordance with an iron-bound agreement which the Nelsons have signed, not to offer any further obstacle to a complete and final settlement.

According to the same authority the James G. Fair millions will be distributed together with the Charles Fair estate in San Francisco within two weeks. Mrs. Oelrichs will leave for San Francisco this week to join her sister, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., who with her husband already has proceeded to the Pacific coast.

By the terms of the settlement, it is said, Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Oelrichs will receive about $2,000,000 each from the estate of their brother. They will at the same time receive some $8,000,000 as the portion of the James G. Fair estate which would have gone to their brother Charles, who was killed with his wife while automobiling in France.

HOUSTON CONFESSES THAT HE LIED

Chicago, April 28.—Louis Houston today confessed to the police that he had told his wife he had committed a murder in Ligget, Ohio, and that a man was now serving a life sentence in the Ohio prison for the crime. Houston denies that the story is true, and says he told it to frighten his wife so that she would obey him. He said that his wife had taken the opportunity to get revenge because he had caused her arrest on a charge of bigamy. The former Mrs. Houston is now Mrs. Frank Walcott, and she is under arrest with her second husband. They have been married less than a month. Mrs. Walcott denied that she was ever legally married to Houston, and says that he deceived her by having a friend perform a mock marriage ceremony.

CRUISER CALIFORNIA LAUNCHED AT 'FRISCO

Handsome Modern Warship Leaves the Ways Most Successfully.

San Francisco, April 28.—The armored cruiser California was launched today at the shipyards of the Union Iron works, in this city.

The electric button which started the vessel on her way to the water was touched by Mrs. Walter S. Martin, daughter of Henry T. Scott, president of the Union Iron works, and the cruiser was christened "California" by Miss Florence May Pardee, daughter of Governor Pardee, of the state of California. The launching took place under the auspices of the Native Sons of the Golden West, whose grand parlor is now in annual session at Vallejo.

Governor Pardee and staff, E. E. Schmitz, mayor of San Francisco; Maj. Gen. MacArthur, U. S. A., and staff. Representatives of the navy from the Mare island navy yard, and officers of the state militia, reviewed the launching from the United States tug Slocum, while four large ferry steamers carried nearly 5000 members of the Native Sons order.

The cruiser California is supposed to embody the latest and best in vessels of her class. There are to be four vessels like her, but at present the nearest approach to her on any waters is the model British cruiser, Drake. The construction of the California was authorized by congress March 3, 1899, and the contract for her construction was let about a year later. She will cost, completed, $5,000,000, her hull and machinery costing $3,800,000 of that sum, and her equipment and armament the remainder. Her dimensions are:

Length on load water line, 503 feet; extreme breadth, 69½ feet; mean draught, 24 feet, and displacement, 13,440 tons. She will have twin screws and triple expansion engines of 23,000 horse power, capable of developing a maximum speed of 22 knots.

The California carries out the American ideal of a fighting ship. Her main battery is composed of four 8-inch rifles, placed in two armored turrets, one forward and one aft; fourteen 6-inch and eighteen 3-inch rapid fire guns. The secondary battery consists of twelve 3-pounder semi-automatic guns; four 1-pounder automatic, four 1-pounder rapid fire Hotchkiss guns, two 30-centimetre Gatlings; six 30-centimetre automatic Colts, together with two 8-inch field pieces, to be used by landing parties. The California will have a belt of steel armor 7½ inches wide on the water line, and varying in thickness from 3⅛ inches to 6 inches, as well as the 5-inch casement about the belt of armor for 232 feet of the vessel's length. The end of this side armor will be joined by traverse armor, four inches thick, thus forming a steel enclosure for ten of the 6-inch guns. The other four 6-inch guns are separately protected by 5-inch armor at each corner of the superstructure. The 8-inch guns are protected by armor six inches thick. The steel protected deck is six inches thick on the slope.

NO TRACE OF TOLL EXPEDITION

St. Petersburg, April 28.—Engineer Brousneff, who was sent out in the spring of 1903, by the imperial academy of science in company with Lieut. Kolchak and a number of experienced Yakuts and coast people, towards New Siberia and Bennet island, to search for the Polar expedition headed by Baron Toll, has returned here. Baron Toll has not been heard from since he and his companions left the yacht Zaria, May 23, 1902, in company with two Yakuts and started for Bennet island. The Brousneff expedition visited Bennet island after Lieut. Kolchak had searched Kotelnyi island, New Siberia, and the Thaddeus islands. No trace of the Toll expedition was found. Brousneff believes the members of the party died of cold and starvation. He says Baron Toll killed only six reindeer on Bennet island and adds that the baron probably encountered open water on his ice journey south to New Siberia and there perished.

Lieut. Kolchak, who is a naval officer, received orders at Irkutsk to proceed to the scene of the war in the far East.

SENATOR BURNHAM TO SPEAK AT FAIR OPENING.

St. Louis, April 28.—United States Senator Henry E. Burnham, of New Hampshire, chairman of the senate committee to the fair, will deliver the address on behalf of that delegation at the opening ceremonies of the World's fair April 30. Albino R. Nuncio, commissioner general from Mexico, has been invited to speak on behalf of the foreign commissioners to the World's fair. Mexico was the first country to accept the invitation to participate in the exposition.

THE RISING STAR

Of Folk as Presidential Candidate Appears at Washington.

Gorman Using It as Means of Furthering His Interests.

New York, April 28.—The Press' Washington correspondent telegraphs: One-half the Democratic members of congress here from the South and West are talking of Joseph W. Folk for the presidency. The projection of his name into the national campaign by Bourke Cochran in the debate Saturday brought out a storm of cheers, and now he is the most widely discussed man in Washington. The point is chiefly significant as showing that the Democrats who have been shouting for Parker most loudly were with him only that a common cause might be made against Hearst, but now that it is recognized all further danger from the Hearst campaign is over the tide is rapidly receding from Parker. The mention of Folk has caught the men from the Southwest, and the Missouri machine, which does not want him in the office of governor, may be glad to join in the movement to shift the famous prosecutor from state to national politics.

From the talk about Folk it is easy to see that the fighting Democrats in congress do not want Judge Parker and his Belmont-Hill annex. The men who two weeks ago were glad to use Parker's name in order to carry caususes in Texas, Tennessee and Louisiana are now talking Gorman or Folk as men most likely to be seriously considered in the national convention. The old stagers do not regard the mention of Folk as a proposition to be taken seriously, although they admit that since the mention of his name a wave of enthusiasm has set in for him here. These old politicians will help it along, however, in order to keep the situation as muddled as possible, so that at the proper time a combination can be made in St. Louis which will satisfy the conservative elements in the party and not bring on the antagonism of William J. Bryan.

One of the oldest of the Southern senators, in discussing Folk, said that Bourke Cockranes advocacy of the Missouri prosecutor would have the effect of preventing Judge Parker from obtaining committed delegates in the South and Southwest, and thus would enable Gorman to complete the machinery which he is now handling through friends in several states, and which machinery, it is believed, is being shaped to bring about the nomination of the Maryland senator. Even if his birth in Tennessee were not against Folk there is no doubt that his age would be a serious obstacle against his consideration in the national convention. He will not be 35 years old until Oct. 28 of this year, and the so-called conservative interests in the Democratic party, as represented by certain senators here, say that a more seasoned man must be nominated against President Roosevelt.

"AS A SPRING TONIC PE-RU-NA GETS THE SYSTEM IN GOOD SHAPE."

John W. Glenister, the Champion Swimmer of America, After Using Pe-ru-na for a Spring Tonic Recommends It to Athletes.

Pe-ru-na for Spring Catarrh!

It Renovates, Regulates and Restores a System Depleted by Catarrh.

ITS CURES ARE PERMANENT.

"I Advise All Athletes Who Are About to Go in Training to Try a Bottle of Pe-ru-na."

John W. Glenister, of Providence, R. I., is champion long distance swimmer of America. Mr. Glenister is a well-known long distance swimmer, having performed some notable feats in this country and England. Mr. Glenister has used Peruna as a tonic and gives his opinion of it in the following letter:

New York.

The Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen:— "This spring for the first time I have taken two bottles of Peruna, and, as it has done me a great deal of good, I feel as if I ought to say a good word for its worth. During the springtime for the last few years, I have taken several kinds of spring tonics, and have never received any benefit whatever. This year through the advice of a friend I tried Peruna and it has given satisfaction. I advise all athletes who are about to go in training to try a bottle, for it certainly gets the system in good shape." Yours truly,

JOHN W. GLENISTER.

A tonic is a medicine that gives tone to some part of the system. There are different kinds of tonics, but the tonic most needed in this country, where catarrh is so prevalent, is a tonic that operates on the mucous membranes.

Peruna has no rivals, no substitutes. There is but one scientific, systemic catarrh remedy, and that is Peruna.

PRESIDENT ATHLETIC CLUB SAYS:

"I Thank Pe-ru-na for the Magnificent Health I Enjoy."

Herbert Lundberg, 235 East 123rd street, New York City, President Harlem Athletic Club, writes:

"It will probably interest you to know that I thank Peruna for the magnificent health I enjoy. If I am ever under the weather, get over-worked or suffer from a cold, the use of Peruna for a day or two quickly restores me. Several members of our athletic club have had the most gratifying results through its use, especially so during the late epidemic of la grippe. Several of them were completely cured and restored to perfect health."—Herbert Lundberg.

PROMINENT ATHLETE GIVES A GLOWING TRIBUTE TO PE-RU-NA.

PROFESSOR JOHN W. GLENISTER.
Many Well-Known Athletes Use Pe-ru-na as a Tonic, Among Which Are College Men and Professional Athletes.

The muscles depend upon the nerve centers for their strength. The nerve centers become exhausted and weak. With weak nerve centers, the muscles become flabby and no amount of training can develop them. This it is that strong muscles depend upon healthy nerve centers. Healthy nerve centers depend upon good digestion. Good digestion depends upon clean mucous membranes, free from catarrh.

No man troubled with internal catarrh can ever become an athlete.

Peruna is not a flashy, quick acting stimulus. It is a slow, sure, natural invigorator. A course of Peruna is as sure to bring a renewal of vital powers as the spring time is to bring buds and blossoms.

Catarrh destroys the appetite, weakens the digestive powers, depletes the nerve centers and the whole human system sympathizes. Complete physical demoralization follows. Life becomes a burden and a bore.

Athletes use Peruna, not as a temporary stimulus to tide them over some ordeal or sudden emergency, but as a lasting invigoration. It is a tonic that reaches the cause of all weakness, the organs of nutrition.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Town of Mount Vernon Narrowly Escapes Destruction.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Mitchell—The town of Mount Vernon had a narrow escape from being destroyed by fire Wednesday. A warehouse first caught fire and was burned to the ground. The flames spread to four large elevators, and all were burned. Embers were carried to the business district and dwelling houses, and the Mitchell fire department was called upon for assistance. About 200 citizens responded on a special train furnished by the Milwaukee railway, and through their efforts many buildings were saved. In two of the elevators there were large quantities of grain, and the loss will probably reach $50,000, partially covered by insurance.

At the April term of the circuit court two criminal cases against Fred L. Stevens, the cashier of the defunct Plankinton bank, were dismissed by action of the attorneys for Aurora county, inasmuch as Stevens was found innocent of the first indictment last November. He was found guilty on the indictment of having accepted deposits in the bank when he knew it to be insolvent, but on carrying the case to the supreme court was granted a new trial. He was sentenced to four and a half years in the penitentiary at the first trial.

Sturgis—The 2-year-old daughter of James Harrington, of Elk Creek, who strayed from home last week and was thought to have been kidnaped, was found dead near the roadside in a mud hole into which she had fallen.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Mayville—Mrs. Moorish and her three daughters, Carrie, Violet and Lettie, had a narrow escape from death by asphyxiation from gas that escaped from their coal stove. They managed to get out into an upper hallway, where they all fell unconscious. Miss Hankey, a city school teacher, into whose rooms the gas did not come, found the unconscious women, and, with the help of the neighbors, brought them back to consciousness. No serious results will follow. A lower door on the stove opened along towards morning and let the gas out.

The Goose river is higher than it has been for years, being now about bank full. It is not doing any damage to speak of. The rise for the past two days, caused by the melting of the snow and the rain, has been very rapid. Now the stage of water seems to be stationary. It is just short of the electric light station floor.

Fargo—F. G. Roberts, an actor with the "Royal Slave" company, which has been making the small towns in the state, died here. He was brought to Fargo last week very ill. The remains were sent to Duluth.

The Western Supply company, of St. Paul, will establish a branch house here to deal in steam fitting and plumbing supplies. The officers have secured a site and will erect a new building. The Crane-Ordway people of Minneapolis decided some time ago to locate a branch here.

Grand Forks—George Hoover, aged 10, shot and killed his sister Margery, aged 6, at the farm of their father, John Hoover, ten miles south of Michigan City. The accident occurred while the boy was shooting gophers.

Milnor—Lars Hagen was severely burned by using gasoline by mistake while kindling a fire. Blythe's restaurant narrowly escaped destruction.

Ball Playing on Streets.

To the Editor of The Herald

I wish to enter a protest against the indiscriminate playing of ball on the public streets and avenues without regard to the safety of pedestrians. I am a resident on Fifth street, and several times recently have narrowly escaped being hit by balls that would have hurt me more or less. Last evening I was walking along Fifth street and managed to dodge one of these flying missiles just in time. Children walking along the streets and avenues are in constant danger from these baseball players, who show little or no regard for them. I am not familiar with the ordinances of the city, but think that if there is nothing in them that will enable the police to stop this practice, the city authorities should do something that will permit them to control it. An ordinance should not be framed, however, if it is not to be enforced. As a rule ,the statute books are burdened with ordinances that are not enforced and only serve as scarecrows. This creates a tendency to disregard law and is a bad thing. I believe that we who pay taxes should be entitled to walk on the sidewalks in peace and safety, and that those who are elected to be our rulers and servants should see to it that we are permitted to do so.

MANY ESKIMOS ARE KILLED BY MEASLES.

Winnipeg, April 28.—All Eskimos living in the Mackenzie basin, except ten families, have ben killed by the ravages of measles, says the Dawson City News. Before the epidemic there were forty or fifty families, with a total of 150 to 200 or more persons. The great ravages of the disease and the awful results are told by Bishop Breynat, who has just reached Dawson by long and tedious journeying from the south of Mackenzie.

MARX'S SISTER GOES INSANE

Hanging of Car Barn Bandit Affects Girl's Mind.

Chicago, April 28.—Hattie Marx, the 24-year-old sister of Gustav Marx, one of the three car barn bandits hanged at the county jail last Friday, has lost her mind as the result of the crimes and subsequent execution of her brother.

Until a few days ago the young woman was employed in a dressmaking shop on the north side. She was fond of Gustav and appeared much depressed during his trial. When her brother was convicted and the death sentence imposed she felt the blow more keenly than her mother, who has endured her sorrow stoically.

The night before the hanging Hattie Marx visited the death chamber with her mother and brothers. She was silent and moody until the cell was reached, when she talked in a rambling manner with her condemned brother. This was attributed to her poignant grief. She said good-by and left the cell with her mother and brothers at 10 o'clock. She remained silent on the way to the family dwelling at Irving Park boulevard and Forty-eighth avenue.

The next day her mental derangement was more pronounced.

The police aided in quieting the girl, and the following day the brothers secured warrants for her detention, which they still hold in case she should become unmanageable. The mother has insisted that the young woman be left under her care as long as possible.

Since her reason left her, Hattie Marx has wandered for short intervals around the premises, talking and gesticulating to herself. Most of the time she spends with her mother, to whom she clings tenaciously, working by her side in the field and kitchen. Yesterday she greeted a caller brandishing a broomstick in her hands. Her talk is all of the trouble brought upon the family by the trial and hanging of her brother.

BROTHERS IN A ROW.

Each Wanted a Warrant For the Other.

Battle Creek, Mich., April 28.—Charles and William Emmons, farmers of Pennfield township, appeared in Justice Merritt's court, Monday, and each asked for a warrant for the arrest of his brother. The warrants were denied. Charles declared that if Will ever came about his farm again he would shoot him. He said Will came there Sunday and fired two shots at him with a revolver, and threw a rock through a window.

It is said that when the two were much younger they both loved the same girl, practically their foster sister. She married Will.

Several weeks ago, in a quarrel between the brothers, Charles was whipped. Charles hauled Will into court, but the case was dismissed, as half the township has taken sides, and it was impossible to apportion the blame. Will then went from the farm, but left his wife and children behind. Sunday he returned and was refused admission, he affirms, and it was then, Charles says, that Will shot twice and heaved the rock. Will does not deny shooting, but says his brother attacked him first with a club. Both applied to Prosecutor Hooper for warrants, but he would not sanction one being issued on either man's unsupported complaint.

Shrewd Stranger Swindles Menominee Merchants With Trade Dollars.

Menominee—It has been discovered that Menominee and Marinette merchants have been swindled by a smooth stranger who has made his escape. The man passed off a lot of United States "trade dollars," which are only worth 43 cents. It was supposed at first that the coins were counterfeit, but they are real government coins, issued in 1876 and 1877 for use on the Pacific coast in commerce with China. Later on the coins were called in by the government, but some of them have remained in circulation and have been passed by unscrupulous persons.

Demar Sturgeon, a well known woodsman, was killed by the northbound Wisconsin & Michigan passenger train near Bagley Junction last night. He was intoxicated and paid no attention to the warning whistle of the engine. His remains were scattered along the track for several hundred yards and were gathered in a small box.

Iron Mountain—A rural free delivery route will be started from this city to Homestead in a week, covering a circuit of twenty-six miles. It is the first ever established in this section.

The authorities are making many arrests of saloonkeepers for keeping their places of business open after hours.

Ironwood—S. S. Curry is urged as one of the delegates from this district to the Democratic convention at St. Louis, and will be indorsed by this county.

Carbondale—John Anderson has received a deed to a valuable forty-acre farm in Menominee township from the state land office. Anderson filed an entry to homestead on the land on May 5, 1902, and lived on the farm, making the necessary improvements, until a few weeks ago, when a neighbor attempted to get possession of the land on a technicality. It appears that, although Anderson followed the law as closely as possible, in some slight instances he failed to conform to the homestead laws, and the neighbor, who was waiting a chance to dispossess him, submitted proof that Anderson had not complied with the homestead law and used his influence to have the entry cancelled that he might purchase the property. Anderson's friends were indignant. Money was raised for the purpose of buying the farm for Anderson and negotiations with the landoffice resulted in the sale.

Escanaba—Only by accidentally obtaining a hold on a rope suspended from the ceiling of the building Edward Sauerbrier saved himself from being scalded to death in a steaming vat at the Escanaba Woodenware Company's plant. His right leg was scalded from the foot to the knee and all of the skin over the scalded surface was removed by the terrific heat, but unless unforseen complications arise, he will recover. The covers to the vats had been removed to put the lumber in for steaming. Sauerbrier was working at the side of the vat and in the steam that arose from the boiling water he did not see that the cover had been removed. He stepped backwards in lifting a heavy plank and his right foot slipped over the edge of the vat. As he fell his hand touched a rope which hung from a tackle, and, quickly obtaining a hold, he saved himself from falling backwards into the boiling water and managed to pull himself to a place of safety even before fellow employes could reach his side.

WEST DULUTH

It appears to me that there is a lot of needless fuss over the proposed move of the state game and fish commission to secure pike spawn from the St. Louis river, near Fond du Lac, and ship it away," said a West Duluth fisherman this morning.

"It has been declared that if the commission secures spawn from the St. Louis river," he continued, "there will be but little fishing this summer. This is all bosh. The fishing this summer will not be in the least affected if this is done. Whoever expressed this opinion evidently believes that in getting the spawn the parent fish are taken or killed. This is not the case. The fish are caught and stripped at the river closely for a ways, and will then turn back farther into the country. The sandy soil near the river will thus be avoided as well as the hills, making travel easier. It is expected that the drive, when completed, will bcome one of the most popular at the head of the lakes, passing as it does through the handsome St. Louis river scenery. It will also be better from a commercial standpoint, allowing heavier loads to be hauled than at present.

THE NOBLE DANE

Who Shipped as a Waiter on Scandinavian Steamship.

New York, April 28.—Victor Alexander Louis Angone Theodore Howard Petersen was the string of names a young man declared were his to Magistrate Crane in the Yorkville police court. He added that he was of noble Danish blood and was the adopted son of Lieut. Gen. Petersen of the Danish army. He left home, he declared, because of a quarrel with his adopted father.

The young man was not a prisoner when in court, but had gone there with Detective Walsh, of the Fifth street station, and Oscar Nord, the steward of the Scandinavian-American line, to have the magistrate determine if he had done anything to make him amenable to the laws of this country.

Steward Nord wanted to make a complaint that the young man had refused to go on board the steamship and work out his time as one of the crew.

The young man said he was a member of the Royal Danish Yacht club. He left home in a huff and decided to come to this country for a short time, so he signed articles on the steamer Hellig Olav as a waiter, as he thought it would be fun to mix in with the crew, he said.

"What wages did you get on the ship?" the magistrate asked.

"I got $8 a month."

"Only $8 a month? But I suppose you get much more in tips?" remarked the magistrate.

"I would not accept a tip. They were offered, but I would not take them," he responded. "I had no need of money and would not insult my dignity by accepting it."

The steamer arrived here last Tuesday. On the trip one of the cabin passengers reported to Capt. Holst that $90 had been stolen from his cabin. The captain made an investigation, but no trace of the missing money was found and no particular member of the crew was suspected by the captain, so the matter was dropped.

Since the steamer arrived here young Petersen received money from Copenhagen through the Danish consul. He passed much of his time ashore and spent money freely. He carried a gold-headed cane, put on a different suit of clothes every day and assumed so much dignity that other members of the crew decided to take him down.

One day, as he was going down a companionway, a dish of dirty water was emptied on his head and spoiled a new suit of clothes. A little later a bunch of oily waste struck him in the face while he was on deck. He stood the treatment for a time and then went to the captain and asked for discharge. The captain told him he had signed ship's articles for the round trip and must go back to Denmark.

Some of the crew heard Petersen say that he proposed to leave the ship whether the captain discharged him or not. This was reported and when the young man started to leave the vessel the steward tried to prevent him, but he insisted on going ashore.

Nord followed him and the two went to the office of the steamship company at Bowling Green and the matter was explained to the manager there. The Danish consul was sent for and a conference was held. The consul advised the young man to fulfill his contract and go back on shipboard. When Petersen left the office the steward urged him to return to the steamship.

"No, I won't," he said. "Some of the crew tried to insult me by making insinuations about the $90 a passenger lost on the way over. I have always been honest and I cannot bear any reflection on my character."

The steward followed him to a tailor's shop on Fourteenth street, where Petersen went to get still another spring suit, and when the bundle came out the steward again urged him to return to the ship. It looked as though there would be a fight and Detective Walsh took them to court to straighten out matters.

"What uniform is that you are wearing?" the magistrate asked Petersen.

"It's the uniform of the Royal Danish Yacht club of which I am a member," he answered.

The steward told the magistrate about the missing $90 on the vessel and said that the captain wanted all of the crew kept on board until a thorough investigation had been made.

"That happened on the high seas and I have nothing to do with it," announced the magistrate. Young Peterson said that he had been sent on the steamship by Mr. Ibsen, one of the directors of the company in Copenhagen. The magistrate refused to take any action in the case and the young man was leaving court as Capt. Holst entered.

The captain advised the young man to return to the steamer and told him it would be risky for him not to obey his commander, according to the Danish laws.

"When you go back to your own country you are likely to get into trouble," the captain added.

"You will have to answer to Mr. Ibsen for your conduct when I do go home," answered Peterson.

"I shall bid you au revoir, captain. I am going to see a part of America, the land of the free, and I expect to go back to Denmark in about three weeks. I will go back as a first cabin passenger and not as one of the crew." Then the young man twirled his cane and left court.

FRANK WHITE NOW FACES GALLOWS

Jerome Manaige Dies From Bullet Wound of Tuesday.

Places First Degree Murder Charge Against His Assailant.

A charge of murder will have to be faced by Frank White.

Jerome E. Manaige, the bartender who was shot by White Tuesday evening, died at St. Mary's hospital shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon.

A post-mortem examination of the body will be held by Dr. Magie this afternoon to determine the cause of the death.

"I believe it was due to an injury of the pancreas," said Dr. Magie this afternoon, in speaking of the matter. "He seemed to take a sudden change for the worse last evening, and I think it was owing to injuries of the pancreas. He grew steadily worse during the night, and this morning it was seen that his death was only a question of a few hours.

"Life became extinct about 2:45 o'clock.

"I will hold a post-mortem to determine exactly the cause of the death."

The death was due to the internal injuries that resulted from the bullet wound in the abdomen. The course of the bullet will be followed in the post-mortem examination, and the doctors will endeavor to discover exactly where it lodged.

Manaige's condition was very critical from the time he was first taken to the hospital Tuesday night. The doctors expressed but little hope for his recovery, and after the sudden change taken last evening the case was looked upon as hopeless, although no efforts were spared to save his life.

The young wife of the dead man is prostrated with grief. They were married scarcely a month ago, and she has not left his side for more than a few hours at a time since the crime was committed.

Meanwhile White is confined in the county jail awaiting the action of the grand jury. From present indications he will undoubtedly have to face a charge of murder in the first degree, which means that the crime was premeditated. The fact that he was put out of the saloon and returned ten minutes later with a revolver would seem to indicate that he had planned revenge for the fancied injury of being ejected from the saloon for his disorderly conduct.

County Attorney McClintock visited the hospital this morning and secured a statement from the lips of the dying man, telling of the manner in which the crime was committed. The story was practically the same as that related in The Herald Wednesday evening.

County Attorney McClintock stated this afternoon that the prisoner would not have to be arraigned again in the municipal court.

"He is already held to the grand jury without bail," said Mr. McClintock. "A new indictment will be secured against him on the charge of murder in the first degree, if the evidence against him proves to be sufficient."

HYPNOTIC SCIENCE

Prof. Hyslop's Reasons For Wanting a Clinic Therefor.

New York, April 28.—Prof. James H. Hyslop, of Columbia University, denied that it was John D. Rockefeller who proposed to endow a clinic for the treatment of diseases by hypnotic suggestion. At a meeting of the Medico-Legal Society held in the Waldorf-Astoria recently Prof. Hyslop read a paper in which he announced that a certain person stood ready to contribute a sum of money for this purpose, and for several days afterward there was a persistent rumor that the person was Mr. Rockefeller. Color was given to the rumor by the fact that Mr. Rockefeller several years ago manifested some interest in psychology and gave that interest tangible form in a present of $100,000 to be applied to Columbia University's psychological department.

"The plan to which I referred in my paper," said Prof. Hyslop, "is still in too nebulous a shape for me to discuss it at present, I may say positively, however, that the gentleman to whom I referred as being willing to contribute for a hypnotic clinic is not Mr. Rockefeller. So far as I know Mr. Rockefeller's mental attitude he would not touch anything relating to hypnosis with a ten-foot pole. It is true he gave a sum of money for use in the department of psychology in Columbia, but I have always undprstood that it was not because of any particular interest in the subject of psychology, but simply because he has a son-in-law who is a professor at Columbia.

"So far as the fund to which I referred is concerned, it is still contingent upon other amounts being raised. I do not know whether we will be able to raise this conditional amount or not. But I very much hope we will. With the single exception of La Salpetriere in Paris there is no place in the world where hypnosis is being scientifically studied; and it would be to the purpose of scientific study of this interesting subject that the clinic purposed in this city would be devoted.

"Naturally, it would be among the poor that we would find most of our patients. People of means are likely to fight shy of hypnotic treatment. Yet there is a wide range of usefulness in this field. Not only may relief from apparently diseased conditions be had by hypnotic suggestion, but painless surgical operations may be performed on persons who are under hypnotic influence. Dr. Bramwell, in London, has long been performing such operations. His experience is that there is much less loss of blood from operations performed on persons under hypnotic influence than is the case when anesthetics are used. Then, of course, the danger attendant upon the use of drugs is eliminated as well as the after effects of the drugs upon the patient.

"As an instance of what may be done in the way of curing disease by hypnotism, I may mention a case that occurred only a short time ago right here in my own home. I came home late one evening recently and found my little boy suffering from croup. He had great difficulty in breathing and I feared it might be the membranous form of the disease. I called up the doctor by telephone, but he told me he could not come right away. I told him, over the 'phone, that I would hypnotize the boy and see what effect it had and if he got no better that I would again call him up.

"I hypnotized the boy. I did it by simply passing my hand gently over his forehead and eyes and telling him to go to sleep. When he was under the hypnotic influence I told him that I would slowly count three and that then he would breathe better. I counted three and roused the boy and he was much relieved. Then I hypnotized him again and told him that when he woke up in the morning his throat would be 'good.' I was careful to avoid saying that he would be better, but left him with the hypnotic suggestion that his throat would be all right. In the morning he said to me:

"'Papa, my throat is good.' And as a matter of fact he was cured.

"Now, a large part of the boy's trouble with his throat was imaginary. He had difficulty in breathing and that made him afraid of suffocation. The fear stiffened the muscles of the throat and so increased the difficulty of breathing. When he was put to sleep under the hypnotic influence the throat muscles relaxed and resumed their normal degree of tension. Then, of course, came relief in the breathing.

"Now that is a type of cases which may be treated with advantage by hypnotic suggestion. The difficulty is to know just what degree of hypnotism in a patient renders him fit for a surgical operation or for suggestion as to relief from disease. It would be the function of such an institute as the one we hope to found to make students experts in just that as well as other phases of hypnosis practice.

"But I should not be satisfied to see the institute confine its experiments and studies to the mere matter of the practice of hypnotic suggestion as applied to surgery and disease treatment. There are collateral branches of the subject that are of intense and of which there has been a lack of specialized study. The whole subject of abnormal mental phenomena would fall within the scope of the institute planned. There is the matter of apparitions of the dead, hallucinations and loss of personal identity. This matter of forgetfulness of identity is very common. Only a short time ago a man had been lost to his friends and wandering for days jumped off one of the Harlem bridges and was killed. That man had entirely lost his identity—did not know who he was or where he lived. Could he have been got hold of and subjected to scientific hypnotic treatment the chances are that he would have been restored to his normal self.

"The way that fictitious and real identity may become crossed and confused under hypnotic influence was curiously illustrated in a case that occurred not long ago. An artist was hypnotized and told that he was a doctor and that patients were calling upon him for treatment. He played the part of the physician to perfection. His old friends, persons whom he had known for years, came to him and he treated them as perfect strangers. He diagnosed their supposed complaints and prescribed for them. His prescription in one case was that the patient must paint pictures. Now right there was where his real identity as an artist crossed his fictitious identity as a physician.

"This whole subject of hypnotism, with its kindred abnormal mental conditions, is one that should be specialty studied, and, unfortunately, is not so studied. It is to develop that study that we are hoping to found the institute for which we already have a nucleus in the way of a fund is secured by the conditions on which it comes to us being met, I do not care to enter specifically into the plans which are under consideration."

FILIPINO ANT

In Way of Growing American Vegetables In Philippines.

They Eat Up the Seeds Before They Can Germinate.

Washington, April 28.—The efforts of the Philippine bureau of agriculture to introduce American farm products into the Philippines have not proved very satisfactory. The American officials supposed that the rich earth and sunny climate of the Philippines would produce all kinds of vegetables and fruits, but in their calculations they forgot the insects that swarm over the islands, devouring vegetation below as well as above the surface. The locusts that devastated vast tracts of land last year were a temporary pest, but the ant and mealy bug are constant sources of annoyance and disaster.

To encourage the raising of American vegetables the Philippine officials followed the custom of the department of agriculture of the United States and distributed nearly 22,000 packages of seeds, which went into almost every province. In all there were 137 varieties of American grown field and garden seeds.

Each package contained instructions printed in English and Spanish; but the reports received showed that the Filipino would require more careful teaching before he could learn to raise watermelons, cucumbers and tomatoes. In fact, this feature of the work proved so unsatisfactory that W. S. Lyon, in charge of the division of plant industry, has recommended that there be no more distribution of seed except to genuine farmers.

He complains that school teachers, provincial officers, commandants of military or constabulary posts, and merchants or traders having small lots in the towns have constituted a considerable portion of the people supplied with seeds, and he is of the opinion that they took less interest in the subject of agriculture than in the immediate necessity of supplying their table with fresh vegetables.

Some satisfactory results are recorded. In one of the provinces promising results were secured with imported American field corn, but reports received from other parts of the archipelago have been disappointing showing a tendency in the plant to dwarf and ear out close to the ground.

In Batangas province the stalks reached a god size and yielded two or three large, well formed and well filled ears to each stalk. The production in shelled grain was one-third more than was secured from a similar adjoining area planted in native seed.

Mr. Lyon, in a report to the Philippine commission, says that the use of corn is extending into provinces, where formerly it was not cultivated, and that where it is largely grown it generally commands a price which prohibits its use for stock feeding or fattening purposes. He thinks that ultimately the use of acclimatized American seed will increase the yield one-fourth or more over that which can be secured from native seed.

The failures with American garden seeds were not confined to the native and soldier farmers. One of the ideas of the bureau of agriculture was the establishment of agricultural experimental stations in different parts of the archipelago, which are conducted by experienced agriculturists.

The reports of these men are interesting as showing the difficulties in the way of the Filipino gardener. It is a matter of comment that nearly all of the fresh vegetables used in Manila are imported from China, where the system of improving the soil is such as to make the use of vegetables undesirable from a sanitary standpoint. During the period of the plagues in Manila the authorities prohibited the importation of these vegetables, and for a time the people suffered from a lack of green food.

The obstacle in the way of the Filipino gardner is the Filipino ant, which devours anything from the founation of a house to a postage stamp. The most valuable libraries in the Philippines have been ruined by these insects, which eat their way through paper, pasteboard, leather, wood, and even tin.

They cannot affect the bright surface of new tinware, but army officers say that rusted tinware has been penetrated by the little insects, which in a few hours would get away with the entire contents of a quart can.

The experimental station workers say the ants destroyed seed in the ground before it had time to germinate, and, repeated attempts to start lettuce, onions and beets in plant beds resulted in failure on this account.

Platforms high above the earth were erected and the supporting poles covered with poison. Plant boxes were then placed on the platforms where the seed could germinate.

In one instance an entire cornfield of several acres was completely destroyed by the ants eating the corn off just beneath the surface of the ground. In addition to the ants, aphides and mealy bugs were also troublesome. They injured lima and string beans, tomatoes and egg plants.

Cabbage and cauliflower were a failure, and the officials say that the results do not justify repeating experiments with rhubarb, spinach or cauliflower. Irish potatoes made a fair growth, but several plantings of watermelons, cucumbers and muskmelons resulted in failure.

Squashes and cucumbers made a good growth and bloomed freely, but set very little fruit. A difficulty with cabbage was that it would not head.

The work of the bureau of agriculture is not confined to attempting to introduce American articles. Considerable attention has been given to the development of the many native fruits.

Great interest is also taken in efforts to produce a disease immune coffee plant and to train the Filipinos in better methods of growing tobacco. A stock farm has also been established, and American horses and cows have been purchased for breeding purposes.

DIFFICULTIES WITH CAPTAINS

Cleveland, April 28.—A meeting of the Lake Carriers' association was held here today with representatives present from all the principal ports on the lakes to discuss the difficulties existing between the vessel owners and Captains' and Pilots' association.

The latter insist as a part of the agreement governing the present season that no captain be dismissed until he is given a hearing on any charge that may be preferred and that the hearing shall be before a committee of captains who shall decide whether or not he shall be dismissed.

There is a strong sentiment among lake carriers against conceding this demand. Many of them declare that rather than agree to such terms they will tie up their vessels all summer.

OLD ACTRESS DEAD.

London, April 28.—Nelly Farren, an old time Gaiety theater favorite, died today of gouty affection of the heart. Nelly Farren was a member of the first Gaiety company which visited the United States. It became known in 1895 that she was suffering from adversity and her friends on March 17 of that year gave her the most remarkable benefit ever witnessed in London. Every available seat was sold weeks ahead, netting $25,000, while subscriptions poured in from many sources. When the performance began it was said that Drury Lane had never held such a large number of people.

JAP TORPEDO BOATS

Sight Off Port Arthur—Skirmishes on Yalu.

Port Arthur, April 28.—Japanese torpedo boats were sighted at 1:10 this morning, covered by a Japanese squadron. A few shots were fired without damage, after which the Japanese ships disappeared southward.

Paris, April 28.—The Temps correspondent at St. Petersburg telegraphs as follows: A Russian column is about twenty miles from Won San, where the Japanese garrison has fortified itself. The Vladivostock squadron supports the movement of the Russian column.

Some skirmishes have occurred on the right bank of the Yalu, resulting favorably to the Russians. This far only the advance guard of the Japanese has crossed the river, but the passage of the entire Japanese army is imminent.

which throng the galleries upon such occasions were noticeably absent. The attendance of members, when the speaker rapped for order, also was small

The house at once got down to business and agreed to a number of conference reports on bills of minor importance.

The conference report on the bill establishing a government for the Panama canal zone likewise was agreed to.

Mr. Mondel (Wyo.) called up the bill to ratify and amend an agreement with the Shoshone or Wind River Indians, of Wyoming, which was under consideration when the house took a recess last night.

Mr. Fitzgerald (N. Y.) continued his opposition and secured a roll call on the passage of the bill. Mr. Payne (N. Y.), the majority leader, by unanimous consent, interrupted the roll call and offered a resolution providing for adjournment at 2 o'clock today. Loud Republican applause greeted the announcement.

Mr. Williams (Miss.) the minority leader, remarked that while the Democrats personally would feel very glad to get back to their homes, they would regret for a long time "the non-action of the majority of the house that he was anxious to leave the post of duty and leave a situation bristling with legislation that ought o be considered."

He declared that the Republicans of the house had a responsibility before the country, and had a right to bear the burden of it.

Defending the majority for the record they had made, Mr. Payne said that the Republicans assumed full responsibility for their action, and felt assured "that after seven years of uninterrupted Republican rule, the country will say that every important interest has been carefully guarded by the Republican party by the legislation of those years."

The resolution was adopted without division and the calling of the roll resumed.

The Shoshone Indian bill was lost—110 to 126.

THREATEN TO SUE THE CITY

Warren Bros. Claim Right to Bituminous Macadam.

Warren brothers, the unsuccessful bidders for the East Superior street pavement, threaten to bring suit against the city for infringement of patent, if the contract with P. McDonnell is carried out. Mayor Cullum received notice to that effect yesterday afternoon.

Warren brothers claim that they have patents on the mixing process and the mixture that is to be used in the construction of the East Superior street pavement. They claim special rights to the name "bituminous macadam" and they claim that if the contract for such a pavement is let to any other persons the city will be held responsible.

The matter will be referred to the city attorney for his opinion.

Contractor McDonnell stated this morning that he had little fear that Warren brothers would push the matter. He claimed that they had no exclusive rights in the matter of tar or bituminous macadam and stated that he took but little stock in their threat to bring suit.

Walker, Minn., April 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury came into court at 7 o'clock this morning and returned a verdict of murder in the first degree against William Chounard for killing his wife at Cass Lake. The death sentence will be pronounced at 6 o'clock this evening.

FRIENDS MAY MEET MR. BRYAN

Will Be at St. Louis Hotel During His Stay.

William Jennings Bryan will arrive in Duluth tomorrow morning at 10:55 on the Omaha railroad, and during his stay here will be the guest of T. T. Hudson, at the St. Louis hotel. An informal reception will be held during the day and any that choose may call upon him. That many will avail themselves of the opportunity of once again meeting Mr. Bryan goes without saying. He has always been very popular in Duluth and numbers among Duluth people many personal acquaintances.

In the evening, Mr. Bryan will deliver his lecture on "The Value of an Ideal," at the First Methodist church, appearing in the Star Lecture course.

TWO MEN DROWNED WHILE CROSSING ICE.

Calumet, Mich., April 28.—While crossing Keweenaw bay on the ice, John Matson and Charles Kotila, of Pequaming, were drowned Sunday. Friends became alarmed Tuesday and organized a searching party. The bodies were recovered from a hole cut in the ice for fishing.

Kotila had $500 on his person.

Matson leaves a widow and several children in Finland.

DASTARDLY ATTEMPT TO WRECK A TRAIN.

La Crosse, Wis., April 28.—While the Pioneer limited, northbound on the C., M. & St. Paul road, was passing through the yards entering La Crosse last night, unknown parties turned a switch just after the engine and one coach had passed the point. The train was traveling unusually slow, which was all that prevented a serious wreck. Two passenger coaches were slightly damaged and the rails were torn up for some distance. No one was injured.

Shipment of Material.

City Engineer McGilvray received word this morning from the Pittsburg Laboratory company, which has charge of the inspection of the material for the bridge work, that the first shipment of bridge material would be made about May 1.

This will be much earlier than the date set by C. A. P. Turner, the architect, on his recent visit to Duluth, and if the shipments commence to arrive at that time, the bridge will be completed sooner than was expected. Mr. Turner did not think the first shipment would be made until about June 1.

COLUMBIA DIVIDED.

Governor La Follette Loses Nine More Votes.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 28.—The caucuses in Columbia county yesterday resulted in further losses to La Follette from his vote of two years ago of nine votes. The county in 1902 was almost solidly for the governor, there being hardly a contest in either assembly district. Yesterday, while the governor again carried the Second district, the anti-La Follette men swept the First district, which will send nine anti-La Follette delegates to the state convention. The Second district has ten delegates in the state convention.

GEN. GASSER, NOW.

Duluth Man Is Advanced on Governor's Staff.

St. Paul, April 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Col. Matthew M. Gasser, of Duluth, who is attending the anual conclave of the Knights Templar, has been appointed commisary general on the governor's staff, vice Gen. Charles J. Montfort, deceased. The appointment is to become operative at once. Col. Gasser has been a member of the staff ever since it was organized. The appointment is said to have come without solicitation, and it is believed that it will be very favorably received in the northern portion of the state.

REAPING BENEFIT

From the experience of Duluth people.

We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Duluth residents on the following subject will interest and benefit thousands of our readers. Read this statement. 'Tis emphatic and convincing. No better proof can be had.

Edward J. Hoppman, mineralogist, of 422 First street, west, says: "I was troubled more or less with my kidneys for years and whenever I caught cold or over-exerted myself, I had a bad attack of it, so that it was painful for me to get about and my back ached and pained me severely. The action of the kidney secretions was irregular and the secretions were unnatural. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills recommended for such troubles, thought I would try them and procured a box. They relieved me from the aches and pains right away and regulated the action of the kidneys."

A PITCHER SIGNED

Manager Van Praagh Completes Team With "Rusty" Owens.

Played With Rockford Three I League—Comes From Minneapolis.

"Rusty" Owens, of the Rockford team in the Illinois-Indiana-Iowa league, is the latest addition to Van Praagh's bunch. The Duluth manager received a letter from Owens today, stating that he had accepted the terms offered, and would report at once for practice at Eau Claire.

Owens was one of the leading pitchers in the Three I league last year in spite of the fact that he was playing with a team that finished in the second division. He pitched thirty-four games and won twenty of them, giving him an average of about .590. The average number of hits per game secured from his delivery was 7.51. He issued only forty-four passes to first in the thirty-four games, and struck out eighty-eight men. He is credited with a perfect fielding record, not making an error during the entire season. He had a batting average of .206.

Owens is also an excellent substitute infielder, and played first base in a number of games for the Rockford team.

He has been working out this spring with the Minneapolis club, and Manager Van Praagh secured his release from the Millers.

This completes the Duluth team for the present at least, and Manager Van Praagh stated this morning that he had no further players on the string.

"Quillan is going to make one of the best third basemen in the league," said Manager Van Praagh last evening. "He will surprise some of the fans by his work this year. He played good ball last season, but it is not to be compared with the game he is putting up this year. He has improved wonderfully in hitting, base running, fielding and throwing to bases.

"Gehring is also playing great ball. His arm is getting limbered up and he is finding the plate in good style. He was one of the winning pitchers in the league last year with a losing team behind him, and he should prove to be among the best of them with a team of hitters like we have this year.

"The other men will bear watching also, and if they don't show what they can do in the game with the Java team Sunday, I will be greatly mistaken."

The list of fans who have signified their intention of taking the trip to Minneapolis Sunday to witness the game with the Java team is steadily growing, and it is practically certain that the number will reach 100, which is necessary in order to secure the half-fare rate.

ALLOWS ELD HIS FREEDOM

Judge Windom Does Not Believe He Tried to Raise Check.

A mistake on the part of the bookkeeper is believed to have been the cause of the arrest of Isaac Eld, a Finlander, on the charge of forgery.

Eld was arrested Monday by Captain of Police Resche for attempting to pass a check on a Bowery clothing house. The check was drawn by the Duluth Logging and Contracting company, to the order of Isaac Eld, for $25. The wording on the check was "twenty-six dollars," but the figures showed the amount to be $126. It was thought that Eld had attempted to raise the check to $125, and had forgotten to change the wording.

Eld is unable to speak any English and is evidently ignorant of any banking methods. He was arraigned before Judge Windom this morning on the charge of forgery. Several witnesses were examined, who testified that Eld had presented the check for payment at the store, and had fled when he saw Capt. Resche approaching.

"I do not believe he ever committed the forgery," said Judge Windom in discharging him. "Examining the check closely you can see that the ink does not show through the perforations where the check was stamped. No one but an expert forger could have placed that figure 1 on the check after the perforations had been made, without the ink showing through on the back, and if Eld had been an expert forger he certally would not have overlooked changing the wording of the check also.

"The mistake might easily have been made by the bookkeeper in making out the check.

"Eld may have been aware that the figures were wrong and may have attempted to collect the extra amount, but he did not deliberately plan a forgery, in my opinion.

"The evidence that he ran when he saw the officer coming would sustain this explanation. When foreigners who are ignorant of the law get into trouble their first impulse is to run and get away if possible, whether they are guilty or not. "The conflicting statements he made at police headquarters do not signify anything, as he found himself in trouble and hoped to save himself by a lie.

"I do not believe any jury on earth would convict this man of forgery, and the evidence does not justify me in holding him to the grand jury."

Orangeine Saves Time

From unnecessary pain and sickness. Prevents little ills from becoming serious.

Held to Grand Jury.

The hearing of William Parker, accused of larceny in the third degree, was held before Judge Windom in the municipal court this morning.

Parker was accused of having entered a Bowery saloon one night last week. The bartender, who was sleeping in the saloon, heard him, and called out to ask what he wanted. Parker then turned and fled through one of the rear windows of the saloon. He was held to await the action of the grand jury by Judge Windom.

A persistent bad cold will run into consumption unless it is relieved in time. So it is with the little daily wants of the people—they grow serious if not promptly filled. You can afford, for instances, to have that house tenantless for a little while; but when it continues tenantless, month after month, it becomes a serious matter. The timely want ad in The Herald ends the trouble.

PAT FAILS TO KEEP HIS WORD

After Promising to Leave Town Again Shows Up In Court.

It took Pat Ryan, the gentleman of Irish extraction, who promised Judge Windom yesterday that he would get out of town and stay out for ten years, just twenty-four hours to again appear in police court.

Pat was in yesterday on the charge of drunkenness. He told the judge that he would leave town before 4 o'clock and would stay out for ten years. He also added that he hoped the next boat that brought him to Duluth would sink beneath the waters of Lake Superior. Judge Window allowed him to go on suspended sentence on condition that he leave town as promised.

But the attractions of Duluth were too much for Pat. He was loath to shake the dust of the city from his feet. The thought of ten years of exile from the beloved hills and rocks of the Zenith City overeame him. Southern skies and balmy climes failed to appeal to his nature.

"None of your warm climates for me," thought Pat. "Duluth suits me. How can I bear to leave it? Better far twenty days on the rock pile than to be exiled from thee, oh! beautiful city of the unsalted seas. Here I remain if it costs me my freedom. Better to be in jail in Duluth than to be a free man in any other city. Shake Duluth? Nixie."

Such was the tenor of his thoughts, and when a heartless patrolman ran across him on the Bowery last evening, Pat resigned himself to the inevitable. The grim arm of the law again seized upon him, and Pat showed up in municipal court again this morning.

"Where's that ship, Pat?" asked the court. "I thought you were to stay out of Duluth for ten years?"

"Well, I didn't make it," said the prisoner.

"I see the charge against you is drunkenness, second offense. That is fulsome flattery. The charges against you have been innumerable. Twenty dollars and costs or thirty days. Next case."

And Patrick went to the rock pile, but deep in his manly bosom there beats a heart that was filled with love of the fair city at the head of the smiling waters of Lake Superior, and the sacrifice of thirty days of his freedom was as naught compared with the privilege of remaining within the sacred precincts of Zenith City. With this blessed hope in his heart he received the sentence stoically, and will count the days until he will again be free to bask in the warm summer sunshine, to breathe the nectar of the sweet breezes from the lake, and to snap his fingers at the guardians of the peace, who would drive him from his beloved home.

BANQUET BY ROYAL LEAGUE

Will Celebrate Securing of Prize Banner By Duluth.

The members of the Zenith council of the Royal League will hold a banquet Monday evening in the Elks' hall to celebrate the rapid increase in the membership of the order.

In a recent membership contest, the Zenith council secured the prize banner, and C. E. Piper, the imperial scribe of the order, will attend the banquet and present the Duluth lodge with the banner.

The society has had a foothold in Duluth for the past eight years, but until about two years ago it made little progress. Since that time, however, the membership has increased by leaps and bounds, and there are now over 250 members in the local chapter.

C. E. Piper, the imperial scribe, Rev. R. J. Mooney and Rev. D. W. Michaels will be the speakers of the evening.

Diamonds Made by Electricity

The recent experiments in making diamonds by electricity was a success. The manufactured gems are not imitations, but genuine diamonds, made under the same conditions that nature employs, that is, heat and pressure, and these are obtained by means of the electric furnace. If the stomach is weak, the liver and kidneys inactive, the conditions are contrary to nature, and the only way to restore them to a normal condition is to resort to nature's best remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Then you not only obtain a safe medicine but the best ever compounded. It never fails in cases of insomnia, dizziness, nervousness, indigestion, dyspepsia, billiousness, kidney ailments, la grippe, colds or spring fever. You only need one bottle to convince you of its value. Get it today from your druggist.

BANDMASTER REINSTATED.

St. Louis, April 28.—William Well, bandmaster of the World's fair, who was recently expelled by the Musicians' union, has paid a fine of $1000, and, by agreeing to conform strictly to union rules, has been reinstated as a member of the local union. Mr. Well also agreed to employ only St. Louis musicians in his World's fair band.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION.

SOME ARE LEAVING

Party of Miners From Ely Going to Pennsylvania.

More Expected to Go Unless Work Resumes Very Soon.

Some of the miners are deserting Ely, where the mines have shut down owing to the miners having declared against Capt. Charles Trezona as general superintendent. A party of seven came down yesterday and left last night for Pittsburg, Pa., where they expect to engage in some of the coal mines in that vicinity.

There were five Austrians and two Italians in the party, of whom one of the members, Jacob Levstick, held a conversation with Immigration Agent Max Sever, of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic road, who helped them get tickets East. One of the men, who had not been well, fainted in the ticket office.

It is said that considerable dissatisfaction existed at Ely for some time and that these men were aware of the likelihood of trouble and had planned to get away as soon as they could, as they did not care to be in any strike trouble. They wrote to relatives and friends in Pennsylvania, who told them if there was trouble at Ely they could get work in Pennsylvania, so as soon as the expected trouble broke out they prepared to leave.

More men will probably leave Ely soon if the strike is not settled, as they do not care to remain there while the mines are shut down, as long as they can get work in coal mines of the East or elsewhere.

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Hanson Are Again Divorced.

Twice married and twice divorced. Such is the record of the marital relations between Hans Hanson and Emma Hanson, both of New Duluth, Minn., in the findings filed by Judge W. A. Cant this morning.

The couple were first married in Sweden Oct. 22, 1876, and lived together up to January, 1893, when a divorce separated them. They were reunited and remarried Feb. 4, 1893, and again divorced by a decree following the findings just filed by the court.

Hanson sued for the divorce, but the court finds that for several years past he has subjected his wife to cruel treatment, and Mrs. Hanson is granted the decree.

By stipulation she retains possession of a house and other property at New Duluth. They have three children, two being aged 20 and 22 years respectively, and the youngest, a daughter, being 17 years old.

The mother is given custody of the girl, and Hanson is to pay $5 per month for her support. Hanson is a blacksmith by trade, and the court finds him capable of earning $50 per month.

D. M. De Vore appeared for Hanson at the trial, April 25, and Adams & Miller appeared for Mrs. Hanson.

DIVORCE BY WHOLESALE

Twenty-three Cases on Calendar For the May Term.

Divorce cases will occupy a large part of the calendar of the May term of district court, which is placed in the hands of the printers today.

Twenty-three mismated couples will appear before the court next week to seek legal separation. The number of divorce cases is rather larger than usual.

The indications point to a very busy term of court, there being ninety-three cases in all noted for trial. Of this number only twenty-three are cases continued over from this term, while the remaining sixty-eight are new cases. Only three divorce cases were continued over the term. A total of forty-eight cases have been noted for trial by jury, thirty-six of those being new cases.

Twenty-two cases will be tried by court, twelve of them being new.

Knights Templar Have Fine Time at St. Paul Conclave.

Special cars on the Northern Pacific train from St. Paul last night brought back the three dozen or so Knights Templar who went to the Saintly City to attend the grand commandery session. All told the trip was a very pleasant one, and one of the unexpected features was the distribution of the offices below grand captain general. As a rule the entire roster of officers goes up one at the annual election, but in the meeting this year the precedent was lost in the enthusiasm, and the voting was a little out of the usual line, although harmonious and agreeable. The next grand commandery meeting will be in

Duluth, and not in Minneapolis.

On its arrival at St. Paul the local contingent was met at the station by Damascus commandery, with some mounted policemen and a band, all three divisions being fully uniformed. The Duluth visitors were then escorted to the asylum of St. Paul commandery and given a very choice dinner. The business yesterday was expected in good style, although it was after 7 o'clock last night when the meeting broke up. In order to get through with the annual business in one day it had been necessary to arrange some of the reports for consideration by committees the day before. Those who returned this morning were tired, but jubilant, and expressed themselves in strong words of endorsement for the hospitality accorded by the members at St. Paul. George W. Buck, the new right eminent grand commander, was the recipient of many congratulations.

DIFFERENT VIEWS

As to the Appropriations Made By Congress.

Washington, April 28.—The Republican and the Democratic view of appropriations made thus far by the fifty-eighth congress were presented to the house today by Chairman Hemenway of the appropriations committee and Representative Livingston (Ga.), the ranking Democratic member of that committee. Good government housekeeping is the caption chosen by Mr. Hemenway to represent his views.

"A congress that has done nothing but spend money," is the heading of Mr. Livingston's summary.

After reviewing the expenditures for the next fiscal year, Mr. Hemenway concludes: "The expenditures of our government in their aggregate, as exhibited by the appropriations of congress, are large and by unthinking persons, and especially by misguided newspapers, are denounced as extravagant, and yet, according to the authority of our national government is the most economically administered of any in the civilized world."

A table to substantiate this statement is given, showing the per capita expenditures of the leading nations. The highest given is New Sembla, where the per capita expense is $30.38, the lowest is the United States, with a per capita showing of $7.97.

The total appropriations made by this congress aggregate, according to Mr. Hemenway, $781,574,629. Of this sum, $26,801,843 was to pay deficiencies for prior fiscal years and $56,500,000 is set aside for application to the sinking fund. This leaves the total appropriation for the expenses of the government for the year 1905, $698,272,786. The total estimated revenues for this period are $704,472,060, or an excess over appropriations or authorized expenditures of $6,199,274.

Continuing, Mr. Hemenway says:

"Experience has demonstrated that one year with another the actual expenditures of the government are about 7 per cent less than the appropriations made by congress; and, anticipating that the coming fiscal year will not prove an exception to this practically well-established rule, it is safe to assume that the apparent surplus of revenues over expenditures will be augmented by not less than $35,000,000, thus affording a safe margin of at least $40,000,000 between revenues and expenditures."

Mr. Livingston, in his statement compares the expenditures of Democratic congresses with Republican congresses, and adds:

"The appropriations for each of the fiscal years 1895 and 1896, as made by a Democratic congress, do not materially vary, as will be seen, one from the other, and average only $499,619,602 for each year."

"The table also shows that appropriations for federal expenditures made under a Republican administration, by a Republican congress, for the next fiscal year, have reached the startling sum of $781,674,692, or an increase of $286,955,027 over the average of the last two years under Democratic control and within a period of less than ten years.

"I do not question the honesty of these vast appropriations, either in their aggregate amount or in their details; but I challenge the wisdom of the policy that has made these expenditures necessary through the military and naval establishments, the maintenance of which is at the expense of needed internal improvements, such as river and harbor works and public buildings.

"During the session which is just about to close, the representatives of the people have denied consideration of the demands of their constituents all along this line, and yet the appropriations for the army show an increase over what it cost in 1896 of $54,000,000, and the navy a still greater increase of $69,000,000.

"Whatever may have been the sins of commission of this congress, they are as nothing compared to its sins of omission, denying consideration to all legislation looking to the welfare of the great masses of the people."

DENIES ITS LIABILITY

The answer in the case of F. A. Patrick & Co. against the Maryland Casualty Co. was today filed with the clerk of the federal court. All the allegations in the complaint are in the main denied, and the defendant company claims that the automatic sprinkler system insurance policy did not cover such a break as occured in the Patrick sprinkler, Oct. 8, 1903, which resulted in the suit for damages being brought.

It is claimed the break occurred at a point outside of the inner surface of the basement floor of the building, and at a place where, it is claimed, the system could not under any circumstances be seen or inspected by the defendant. It is also claimed that the leakage was due to the faulty construction of the sprinkling pipes, and that because of this and the location of the break, the damage or loss sustained by the plaintiff because of it was not covered by the insurance policy. A copy of the policy is included in the answer.

Other answers filed today with the clerk of federal court were in the cases of William Koska against the Samuel C. Jackson Lumber company, and Stenc Gralewski against the Northwestern Fuel company. Both are personal injury suits. Koska was injured while working in a Jackson mill at Tenstrike, and Gralewski while employed on the Northwestern company's dock in Duluth. The answers state that the companies were not to blame for the accidents which resulted in the injury of the men. The Northwestern company denies that it is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the state of Minnesota, as alleged in the complaint, and alleges the fact to be that it is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of Wisconsin.

GOOD TIMES AT HAND.

The people of the United States, weary of investing their money in stock-jobbing schemes, which return neither dividends nor principal, have ceased to swim in the sea of watered stocks that has engulfed the land, and as a result the money brokers of Wall street have a surplus of cash on hand, and they are complaining that this money cannot even be loaned at 1 per cent per annum.

It is pointed out that the inevitable result must be a return to real estate investments. Money will not lie idle. The people who own it must find some avenue open so that it can be profitably employed—and return dividends. What more natural than a turn to real estate investments, which are comparatively safe and usually return good interest upon the capital employed?

A dispatch from New York, dealing with the present abnormal condition of the money market, makes this encouraging prediction: "One thing can be counted upon as a certainty, and that is that another great step in business progress, another great industrial movement, a period of still greater business activity than even that of the immediate past will be in full swing in the United States within the next twelve months. It cannot be held in leash longer unless by some sensational political event or some tremendous catastrophe of nature. All conditions are most favorable to its coming, and come it will to aid and perpetuate the welfare and prosperity of the people of this country."

There is certainly good ground for this encouraging outlook. During the season of prosperity, real estate in the cities is certain to have a season of great activity, and in the majority of the cities of the United States is sure to advance in price this present year. Money is rapidly being put into ground and building now in all the centers of population, and the urban population is increasing by leaps and bounds.

When investors begin to turn their attention again to real estate, Duluth is certain to attract widespread attention. Every condition is now favorable for rapid and substantial growth. Development of the water power, which is soon to begin, will certainly result in adding several thousand people to the population. The natural growth must necessarily be large. It was recently stated that there is but one vacant store building in the business district on Superior street. The demand for flats and dwellings is insistent and strong. Many families are prevented from coming here now by this congested condition. As a result of these conditions, the natural and legitimate increase in real estate values is bound to be large. With so many avenues for profitable investment, Duluth is bound to attract the attention of outside capital during this revival of business.

ALCOHOL IN MEDICINE.

If Edward Bok, who edits the Ladies' Home Journal, was not such a nice little man, his article on patent medicines appearing in the May issue of that highly entertaining journal would suggest that the author had condescended to "throw a fit." The Journal is altogether too respectable to advertise patent medicines, for what reason is not specifically stated, but the editor would give his readers to understand that it is because they are all frauds and actually contain that vicious poison known as alcohol! Think of that. He would even have the ladies of the W. C. T. U. start a crusade against the so-called religious papers that admit advertisements of these murderous preparations to their columns because through a consumption of these nostrums young and old are started on the downward path to intemperance and drunkenness.

It is certainly reasonable and just that the people should be made acquainted with the contents of any of these concoctions that contain combinations of injurious drugs and chemicals and the government ought to provide swift punishment for anybody who undertakes to foist upon the public patent medicines of that character. But to denounce as ruinous and injurious any combination that contains alcohol is unreasonable and unjust.

The value of pure and undefiled alcohol in the preparation of medicine is almost universally recognized. In fact alcohol itself is a very valuable remedial agent. Used in moderation and in proper quantities it has only beneficial effects. Many sick people who refuse to drink alcoholic beverages because of their prejudices, find in the alcohol of these patent preparations the one thing needed to start them on the road to recovery and complete health. Learned and conscientious physicians often prescribe it in one form or another and anybody with brains enough to comprehend can note plenty evidence of its beneficial effects.

The Herald would not give the impression that it seeks to endorse the patent medicine fad. Many people permanently injure their health by resorting to the use of some of the concoctions. No man should undertake to dose himself with medicine unless he knows exactly what he is doing and whether or not he is consuming poisons. All patent preparations as well as all liquors, wines and beers should be subjected to rigid government scrutiny to the end that only non-injurious preparations may be put upon the market. But it is certainly unfair to denounce every preparation that contains alcohol.

Alcohol is not an invention of the devil, as many people suppose. It is produced by nature in numerous forms. It is produced within the human body in the process of digestion. Oftentimes certain organs of the body fail to perform their natural functions. Naturally the digestive organs fail at times to produce alcohol in sufficient quantities. No doubt this is a result of improper living. Few humans do live right. But when such a condition does occur, why is it not reasonable to supply the thing that is lacking?

Prohibition is not temperance. Senseless railing at a thing because it is abused will not further the cause of temperance. Because some people are intemperate in eating we would not prohibit food. Because many people are gluttons in the use of alcohol we should not prohibit that. Because some manufacturers include alcohol in vile preparations is no reason why we should denounce alcohol as a remedial agent. Let us at least be fair and sane.

THE SPRING REVIVAL.

All sections of the country as well as Duluth have experienced an exceptionally long and cold winter and belated spring. But there is hope in present weather conditions that nature intends a recompense in the way of balmy and enjoyable weather during the remainder of spring and summer. Certainly the people are enjoying to the full extent the present splendid weather and all must receive new encouragement and new strength for both mind and body.

Just as nature usually gives recompense for unfavorable seasons, so there is reason to believe that a revival of industrial activity during the spring and summer will make up for the enforced idleness and restrictions during the exceptionally cold winter months.

But a few days more of this weather and the ice will begin to disappear. Lake Superior and navigation will be open. This will mean a revival of industrial activity in a thousand different directions. Many local enterprises, which will furnish employment to thousands of workingmen, await the opening of the lakes. So also are waiting the promoters of industries all through the Northwest. Duluth is in a position to reap great benefit from this resumption of activity in trade and business once it is set in motion by reason of warm weather and the opening of the lakes. In fact the business interests of Duluth will be first to feel the beneficent effects.

The season promises to be one of the best in the history to the head of the lakes. Every condition is favorable to expansion and activity. Money is plentiful, crops are promising, prices are high, wages are good, men are employed. What, then, is there to prevent a prosperous season not only in Duluth, but all through the country?

THE TEN-YEAR GUARANTEE.

Under the present charter street maintenance is paid for from the city's general fund. Consequently it is only just and right that the cost of all repairs to streets should come out of that fund.

The clause calling for a ten-year guarantee that it is sought to place in street paving contracts now being negotiated, would have the practical effect of compelling the property-owners along the street to pay for street maintenance and repairs for ten years. Naturally the contractors will add to their estimates the cost of keeping the pavement in repair for that length of time and as a result they will have the use of that amount of money all these years, while the property-owners will be practically that much out.

It would seem that a guarantee of one or two years after the work is completed might reasonably be exacted from the contractor, as any defect in construction would be developed in that time, but for the property-owners along the street to ask for a ten-year guarantee would appear to be financial folly on their part, although the taxpayers in other parts of the city could have no reasonable objection.

It has been pointed out that the city is to acquire a tar-macadam mixing plant of its own, and as it is likely that this kind of pavement will be most used on Duluth streets in future, it is but reasonable to suppose that the city will be in a position to make repairs at less cost than the contractor who may be here today and gone tomorrow. Furthermore the city will be in a position to make these repairs at the time they are needed and consequently it will be unnecessary to wait upon the convenience of the dilatory contractor. Furthermore, proper and honest supervision at the time pavements are laid would seem to obviate the necessity of long-time guarantees.

As he is quite an old man that will probably keep him in office as long as he desires to be there. He has been a potent force in the regeneration of the Mexican republic, and the people evidently appreciate his worth. The new constitution also provides for a vice president.

The house has refused by a strict party vote to investigate the charges made by Congressman Dalzell against Congressman Cockran, wherein the former charged the latter with selling his political influence for money when he supported McKinley for president in 1896. It is an interesting phase of the matter that some Republicans are opposed to the investigation because the results might not only show that Cockran was guilty, but that he Republican party was also guilty of buying McKinley's election in 1896. It is an isolated case of bribery that will not work both ways.

The Minneapolis Tribune points to the Mormon church as an example of state socialism that has resulted in giving to a few church leaders all the power and wealth and most of the women of the commonwealth. If that was the real objection to state socialism it is difficult to see why so many great men oppose it. Is it because they are afraid they would be burdened with too much money, or too many women?

HOTEL GOSSIP

"No matter how good the hotel is, there is no place like home," said a drummer at the McKay, "but a fellow who is on the road gets mighty little of home in most cases. I suppose that's just the thing that makes a man appreciate his home, and I believe that's the reason so many traveling men are married. It never struck me before but it seems to be a sort of three-cornered arrangement don't it? There is no man on earth who is as little entitled, in some senses, to have a home, because the right man to have a home should be the man who stays in it, or at least so it seems to me, and a traveling man cannot consistently marry and then stay on the road and leave his wife and family the greater part of the time can he?"

"He has to do it. There have to be some traveling men."

"You're right that far, but I am talking about the theoretical side of it and from the standpoint of the moral side of it, which would bar the traveling man from all those nice domestic comforts. But the fact of the matter is that I am in the greatest sympathy with the traveling men. I am one myself."

"Maybe you're married, too."

"Exactly. I am, and my wife is staying down in St. Paul now all by her 'lonesome' for we have no children. I just got a letter from her asking that I let her go out into the country for awhile. She's been cooped up in that flat for the whole winter and I have been away a good while, so she naturally begins to get lonesome and pines for company. She wants to go out into the country to see her mother, and who can blame her?

"But I can't let her go, because it's dangerous. A girl caged in a steam-heated flat this whole winter just emited has to be pretty carefully looked after and I am afraid it would be too risky to send her out into the country. She's as liable to wind up with pneumonia as not if she goes before another month. I've got to write to her today and tell her that she can't go and she'll be wretched and mad until she gets a telegram from me tomorrow telling her I'm coming home. I've been away a month now and am going to tell the boss that I want to do a little work at home for a while.

"But living at home even has its disadvantages, don't you know? We have quite a nice little place there but we have some neighbors in the next building who are old people with married sons and grandchildren and who live alone. We have a telephone and they haven't. They're the good old neighbors that do anything for my wife when I'm away and when they want to use the telephone a little oftener than I think's just exactly right I always try to think of how good they are to Clara when I'm away. But they even have people call up from outside to talk to them and we then have to go over after them or call out the side window. I remember one instance where this telephone business was highly embarrassing to me for I was caught in a state that permitted of no errands.

"It was about 5 o'clock one evening. I had come home early and was in the bathtub soaking myself for all that was out and enjoying a home bath after two more weeks of the road business, sometimes in hotels that did not have a washpan fit for a white man to use. While I was thinking of the delights of the old Romans with their pool baths and thinking to myself that Caesar and all his people were not in it with me, the telephone bell rang. I thought I would answer it, and left the tub. I was dripping and chilly as I answered that bell, you may bet, for I thought Clara was going to be on the other end of the wire and tell me all the good things I could have for supper, if I wanted her to get them, 'But no. The old lady next door had her married daughter from Chicago visiting her and it was some young lady on the other end of the telephone who wanted to talk to that daugnter. She asked me if I could step over and call the young woman to the 'phone. I hesitated, but finally told her I could not and explained as best I knew how just why. I said I was alone in the house and had just been in the bath tub and could not go to call anyone just then. Mind you, I was without a stitch on and as wet as an uncaught fish, dripping and chilly. I don't know whether she understood the shivers in my voice. Maybe she did not hear them, but I'll tell you my voice sounded rather corrugated on the home end of the line. So she excused herself and said she was sorry to have troubled me. But she was not as sorry as I was, although I made no compliant to her.

"When my wife came home I was a little sore about the business and told her just what I thought about the telephone being used by neighbors to have their friends call up. As I did it I felt rather ashamed of myself, for it seemed to my undercurrent of conscience as though I was trying to take my spite out on her, which was not the case at all. But she got even, without knowing it. What do you think she did? Made me go and explain to our elderly neighbor and say I was sorry at not being able to get her daughter to the 'phone. I did it like a knight, although I had to swallow my indignation every two minutes for a long time before and afterward. But my wife was right about it. She is bound to stay on the good side of people and there isn't any one living that can't get along with her, or that she can't get along with. I suppose that is the best evidence of that is that we manage to live together peaceably day in and day out.

"That was one time, though, when I wished I was out on the road."

Our National Game.

Again the umpire shouts, "Play ball!"
Again the bleachers ill,
Again the rooting rooter roots
His losing team up hill.
Again the umpire calls "Strike one!"
Again the pitcher smiles;
Again the batsman swats the ball,
And drives it seven miles.

Again the catcher draws a pass,
And ambles down to first,
Again the umpire hears the wail:
"Well, isn't that the worst?"
Again to shortstop leaps aloft
And nalls a scorching drive,
Again the raucous coacher shouts:
"Get away, there! Look alive!"

Again the scorers duck their heads
To dodge a stinging foul,
Again the umpire gets a crack,
And hears the bleachers howl.
Again McCarthy steals for home
And slides in on his ear—
And all these indications prove
The baseball season's here.

The Kentuckian's Retort.

Washington Post: "I was at a dinner in London last spring," said the Chicago man, "and almost directly opposite me sat a countrywoman of mine from Kentucky. One stout, red-faced English woman in the party persisted in baiting the Kentuckian until I looked to see her lose her temper long before she did. The Englishwoman talked about America and the Americans as if the Kentucky woman had invented the country and was responsible for everything from Tammany to Pullman cars. Nothing American escaped her censure, and at length she began on the race question in a way that isn't heard at American dinner parties. She went on and on and the Kentuckian began to look dangerous. At last the Englishwoman paused.

"'But you can't deny that you actually burn niggers in the states.'

"The Kentuckian smiled deliberately.

"'Oh, the reports of that are greatly exaggerated,' she said. 'The practice isn't general. We only do it in parts of the country where coal is too expensive to use.'

"And the Englishwoman didn't speak another word for nearly five minutes."

His Natural Blunder.

Pittsburg Post: The name of Senator Sniffkins came afar down the list, and the voice of the clerk intoning the roll call made an excellent soporific.

Senator Sniffkins was very tired. He nodded and drowsed.

"Senator Shugar," finally droned the clerk.

"Present."

"Senator Slye."

"Present."

"Senator Sniffkins,"

That gentleman emitted a half snore.

"Senator Sniffkins."

Senator Sniffkins roused himself and stared about him with the vacuous stare of interrupted slumber.

"Senator Sniffkins!" called the clerk for the third time.

Senator Sniffkins evidently realized what was wanted now.

Sitting up in his seat, he shouted, firmly, "Not guilty!"

Still Good.

Chicago Journal: Nelson was scalped by a fragment of shell at the battle of the Nile and was carried below unconscious. The surgeon of the flagship opined that he was dead, but the admiral came to.

"You must lie quiet, as you are half dead," the sawbones said.

"That may be," retorted Nelson, "but we will, nevertheless, put the French on their backs with a half-Nelson."

And it was even so.

Congress and the Pensions.

Chicago Record-Herald: It is only ten days since Bourke Cockran turned loose in congress a flood of oratorical wrath against the president for his age disability pension order. His colleagues crowded around him with congratulations, and if words and applause mean anything at all, war to the knife against that pension order was then and there decreed by the minority.

Only ten days have gone by, and what happens now? The deficiency appropriation bill is brought before the house. The Democrats move to amend it. How? By striking out the appropriation to carry out the executive order? No, merely by "incorporating as a law the executive age disability pension order." Their amendment is defeated, and the deficiency appropriation bill is passed as it was reported.

And yet the house is wont to wonder and bewail the "sad tragedy" of its decline in dignity and usefulness.

Benjamin Knows How, Though.

Washington Post: Still, it would hardly be safe for Senator Tillman to pattern after Senator Nelson's style of emphasis in addressing the senate.

Advertising at Any Cost.

New York Herald: State Senator Smith has introduced the monocle into Kansas politics. Now we know "what's the matter with Kansas."

Has His Own Pet Method.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: J. P. Morgan still continues to buy up old truck in Europe that is of no particular value. No hero funds for him.

Can't Both Sit at Once.

Denver Republican: Senator Lodge and Secretary Shaw should pitch quarters to decide which is the legitimate spokesman of the administration.

What's the Matter With Cheese?

Kansas City Journal: There is a plan on foot to model President Roosevelt in butter. It occurs to us that there is enough strenuous butter already.

THE FUNNY FELLOWS.

Brooklyn Life: Aunt Mary—Nora, you're a cruel child. Let that cat go at once.

Nora—But she's been naughty, Aunty, an' I'm punishin' her. I told her it was for her own good, an' it hurt me more'n it hurt her.

Chicago Record-Herald: "Did you attend the Williston obsequies?" asked Mrs. Oldcastle.

"Gracious, no," replied her hostess. "Have they had some? Why, me and Josiah was at the funeral of their grandmother only last week."

Cincinnati Times-Star: Damocles' recklessness surprised his friends. "We do not see how you can be so happy and careless while that sword hangs over your head, suspended by a single hair."

Damocles smirked his fingers. "Fudge," he replied, "what's that to me? Our cook has been threatening to leave for the past three months!"

Judge: "I can't understand love at first sight."

"Why, it is due to the fact that love is blind."

Washington Star: "You can't get around the fact that two and two make four," said the man who argues vehemently.

"That rule does very well for small amounts," answered Senator Sorghum, blandly. "But when you take two million and two million and put 'em together in a trust, there's no telling how many million they amount to."

SUNDAY BASEBALL.

Brooklyn Eagle: These Sunday games cost money. No club in the United States could afford to offer them gratuitously for public entertainment. In some cities clubs are allowed to play on Sunday and to charge the regular prices from such as witness the games. Sunday base ball is legal in St. Louis, Chicago and Cincinnati and, we think, in many smaller cities in the West. That it is illegal here is due to a well meaning but mistaken idea that there is a moral difference between a recreation for which the public pays a price and a recreation for which it pays nothing. The police department does not interfere and could not safely interfere with the playing of golf on Sunday. That is not because golf is less wicked than any other sport, but because the links within the jurisdiction of the department are not inclosed by a board fence equipped with turnstiles and a ticket office. Church members have been known to play golf on Sunday. Some have been known to play baseball, to sail yachts, to fish and to indulge in other pastimes that have been held as coming under the inhibition of the fourth commandment, which, by the way, refers only to work and not to play. Even clergymen have gone at naught when set the letter of the law at naught when it too stringently restricted their amusement upon the first day of the week. Of course, the latitude accorded to some kinds of sport on Sunday does not make legal the playing of baseball on that day, but it emphasizes the folly of legislators who pass ordinances that cannot be enforced without unfair discrimination.

The Eagle thinks that Sunday ball playing could continue here without wrecking the morals of the community. The games are not conducted for the amusement of the vicious. Many of those who go to the park have well defined views on the subject of Sabbath observance and "live up" to them as much as do others who put Sunday baseball under the ban. The difference of opinion on this question is widespread and fundamental. It is in the main honest on both sides. A ruling by the courts in favor of Sunday ball may either directly affect the constitutionality of the prohibitive law or render the enforcement of it impossible by sanctioning the technical evasion to which the local club has had reason to which the local club has had recourse. It would be well if the issue now raised between the advocates and opponents of Sunday ball were determined on such a broad basis that the subterfuge of substituting a score card for a ticket may no longer be necessary.

The whole matter is one of common sense and equal rights. Those who do not believe in playing baseball on Sunday should not be forced to attend it. Those who do believe in playing baseball on Sunday should not be forced to stay away from it. No man has a right to do violence to another man's belief. No man has a right to force his belief or his disbelief on another man. It is a question of liberty. The Sabbath was made for man. Man was not made for the Sabbath. There is the Highest Authority for saying this. This whole matter grows out of the insatiable propensity of some men to mind other men's business. Given hours and places for playing baseball that do not interfere with the Sunday comfort and the Sunday worship of other people, and the whole question is solved. If legislation and the courts cannot under present laws do this, law should be passed requiring them to do it.

The Old-time Country Home.

I like the old-time country home,
Made out o' logs and boards:
Mud chimneys standin' at the ends,
Clamberin' vines o' gourds
Jest climbin' up around the door,
An' rose bush, too, near by;
Behind it on the hill the trees
Stand out against the sky.

I like the old-time country home,
Where cedar trees grow up
An' spread their bright green branches
While busy insects sup
The perfumes of the flower beds,
An' birds, an' bees, an' things
Jest keep the meddlers tremblin' with
The whirrin' of their wings—

I like the old-time country home,
The kind I used to know
In the dim, sweet, distant yesterday,
The dear old long ago.
—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

JUST SUPPOSE.

Houghton Gazette: The Sunday paper recorded the arrival of a son and heir at the home of William Randolph Hearst. Suppose some of the yellow newspapers which have patterned after Mr. Hearst's sheets should invade the sanctity of the Hearst home, print pictures of the new born babe after it is a few days of age, of the nurses in attendance, of the room where the little Hearst first saw the light of day and of numerous other details connected with the happy event? Suppose the same yellow newspapers should follow up the idea by printing numerous photographs of Mrs. Hearst, stories of her college day life, her love affairs and her gentlemen friends who might have been suitors for her heart and hand before Mr. Hearst? Suppose several full page feature stories, with colored pictures, and any number of details which might be secured and which are personal matters, were published?

Suppose that the family life of William Randolph Hearst should be "played up" just as the Hearst newspapers "play up" the family life and private affairs of hundreds of other rich people of this country? Do you suppose that William Randolph Hearst would take kindly to the idea?

The Hearst newspapers have absolutely no respect for anything in this world. They have absolutely no respect for the things which most newspapers regard as sacredly personal. If the tables were turned on Mr. Hearst he might not think that "enterprise" such as his newspapers often display, is such a commendable thing.

STAND-PAT IDEAS.

Washington Post: If the G. O. P., as it is represented in the two houses of congress, is to be believed, this country is finished. There is no part nor lot of government for future statesmanship to contemplate or to attempt. Gen. Charles H. Grosvenor tells us—if I understand what he is driving at—that the wisdom and the patriotism of himself and the committee of rules have perfected congressional legislation, and that, without the slightest injury to America, as to mankind in general, congress may decline into innocuous desuetudeor or cease to exist entirely.

Senator Cabot Lodge—understand there is no nonsense about this gentleman—Senator Lodge declares that the mere suggestion of reciprocity with Canada is a reflection on President Roosevelt's administration. And so it is. If President Roosevelt is not opposed to reciprocity with Canada, why has he not attempted to bring it about? More than any of his predecessors, more than all his predecessors, he is what the vigorous tribune said of Coriolanus I: "Who would desire to play on and be every man himself." If Mr. Roosevelt desired reciprocity with Canada there is not a single Republican in either house of congress who would say him nay. Senator Lodge's idea of "the balance of trade" is the absurdity that when a man sells he always makes money, and when he buys he invariably loses money. If that idea were not nonsense the United States would soon own the whole planet if every ton of merchandise consigned to our ports would go to Davy Jones' locker in order to export everything and import nothing. If a merchant in New York were to export cotton to the value of $20,000 and swap it for cutlery worth $20,000 in New York, Mr. Lodge would say he in the country had lost just $10,000, for it had imported more than it had exported to the amount of $20,000. And that is the stuff that the enemies of reciprocity instruct to pacify Iowa and Minnesota with this summer and fall.

"The Canadian Pacific railroad is a rival of at least two of our transcontinental lines. That foreign monopoly can buy in our markets steel rails for a less price than any American railroad can buy them. The Hon. Joseph W. Bancock was very brave about that sort of incongruity and monopoly a while ago, but quite put a bill in congress about it, and was like the man in the Bible who boasted as he put on the harness. When he appeared at the ways and means council board he met the arrogant dogmatism of Charles H. Grosvenor and John Dalzell, and to his statement, invented by Senator Allison, that "duties that are too high should be decreased," he was curtly, almost savage; informed. "There are no such duties." And that is going to be the answer in the ways and means committee of the Fifty-eighth congress will give to every suggestion of tariff revision and tariff reform if the country shall approve by the ballot the "stand-pat" policy of the Fifty-eighth congress. The one-talent man in the Bible was the original stand-pater.

If the Democratic party will only get sane and stay sane!

"I suffered with chills and fever and my skin was growing very sallow. The slightest draft would be enough to cause hot flushes or a quick chill. We thought it was malaria, but can never yet explain how I contracted it.

"I always had a draggy feeling, and would get up in the morning feeling dull and tired, and would be tired all day.

"I was advised by a relative to try Paine's Celery Compound which had helped her considerably, and I had such a good night's rest and woke up so refreshed that I determined to continue it.

"I do not feel any more lassitude, and I am cheerful all day long. I get through my work with satisfaction and work faster and better. The chills and fever are completely cured. This is just the time of the year when I used to have them worst, and I have not had a single chill. # VERY MUCH MARRIED

Mrs. Amelia Meyers of South Dakota Takes Fifth Husband.

She Won $15,000 In Lottery and Refused to Divide.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 28.—Something of a sensation has been created in this city by the marriage of R. W. Kelley and Mrs. Amelia Meyers. In the marriage license the ages of the two are placed at 60 and 51 respectively.

The marriage is the culmination of a series of matrimonial romances in which the bride has been an actor. Her record as to the number of times she has been married and divorced cannot be duplicated by any other resident of South Dakota.

Her maiden name is Bernard. Some years ago she married a man named Allen, who was her first husband. Becoming tired of him she is alleged to have kicked him out of the house. Then she bestowed her affections upon James Mason and married him. When she had secured his property she applied for and was granted a divorce.

Husband No. 3 was "Count" Von Hoen, who drifted to Sioux Falls from Germany and who said to be the scapegrace son of a prominent family. After living with him for a time she again resorted to the divorce courts and was released from this alliance.

She next married Lewis Meyers, a well-to-do farmer living near Sioux Falls. After a married life of only about a year Meyers and his wife, who could not agree, separated, he giving her a quarter section of land and $200 in cash. This was a bout a year and a half ago.

The life of Mrs. Allen Mason-Von Horn-Meyers-Kelley has certainly been a strenuous one. Some twelve years ago, before she had left Mason, herself, mother, two sisters, and a sister-in-law purchased five tickets in a Southern lottery which then had lawful use of the United States mails. It was agreed that such prizes as might be drawn by any of the five tickets should be equally divided among the five women.

It turned out that the ticket held by the then Mrs. Mason drew the sum of $15,000. She violated the agreement and refused to divide the proceeds of their investment. Her mother, sisters and sister-in-law carried the matter into the courts for the purpose of compelling her to divide the $15,000 in accordance with the agreement, but, as the money was won in a lottery, the case was thrown out of court.

Having her relatives at her mercy, Mrs. Mason gave each of the four the sum of $1200 and kept the remainder of the $15,000 for herself.

She and husband No. 5 have departed for the Pacific coast, where it is understood it is their intention to remain permanently. All four of her former husbands are living.

MUST STAND TRIAL.

Little Falls Man Held to Grand Jury.

Helena, Mont., April 28.—The preliminary hearing of Henry Erickson, formerly of Little Falls, Minn., the alleged murderer of Michael Ries on a Northern Pacific train, for the purpose of robbery, has been held before Judge Mehlbeg in Bozeman. The principal witness examined was William Kincaid. Kincaid testified that he had met Erickson in Billings some three weeks ago. Then they had beaten their way together to Livingston, and he (Kincaid) had obtained work in a restaurant as cook, and that Erickson had seen him there and told him of the crime he had committed and asked his assistance in concealing him. This Kincaid has consented to do, but was finally induced by the officers to make the hiding place known. Erickson was bound over to the district court without bail, and Luther, Kincaid and Olson were held as witnesses.

Two Kinds of Sleep.

The Use of Artificial Means of Inducing Sleep Stuns the Intellect and Deranges the Entire System, But By Another and Simpler Means You Easily Procure the Simple Slumber of Childhood.

To make a nervous, excited individual oblivious to his surroundings by the use of opium or morphine is not sleep, but a cruel blow, aimed at the brain and reasoning powers and its after effects leave many men and women physical wrecks.

Sleeplessness often accompanies indigestion, Vertigo, Sour Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Waterbrash, Flatulence, Sick Headache, Shortness of Breath, Spasms Around the Heart, Loss of Appetite, Liver Troubles and Female Ailments. When such is the case, a Beecham's Pill, taken in a glass of hot water, half an hour before bedtime, will induce restful slumber and have a soothing effect on the stomach and bowels.

Beecham's Pills are not a sedative nor a narcotic. They do not put people to sleep. They merely remove the poison from the system, and let nature do the rest. As a laxative they are without an equal.

CONSCIENCE HURT HIM.

World's Fair Attendant Declares He Is Impersonator.

Washington, April 28.—Last fall P. L. Stillwell, of Stewartsville, Minn., applied for a position at the St. Louis exposition. Accompanying the application were letters of indorsement from a number of prominent Minnesotans, including Chief Justice Start. Representative Tawney therefore secured Stillwell an appointment in the admissions department.

Instead of taking the position himself Stillwell turned it over to C. M. Cattle, of Olmstead county, Minn., with authority to use Stillwell's name, which he did, and was sworn in as Stillwell.

Cattle's conscience began to hurt him later on, and he told the exposition authorities that he had practiced the misrepresentation at Stillwell's instigation. He was then relieved from his position.

Those facts are related in a letter from President Francis of the exposition received by Mr. Tawney yesterday.

REFUSES HIS SALARY.

Official Declines Pay He Has Not Earned.

Chicago, April 28.—Coming as a bright spot amid the dark charges of grafting, neglect of duty and irregularities which have clouded the city administration, one appointive official, the head of a department, has refused to accept his salary because he says he has not earned it.

City Electrician Edward Elliott is the official who holds this unprecedented honor in the second city of the country. After his explanation it is highly improbable that any one will insist upon his taking the money which has been appropriated for his office. What to do with the money has not been determined.

NEW YORK DOCTORS

Busy With New Aid to the Profession.

New York, April 28.—The Kings County Medical society is absorbed with a method of illuminating the interior of the human body so that a physician can see through the abdominal wall and successfully diagnose internal maladies. Fluorescein, a greenish fluid which gives a peculiar light, is the agent used. If a bottle of it is held in the hand and electricity is allowed to play upon it, it gives a brilliant light, which illumines every crevice and line of the hand.

Dr. Coleman Kemp, of Manhattan, discovered the fluid, and he has used it successfully upon several patients. He tried the fluid first on cats and dogs, injecting it beneath the skin. The animals shone like glow worms.

AUCTION PLAN

Has Been Adopted For Red Lake Sale.

Washington, April 28.—Land Commissioner Richards has decided to sell the eleven townships of Red Lake Indian lands at public auction the last week in June or the first week in July. The commissioner himself will be present at the opening of the sale.

Each quarter section of land will be put up separately, and if possible one township will be disposed of before another one is offered. All lands will be started at the minimum price of $4 per acre, and if any lands are left unsold they will be disposed of later.

The decision of Commissioner Richards was reached after a long conference with Senators Nelson, Clapp and Congressman Steenerson. The detailed rules and regulations of sale will soon be completed by Commissioner Richards.

DEWEYS QUARREL.

Father and Son Must Serve Jail Sentence.

Topeka, Kan., April 28.—It is reported from Manhattan that C. P. Dewey, the Chicago capitalist, has quarreled with his son, Chauncey Dewey, and has ordered the latter out of his house.

Both C. P. and Chauncey Dewey have a day to serve in jail here for illegally fencing government land. The officials will enforce the sentence.

WILL BE IN DEMAND

Much Government Land Will Be Taken This Year.

Agricultural Rather Than Timber Lands Sought For Now.

There is every indication that the demand for government land in Northern Minnesota, particularly in the Duluth district, will be an unusually great one this year. Much inquiry has already been made concerning lands which are to be thrown open soon, and filings are steadily being made on lands which have been opened, and which have not all been taken up.

The first quarter of the present year was a record-breaking one as far as local land office receipts went, but this was largely due to the fact of the new townships being opened in the fall. Payments on stone and timber patents, covering portions of these townships, were made after the first of the year.

Records of the Duluth land office show that during the past year nearly a quarter of a million acres of land in this district has been transferred from the possession of the government into the hands of homesteaders and stone and timber entrymen. This is included in ten townships opened during the year. Eight of these were in northern Itasca county and the remaining two in Cook county. The Itasca county lands were largely suitable for homestead purposes, while practically all of that in Cook county was entered under the timber and stone act. This result shows a very big demand for land in 1903.

No new towns in St. Louis county were opened during the entire year, but it is expected that some of the remaining land in this section will become available for settlement within a short time. Government surveyors have been working in the vicinity of the new town of Ashawa, and it is expected that plats will be received of at least two towns, close to the Net Lake Indian reservation, before the summer is over.

Up to a little over a year ago people taking government land in Northern Minnesota had little thought of anything except its timber value. It is a well-known fact that, except in a few isolated cases, the land was taken more as a timber speculation than anything else. The choicest farm land was left unfiled on in preference to that with a few hundred thousand feet of pine on it.

But all this is now changed. Most of the timber land has been taken, and that which is now being filed on is taken for its agricultural value alone. Vast natural meadows, rich farms cleared by nature, were passed over for the timber claims up to a short time ago, but the people, especially those from Iowa, have come to recognize the great value of these ready-cleared lands, and lately have eagerly gobbled them up. In the long run they will prove of much greater value than some of the timber lands.

CARLETON INSTRUCTORS

Promoted For Good Work They Have Done.

Northfield, Minn., April 28.—There have been several changes made in the faculty of Carleton college for the ensuing year on account of the resignations of a few of the old members, who have honorably discharged their duties in the various departments as instructors.

Mrs. Ezra Thayer Towne, wife of Mr. Ezra Towne, professor of history and sociology of Carleton, will instruct the classes of the comparative literature.

Professor J. T. Fairchild, who is now in Italy, will be in charge of the classes in college Latin.

Miss Malvine Dean, M. A., now preceptress and instructor of Latin and German at Gates academy, will teach Latin to the academy students.

Benjamin H. Grave, B. S., a recent graduate in John Hopkins' university and physical director, will be instructor in botany and mathematics.

Seely K. Mumphrey, M. A., now instructor in gymnasium work and professor of rhetoric in Oberlin college, will succeed Professor Hunnington, who will teach Bible and rhetoric, and Miss Linnell, in the elocution department, and will be instructor in physical training for the men.

GOVERNMENT DEFEATED IN ATTACK ON JIMINEZ.

New York, April 28—A German steamship, which has arrived from Monte Christi, Santo Domingo, reports that 300 government troops were engaged in the recent attack on the Jiminez force at Guayacan, says a Herald dispatch from St. Thomas, D. W. I. After a fierce battle the government troops were defeated. Their losses were forty-one killed and sixteen wounded. Gens. Babrora, Aroyo and Luu were killed. Twelve of the Jiminez force were killed.

PREDICTS OPENING

Capt. Henrich Puts the Date From May 10 to 15.

Steamers to Reach Sault Ste. Marie By Sunday.

We will see the first boat from the lower lakes in Duluth between May 10 and May 15."

Such is the prediction of Capt. Frank Henrich of the local United States hydrographic office, who has been making a study of the ice conditions on the lakes during the past winter and bases his predictions on an accurate knowledge of the extent of the ice fields.

The ice report of the weather bureau, received today, is the most favorable yet published. It reports a decided softening in the Lake Superior ice fields, with good chances for an early breaking up.

The first open water in the lake was sighted from Duluth during the early part of the week, and the harbor ice is rapidly disappearing. The following is the summary given in the weather bureau report:

"The reports of the ice conditions from the regular and display stations of the weather bureau indicate that ice is softening over the western and eastern portions; no ice is reported off Eagle Harbor. The conditions are more favorable in the St. Mary's river and it is considered that a steamer can reach Sault Ste. Marie by May 1, but the ice in Whitfish bay is solid and would stop further progress. The ice in Green Bay is breaking up and began moving out on Sunday night and Monday. At the Straits the ice is softening up and has moved out of the eastern end, but there is still a large field over the western end that probably extends to the islands. The ice field in Lake Huron has moved off the west shore and will probably become broken up and offer but little obstruction to navigation. In Erie the ice is still confined to the extreme eastern end, but the northerly winds of the past two days have moved the field to the west and is breaking it up. In Ontario there is some ice in the extreme eastern portion. The reports from the Straits indicate they will open about May 1, but the ice in Superior will delay general navigation until about May 10. It is probable that general navigation on the lower lakes and Huron and Michigan may be resumed May 1. The display storm warnings on all lakes but Superior will probably be resumed May 1."

The usual detailed bulletins follow:

Duluth: Harbor ice going rapidly; much water in both bays; long streak of open water in lake eight miles out.

Ashland: Harbor ice 9.6 inches and softening; some water on the ice.

Houghton: Portage lake open for one mile opposite Houghton, remaining ice melting rapidly; canal open; one mile drift ice outside of breakwater; entrance to Portage river open; ice in Keweenaw bay rotting rapidly; at Eagle Harbor there is no ice in sight.

Marquette: Harbor ice 13 inches; it has remained stationary, but is soft and covered with slush and water; it is melting fast.

Munising: Ice still firm and no water in sight.

Grand Marais, Mich.: Harbor ice badly honeycombed; ice fields in the lake as far as eye can reach with some strips of open water; condition the same from Point Sable to Deer Park; east of there the ice is still firm.

Whitefish Point: Ice wasting slowly, otherwise no change.

Sault Ste. Marie: Reliable reports indicate the ice is in poor condition the entire length of the river and that steamers can get through by the end of the week.

DETECTIVE WILKIE

Of Pittsburg In Trouble In South Dakota.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 28.—The joke is on C. H. Wilkie, a Pittsburg detective who came to South Dakota for the purpose of aiding one of the big stock associations in running down cattle "rustlers."

It was stated in these dispatches a few days ago that the United States authorities had a warrant for the arrest of Mr. Wilkie, who is now at Sioux City. He denied this, and threatened to make trouble for some of the papers which printed the story.

There absolutely is no doubt that the warrant in question is now in the office of United States Marshal Kennedy in this city, and will be served at the first opportunity. This warrant charges the detective with the alleged larceny of six or eight head of horses from Indians and others.

In ascertaining beyond a doubt the existence of this warrant, it was discovered that a second warrant for the arrest of Mr. Wilkie is in the possession of the United States marshal in this city. And this is where the joke on Mr. Wilkie comes in. Instead of no warrant having been issued, there are two.

In the second warrant Mr. Wilkie is charged with selling liquor to two Sioux Indians in violation of the federal statutes. The warrants were regularly issued, and the complaints in both cases were made in accordance with the statutes.

ALARMING SPREAD OF MEASLES IN NEW YORK.

New York, April 28.—Officials of the health department report an alarming spread of measles. Many cases have proved fatal, being followed by pneumonia. The department's weekly report shows, in the five boroughs of Greater New York, 1630 cases of measles, with thirty-seven deaths due directly thereto, thirty-seven deaths due directly thereto. Physicians attribute the existing conditions to the severe winter, which caused living rooms to be kept tightly closed at the expense of ventilation.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 28.—The steamship Craigneuk, which went ashore Tuesday night on Brigantine shoals, is still hard aground. The weather is heavy and a rough sea is running.

At the conclusion of arguments by Senators Gallinger, Spooner, Hale and Aldrich in confirmation, and Senators Daniel, Latimer, Gorman and Clay against confirmation, Senator Cockrell suggested the senate proceed to executive business and the suggestion was adopted. Senators Spooner and Daniels, on opposite sides of the question, made the principal speeches.

HERO GETS BRIDE

Man Who Risked Life on Missouri Wins Chicago Girl.

Granted Four Months' Leave of Absence From Navy.

Chicago, April 28.—Four months' leave of absence and the hand of Miss Kathleen Hurley, 6039 Vernon avenue, were Thomas Studdard's rewards for heroism in rescuing wounded sailors after the recent explosion on the battleship Missouri, of which he is chief engineer. He previously had received one medal for bravery.

Studdard was directing his subordinates in the engine room of the vessel when he was knocked to the floor by the explosion which resulted in the death of thirty-two men. Stunned from the shock, his first thought was that a cylinder head had blown out, and he rushed toward the engine. As he neared it several explosions followed in rapid succession, and he ran on deck.

While everything was in confusion the captain called for volunteers to enter the smoke-filled turret and powder rooms and rescue any of the sailors who might be alive. Studdard was among the first to rush forward. The rescuers, almost overcome by the powder smoke, groped their way into the room where dead and wounded lay piled upon each other. At each moment there was a danger of another explosion, but the seamen dragged forth several of the gun crew.

For his bravery the chief engineer immediately was given the shore leave, and at once came to Chicago to visit his brother, Gustave Studdard, chief clerk for Swift & Co. Within a day or so he met Miss Hurley, a younger sister of his brother's wife. Since their introduction a week ago the young sailor's attention to Miss Hurley was marked.

At the breakfast table Tuesday morning Studdard surprised his relatives by announcing that he and Miss Hurley had decided to be married, and that they would leave for England, spending the remainder of the groom's leave of absence with his mother in Brighton. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, at the residence of the brother of the groom and sister of the bride.

Studdard joined the navy ten years ago and was on the battleship Maine when that vessel was destroyed. At the beginning of the war with Spain he was assigned to the Oregon, and after a cruise to Japan was given a post on a seagoing tug stationed at the Brooklyn navy yard. Off Newport, R. I., the craft was sunk and several seamen drowned.

He was the last to leave the vessel, remining until the water was up to his waist and letting the steam out of the boilers to prevent an explosion. For this he was presented a medal, and it is probable that he will be given a second for his bravery on the Missouri.

Miss Hurley is the daughter of Dennis Hurley, a detective at the Fiftieth street station.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Saturday matinee and evening. Blanche Walsh in "Resurrection."

"A ROYAL SLAVE."

At the Lyceum this evening "A Royal Slave" will be given. The plot of the play is taken from Gen. Lew Wallace's great story, "The Fair God." The many beautiful scenes have been painted from photographs taken in Mexico especially for this production and are said to be fine examples of the scenic painter's art.

KENNEDY STOCK COMPANY.

Two fine performances of "The Octoroon" were given yesterday at the Metropolitan. The pretty ring which was given at the matinee was drawn by the holder of number 27. The Flamme Sisters gave an excellent specialty and the illustrated songs were much enjoyed. Tonight "The Midnight Express" will be presented. This is a thrilling melodrama. The Kennedy company is giving good satisfaction.

BLANCHE WALSH.

Blanche Walsh in "Resurrection" will be the attraction at the Lyceum Saturday afternoon and evening. Few managers have been commended by the critics as have Messrs. Wagenhals and Kemper, who produced "Resurrection" at the Victoria theater, New York. Both the acting cast and the production itself was hailed as the best that had been given any play in years. The entire production will be seen here precisely as seen during Miss Walsh's engagement at the Victoria theater, New York.

TO GIVE DULUTH MUCH.

F. H. Richardson Preparing Material For Tourists' Guide.

F. H. Richardson has been in the city about two weeks preparing matter with reference to Duluth and vicinity, which is to go into publications which he will issue, to be known as Richardson's Tourist Guide and Richardson's Travelers' Guide. His idea is to issue something new in this line, claiming that all the guides now circulated are worthless. It will contain no advertisements, and will endeavor to give tourists exact and complete information with reference to all points of interest in the country, his expectation being to derive his profits entirely from the sale of the book.

To Duluth Mr. Richardson will devote far more than the ordinary attention that will be given different points. His article covers all of the points of interest about the city, the boulevard drive, Minnesota Point, London road, the various parks, the ore docks, elevators, etc. The value of agricultural lands in this vicinity is set forth, and the range towns are also given considerable attention. For the information of tourists on the ground there is full information as to railroad and excursion rates, livery prices, street car fares, hotel rates, in fact all of the detailed information a tourist desires.

MOVING ON TO FARMS

Much Machinery and Household Goods Going to Them.

Several carloads of farming implements have been unloaded in Duluth within the past ten days and carried out to the new farms purchared during the past winter in St. Louis county, by people from the southern part of the state and from Iowa.

Others, who have been holding their household effects and tools here in the city until they could get out to their newly purchased property, are moving into the houses that they have built this spring and expect within the next few weeks to begin their season's work.

So much snow and continued cold weather during the early spring has delayed farming operations to a large extent and a few of the settlers from the country adjoining Duluth have been working their teams here in the city while waiting for their own work to open up.

At the present time there are about a dozen farmers living from twelve to twenty miles back from the city, who are hauling stone and dirt on contract excavation work for new buildings to be erected this summer.

During the past two weeks the Boston & Duluth Farm Land company has been distributing among the county farmers a large amount of seeds sent here by Congressman J. Adam Bede, at Washington.

Farming lands are selling well at the present time and the inquiry has been increasing ever since the weather showed signs of warming up alittle.

Some eighteen or twenty families will be located before the middle of the coming month on properties sold for development during the lastwinter and spring.

ABDUCTION CHARGED.

Nary Young Man Is In Serious Trouble.

Bemidji, Minn., April 28.—Julius Gansonge, of this city, swore out a warrant for the arrest of Al Waldon, a Nary young man charging him with the abduction of his 15-year-old daughter from his home in this city.

Waldon had been paying attention to the girl for some time and the parents objected. Finally he was forbidden to come to the house and the parents sat down on the whole romance.

April 12, while the parents slept the sleep of the just came Waldon, a la Lochinvar, except that he had a horse and buggy, and since that time the girl has not been seen by her parents. Recently they learned that she was living with Waldon at Nary and the father promptly took steps to accomplish his arrest. Sheriff Bailey went to Nary yesterday to take Waldon into custody.

AIRSHIP THE COMING FAD.

Pleasure Craft For Sky Travel Latest Sport.

New York, April 28.—Aerial navigation may succeed yachting, golf and automobiling as a sport for wealthy men of luxurious tastes and the day may not be far off when one may be able to witness races in the skies.

Private advices received from Paris have conveyed the interesting information that W. Gould Brokaw, of this city, had placed an order with M. Santos Dumont for the construction of an aëroplane flying machine for Mr. Brokaw's personal use.

According to this intelligence, the French aeronaut already has made his plans for the vehicle after his newest models and will soon come to this country for the purpose of beginning the actual work of building it on Mr. Brokaw's Long Island estate at Great Neck, where a stable shed will be built for its accommodation.

Hitherto Mr. Brokaw's athletic diversions have been largely confined to yachting and automobiling, but of late he has become interested in the possibilities of the flying machine for sporting purposes, and several months ago he and M. Santos Dumont spent some time together at Ormond Beach, Fla., where, it is said, the project was discussed in detail.

However, Mr. Brokaw has up to this time refused to confirm or deny the statement that he has commissioned M. Santos Dumont to build a flying machine for him.

The Paint and Powder club, a new society of amateur actors, made its first appearance before a Duluth audience last evening at the Unitarian church, in two clever little plays. There was but a small attendance, composed principally of the friends of those taking part in the performances.

The first of the two plays, "Sally's Love," is a little curtain raiser, written by Dr. David H. Day. The scene of the play is placed in the wings of a stage during the course of a performance. It tells of the love of a little street waif known as Sally Betts, for the leading man, Laurence Page. Page, however, is in love with the leading lady, who has promised to marry a wealthy admirer. Sally saves the life of Page at the cost of her own. The sacrifice opens the eyes of the lady to the value of love and the two lovers are brought together. It is a very cleverly written little drama and was well presented by the members of the club.

Miss Eva Sawyer, a sister of Adelaide Thurston, took the title role. She is a remarkably clever little actress and should she choose to follow in the footsteps of her sister, will doubtless score an equal triumph.

Miss Ethelyn McCord, as Mary Pagett, made a very charming leading lady, and Miss Jane Everington did good work in the part of Alma Lester.

Dr. Day was cast in the part of Laurance Page, and made a very pleasing lover. Clinton Markell surprised all by his very clever work as Billy Burke, a street gamin. H. S. Carroll as Harry Walcott, Will Coughlan as Frank Forest, Paul Clarkson as John Holmes, and Alan Brackinreed as Dr. Eugene Albert, made the most of the minor parts.

The play may be used as a curtain raiser by the Florence Stone company, and some of the members of the latter company will witness the performance this evening.

Dr. Day was called upon for a speech at the close of the first play, and contented himself with asking the audience to excuse the wait between plays, as the entire force of stage carpenters had to go and wash his hands and make up after shifting the scenery.

The second play, "Lend Me Five Shillings," has served as a vehicle for many noted actors. It gave two other members of the club an opportunity to display their talents. Mrs. W. A. Kaake took the part of Mrs. Major Phobbs in a manner that would cause many a professional actress to look to her laurels. Miss Edna Cargill also made the most of a lesser part.

Dr. Day, as Golightly, was in his element, and played the part with a breeziness and an appreciation of its comicalities that made is just what it should be.

Between the two plays Mr. Coughlan entertained the audience with some very clever impersonations and imitations.

The club on the whole is to be congratulated for the success of the performance, from a dramatic standpoint at least. They will be repeated this evening and a full house is expected.

LACHMUND RECITAL

Large Audience Hears Pupils at Lyceum.

A large and interested audience listened last evening to the tenth annual concert by the pupils of Ernest Lachmund. The program was arranged carefully and each number was well played and the evening's entertainment was a credit to both the pupils and Mr. Lachmund.

A piano trio opened the program. It was "Husaren March," by Gurlitt, and was played by Helen Williams, Gladys Porter and Wayland Hall Sanford. A duet, "Invitation to the Dance," by Weber, was played by Miss Georgiana Fifer, the smallest performer of the evening, and Mr. Lachmund. Miss Katherine Thwing and Miss Dorothy Thwing played "A Little Minstrel," by Sartorio, in a pleasing way.

The solos were all played with ease and good interpretation by the following pupils: Ward Brown, Margaret Craig, Gladys Porter, Grace Parker, Marie Agatin, Albert Porter and Eleanor Pineo. A waltz for the left hand only, by Foote, is something of a novelty. It required fine and exact pedal work. It was played by Miss Helen Marble. Miss Katherine Fiebiger played a Schubert number, "The Trout," splendidly, and the Schubert-Liszt "Military March" was finely played by Miss Dorothy Nichols. Misses Gladys Tyler and Jessie Gibson played a duet, "Country Dance," by Nevin, that was good, and another duet, "Festival March," by Engelmann, played by Louise Hicks and June Carr, was one of the fine numbers of the program. Three duos were played, "Woodnymphs' Wedding March," by Kulan, by Fred Harris, John Christie, Jr., H. Roy Palmer and Nathan Kriz, and Mozart's "Divertisement" was played by Mesdames E. Borth, L. P. Hall, W. W. Sanford and A. M. Lyons. The last number was the stirring finale from "Don Juan," by Mozart, and was played by Misses Maud Kimerer, Elizabeth McDowell, Hazel Cathcart and Florence Mallman.

The assisting artists were Miss Harriet Nobles, Mrs. James F. Walsh and Mrs. James McAuliffe. Miss Nobles sang "Voices of the Past" charmingly. Mrs. Walsh sang the beautiful Greig number, "Autumnal Gale," in her clear, beautiful contralto, and Mrs. McAuliffe sang the "Carmen" aria, "Here Must the Smugglers Dwell," in her usual fine manner. The accompanists were Mrs. J. N. McKindley, Mrs. J. A. Stephenson, Miss Katherine Fiebiger and Emil Dorn.

Entertains at Cards.

Duluth lodge No. 110, I. O. O. F., entertained last evening at cards. Progressive cinch was played and the prizes were won by Mrs. Webber, Mrs. Louis Ebmer, Otto Huller and Burt Evans.

MUSIC TEACHERS.

Something as to State Convention In June.

The Minnesota State Music Teachers' association convention, to be held in Duluth June 16, 17 and 18, promises to be a great success, for the interest shown in the meeting is unusual.

The officers of the association are as follows: President, E. C. Murdock; secretary-treasurer, Ednah F. Hall; first vice-president, Gerard Tonning; auditor, William L. Gray.

Program committee: Carlyle Scott, D. F. Calville, Mrs. Marie Geist-Erd.

Public school music section: Chairman, Elsie M. Shaw.

The program will have for its basis, the educational element and round tables will be a special feature.

The program committee is at work on the program for the three days' meeting, and has been so fortunate as to secure the world-famous violin virtuoso, M. Sauret, for an appearance, June 18. M. Sauret was for years at the head of the Royal conservatory of London, and is one of the greatest attractions before the American public this season.

William J. Henderson, the greatest New York newspaper musical critic, has been engaged to give one of his famous lectures, and will prove a most valuable attraction in an educational way. Mr. Henderson needs no introduction to the musicians of the state, for his musical books on musical subjects are indispensable to the musician's library. With the concerts by state talent, a most valuable session is planned.

One of the annual features most vital to the state musicianship is the home composer's program, which will occupy one evening, giving the public an opportunity to hear what Minnesota musicians are doing in composition.

The beautiful First Methodist church has been secured as the place of meeting, and with its three Manual Hutchin's organ, will afford much scope for the music of that instrument.

Special railroad rates will be secured and the Spalding hotel has been chosen headquarters. All in all, a most instructive and interesting session is planned.

All teachers of voice, organ, piano and standard orchestral instruments are eligible to active memberships, and anyone interested in the cause will be welcome as associate members, upon payment of the annual fee, $2.

The county vice-presidents for St. Louis county are Miss Mable Fulton and Mrs. McAuliffe, who may be addressed at Duluth. Information will be cheerfully given by the secretary-treasurer, Miss Ednah F. Hall, Johnson School of Music, Oratory and Dramatic Art, 42-44 South Eighth street, Minneapolis, Minn.

SUPERINTENDENTS MEET.

Plans For Sunday School Convention Discussed.

Last evening the Sunday school superintendents of the city met together at the Y. W. C. A. rooms. Supper was served and following plans for the Sunday school convention which is to be held here in June were discussed. The convention will be held here June 14 to 17 inclusive, and delegates from all over the state will attend. June 14 is also flag day and the opening exercises will be both religious and patriotic.

Short talks were given as the best ways and means of providing for the convention and there is much enthusiasm among the members. Talks were given by Dr. R. W. Bowdin, who is president of the Duluth Sunday school association, Dr. J. B. Weston, M. W. Bates, Rev. C. F. Davis, Rev. C. R. Sine, T. S. Thomas, W. S. Moore, Rev. R. J. Mooney and C. L. Rakowsky and Miss Edith Scovel. They were all enthusiastic in speaking of the work of the association and glad that its annual convention is to be held here. The speakers for the opening day of the convention will be Rev. Boyle, pastor of the House of Hope Presbyterian church of St. Paul, and Dr. Robert Forbes, of this city.

No More Habit Backs.

The tight-fitting habit back, which was exploited even in linen and pique, has mercifully disappeared, and inverted plaits giving generous fullness are the rule where the broad-stitched box plait is not used, says the New York Sun. A majority of the blouses for these linen shirt waist costumes are made with the broad-front side-plait effect, the outside plait coming well out over the shoulder line. Epaulette straps are upon many of these shirt waists, and an epaulette effect is often given by cutting the sleeve with a box plait continuation which runs up the shoulder to the collar like an epaulette and is stitched flat on its edges.

Box plaited short waists and shirt waists with yokes of various shapes are worn, but the simple shirt waist is preferred by the most prominent makers. They have the French plain backs, or are plaited to match the skirt, or, possibly, a yoke is set flat upon the back of a waist whose front is plaited. The pointed back yoke is usually becoming, and makes an acceptable variation upon the plain French back.

Satinwood Browns.

Every day seems to bring out new shades of brown. Satinwood brown is one of the latest favorites.

Moldore, which is a light golden bronze, is another, and the shell browns have been exceedingly successful. Puce color, a brownish mauve, which is the rage in Paris, has not so far received a very cordial welcome here, says the New York Sun.

Bois de rose, a warm, beautiful French rose, has great vogue, and the French rose petal series of shades, running from palest faded pink to the deeper tone, is exploited in all materials.

American Beauty tones are extensively worn in Paris, but are trying to the average complexion and are a trifle strong for sunny summer days.

MEASURING SOUND.

Waves produced by whistles or bells, or any musical instrument, rush through the air at a rate of about 760 miles per hour, and, in spite of this great speed, fall gently on the ear, says the Philadelphia Record. The pitch of the note heard is decided by the number of waves which reach the ear per second. Thus, a tenor singing the "high C" starts 512 waves on their journey through space every second during which he holds the note; a treble singing the C one octave above is responsible for 1124 waves per second.

Some curious results might arise from this kind of phenomenon. Suppose a band to be playing and a person hastening away from it at the rate of 760 miles per hour, then with the note he hears as he starts ringing in his ears, he flies on, and hears no more so long as he keeps up the pace. Should he move toward the band at this rate, every note immediately rises one octave; while if his rate becomes 1520 miles per hour, he overtakes the waves the band has already sent in the opposite direction, and then beats the tune backward.

It has been found and measured that light travels from the sun to the earth in about eight minutes. This means the enormous velocity of over 186,000 miles per second, a velocity which has been many times measured. Science teaches that this is the rate at which light-waves (of which about 50,000 go to the inch) move through the space between us and the sun, and that they move through the air at a very slightly lower rate.

It is, I think, generally known that the light reaching us from the sun is composed of many colors blended together. The phrase "all the colors of the rainbow," applies to sunlight in which all these colors are mingled, and from which they are separated when the sun's rays fall upon raindrops, pieces of glass, diamonds and other material. Now, to each color corresponds a particular length of wave. There are 57,000 blue waves to one inch and 37,000 red. What would happen if an observer were to travel toward an object giving out a red light? It is easy to see that the "pitch," or color, would rise by an amount depending upon the rate of approach. But, in consequence of the very great speed of all light waves, this velocity of approach would also have to be very great. Another easy calculation tells us that a rise of one "tone" of color—for example, from yellow to green—would be noticed could we approach a yellow light at the speed of 21,000 miles per second. This is, of course, impossible to realize; but it is not necessary that the note should rise a whole "tone" for the change to be perceived, any more than such a change is necessary in the pitch of a sounding cycle bell.

PIG IRON IS DULL

But Little Pressure to Sell In Any of the Markets.

Good Progress Made to Save the Ore Association.

New York, April 28.—The lake ore interests made good progress, says the Iron Age, in their efforts to save the ore association, the negotiations thus far having led to the adoption of a schedule of prices on the basis of $3.50 per ton for old range Bessemer ores and $3.25 per ton for Mesaba Bessemers, a differential, therefore, of only 25 cents per ton. Last year the base price was $4.50, while for the preceding season it was $4.25.

The question of tonnage and allotments is to be taken up at the next meeting at Cleveland May 3. Some of the producing interests which sell in the open market insist that allotments shall apply both to the tonnages which go to the plants owned by the large steel companies and to the tonnage which is to be sold in the open market. It is estimated that less than 2,000,000 tons in all are to be sold, while the stock now on hand at lower lake ports and at furnaces is about 6,000,000 tons. It is figured that less than 15,000,000 tons need be brought down for the coming season to the spring of 1905.

The Bessemer pig iron market is exceedingly quiet, and in the Pittsburg district iron is offered freely for May delivery at $13 at furnace, while basic is offered freely at $12.75.

There is no truth in the reports that the United States Steel corporation has purchased any Bessemer pig during the past week for May delivery. We understand that the corporation is now producing pig iron at the rate of 175,000 tons per week, or more than ever before in its history.

From nearly all the main distributing markets come the complaint of dullness in pig iron, but with little actual pressure to sell. By the middle of next month, however, the question of covering requirements for the greater part of the third quarter will come up seriously, ntil then there will be little more than maneuvering. Some irregularity has resulted in the Central West from a cut in freight rates ranging between 10 and 20 cents on Southern pig iron to points north of the Ohio river.

The contract for the first lot of castings for the Pennsylvania tunnel has not yet been placed. Some leading founders have practically withdrawn because they decline to meet the prices which it is intimated have been named. Rumor has it that $27 a net ton for the finished tunnel sections has been bid.

The cast iron pipe trade is quite busy. Among the larger work which is being figured on is 15,000 tons for Cincinnati.

Employment in the heavier lines of finished iron and steel continues light, and yet the tonnage of steel which goes into consumption is enormous. It is stated that the leading interest is producing from 185,000 to 187,000 tons of ingots per week, against a record in the boom days of rail, plate and beam consumption of 216,000 tons in one week. This is due to the enormous demand in the lighter products. Wire has had some record months lately, and even though it is pretty sure to fall off, now that the spring demand is drawing to a close, it will take full work for two months at the mills to put the broken stocks at distributing centers into normal shape. The tin plate mills are running practically up to the full capacity.

The tonnage of sheets is much better than it has been, but prices are somewhat irregular. The same is true of bars. There is quite a good export demand for sheet bars, the commitments in which, during the next few months, run at the rate of between 20,000 and 25,000 tons a month. Old material is weak in nearly all leading markets.

AMPLE SUPPLY OF COKE.

Scottdale, Pa., April 28.—It is becoming more and more evident from the almost stationary condition of the coke trade that for the present, at least, the supply is fully up to the demand. The large amount of coke, which has been stocked on the yards during January and February, has been reduced steadily, until it has ceased to be much of a hindrance to operations. With the number of ovens burning now the operations can supply present demands and keep the market steady without danger of overproduction. Though production for the past week increased a little over 2000 tons, the shipments fell off nearly 0000 tons.

GET TWO CONTRACTS.

Knudsen & Eden Land Them For Stevedore Work.

The Western Transit company and the Mutual Transit company have awarded to Knudsen & Eden of this city the contracts to do all their stevedore work in the Duluth harbor, this year, at all the docks except those of the Northern Pacific company. The contracts provide for grain trimming in the boats in addition to the handling of freight.

The Mutual Transit company includes in its fleet the boats formerly in the Northern Steamship company's fleet.

Knudsen & Eden had the contract for the stevedore work for the Northern Pacific company last year, but this season the railway company has decided to look after its own work.

The Western Transit company began receiving west-bound shipments at Buffalo on April 18, but the boats will not leave Buffalo for Duluth before May 10.

TAKING DESPERATE CHANCES.

It is true that many contract colds and recover from them without taking any precaution or treatment, and it is knowledge of this fact leads others to take their chance instead of giving their colds the needed attention. It should be borne in mind that every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality, makes the system less able to withstand each succeeding cold and paves the way for more serious diseases. Can you afford to take such desperate chances when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of colds, can be had for a trifle For sale by all druggists.

TERRITORIAL PIONEERS.

Annual Meeting of Minnesota Association, May 11.

The Minnesota Territorial Pioneers' association will hold its annual meeting this year at the log cabin on the state fair grounds, May 11, according to a notice received by Capt. T. H. Pressnell, a member of the executive committee.

Members of the association are scattered all over the state, about twenty-five of them residing in Duluth. Probably all but two or three of these will attend the annual session. A basket picnic, each furnishing his own lunch, will be one of the features of the meeting. Following this will be the business session. After the business has been transacted music and old-fashioned dances will occupy the attention of the pioneers. In the evening there will be a stereopticon exhibition of pioneer scenes in Minnesota at the state capitol.

The executive committee held a meeting at St. Paul Tuesday, but the captain was unable to attend. At the meeting a report of the work done last May, as read by Secretary G. H. Hazzard, showed that the records have been thoroughly overhauled, and a card index prepared for the 2000 territorial pioneers, and of 215 pioneers who have died. The receipts for this year have been $733.83, as compared with $283 00 last year.

PARKER IS CHOICE

Of All the Democratic Delegates Elected In Tennessee.

Fight Over the Senatorship Is Bitter and Exciting.

Nashville, Tenn., April 28.—The delegates so far chosen in the districts to the Democratic National convention are all, with one exception, for Parker, and the exception—J. D. Hunt, of Jackson—says that if it is shown that Parker supported Bryan in his two races he will vote for him.

The delegates at large will be Senator Carmack, who will lead the delegation; Judge John K. Shields, of the supreme bench; James M. Head, former mayor of Nashville, and either Ex-secretary of State W. S. Morgan, Ex-senator Newton H. White or J. E. Edgington. The chances favor White. All of these have announced themselves for Parker.

When the Democratic convention meets in May it will renominate Governer James B. Frazier, and in all likelihood declare for the Adams liquor law. If such action is taken many Republican temperance men will undoubtedly vote for Frazier. The feeling on the liquor question is very bitter in Tennessee. It threatens to seriously disrupt party lines. Nevertheless there is practically no danger of Democratic defeat. The Democrats have the machinery, and then the anti-negro feeling is so strong among the people that they will not support any party that affiliates with the man in black.

The bitterest and most exciting contest in Tennessee is over the United States senatorship. The candidates are Gen. William B. Bate, who is now trying to be elected for the fourth time, and former Congressman and Governor Benton McMillin. Many counties have already passed upon the claims of these respective gentlemen, but neither has much over twenty votes, and it will require fifty to win in the legislative caucus. Gen. Bate has the almost solid support of the old confederate soldiers, he being one of the last of the rebel brigadiers, while Governor McMillin is supported by his machine built up during his incumbency of the executive chair and many of the younger and more aggressive Democrats of the state. McMillin is also a better mixer than his aged opponent, and to this is due his victory in this county recently, when he beat Gen. Bate more than 700 votes in a primary to instruct Davidson county's nine legislators on the senatorial question. This was a conspicuous victory for McMillin, and this is Bate's home county. Most of the state leaders are against McMillin, so it cannot now be told what will be the result of the contest.

Outside of liquor there is no state issue of importance this year.

Several constitutional amendments are to be voted on by the people in November. The principal ones provide for a four-year term for the governor ,the election of secretary of state, controller and treasurer for four year terms by the people instead of by the legislature, as heretofore, and an amendment limiting the bonded debt of the cities and counties to 10 per cent of the assessed valuation of property in such cities and counties. Another amendment gives cities and counties power to release new industries from taxation for ten years provided a majority of the voters so declare.

There are Democratic contests for congressional nominations in the Fourth, Fifth, Eighth and Ninth districts. Sims may be beaten for renomination in the Eighth, but his friends doubt it, and Rice Pierce is having a hard time to secure renomination in the Ninth. There are four candidates for the renomination in the Fifth and three in the Fourth. It is too early yet to pick the winners. There will be no change in the political complexion of the delegation. It will stand two Republicans and eight Democrats. The Republicans have no chance except in the two upper East Tennessee districts. W. P. Brownlow will be returned from the First and N. W. Hale will take Gibson's place in the Second. Moon in the Third, Gaines in the Sixth, Padgett in the Seventh and Patterson in the Tenth, all Democrats, will be re-elected.

The editor of Judge makes this characteristic comment on the March issue of The Four-Track News:

Commercial people and romantic people, matter-of-fact people and lotos-eating people with a past, spot-cash people and installment people, people that travel and people that stay at home—in short, the people will all find something or other in The Four Track News for March that will cause them to look for the April number and send in their subscriptions for this magazine, beginning with the January issue. It is a gilt-edged symphony played on joy-bells, and is warranted to cause mental rheumatism and indigestion to crumble and melt away like a plateful of buckwheat cakes before the fiery, untamed appetite of an Adirondack hunter.

BEAN PROMOTED

Brainerd, Minn., April 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—S. L. Bean, at one time master mechanic for the Northern Pacific and superintendent of the shops at this point, has ben promoted on the Santa Fe. He left here about a year and a half ago for Albuquerque, N. M., to accept the position of master mechanic for the Santa Fe at that place. He has now been made mechanical superintendent, with headquarters at Los Angeles.

The death of Mrs. T. C. Blewitt, wife of Judge Blewitt of this city, occurred Tuesday evening at St. Joseph's hospital.

KNOX HAS DONE LITTLE

Makes Reply to House Resolution of Inquiry.

Washington, April 28.—Attorney General Knox yesterday transmitted to the house replies to the two resolutions of inquiry, introduced by Mr. Williams (Miss.) relative to trusts.

First, replying to the question as to whether any criminal prosecutions had been begun by him against persons involved in the decision of the supreme court of the United States in the Northern Securities case as guilty of violating the laws by entering into combinations in restraint of trade, the attorney general says:

"I have the honor to say that no criminal prosecutions have been instituted against the persons referred to in the resolutions, and that further than this, I do not deem it compatible with the public interest to comply with the resolution.

The other resolutions asks if any investigation ever was made by the department of justice of the so-called anthracite coal trust, consisting of the anthracite coal carrying railroads. The attorney general replies to this as follows: "I have the honor to say that during the time of the anthracite coal strike the department of justice began an investigation for the purpose of determining whether the anthracite coal business was conducted through a combination or conspiracy, in violation of the anti-trust act of 1890.

"This investigation had not proceeded far until I discovered that if such a combination existed, the evidence of its existence had been adroitly concealed, and that if it was to be established, would largely depend upon the government's ability to secure evidence of a chain of circumstances which, in the aggregates, would establish a combination.

"In view of the fact that this department possessed no powers to compel the production of books and papers, to examine with under oath, I opened up the subject through a representative of the department of justice, with a representative of the interstate commerce commission, as to the advisability of the interstate commerce commission making a general investigation into the general question as to whether the anthracite coal roads were engaged in pooling, charging exorbitant rates for the transportation of coal, preventing the coal from reaching its natural markets, and in short, of obtaining, through the powers of the commission, evidence of the facts, the suggestion being that the commission should, in this respect, and without its functions, remain inactive, which led to the developments of the facts upon which the general government base its case against the joint traffic association, and later against the Northern Securities company.

"About this time a complaint was made before the interstate commerce commission, raising the questions above referred to. During the progress of the hearing before the committee upon this complaint, several witnesses refused to produce papers and answer questions which the commission considered, and ruled to be germane to the inquiry; whereupon, under the direction of the attorney general, proceedings were begun in the United States circuit court, in New York, for the purpose of compelling the coal companies to produce papers and answer questions.

"The circuit court dismissed the petition of the interstate commerce commission, whereupon an appeal was taken by the United States under the act of Feb. 19, 1903, directly to the supreme court of the United States.

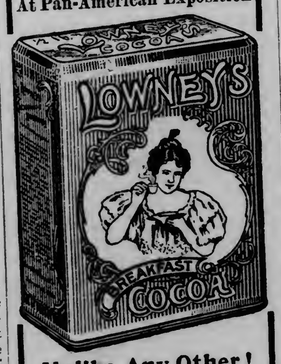

"On the motion of the attorney general the case was advanced and argued by a the, and a special assistant attorney, representative of the department of justice at the instance of the interstate commerce commission.

"This appeal was decided in favor of the powers of the commission to compel the production of the testimony, and as I am informed the commission is about to renew the hearings, which, when completed, will lay before the department of justice in connection with other evidence it has gathered itself and has been furnished to it by sundry persons, all the available information in relation to the alleged combination.

"Further than this I do not deem it compatible with the public interest to comply with the resolution."

POLITICAL ROT

Heatwole Calls Charges About a Bulldozing Campaign.

July 1 Generally Favored as Date For State Convention.

St. Paul, April 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The charge of the supporters of Judge Loren W. Collins, of St. Cloud, that Robert C. Dunn, of Princeton, is conducting a "bulldozing" campaign and that his managers, by threats of political annihilation and by intimidation are attempting to line up for the Princeton candidate all Republicans that come to the Twin Cities is strenuously denied by Mr. Dunn's managers.

Joel P. Heatwole, of Northfield, Mr. Dunn's leading manager, yesterday characterized the story which appeared in a Minneapolis paper as "political rot."

"You can say for me," said Mr. Heatwole, "that any paper that publishes such stuff as that is a shade yellower than the New York Journel. It merely shows that the Collins men are crawlshing all along the line."

"The best way to refute such peanut politics as that is to keep silent entirely," said another of Mr. Dunn's managers.

The article in the Minneapolis paper which has aroused the ire of the Dunn men, says, among other things:

"There are a good many Republicans who would like to see the state convention over and the governorship fight settled. They are the people who have to stand the 'bulldozing' of R. C. Dunn's campaign managers for the last three months. Several Republicans from outside the Twin Cities have related harrowing experiences at the Merchants hotel (St. Paul), where they have been set upon, pleaded with and threatened until they have been about worn out, all because they would not say they were for the Princeton candidate. One,at least, was openly abused in the presence of a number of people because he had the temerity to say that he could not support Dunn.

"Here in Hennepin county, candidates for offices and officeholders have been threatened with political death if they did not climb on the Dunn band wagon. The local managers of the Dunn campaign have not been satisfied with a neutral attitude. They tried to force Ray Jones to unite forces with them and threatened to 'fix' him if he would not come in line.

"The same game of bluff was tried on Frank M. Nye before his withdrawal from the congressional contest, and was promptly called by him."

The gubernational campaign in St. Paul is in abeyance on account of the city campaign. Judge Collins and Mr. Dunn both spend most of their time in the capitol city, but neither they nor their managers are paying much attention to Ramsey county just now. Each has several stenographers at work copying letters to Republicans all over the state and several lieutenants who watch those who come in on the trains.

Both candidates for governor are keeping aloof from the city campaign, although some of their ardent supporters who live in St. Paul are engaged in the fight. Many of the younger Republicans who are working for the election of Col. Wright, the Republican candidate for mayor, are Collins men, and the Dunn men accuse them of doing considerable work on the side for the St. Cloud candidate. The Collins men, on the other hand, say that Dunn's St. Paul managers are secretly opposed to the Republican candidates and in an underhand way are trying to defeat them.

There is considerable discussion among the Republicans of St. Paul on the question of fixing the date for the state convention for nominating state officers. The overwhelming sentiment at present is in favor of the 1st of July. June 1 has been proposed by some who favor an early convention, but many believe that the date should not be before June 21, the date of the national convention at Chicago. Others object to June 1 on the ground that farmers will be particularly busy about that time on account of the backwardness of the spring.

"If Judge Simpson, of Minneapolis, should consent to run for the Republican nomination for congress, he would be nominated and elected," said Robert Jamison, Governor Van Sant's private secretary, yesterday. "But Judge Simpson doesn't want to be congressman. He has a better job, one that pays $5000 a year and carries more honor than a seat in congress. Judge Simpson will not leave his seat on the district bench for a place in congress."

The congressional situation in Hennepin county is no nearer a solution than it has been for several months. No one has yet volunteered to oppose Loren Fletcher; several Republicans who have been mentioned have refused to consider the matter. W. E. Hale is one of the latest to steer clear of the contest. W. T. Coe is looking the field over.

Senator Thomas Torson, of St. James, announces that he will not be a candidate for the Republican nomination for railroad and warehouse commissioner.

"I have looked up the law," said Senator Torson yesterday, "and I find a state senator cannot be elected to a state office during the term for which he was elected state senator, whether he resigns or not. So, of course, I shall not make the run."

* * *

Former Senator E. T. Young, of Appleton, candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general, is spending a few days in the Twin Cities looking after his campaign. He is well satisfied with the outlook all over the state. He says he is taking no part in the governorship contest.

Sue For Large Sum.

William Hurley and his wife, Catherine Hurley, have started suits in district court against the Duluth Street Railway company to recover amounts aggregating $10,511.

Mrs. Hurley claims that while getting off a car at Garfield avenue, May 23, 1903, it started suddenly and she was given a violent jerk, that inflicted numerous injuries. She asks $10,000 general damages and $100 for doctor's bills.

Mr. Hurley sues for $411 for the loss of his wife's services during the time she was sick.

A Plea For Liberty.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I read with much interest your article, "Is Baseball Immoral?" in your issue of April 20. The position you take is worthy of all praise. It takes a free man to know what freedom is. Only the free can carry a torch. Liberty sends light. There are, however, a few points you left untouched. The demands of the resolutions are extravagant. You ask: "Is it because it discourages church going and contemplation of things sacred?" The law has no right to interfere with church going or things sacred. Who is going to say what is, or is not, sacred amongst people of so many different customs, manners and tastes? Above all things sacred, liberty is the most sacred. Further on you ask: "Is it because it is against the law?" and conclude that: "Hundreds of things are constantly done in Minnesota that are forbidden by law and yet these laws are so plainly unjust that nobody desires to have them enforced. That is a result of public sentiment, without the backing of which no law is worth the paper it is printed on." Right you are. All true Americans will honor your announcement. These laws, for the most part, were made and enforced by those, who, finding no strength in logic, appealed to the legislature—by the numerically strong and intellectually weak. When laws become unbearable they should be repealed. No man in authority cares to enforce laws that are reason scorns. We might use the words of Goethe:

"The times are changed, old systems fall,
And new life o'er their ruins dawns."

Who is to say whether an act is moral or immoral any more than some one would undertake to say what is poetry, music or art? People of different surroundings, different intellectual and ethical developments have different ideas of morality. Christian women exhibit their faces; the Mohammedandi display their feet. The morality of an act does not depend upon the sanction of church or state. Is it necessary to be good only to be stupid to be respectable? Does purity depend upon paralysis? Is good society to be found only in stagnations? The morality of an act depends largely, upon its consequences. That is moral which produces general happiness. The people should not beg or buy their liberty to seek happiness. It is a natural right. They should insist on having it. Let the people have liberty to seek happiness in their own way—at their own expense—liberty to act as they please, providing that they do not injure others or degrade themselves. Let the Epworth leagues have their rights and nothing more, the people their rights and nothing less. More liberty! More light! Death to superstition! Down with bigotry!

POLICE KILL NEGRO AFTER FIERCE BATTLE.

Oakland, Cal., April 28.—After a fierce battle between the police and Wilson Anderson, a negro, lasting ten hours, Anderson was shot and killed yesterday. Anderson had driven a white woman and a colored porter from the house at Fourth and Broadway, where he lived, at the point of a pistol, and when Policemen Sherry and Ford attempted to arrest the negro, he barricaded the doors and windows and fired at everyone who appeared.

About twelve police officers surrounded the house and a running battle was kept up, over 100 shots being fired by the police. Finally Officer Sherry stole up to a window and fired, wounding the negro. From another direction Sergt. Clark fired into the room. The negro fell to the floor and the officers rushed into the house and captured him. There were nine bullets in his body.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Mrs. Dewitt Accused of Killing Her Daughter.

Binghamton, N. Y., April 28.—Mrs. Henrietta Dewitt was arrested yesterday charged with murder in the first degree, in causing the death of her 17-year-old daughter, Florence Mackintosh, by poisoning her with arsenic.

Until yesterday Mrs. Dewitt had always called the girl her step-daughter. Yesterday she admitted that Florence was her own child.

The evidence before the coroner's jury pointed strongly toward the mother having caused the girl's death to obtain $2000 life insurance.

Mrs. Dewitt, when arraigned before the coroner, was apparently the most unconcerned person in the room, taking her seat and picking up a paper to read about her case. She waived examination and was held for the grand jury.

POORHOUSE IS REFUGE

Of Old Man Whose Money Was Stolen.

Wabash, Ind., April 28.—John Koonz, aged 80, a resident of Wabash county, this week went to the poor house as the result of a robbery of which he was the victim a week ago. He was staying at the home of Scott Reno, in this city, and about a week ago a little sack in which was $400 was stolen as he sept. The old man was heart-broken, and started for the county infirmary, where he expects to remain. Two young men living in the neighborhood disappeared immediately after the money was taken, and it is presumed that they know something of the case.

ARCHITECT SUES FAIR.

St. Louis, April 28.—Cass Gilbert, of New York, architect of the art palace and festival hall at the World's fair, yesterday tendered his resignation to President D. R. Francis as a member of the commission of architects. Immediately after tendering his resignation, Mr. Gilbert brought suit against the Louisiana Purchase Exposition company in the United States circuit court here to secure $47,000, which he alleges is due him as the balance on his contract of $78,000.

THE STAR COURSE

Series of Entertainments Arranged For Next Year.

Campanari, Famous Baritone, to Be the Musical Attraction.

The Star Lecture course for next year has been made up and a series of attractions that will prove in every way as brilliant as those furnished during the season just closing, has been engaged. The same plan has been followed as this year, eight numbers being presented, and these of the most expensive offered by the lecture bureaus of the country and covering a wide variety.

As was the case this year there will be one musical attraction, but this will be of the very highest character. The Campanari company has been booked for this. The company is headed by the great baritone, Signor Campanari, one of the greatest and best known singers of the world, a man who enjoys alone the distinction of having been engaged by the Metropolitan Grand Opera company of New York for twelve consecutive years. He has always been a favorite artist in tours with such great singers as Melba, Nordia, Nelson and others, and is the most versatile and satisfactory baritones of the grand opera roles.

Campanari will be supported by a company consisting of Mme. Ruby Cutter Savage, soprano; Miss Dorothy Hoyle, violinist, and War Stephens, pianist and accompanist.

The lectures in their order will be:

Hon J. P. Dolliver, United States senator from Iowa, on "A Poor Man's Government and a Poor Boy's Country." Mr. Dolliver lectured here a couple of years ago and made a very fine impression.

Hon. Charles B. Landis, congressman from Indiana, on "The Mission of the Anglo-Saxon." Congressman Landis is one of the very bright men of the house, one whose name is frequently found in the reports of the conspicuous debates of the house.

De Witt Miller, on "The Use of Ugliness." Mr. Miller has been on the platform for a number of years, and is one of the men in greatest demand.

Robert Stuart MacArthur, D. D., LL.D., on "The Empire of the Czar, the Great Bear of the North." Dr. MacArthur is pastor of Calvary Baptist church, of New York city, and one of the great preachers of the country. His lecture on Russia is very popular.

George R. Wendling, on "The Man of Galilee." Mr. Wendling delivered this great lecture in Duluth about ten years ago, and ever since then the Star course has been besieged with requests for its repetition, so profound was the impression it made. It is an analysis of the claims of Christ to divinity, as made by a lawyer, a consideration of the evidence in the case, as it were.

Larado Taft, the well known sculptor of Chicago, will give an illustrated lecture on sculpture, modeling in clay before the audience. Mr. Taft's position in art is so thoroughly recognized and so familiar to all who pay any attention at all to art, that he needs no recommendation.

The eighth and last attraction will be John T. McCutcheon, the famous cartoonist, formerly with the Chicago Record-Herald, and now with the Chicago Tribune. Mr. McCutcheon's cartoons are among the most widely known and the very cleverest in the country. His series caricaturing the attentions paid to Prince Henry on the occasion of his visit to this country, a few years ago, were among the cleverest ever perpetrated by an American cartoonist. His daily cartoon is eagerly watched for by the readers of his publication.

WATCHING FOR FLOOD.

Residents of Lowland Moving to High Places.

Crookston, April 28.—The relief that has been occasioned by the fact that the river is slowly receding is being shaken by the reports that come from up the river. Although during the past eighteen hours the river has steadily gone down, it has raised all day at Thief River Falls and is still raising there. At that point traffic over the stage routes is almost impossible. The large jam at Red Lake Falls has not broken as yet, and they are now in hopes that they can hold the logs back. They are strengthening the jam in all possible ways and are keeping day and night watches so as to notify the people living on the banks of the river if it should break. A message will be sent to Crookston if the logs start down, and everything possible will be done to stay their progress.

The water has been almost stationary at the falls today. All of the lower portions of the city are still under water, and the families who were forced to vacate will not be able to return to their homes for some time. All night Saturday they were moving from the flats and all of the teams that could be secured were pressed into the service of the movers. Jerome's addition was shut off from town, except by the railroad bridge, which was used by hundreds as a means of witnessing the sights that were a part of the flood and as a means of reaching town by the residents. Special police were stationed on the bridges Saturday and Sunday nights, and will remain there to watch the river. Men are kept busy repairing the dikes and strengthening them against the flood. In many places, where the water has not come into the houses the yards are so flooded that a boat is necessary to ferry the people from their dwellings to high land. At present the excitement is not so intense, and while the river may fluctuate for a while, it will remain about where it is for some time.

THE DEACON'S DEFECTION

By Kennett Harris.

Jimsonville was a ferment of excitement. This was somewhat unusual for Jimsonville, because things had a way of not happening there. Uncle Billy Stebbens could remember the time when the Second Baptist church steeple blew down and "come within ten rods o' mashin' Lafe Walker's youngest inter the ground," and a circus visited Freedomburg in '72, and Freedomburg is less than five miles from Jimsonville. Of course, there were elections and occasional dog fights, but in the main the town's normal condition was far from frenzied. It took the appearance of Jack the Kisser to work the inhabitants to that pitch.

Belle Jackson was the first victim. Belle was a particularly plump and kissable girl and her report of the outrage to which she had been subjected occasioned no surprise. She was returning from Wilkenses with a tin pail of milk one evening about dark when a man met her—"a tall man, dressed in dark clothes, kind o' middle aged, with a red beard an' fair complected." This person, without offering any explanations or excuse for his unconventional behavior, placed his arm around the young woman's waist and imprinted a fervent salute upon her ruby lips. She was afraid to struggle for fear of spilling the milk and before she could recover from her surprise the man had disappeared.

Miss Caroline Gansing, the dressmaker, was kissed a night or two later. It was almost dark when this happened, which, some of the women said, accounted for it. In consequence of the darkness Miss Gansing could not give a very good description of her assailant, but she was sure that he was tall.

"You didn't have to stoop then?" insinuated Mrs. Cal Stevens, to whom the dressmaker was relating the story of the rude assault. But Cal Stevens' wife always did have a mean tongue.

Rhoda Wilkins was the next. She was going along the same road traversed by Belle Jackson when the kisser embraced her with the same dexterity and in the same ardent manner he had shown on the two previous occasions. It began to grow serious, Mrs. Payne, who never thought that the kisser would have the boldness to attack a married woman, and in this belief ventured the dangerous highway, found out her mistake. She was kissed too, and three other married women were obliged to submit to the same indignity within two weeks. 'Lisha Payne got out his shotgun and lay in wait the best part of one night and other exasperated husbands and swains watched for the osculatory maniac, but in vain. For a time, at least, Jack the Kisser seemed to have disappeared.

Mrs. Malachi Blevins was one of the few who had escaped the terrible embraces of the mysterious unknown. She remarked that she would like to see the color of the hair of any two-legged man who would dare to kiss her. She did not intend the remark to be taken literally. In spite of her immunity, however, Deacon Malachi showed perhaps as much excitement and indignation as any man in town.

"I'd jest like ter ketch a holt of him," he said to Mrs. Plimpsey. "I'm a law abidin' man an' a man o' peace, but such doin's is scan'lous, an' I'd be apt to make an example of him."

Mrs. Plimpsey was a widow, black-eyed and buxom and of a cheerful disposition. She tenanted one of the deacon's two houses and he had stopped in like a good landlord, to see if there was anything that needed fixing around the place. He had found the widow perched on a stepladder washing the parlor window, and she said that if he'd excuse her she'd just go right on with her work, as she could talk to him just as well. The deacon couldn't hardly help noticin' that she had a mighty shapely ankle. He approved of plaids, although he was, of course, too modest a man to say so.

"Gracious" exclaimed Mrs. Plimpsey, "I never saw you so fierce, deacon. I sh'd think, though, that if people didn't want to get kissed they might keep away from the Wilkinses' lane evenin's."

"Well," said the deacon, "they might, mebbe, but I don't reckon they go 'ceptin' out of a harmless female curiosity, an' they've a right to go. I don't blame 'em. But this Jack, he orter be rid on a white oak rail. The idee, that a good lookin' woman can't go where she dum pleases, an' feel safe!"

The widow smiled. "You don't need to hold that ladder, deacon," she said. "I guess its safe now," she continued. "Anyways I've promised to go over to Wilkinses myself this evenin'."

"No!" exclaimed the deacon, "don't you do it, Mis' Plimpsey."

"I'll take chances," said the widow, giving him a coquettish glance, "I guess there ain't anybody'd want to kiss me."

"Come down off'n that there ladder a minit," said the deacon, with a flushing face.

"I'm not through yet," said Mrs. Plimpsey, calmly, 'an' I think I see Mis' Blevins startin' out of her front gate. Maybe she's lookin' for you."

The deacon started and hastily picked up his hat.

"I reckon it's time I was goin'," he said. "If you don't mind I'll let myself out o' the back door. He had reached the parlor door, when he turned back.

"You're jokin' about goin' through that lane this evenin', ain't you?" he asked.

"No," she answered, "I don't think I'l be bothered. Yes, it is Mis' Blevins an' she's a comin' here."

The deacon bolted.

When Mrs. Plimpsey suddenly felt herself in the sudden clasp of a pair of strong arms in the gloom of the Wilkinses lane that evening, she possibly regretted that she had not heeded the deacon's advice, but at all events she retained her self-possession. Recognizing the futility of resistance she merely surrendered her lips to the spoiler, but just as he drew away for breath she made a sudden snatch at the red beard that was pressing her and Jack the Kisser, starting back, disclosed beneath his slouched hat the countenance of Deacon Malachi Blevins—and a rueful countenance it was, too.

"Deacon!" said Mrs. Plimpsey, reproachfully. "Can this be you?"

The deacon hung his head.

"What do you suppose Mrs. Blevins will say when I tell her this?" demanded the widow, sternly.

"Yon ain't goin' to tell her, are you?" asked the deacon, imploringly. "Say you won't. You don't know what she is or you wouldn't. I don't believe I'll ever have done this if it hadn't been for her. She's jest blue vit'rol an' cold pizen, is Mis' Blevins. She's helt me down and made life a misery every time I looked crosseyed at a woman, an' I allus liked wimmen, in an innercent way. Between her an' sustainin' a repertation I've be'n a tol'able miserable man, an' lately I got despr'it, an' kicked over the traces. You wouldn't tell her—Bessy?"

"I think you ought to be ashamed of yourself," said Mrs. Plimpsey, "I think I ought to tell. I declare I'm afraid of you."

"You don't need to be."

"I am. If I don't tell will you behave yourself and not go round kissing young girls again?"

"Honest, I never will—Bessy," said the deacon.

"I had of had an idea it was you," said the widow presently, "—but I'd never have believed you had the spunk."

BISHOP GALLOWAY

Denies That Race War Worries the South.

Birmingham, Ala., April 28.—"The South and the Negro" was the subject of an address delivered here by Bishop Charles B. Galloway, who is one of the most distinguished clergymen in the South. In the course of his address the bishop said:

"In the South there never will be any social mingling of the races. They will worship in separate churches and be educated in separate schools. This is alike desired by both races and is for the good of each.

"The political power of this section will remain in present hands. The great body of the negroes are here to stay. Their coerced colonization would be a crime, and their deportation a physical impossibility. And the white people are less anxious for them to go than they are to leave. They are natives and not intruders."

MERCHANT SHOT

And Severely Wounded By His Brother.

Albert Lea, Minn., April 28.—Yesterday Peter Donahue, a merchant of Twin Lakes, a village a few miles southwest of this city on the Minneapolis & St. Louis road, was shot by his half-brother, Patrick Donahue.

The cause of the shooting was trouble over the settlement of the estate of the men's father. The would-be assassin is in custody. The wounded man's condition is serious.

L. D. Perkins, while making connections for gas in the basement of P. A. Nelson's house was suffocated. He was taken out and worked over, but life was extinct. He was about 28 and married.

CHOKED TO DEATH.

Deer River, Minn., April 28.—Robert D. McLean, a lumber camp cook, choked to death while in a saloon here today. The body was taken to Grand Rapids by Coroner Russell, for burial. McLean was 60 years of age.

WHEAT HAS BULGE

After Weak Opening Market Has a Good Advance.

Small Receipts Beginning to Have Effect—Flax Higher.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 28.—Wheat was weaker at the opening today, largely through the influence of good reports from the Western and Southwestern wheat districts, but it soon turned stronger and advanced throughout the morning, finally closing with advances of better than a cent in most markets. Damage reports continue to come from the Ohio valley and they are of the most pessimistic kind. Small receipts are beginning to have an effect, too, and today's of but little more than one-third what they were a year ago received much notice. The market has a strong undertone and local exporters say that the foreigners show that they want wheat and considerable of it and believe that a few days more with the market strong will bring good buying. Broomhall cabled today that there is a good demand for wheat cargoes. The Liverpool market closed 1@2¾d higher, Berlin ⅝c higher, and Antwerp unchanged.

Minneapolis wires that country mills are buying wheat in that market and paying good premiums to get it.

Argentine shipments are estimated by Broomhall to be 2,200,000 bus this week. Weather is again favorable in Argentine.

Wheat in the Duluth market showed gains of 1⅝c in both May and July. In Chicago 1½c in May and ¾@⅞c in July. In Minneapolis ⅞c in May and ¾c in July and in New York 1⅛c in May and 1c in July.

Car receipts at Duluth were 6, against 12 last year, and at Minneapolis 257, against 86 a year ago, making a total for the Northwest of 55, against 98, a year ago. Winnipeg receipts were 148, against 256 a year ago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 154,000 bus, last year, 441,000 bus. Shipments, 351,000 bus, last year, 349,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 71,000 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool closed ⅝@¾d higher.

In the Chicago market July corn closed a shade lower. July oats closed 1@1¼c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 368,250 bus, last year, 275,500 bus. Shipments 260,800 bus, last year, 270,000 bus. Clearances were 93,000 bus.

In the Duluth market there was very dull trading. The May option in wheat opened ⅛c lower at 88⅝c and then sold steadily up to 90¼c and closed at 90⅝c. The greater part of the advance was made in the first hour. The July option opened ⅛c lower at 88⅝c, sold at 90¼ at 9:55 and reacted to 89⅝c a few moments later, bulging then to 90⅝c at 12:55 and closing at that price, an advance of 1⅜c. The September option was not so strong advancing only ½c.

Cash prices continue on the same basis, May prices for No. 1 northern and 2½c under for No. 2. Offerings are very light.

Flax was dull and stronger. May seed worked up ½c to $1.03½ and closed at $1.03¾, an advance of 2½c. The other options had the same advance.

Oats made a heavy advance, 2 cents, in sympathy with the strength in the Chicago market. Rye bulged 2c.

Following are the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Active Buying Caused Strength In Wheat Pit.

Chicago, April 28.—Active buying by commission houses and shorts caused strength in wheat today. Smaller receipts and numerous damage reports from the Ohio valley more than offset the effect of the improved weather conditions in the West and Southwest. July opened 1@1¼c down at 83½c to 83¾c, but quickly advanced, selling up to 84¾@⅞c on light offerings. Duluth, Minneapolis and Chicago reported receipts of 73 cars, against 104 cars last week and 114 cars a year ago.

The market gained in strength as the session advanced. Outsiders were good buyers, especially the Southwest. Under the good demand July advanced to 86c. A reaction occurred late in the day on liberal selling by the principal holders. The close, however, was strong with July at 86@86¼c, a net gain of 2¾@3c.

First cables and small receipts brought out liberal covering in corn, and in consequence the market was strong. The strength in the wheat pit was an added inspiration to buyers of corn. After opening a shade lower, at 43c, July advanced to 45¾c, but reacted to 45¾c. Local receipts were 150 cars, with 29 of contract grade.

The demand from shorts forced the price of July up to 42¾c, but the advance was not maintained. Realizing sales caused a loss of all the earlier gain, the market closing about steady, with July at 42¾c a shade below yesterday's final figures.

More strength was manifested in oats than in either wheat or corn. There was an active demand from commission houses and shorts but offerings were comparatively light, the selling being mostly by scalpers. Small receipts and an excellent cash demand were the bull factors. July opened unchanged to ¼c up at 37¼c to 37c and gradually advanced to 38@38⅛c. Local receipts were 58 cars.

Strength in grains held provisions about steady in the face of an easier hog market. Commission houses were fair buyers of pork and lard. July pork opened a shade lower to a shade up at $12.47½ to $12.50. The price sold up to $12.55 and then eased off to $12.45. July lard opened unchanged to 2½c higher at $6.92½ to $6.95, advanced to $7.02½, but declined again to $6.95. Ribs were unchanged to 5c lower at $6.67½ to $6.72½.

Close: Wheat—May, 88½@⅞c; July, 84½@⅝c, old, 85⅜c; September, 80⅝c, old 81¾c. Corn—April, 46⅝c; May, 46⅞c; July, 48⅝c; September, 48¼c; December, 40⅛c. Oats—May, 40⅝c; July, 33c; September, 31⅞c.

Pork—May, $11.95; July, $12.25; September, $12.42½. Lard—May, $6.72½; July, $6.87½; September, $7.00. Ribs—May, $6.45; July, $6.60; September, $6.70. Rye—May, 71c; July, 66c. Flax—Cash, northwestern, $1.04½; southwestern, $1.00½; May, $1.04½. Timothy—April, $2.95. Clover—April, $10.15. Barley—Cash, 39@57c. Cash wheat—No. 2 hard, 89@92c; No. 3 hard, 85@86c; No. 2 northern, 85@86c; No. 3 spring, 85@90c. Corn—No. 2, 48¼@⅝c; No. 3, 47¾@48c. Oats—No. 2, 39c; No. 3, 38c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

South Dakota crop report: The season is very backward. The weather during the week was unseasonably cool in the three parts of the week there was a general fall of rain or snow, and some sleet, over the eastern portion of the state, which much retarded seeding operations and left considerable low or flat land too wet to work. The precipitation was light in the extreme western counties, where more moisture is needed.

The seeding of wheat is practically finished in the southern counties, where also the sowing of oats is far advanced, and in the middle counties wheat seeding is about half finished; but cold and wet soil has retarded germination and growth of grain, and from a number of localities there is report of a little of the earliest sown wheat and oats rotting. Some considerable barley has been sown in the extreme southern counties.

Winter rye and also the limited amount of winter wheat sown are generally looking well, but need warm weather.

Grass is very backward and affords little or no pasturage for live stock on the ranges. Generally, range stock is full and in many localities feed is scarce, and the cold rain and snow was hard on stock.

Gardening and potato planting made slow progress.

Spring plowing made fair progress on high or well drained land, but there is much yet to be done.

* * *

Pringle, Fitch & Rankin, Chicago: A pointed summary of an extremely bullish cash situation in oats is given by James G. Martin of the Northern Grain company, one of the largest shipping interests in the trade, as follows: "New York has taken 6,000,000 bushels cash oats, actual figures in the past six months, cleaning up cars on the way from two weeks to two months, and from now on will want 160 cars a day for many days, or 12,500,000 bushels. New England has no stocks and will soon be cleaned up on transit oats, requiring twice as many as New York. Ohio and Indiana have no oats for shipment. Illinois will be mostly south. Iowa is cleaned up. Wisconsin has not enough left to supply larger cities. A few oats are left in Nebraska and Minnesota. The 10,000,000 bus of oats on the lakes will not supply New York alone. Good oats will sell higher per bushel than corn; 50 cents in Chicago will be a common price, and July will sell at as high a price as holders want to put it. Premium for cash oats will not permit of any standard going into store. Never in history of the business were all the oats in show windows as now. Farmers never hold poor grain, and this crop was certainly poor enough to sell."

Dennis, Chicago: I actually do not believe in a winter wheat crop to exceed 350,000,000 and think spring wheat crop will be nearer 200,000,000 than 250,000,000. Think we bulls have an easy summer before us on account of the new crop finding so little old wheat coming into competition with it. The Canadian northwest could raise a very large crop of wheat under favorable conditions, but will they get them?

* * *

Pringle, Fitch & Rankin: Level-headed northwestern grain operator wires us: "You will get nothing but help from Northwest from now on bull side. Think our advance will be sensational."

* * *

Kansas City wires: "Finest kind of weather for planting corn in this territory. Wheat that was thought to be dead in Western counties coming out beautifully since recent rains. Present prospects could not promise any more."

* * *

Cincinnati Price Current: Winter wheat prospects are barely maintained or slightly lower the past week. The more unfavorable reports from the East fully or slightly more than balance improvements in Western sections. Bulk of oats mostly seeded. Little change in acreage, rather unpropitious start. Large acreage of corn expected.

Coe Commission Co.: Our wheat markets all opened strong. The crowd considered the Price Current bullish and bought wheat on it which resulted in a quick advance of 1c per bushel over yesterday's closing prices. There was some profit taking by longs at the early advance, which eased the market off temporarily. There was, however, continued buying by the best commission houses and the market at this writing is strong at about the top prices. Country millers continue to buy cash wheat from the Minneapolis market and are paying good premiums to get it. Stocks of wheat have decreased 560,000 bushels so far this week, but some September wheat. There is money in it.

Corn—Strong and higher. The strength is based on the cash situation, which is now coinedddr shrdlu dir mth rtlur hrr now considered sound. There was some export business yesterday. Cables were a little higher.

Oats—Market is again very strong. There has been buying by commission houses and local people supposed to be short. Scalping longs supplying the demand. Receipts small and cash demand improving.

Provisions—The list opened firm. Good demand for pork and lard early. The market eased off later on increasing offerings. Hogs steady at yards. Receipts, fair.

B. E. Baker's Chicago grain letter: Wheat—Wheat was strong again today with the Southwest and local professionals leading the buying. The cold bull interest was the chief seller early. The Price Current gave confidence to the bulls at the start, reporting winter wheat prospects largely maintained. Later the Southwest sent advices of extensive damage in the bottom lands from floods. The inquiry for cash wheat was better, although little was consumed. Millers through Ohio, Indiana and Michigan were negotiating for wheat at St. Louis. A small lot of No. 2 red was sold here at 1@1¼c over May, but this can hardly be taken as giving a fair idea of values. Northwestern country millers are buying at Minneapolis and stocks there decreased 560,000 bus the past five days, according to the Northwestern Miller, the flour output at Minneapolis increased last week, but the total was considerably short of last year. Sales of flour the past week small. Outside markets were all strong. On the bear side may be noted the higher temperatures and clear weather over both winter and spring wheat belts, and the forecast for a continuation of like conditions. Seeding advices from the Northwest were optimistic. We feel strong on the bull options. Stocks of wheat are so small that even a small demand will make a marked impression on the course of the futures. The new crop options we do not think so well of, it is probable that the worst of crop advices have already been received, and conditions are gradually becoming better. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 160 cars.

Corn—The firmness in corn was the direct rise of the sympathetic influence of wheat and oats. Trade was small and toned dull. Receipts are moderate, and demand still further limited. Local traders received some encouragement from the evidence of an out movement as shown in the 48,000 bus of corn under contract to load onto vessels and the cancellation of receipts for 122,000 bus today. The cash market is firm and 1@1½c higher with Armour and company the chief buyers of lower grades. The Price Current says a large acreage is probable. The course of futures depends to a large extent on the demand. If it improves it will be evidence that the present price level is a legitimate one and some advance may then be expected in the futures. Liverpool was ⅝@⅞d higher at the close. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 160 cars.

Oats—The oat market again led the strength in grains. The buying was general and a great deal of interest has awakened in this market. The cash situation is attracting attention. Country movement is phenomenally small and receipts here very light. One million bus of standard are under contract to load onto vessels; 102,000 bus were loaded from store today, and receipts for 171,000 bus that were cancelled.

A SLUGGISH MARKET

Stocks Were Generally Firm But Closed Rather Heavy.

Mexican Central Developed Strength, Closing at Best Price.

New York, April 28.—The strength of the London stock market helped the opening here today and prices were fractionally higher except for the Erie stocks, which were sharply depressed by the poor showing of net earnings for March. Amalgamated Copper selling ex-dividend rose nearly a point and Anaconda jumped 3¼. Union Pacific's gain of a ½ point measured the largest advance otherwise.

Realizing sales in Copper and Union Pacific defeated attempts to advance the market further and there were a number of small reactions. General business, however, was very sluggish and the price movement is considerable. St. Paul preferred gained 1. United Fruit 1¼ and Brooklyn Gas 3.

Norfolk & Western sold off a point on the intended issue of a $35,000,000 meeting and the Erles were under pressure, the common losing ⅞, the second preferred 1½, and the first preferred 1⅞. Hocking Valley preferred dropped 3½ and Hocking Coal 2. Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred rose ⅞ but the general list was dropped and exceedingly dull. Bonds were steady at noon.

When selling of Norfolk & Western and the Erles were suspended, the market stiffened, but the damond was largely concentrated in Pennsylvania and a few specialties. Some large blocks of Pennsylvania were bought above 118, but the other coalers were immovable.

Room traders abadoned efforts to make profitable trades on scalping operations, the narrowness of the market making it well nigh impossible. During the afternoon hardly any of the inactive stocks covered a range of more than ¼ and many did not even vary ⅛.

Mexican Central. Smelting preferred and United States Rubber preferred rose a point or more, while Delaware & Hudson lost 1¾ and Northwestern 1¾. There was no sign of life in the general market and the close was heavy and stagnant.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to B. E. Baker: Market views tonight point to continued dullness. Good judges of speculation go so far as to declare that there will be no substantial reveal of activity until after the directors of the United States Steel act on the next dividend. The belief that the dividend will be reduced is influencing sentiment unfavorably and it is held that such action would be a serious blow to the general list. As the next meeting of the steel corporation to consider the dividend question will not be held until July 5, it will be seen, if the above observers are correct, the street is in for a couple months more of stagnant business. It is thought, however, that in any event individual stocks are likely to relieve the monotony.

* * *

S. T. Welch & Co.: Stocks—The market opened steady at small advances. Copper regained the ½ per cent dividend and is strong. St. Paul and other western rails were strong. Erie issues were weak. The situation in the money market unmistakably easier and banks are disposed to aggressive in putting out their funds. We believe that we are on the eve of a bull stock market, and advise all our friends to buy first-class railroad issues, feeling convinced that all such investments will prove a paying proposition.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Later on there is pretty certain to be a big decline right through the list, but at present it is impossible to know whether the decline will start from these levels or from a higher level. Certainly no pressure to sell can be discerned and apparently all offerings are readily absorbed. I have information from two good houses that a 5 to 10 point advance may be looked for almost immediately. I have information from two other houses even better than that, though there may be an advance of several points within the next thirty days. There are declines of 15 to 25 points coming this summer. I believe the market will work a little higher.

* * *

W. H. Laidley & Co.: The copper market is not strong underneath as appears on the surface. There is reason to believe that copper is being accumulated on both sides of the Atlantic. For the first six months of 1903 the average price of copper was 14⅝ cents. Average price for last six months, 1903, was about 12½ cents.

* * *

New York to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The outlook today favors a continuance of the dullness with the addition of some irregularity in price movements owing to the apathy prevailing. There are bull tips out on Southern Pacific and Union Pacific, and bear tips on Steel preferred and Pennsylvania. We would not sell on weak spots nor buy on strong spots. Until something important develops to change the situation the dullness is likely to continue, as speculative sentiment is evidently in a waiting attitude.

* * *

Dick Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: Market has continued sluggish but generally firm today. The news of the day was unimportant and none of the price movements were of consequence. In the last hour Mexican Central developed strength and rallied sharply on aggressive buying and closed at its best price. There seems to be quite a short interest in the stock. Norfolk developed on the announcement of a plan to issue $35,000,000 new bonds. Steel preferred rallied from early depression but was very sluggish. The manipulation recently seen in Amalgamated Copper and Brooklyn Rapid Transit was not continued. The coalers also lost their firm tone. The general market closed rather heavy.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 28.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 6@11 points in sympathy with lower cables and fairly favorable weather over the belt. There were, however, a number of night buying orders in the hands of commission houses and immediately following the call prices rallied several points on the active list with the new crop showing relative strength but before the initial decline was recovered a renewal of bear pressure and liquidation set in, carrying prices back to about the opening figures. Trading was moderately active at the opening, but became quiet shortly afterwards.

Cotton spot, closed dull; middling uplands, 13.85; middling gulf, 14.10... Sales 2700 bales. Futures closed steady; April, 13.50; May, 13.51; June, 13.65; July, 13.75; August, 12.40; September, 11.90; October, 11.40; November, 11.28; December, 11.27; January, 11.27.

LOUBET OFF TO NAPLES

The President of France Leaves Rome With the Emperor Victor.

Rome, April 28.—President Loubet left Rome for Naples today. His departure was spoiled by rain, which kept away many people who otherwise would have been present. Still the route was crowded. The president was continually cheered. He went all the way to the railroad station with his hat in his hand and seated in an open carriage. In taking leave of the authorities M. Loubet expressed his warmest thanks to Premier Giolitti, saying he would ever be grateful to the people of Rome and would never forget the reception they accorded him.

King Victor Emmanul accompanied President Loubet to Naples so as to be present at the great naval review there tomorrow.

Signor Giolitti was prevented from going to Naples as he was forced to go to Turin to be present at the baptism of the duke of Genoa's daughter, born Monday last.

EMPEROR PLEASED.

Rome, April 28.—Before passing the Italian frontier last night, Emperor William, who arrived at Venice yesterday on the imperial yacht Hohenzellern, on his way to Karlsruhe, telegraphed to King Victor Emmanuel and also to Premier Giolitti, expressing his highest satisfaction at the warm, friendly greeting he had received throughout Italy and thanking them heartily.

CHARGED WITH RINGING.

Moscow, April 28.—The trial began here today of two men, Bagovsky and Ostovsky, charged with entering an American trotter, Osland, as a Russian horse and carrying off all the prizes.

Is Not a Resident.

Information of insanity was lodged in probate court this morning by L. Picitti against his brother-in-law, Omorato Romcarl, who will be examined this afternoon. Romcari came to this country from Italy less than a year ago, and has not lived here long enough to gain a residence. In case he is found to be insane the state board of control will take him in charge. The practice of the board has been to send insane foreigners back to the country from which state long enough to gain a residence.

TO SHUT OUT OTHER LUMBER COMPANIES

M. J. Scanlon Says Weyerhaeuser Interests Are Striving For That.

Claims No Independent Concern Can Depend on Cloquet River.

Testimony was introduced this morning at the hearing in the condemnation proceedings started by the Brooks-Scanlon interests for a right-of-way for the Minnesota & North Wisconsin logging road and certain river rights, that a combination of the lumber interests at Cloquet controls the Cloquet river for driving purposes to such an extent as to prevent independent lumber companies from operating on the stream without loss.

A statement to this effect was made this morning by M. J. Scanlon, a member of the Brooks-Scanlon Lumber company at Scanlon, and one of the most prominent lumbermen in the Northwest.

Mr. Scanlon claimed that it meant annihilation to an independent operator to try to get logs down the Cloquet river to Cloquet for rail shipment to Stillwater.

In the fight now going on in the courts between the Brooks-Scanlon interests on one side and the Weyerhaeuser interests at Cloquet on the other side, the former is said to be fighting for life.

Mr. Scanlon was on the witness stand the greater part of the forenoon, and during his testimony made a number of interesting statements as to the lumbering business of his company at Scanlon and the operation of its logging road built within the past two or three years.

Questioned as to the percentage of depreciation in logs, due to their remaining in the water, lodging and becoming stranded on the banks, or on rocks, Mr. Scanlon estimated it at from 5 to 10 per cent. In addition to this loss in depreciation, he said there was still another where the logs had to lay over a second season without getting to the mill.

The average market value of logs at the mill at Scanlon for the past two years was estimated at from $12 to $13 per 1000.

Mr. Scanlon said the pine logs in the Cloquet river district were comparatively small, running from 13 to 14 for 1000 feet.

The capacity of the big mill at Scanlon, Mr. Scanlon testified, was from 450,000 to 500,000 feet per day when all the saws are in operation and the log run is good. He said the mill does not operate up to that mark for various reasons, the principal ones being that logs cannot be supplied in sufficient quantity, and the labor required is not always available.

The logging road, Mr. Scanlon said, was built in 1901, chiefly to supply the company with logs for the mill, but also for the purpose of hauling logs, cedar and pulpwood for other parties, to help pay for and maintain it. If the road were not in existence he claimed that the mill could not operate more than one-tenth of the time.

Mr. Scanlon said his company was led to decide on the Lake Alden branch to the road because it had a large quantitiey of logs coming down the river and knew that it would be impossible to get them through by Cloquet. The branch road was built in 1902.

In the cross-examination the counsel for the Weyerhaeuser interests brought out the fact that a great deal of the timber along the branch roads is owned by parties other than the Brooks-Scanlon company, and Mr. Scanlon was asked whether his company had any expectation of getting shipments for the mills at Cloquet. He answered that he did have such expectations, in fact, some of the Cloquet companies have already made inquiries as to the rates.

Mr. Scanlon claimed that the greater part of the business of the logging road at the present time consists in hauling cedar products, spruce and pulpwood out to the railway connections at Scanlon, for other parties, some of these being the Minnesota Log & Timber company, of Duluth; Muscatine, Ia., parties, and parties from Prairie du Chien, Wis., who were shipping to Stillwater.

Mr. Scanlon estimated 40 per cent of the logs hauled over the logging road to be for other interests than the Brooks-Scanlon company and claimed that the shipments were made from Scanlon over the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads.

The tariff on the logging road, he stated, depends materially on the length of haul. The rate from Alden lake to Scanlon, a distance of 38½ miles, is $2 per thousand, including the hauling of the logs at both ends and the switch charges at Scanlon.

Even if the Cloquet firms refuse to give the road any log hauling business along its branches, Mr. Scanlon claimed, there were enough people in there owning cedar, spruce and tie timber to make the operation of the road profitable.

He denied that the Alger-Smith logging road taps the headwaters of Knife and Sucker river, and claimed that it ran in north of the Brooks-Scanlon road. Of the big contract to haul 200,000,000 feet of the William O'Brien timber, Mr. Scanlon stated that the greater portion has already been taken to the mill. The 1903 cut of the mill he said was about 93,000,000 feet, as compared with 70,000,000 feet in 1902, and not more than 30,000,000 feet of the logs came down the river.

Questioned as to the advantages of the logging road, Mr. Scanlon claimed that it was to relieve the conditions existing on the Cloquet river. These conditions he characterized as insufficiency of water, too many logs in the stream to be handled readily. Some of the fault he placed with the driving and the boom companies.

The logging road, according to Mr. Scanlon, has 175 cars and eleven engines. It has hauled approximately 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 feet of logs to Scanlon for other parties and about 70,000,000 to 80,000,000 feet of logs to the mill for the Scanlon-Brooks company.

Car shortage and lack of labor to load logs was given as reasons for not operating the road to its full capacity all the time. The hauling capacity of the road over its Lake Alden branch was given us 200 cars per day, providing the cars could be furnished.

In the cross-examination the counsel for the Weyerhaeuser interests sought to draw from Mr. Scanlon an admission that the Brooks-Scanlon company built the road and its branches solely for its own convenience rather than any public usage, but was unsuccessful.

In the redirect examination Mr. Scanlon stated that the demand for the use of the road from other parties began prior to its completion, and for a time this demand kept the mill from receiving the logs it needed to operate steadily. The mill at Scanlon was claimed to have had plenty of logs for operation ever since the Alden Lake branch was opened for business.

In the matter of joint rates with other connecting railway lines, Mr. Scanlon said the Minnesota & North Wisconsin road always gets its full tariff.

Earl Rogers, superintendent of the Brooks-Scanlon operations at the mill, followed Mr. Scanlon on the stand. Mr. Rogers was questioned as to the methods pursued in getting logs down the Cloquet river to Scanlon, and the difficulty encountered in getting a proper supply by that route.

From the sorting works at Cloquet the river is divided into lanes to the various mill pockets, with a fifty-foot channel to permit logs and pulpwood to go through to the paper mill and Scanlon. Some other small sorting works are located at the paper mill to cut out the pulpwood while the logs go on.

During high water the logs can be sluiced past the dam at the paper mill, but in low water time they are lifted over, one at a time, by means of an endless chain arrangement.

Mr. Rogers related that the Brooks-Scanlon company and Muscatine, Ia., people two years ago went to considerable expense to arrange a landing below the paper mill, where logs could be floated down the river and loaded into cars, but the project had to be abandoned because the logs could not be secured fast enough.

OIL FIELDS IN INDIANA

Dr. J. D. Budd and W. M. Jeffrey Visit Them.

Dr. J. D. Budd, of Two Harbors, and Walter M. Jeffrey, auditor of the Oliver Iron and Mining company, have returned from Indiana, where they took a look at some oil properties in Jasper county.

"We are interested in an asphaltum oil that is produced down in the Hoosier state, and went down to have a look at it," said Mr. Jeffrey to a Herald reporter. "We were immensely pleased not only with what we saw of the oil industry, but with the kind treatment of the good Indiana people, who seemed to think that they could do nothing well enough or have anything good enough for us.

"The oil there is about 70 per cent asphaltum, I believe, and was discovered in a peculiar way. A farmer named —well, never mind his name—was going down with a drill for water, and when he struck oil he was very much disgusted. But I guess he reconciled himself as best he could to the oil, for it made him much more money than the water would. Before they could cap this oil it flowed over the yard around the farmer's house, and the dampness in a very short time disappeared from evaporation. This left a coating over the sod as smooth and hard as a pavement, in fact it is an asphalt pavement.

"The company we are in has 519 acres in fee and 5000 in leasehold. The custom down there in leases is to give the farmer a royalty of one barrel in eight and to protect the farmer against people holding productive soil and not giving the farmer any benefit—that is, to prevent them keeping the land inactive and thus without profit to the owner, they are obliged to drill at least two wells on every acre. While drilling is very cheap there, it is naturally a considerable expense to drill two wells on each of 5000 acres.

"After the oil is cleared of the water that comes with it, the refining processes are started, and there are seven different by-products obtained. The substance originally looks like tar and tastes like paraffin. In the refinery there I noticed several men with something in their mouths, chewing with much earnestness. It was the paraffin wax from this oil. The peculiar feature of the oil is that it will not burn, and I understand that a house coated with same of the by-product is fireproof."

Judge Windom Sets Aside Verdict In Bergtold Case.

Holds Testimony Was Not Such as to Warrant Conviction.

The verdict against George W. Bergtold, who was convicted in the municipal court of petty larceny, was set aside yesterday afternoon by Judge Windom, on the ground that the testimony did not warrant a conviction.

Mr. Bergtold was accused of stealing a number of milk cans from the firm of Bridgeman & Russell. The defense was that the cans were taken by the employes of Mr. Bergtold in exchange for some of his cans which had been taken by Bridgeman & Russell. Both the complaining witness and the defendant are in the milk business and deliver milk to the same customers in many instances. The cans frequently become mixed, and Bridgeman & Russell complained that Mr. Bergtold was stealing their cans.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty after about five hours' deliberation.

What influenced the members of the jury most was the fact that Mr. Bergtold had stamped his mark over the mark of Bridgeman & Russell on some of the cans that had become interchanged.

Judge Windom held that the verdict of guilty was not warranted by the testimony, and he allowed the motion for a new trial brought by Mr. Bergtold's attorney, Porter J. Neff.

It is understood that the matter will be allowed to drop, and some agreement will doubtless be arrived at between the two firms in regard to the cans that have been interchanged.

Its End Is Near.

Every day brings the house which has marked the sinking place of the steamer Thomas Wilson nearer floating or sinking. The current through the government pier has eaten away the ice outside the pier for several hundred feet, and considerable distance past the house, which is only a few feet away from the edge of the stream apparently. It was suggested by a navigator this morning that any one who wanted a nice house boat, or boat house, might go out on the ice and rig the house with a sail or a flag.

"A sail would make it move on some of these windy days and help break it free, probably," said he. "I guess anyone who would take the trouble to claim it could have it."

It pays to advertise in The Herald. Ask Charles A. Marshall.

NEW LAW IS PROPOSED

To National League In Regard to Municipal Nominations.

Chicago, April 28.—The draft of a proposed municipal nominating law was today submitted to the National Municipal league when the league began its second day's session at the Northwestern University building. The draft was submitted by the committee on nomination reform. This committee was appointed at Boston in 1902 and for two years has carefully considered the subject.

Horace E. Deming read a paper on recent primary legislation and statutory provisions regulating nominations to public elective office.

George W. Guthrie, of Pittsburg, spoke on "The Right of Every Citizen to a Free and Equal Share in the Selection of Candidates for Municipal Elective Office." "Freedom of choice and direct responsibility to the people are absolutely essential alike to government by the people and honest administration," said Mr. Guthrie.

Then you are on the down-road to poor health. Get on the up-road. Dr. McLean's book tells you how to regain lost health or to retain the health you have.

RUSSIAN FLEET RETURNS SAFELY TO VLADIVOSTOK AFTER MOST DARING RAID

Inflicted Material Injury to Japanese on Korean Coast.

Near Proximity of Enemy Required Rapid and Careful Action.

Jap Cruisers and Torpedo Boats Hovering Near Port Arthur.

Vladivostok, April 29.—The squadron commanded by Rear Admiral Yeshen has returned here from its recent operations off the Korean coast.

The squadron, consisting of the armored cruisers Rossia, Rurik and Gromoboi and the protected cruiser Bogatyr, put to sea at daybreak April 23. The Rurik returned the following day, but the others proceeded to Won-San (Gen-san), Korea, and hove to off the town during the morning of April 25, about five miles from the entrance of the bay. Admiral Yeshen sent into the bay two torpedo boats, commanded by Lieutenants Poehl and Maximoff. As they ran in towards the shore they found the Japanese trading steamer Gueyo Maru at anchor, with a crew of about twenty men on board. The latter were ordered ashore. Lieutenant Maximoff boarded the Goyo Maru, took possession of her papers and flag and then sent her to the bottom with a torpedo. The torpedo boats fortwith rejoined the squadron after four hours absence. There was no sign of troops ashore and the bay was empty but it was learned that four Japanese torpedo boat destroyers had put out to sea at dawn April 25.

The Russian squadron returned to Vladivostok and late during the night of April 26, started on another expedition. At 6 in the evening of April 27, when 300 miles out, the squadron sighted a Japanese steamer with war stores on board. Her crew consisting of fifteen Koreans and twelve Japanese, were placed in safety and the steamer was sunk by a pyroxylin cartridge, fired from the Gromobol by Lieutenant Bolotnikoff.

The same night, at about 11 o'clock, when the squadron was twelve miles off Plaksin Bay, Korea, a large Japanese transport, the Kinshiu Maru, was overhauled. Her commander mistook the Russian for a Japanese squadron and signaled: "I am bringing you coal."

The Russian commander promptly signaled in reply: "Stop instantly."

The crew of the transport then recognized their mistake and began to lower boats and steam pinnaces with the greatest haste and endeavored to escape but the Russian steam cutters captured them all.

On board the transport were four Hotchkiss guns of 47-millimetres. At the outset it looked as if no one was left on board, but on examination it was found that the cabin was locked and barred. Therein the Russians found six infantry officers, who surrendered without resistance and were taken on board the Rurik. In another part of the ship 120 infantrymen, who refused to surrender, were found.

Admiral Yeshen, whose vessel was about 100 yards away, ordered his men to leave the transport. The Japanese soldiers then opened fire and wounded a Russian coxswain. Afterwards the transport was sent to the bottom by means of a mechanical mine and a few shells.

The Japanese on board did not cease firing and made no attempt to save themselves, although they had a launch in which they could have left the transport. The fire of the Japanese actually continued until the waves closed over the ship.

The transport had on board not only ammunition but 2000 tons of coal for Admiral Makamura.

The prisoners numbered 183, including seventeen officers. Altogether 230 prisoners were taken by the Russian squadron, landed at Vladivostok, and immediately despatched by train to Nikolsk.

It was reported at the time the Russian cruisers were returning to Vladivostok that a Japanese fleet of fourteen vessels was also making for here, but it failed to reach Vladivostok owing to the fog.

A wireless telegraph message was picked up by the Russian ships while at sea. It was in code and unintelligible, but was evidently passing between the Japanese ships.

Among the Japanese prisoners are a colonel and an officer of the general staff, while the soldiers include a number of Japanese who before the war worked as artisans at Vladivostok.

St. Petersburg, April 29.—Viceroy Alexieff telegraphs under today's date that Japanese ships were sighted six miles off Port Arthur last night, and that this morning ten Japanese cruisers and six torpedo boats were seen in an adjacent bay.

Pekin, April 29.—It is asserted on the best authority that the Russians are about to enforce martial law west of the Liao river. The government is worried and the dowager empress has ordered the provincial governors to abandon her birthday celebration and to use the money collected for that purpose to equip 72,000 troops immediately.

Shanghai, April 29.—It is reported here that the Russians have suffered a disastrous repulse after two days' fighting on the Yalu river. The Japanese forces crossed the river and the Russians retreated.

JAPS TOO CONFIDENT.

Disaster to Transport Will Induce Greater Vigilance.

London, April 29.—The Telegraph's Tokio correspondent asserts that the Russian cruisers slipped past the Japanese squadron during a fog and regained the harbor of Vladivostok.

This is the only additional news that has reached London concerning the Vladivostok squadron. No further details have been received regarding the sinking of the Japanese transport Kinshiu. This incident is much commented on here as proving that the Japanese placed too much confidence in their command of the sea, and there is no doubt that it will induce greater vigilance on their part. There is some inclination to criticize harshly the action of Rear Admiral Yeszen, but most of this morning's papers prefer to await particulars of the affair before passing judgment on it.

The report that the Japanese have occupied Kiullencheng has not been confirmed.

According to the Standard's Tien Tsin correspondent the whole country outside the great wall is abnormally flooded, and any movement of the land forces is impracticable for the present.

A special dispatch from Port Arthur says that the demonstration made by Japanese torpedo boats, covered by a Japanese squadron, off Port Arthur yesterday morning, was for the purpose of creating a scare and inducing the batteries to waste their ammunition, but the Russians refrained from answering the Japanese fire.

A Copenhagen correspondent of the Post says there are rumors that Russia is negotiating for the purchase of the Danish liners Hekla, Norge and Island.

GREAT ENTHUSIASM

On Return of Chemulpo Heroes to St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, April 29.—Such an outburst of popular enthusiasm as was witnessed today upon the arrival here of the survivors of the Variag and Korietz has not been experienced in many years. Undeterred by the raw rainy weather as many as a hundred thousand persons crowded the three-mile Nevsky, from the railroad depot to the palace square. The roofs and windows were crowded with people waiving naval flags. The whole route was lined by soldiers, sailors and cadets from military schools. Every regiment wes represented as if the emperor wished all his fighting men to see how the brave are honored.

Grand Duke Alexis as high admiral received the heroes. The crowd, however, had the first word. A deafening storm of cheers burst out as the weather-beaten seamen appeared in sight. The crews of the Variag and Korietz were quickly mustered on the platform, each man wearing the St. George cross.

The Grand Duke Alexis attended by a brilliant staff of admirals approached the survivors of the Chemulpo engagement and Captain Roudeneff, the commander of the Variag, saluted and presented the grand duke with a formal report of the battle and the number and state of health of the survivors. The grand duke, followed by Captain Roudeneff, and the admirals, then passed along the ranks and saluted the sailors, Russian fashion, saying:

"Well done, my children."

To which the sailors replied, as one man: "We are glad to do our best, imperial highness."

The formalities over the high admiral, moved with emotion, embraced Captain Roudeneff and the other officers. It was now the turn of the deputations from the nobility and municipality to present addresses of welcome and the traditional bread and salt.

Then began the triumphal march down the Nevsky of the officers and men of the Variag and Korietz, marshalled in two columns and preceded by two bands of music. The people went fairly wild over the heroes and showered them with flowers amid a mighty roar of cheering from roofs, windows, balconies and lamp posts and the surging masses below.

Near the palace square stood the cadets from military schools. Those of the younger class, the little fellows aged 7, forgot to salute and instead tore off their caps and cheered lustily.

As the column of heroes approached the portals of the winter palace the emperor and empress came out on a balcony, greeted them and then retired to receive the visitors in the magnificent Nicholas hall, which had been converted into a church. There a special Te Deum was sung. The service was attended by a brilliant assemblage, rendering all the more conspicuous the tarnished uniforms of the noble jackies who fought at Chemulpo.

After the service all the sailors remained and were banquetted as the emperor's guests, going later to entertainments at the city hall and at the Peoples' palace.

At the emperor's banquet the blue jackets, who were seated at the imperial table and were served by the imperial servants, were overcome by the splendor of the feast. It was a day of wonders and surprises, the little father himself coming to talk to them. The emperor wearing the full uniform of an admiral, approached the sailors escorting both the empresses and followed by other members of the imperial family. He said, in a voice ringing with emotion:

"I am happy, brothers to see you all here safely returned. Many of you have inscribed with your blood a record of heroic deeds in our annals. You have made the names of the Variag and Korietz immortal. I am sure you will remain worthy to the last of the crosses which have been bestowed on you. All Russia and I have been moved by the recital of your exploits at Chemulpo.

"I thank you, brothers, for vindicating the honor of the flag and the renown of Holy Russia.

"I drink to further victories of our glorious fleet and to you."

The emperor took a goblet of wine and drained it and all present followed his example with a thunderous shout of "hurrah."

The emperor then went around the table exchanging greetings with his lowly guests.

Before leaving his majesty again said: "Once more, thanks to you brave fellows for your noble fight. I regard you as my kinsmen. May God keep you."

PRAISE FOR YESHEN.

His Raid From Vladivostok Was Most Daring.

St. Petersburg, April 29.—The details of Rear Admiral Yeshen's raid show that it was entirely successful. The admiral safely brought back his ships to Vladivostok after inflicting material and moral damage on the enemy.

The cruise was most daring. The enemy's squadron was known to be in proximity, which necessitated the prompt sinking of the Japanese transport Kinshiu Maru. The conduct of 130 troops remaining on board of the Kinshiu Maru in refusing to surrender and firing upon the Russians even while the transport was sinking evokes unbounded admiration.

"The Japanese are jealous of our Chemulpo heroes," is the popular comment.

At the same time the action of the heroic 130 men did not leave the Russians any alternative. They were obliged to sink the transport, but means of escape were left at the disposal of the 130 Japanese.

The ability of Admiral Yeshen's ships to reach Gensan, 300 miles away, in twenty-two hours, as they did on the second expedition, is certain to compel the Japanese to be on their guard.

The raid shares editorial honors with the arrival here of the survivors of the Variag and Korietz. The papers point out the mendacity of the Japanese claims that Gensan was strongly garrisoned, and believe that the Russian advance from Plaksin bay will not meet with strong resistance.

The Kinshiu Maru evidently was conveying reinforcements to Song Jia. Experts here criticise the carelessness of sending transports without a convoy.

While the naval men agree in praising the new commander of the cruiser squadron, Viceroy Alexieff's defenders claim credit for the viceroy, who sent the cruisers at Vladivostok and selected Admiral Yeshen to command them.

It is expected that the Russian activity in Eastern Korea will retard the operations on the Yalu river.

JAPANESE VERSION

Of the Sinking of the Kinshiu Maru.

Tokio, April 29.—Seventy-three Japanese were killed or drowned as the result of the sinking of the Japanese transport Kinshiu Maru, which was torpedoed by the Russian armored cruiser Rossia at midnight Monday last.

The Kinshiu Maru parted from the convoy of torpedo boats in a fog on Monday and at 11:30 p. m. met the Russian fleet. She was ordered to stop and the Rossia steamed alongside summoned her navigating officers on board the Rossia and sent a searching party on board the transport. This party discovered two companies of soldiers concealed below and reported the fact to the Rossia. The latter discharged a torpedo which struck the Kinshiu Maru amidships and broke her in two.

While the transport was sinking the soldiers on board her rushed on deck and fired volleys from their rifles into the Rossia, and as the Kinshiu Maru sank several of the soldiers committed suicide.

Three boats which floated free from the wreckage were the means of saving forty-five soldiers and nine passengers and crew. Two captains and three lieutenants were among the soldiers drowned. The survivors succeeded in getting ashore and were conveyed by steamer to Gen Tan today.

WAS A DISPATCH BOAT.

Nagasaki, Japan, April 29.—The Japanese steamer Kinshiu Maru, which was sunk by the Russians near Gensan, resulting in the drowning of 200 Japanese troops, was attached to the fleet as a dispatch boat.

RUSSIA FORMALLY NOTIFIES THE WORLD THAT SHE WILL TOLERATE NO INTERFERENCE WHATSOEVER DURING THE WAR, OR IN ARRANGING THE TERMS OF PEACE AT ITS CLOSE

St. Petersburg, April 29.—In the most categorical terms, Russia has officially notified the world that she will not accept mediation to terminate the war with Japan. The official notification, which accords with the authoritative announcement made by the Associated Press April 25, is contained in a circular issued by the ministry of foreign affairs to the Russian representatives with foreign powers, which is gazetted in the Official Mesenger today. The circular denies the report that formal proposals have been made to the imperial government by any foreign powers to use its good office to restore peace, a denial which does not refer to the personal intimation addressed directly to the emperor by King Christian of Denmark, account of which was given by the Associated Press. The text of the circular is as follows:

"The foreign press has recently been persistently circulating rumors concerning intentions on the part of some of the European governments to undertake a friendly intervention with a view to a speedy termination of the conflict between Russia and Japan. Telegrams have been received announcing that proposals of such a nature have already been made to the imperial government. You are empowered to deny this statement most categorically. Russia did not wish war and everything within the limits of possibility was done by her to solve the complications which had arisen in the far East in a peaceful manner, but after the treacherous surprise on the part of the Japanese which forced Russia to take up arms, obviously no friendly mediation can have any success.

"Similarly the imperial government will not admit the intervention of any power whatsoever in the direct negotiations which will occur between Russia and Japan after the termination of hostile operations, in order to determine the conditions of peace."

WILLIAM J. BRYAN.

ONE GREAT ISSUE PERVADES ALL THE PUBLIC QUESTIONS, DECLARES WILLIAM J. BRYAN

The Issue Is Between the Corporations and the People.

Wants a Presidential Candidate Opposed to Corporate Greed.

Those Who Talk About Him Bolting Have Already Bolted.

William J. Bryan, cheerful and genial and looking as well as ever although not quite as young, arrived this morning at 10:55 o'clock on the Omaha train from Eau Claire, where he had gone to make connections after a lecture last night at Menominee. He was watched very closely by the admiring and the curious as he left the train and took his way to the St. Louis hotel. While here Mr. Bryan is the guest of Theodore T. Hudson, the attorney, who is a member of the county Democratic committee, and tonight, at the First M. E. church, he will deliver a lecture on "The Value of An Ideal," which, he says, is a non-partisan exposition of the subject, and non-political.

Originally Mr. Bryan was expected to arrive at 10:55 a. m., but later telegraphed that he would not come until 3 p. m. today, as he changed his mind with the intention of coming via Hudson. Finally, as some friends of his were coming by the more direct route to Duluth, he decided to come with them.

Mr. Bryan has ceased to be spoken of as a young man, which was frequently mentioned as being against his fitness for the presidency when he was nominated eight years ago, and is now well past 40. Probably the bald spot at the crown of his impressive head is the feature most entitled to be called the sign of his advancing years. But, of course, literally, Mr. Bryan is not old, only older, but his actions and his cordiality to the people are the same as ever, buoyant and a joy to those who come in contact with him.

He was tired this morning when he arrived, as he had traveled most of the night, but was apparently glad to welcome anyone who cared to see him in Parlor J, at the St. Louis. The customary crowd that lingered in the lobby grew to greater numbers as soon as Mr. Bryan's presence in the hotel was known, and now and then one of those who could not wait until the visitor was ready to receive all comers, would break through the barrier of bashfulness and go up anyway. And he would get the same welcome as though he had an appointment.

Mr. Bryan, when asked as to Joseph Folk, of St. Louis, as a candidate, said he was not discussing candidates.

"Will you discuss principles?"

"Certainly, I am willing to do that."

"What do you consider the principles which give to the Democratic party an advantage during this political season?"

In response to this question, Mr. Bryan dictated the following statement to a reporter for The Herald:

"One great issue runs through all the questions, namely—whether the government shall be administered in behalf of the people at large or run by the corporations in the interests of the corporations.

"You cannot touch any public question before the country today but what you find this issue at the heart of it, and that is true whether it be a city issue, a state issue or a national issue.

"This issue was apparent in the discussion of the money question, and is still apparent in that issue.

"The bill now before congress increasing the deposits of government money in the banks of the country is a measure in the interest of the banking corporations.

"The provision removing the limit as to bank note retirement is in the interest of the banking corporations.

"The measure providing for the recoining of silver dollars into subsidiary coinage is intended to reduce the amount of standard money and is in the interest of the corporations that handle the money in the money centers.

"The proposed asset currency involves the same issue.

"The trust question turns upon this issue.

"Today the corporations are monopolizing the leading branches of business and are exploiting the public.

"Those whose sympathies are with the corporations favor letting the trusts alone.

"Those whose sympathies are with the people want the private monopolies destroyed.

"The question of imperialism involves the same issue, because the influence back of imperialism is the corporate influence, for the reason that it wants to exploit the islands while the people pay the taxes to furnish the large army and navy there.

"The tariff question, with the consolidation of manufacturing plants, is becoming more a question between the corporations and the individual consumer.

"The labor question involves the same issue, for the labor troubles are not between the individual but between the corporate employers on one side and the laboring man on the other.

"I mention these issues to illustrate

GREAT DEMONSTRATION OVER VISIT OF LOUBET TO NAPLES

President of France and King of Italy Review Combined Naval Fleet Amid the Plaudits of Hundreds of Thousands of People.

Rome, April 29.—Naples remembers no event in late years which compared with the scene today (the occasion being the visit of President Loubet of France), or gathered such enormous crowds of Italians and foreigners. It is estimated that 20,000 people crowded the cafes or wandered about the streets all night, unable to find beds. From early morning every position available for witnessing the naval review was occupied by spectators and the magnificent gulf of Naples was absolutely covered with craft of all kinds, from large yachts to humble fishing and rowing boats and of all nationalities, each hoisting its colors, the French predominating. The spectacle of the French and Italian squadrons anchored side by side was magnificent and most imposing.

The battleship Regina Margherita, having on board President Loubet, King Emanuel and the royal princes with their respective suites, appeared from the military harbor and was saluted by thundering hurrahs, the booming of cannon and the waving of handkerchiefs by the immense multitude. The Regina Margherita was followed by the torpedo gunboat Euridice with members of the diplomatic corps, headed by United States Ambassador Meyer, on board and by other ships carrying dignitaries of state, members of parliament, representatives of the press. President Loubet and King Emmanuel, on the bridge of the Regina Margherita were saluted with the strains of the Marsellaise and the royal Italian march.

The weather, which yesterday was so unpromising, was glorious, the bright sunshine gilding everything. The Regina Margherita passed twice between the squadrons and President Loubet and the king exchanged compliments on the perfect condition of the ships and the appearance of the men.

From the Regina Margherita, President Loubet went on board the French cruiser Marsellaise, which is to carry him to France. He was saluted by twenty-one guns from each ship and by cheers from all the crews. Shortly after embarking on the Marsellaise he was visited by the king, when the last adieus were taken. Amidst a scene of indescribable enthusiasm the French fleet left the bay, headed by the Marsellaise. The French ships were accompanied by six Italian battleships and two squadrons of torpedo boat destroyers. As long as it was possible to distinguish the salutations President Loubet and the king exchanged their farewell salutes, standing on the bridges of the two warships.

THOUSANDS OF WORKMEN RUSH WORK ON WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS

St. Louis, April 29.—The scene at the World's fair grounds until just before time for the opening ceremonies to begin tomorrow will be one of almost unparalleled activity. Thousands of workmen will labor all night getting the buildings and grounds in condition to receive the crowds which from all indications will throng the fair enclosure tomorrow. Thirty-five miles of roadways are being hurried to completion. Tons of mud, resulting from the heavy rains early in the week, are being scraped from the macadam roads and being carted away.

Brick, stone and asphalt pavements are going down outside the grounds, sidewalks are being completed, entrance gates put in final shape to handle the rush, and all inside superstructure, temporary bridges, scaffolding, contrators' buildings, trash heaps and the like are being cleared away.

The lagoons are being filled with water and unless some untoward event happens the grand picture of the exposition in which the Louisiana purchase monument, around which the opening ceremonies will be conducted, occupies a central position, will be entirely completed.

Orders were issued today that no exhibits are to be received after midnight until Monday, and the installation of displays will not proceed tomorrow. Practically finished, the vast exposition building will be thrown open to the public with all workmen relegated to the background.

While the business houses and residences are being decorated throughout the city, every department of public life is preparing for the fair's initial day.

Already the distinguished visitors are arriving and hotels and bedding houses art reaching their high water mark. Every train arriving at Union station is crowded.

The United States gunboat Nashville and the torpedo boat destroyer Lawrence arrived in the St. Louis harbor today. Their presence here is in honor of the opening of the World's fair tomorrow.

MORGAN IS ARRANGING THE TRANSFER OF CANAL FUNDS

Paris, April 29.—The final details of the big financial operations involved in the Panama payment are almost concluded, the expectation being that an agreement will be reached today or tomorrow. J. Pierpont Morgan is personally directing the transaction, and the indications are that he and a number of American financiers who he is associating with him will consumate the transfer of the funds. It is Mr. Morgan's intention to admit some of the leading Paris banks to share in the transaction, but the carrying out of the plan will be essentially in American hands.

The correspondent of the Associated Press saw Mr. Morgan today. While no statement can be attributed to him, the correspondent is enabled to indicate, from this and other sources, the main features of the payment as follows:

The transfer of the $40,000,000 from the United States to Europe will be made so as not to discourage the money market of either country. For this purpose the total will be divided into a number of smaller amounts, leaving America at intervals, and thus not causing a strain at any one time. Moreover, it is pointed out, as the bulk of the payment comes from the treasury without its drawing on the banks there will no undue strain on the banks.

The depositary of the money here will be the Banque De France, but until the money is actually deposited in the Banque De France, it will remain the property of the United States.

UNION MEN GET INTO TROUBLE

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 29.—C. N. Shea, president of the Teamsters' union; K. B. Fitzpatrick, first vice president, and Walter Shuck, organizer of the United Garment Workers, were arrested last midnight on the charge of assault and battery. The assault, it is charged, was committed upon a man named Foster, with whom the three had been playing cards at the Clarendor hotel, and followed, it is alleged, a dispute between Foster and his wife. The three labor leaders remained in police headquarters the rest of the night. Shea and Fitzpatrick are here conducting the local teamsters' strike.

N. Y. SURBURBANITES MAROONED

New York, April 29.—Twenty-five families have been driven from their homes in St. Raymond's Park, Bronx borough, by the overflowing of the waters of Cebric creek. Property was damaged to the extent of several thousands of dollars. The flooded district is about one mile square in area on both sides of the creek. Fifty persons were rescued from the flooded houses by Westchester police, who hastily improvised rafts for the purpose. The flood was caused by an unusually high tide, which brought a rush of water from Long island sound into the creek and over the lowlands at St. Raymond's Park. So quickly did the flood appear that few persons had time to escape. Basements were flooded and the water in many homes filled the lower floors. The foundations of many buildings were loosened and they threaten to collapse. The police reserves were hurried to the scene and managed, with rafts, to remove the marooned suburbanites to homes on the hills nearby, where they spent the night, fearing another flood at the next high tide.

FOUR DIE IN HOTEL FIRE

The Bryan House at Lansing, Mich., Destroyed.

Several Boarders and Firemen Were Injured.

Lansing, Mich., April 29.—Four lives were lost last night in teh burning of the Bryan house, a three-story brick structure on East Michigan avenue, the first floor of which was used as a machine shop. The dead:

JEROME C. STILES, Grand Rapids.
JOHN VOLLAND, Lansing.
RANSOM DINGMAN, Lansing.
JAMES RAY, Lansing.

Stiles fell from an upper window soon after the fire broke out and died from his injuries at the hospital. The other three victims were burned to death, their charred bodies not being found until daylight permitted a search of the ruins. Several other boarders and two firemen were cut and burned during the progress of the fire, but their injuries are not serious. A large tank of gasoline in the basement of the building exploded a few minutes after the fire broke out, scattering flames all over the building and making it impossible to render assistance to the inmates. The financial loss is about $5000.

FALLS ON SUNDAY

Annual Moving Day Will Keep Many Church Pews Empty.

Van Companies Say Moving This Year Will Be Very Heavy.

Whoever arranged the calendar for 1901 evidently had more consideration for the lovers of nature than for the average head of a troubled household, for he permitted May 1, that day associated in the mind of every good American citizen with flowers and moving, to fall on Sunday, which dire calamity will result in many a church pew being vacant day after tomorrow, the usual occupants remaining at home to use their hands and tongues in a manner very much in violation of the Sabbath laws.

Food for the soul, as served by the minister in his pulpit is a good thing for man and woman alike, as all will agree, but food for the stomach is just as necessary, some say more, and how is the latter variety to be prepared if the stove in the new house, where "we moved the last day of April," is not set up, and the beds, pictures, carpets, etc., moved from the dining room to make room for setting forth the viands where the overworked and suffering lord of the household may get at them?

This is the season of the year when neither the bloated coal baron nor the dreadful ice man can cast a very dark shadow on the happiness of the average Duluth home. The time of the first has gone for a while, and the season of the latter has not yet arrived. Standing between these two evils, however, the patient housewive faces an evil just as great, to her notion, and one no less dreaded, in the person of the mighty van man.

"Sixty-two bunches of household goods to be moved between now and Monday night. If I succeed, 124 callings down; several more if I fail."

Thus expressing himself, one of these individuals lopped weakly back into a chair Thursday evening, and rolled his eyes heavenward in a hopeless fashion.

But the problem of seeing sixty-three families safely established in their new homes was not so great a one to him, with his dozen teams and vans, as that of any one of the sixty-three mistresses of the home in tearing up, cleaning up and moving, and then becoming settled again in a new location.

Local van men say that there is more moving of household goods going on now than at this season for many years past. The majority of leases on rented homes expire with the last day of April. The fact of the delayed spring has much to do with the rush at this time, for those who would otherwise have moved April 1 did not do so because of unfavorable weather conditions, but waited until the last of the month.

The moving is confined to no particular portion of the city, but is general from one end of town to the other. There are no favored sections where people are going in greater numbers than in other quarters to make their homes. To the average van man the annual flight from house to house is as crazy a proceeding as the purposeless and zig-zag flight of the partridge in the fall of the year. As fast as people move out of one district others move in. One family goes from West Duluth to Lakeside, and another from Lakeside to West Duluth.

The migration to Park point has already started, and not a few loads of household effects have been transported down the charming strip of land. Orders are received daily at the van offices to move goods down on the point from the city.

A JAPANESE CLASSMATE

Ann Arbor College Man Hears From His Friend.

A well known Duluth attorney, who graduated from the university of Michigan, in 1889, has received of late from one of his Japanese classmates several letters, one of them containing an illustrated pamphlet on the war between Japan and Russia, published by the Kobe Daily News at Kabe, Japan.

The classmate is G. Otsobo, who was one of several young men sent out by the Japanese government prior to 1890, when the emperor gave to his people the new constitution, to the universities of Germany, France, England and especially the United States. These young men were sent out under a systematic plan to gain knowledge of the system of government, economics, science and general education of other countries, with the idea of returning to Japan and adapting their knowledge to the progressive era in that empire, the effect of which has been so apparent in the past few years.

Of the Japanese students who were in Otsobo's class at Ann Armor, one is a general in the army, another is connected with the commissary department of the army and another has died.

In his letter to his Duluth friend Mr. Otsubo says that since leaving college he has spent seven years in teaching and is now in business.

Otsubo in referring to the pamphlet which he mailed, comments on the two nations at war thus:

"One is the representative of the only European despotic monarchy, and the other is the representative of the only constitutional people in the Orient."

The war issue of the Daily News contains the declarations of war by both emperors, the official statement of the Russo-Japanese negotiations and accounts of the early engagements.

It is illustrated with pictures of Japanese and Russian battleships and drawings showing the naval engagements off Port Arthur and Chemulpo.

FADS.

A "fad" is a taste or pursuit that temporarily engages the fancy, and then dies out, as, for example, the hundreds of so-called "pre-digested" breakfast foods that flooded the market a few months ago. There is nothing "faddy" about Pillsbury's Vitos. It was the first wheat food on the market. It is a pure, wholesome food that can be served in a hundred ways. If you have never tried Vitos, get a package at your grocer's.

CHANGE IN SYSTEM

Districts Now In Charge of Civil Service Examinations.

Applications Made to District Instead of to Local Secretary.

A competitive examination under the rules of the United States civil service commission of applicants for the grades of clerk, male and female, and carrier in the classified post office service in Duluth will be held in the local federal court room on May 24, commencing at 9 o'clock in the morning.

Under a new rule which went into effect about a month ago, the applications must be sent to the secretary of the board of examiners of the district, in this instance Patrick M. Moroney, St. Paul, instead of to the secretary of the local board as formerly. The two Dakotas and Minnesota have been made into what is known as the Eighth district, and under the new order of things, civil service examinations held in cities in any part of these states are under the supervision of Secretary Moroney.

This not only takes much work from the shoulders of certain men in the local offices, but it absolutely prevents any favoritism being shown in making the appointments to positions in the office, and saves these men from being bothered with requests of personal friends for favors in the examinations and appointments.

The secretary of the district takes the list of eligibles and makes certification to fill the vacancies as they may appear in the local offices, although the examinations are held in the same places as before. In the present instance applications for this examination must be in the hands of the secretary at St. Paul by the hour of closing business on May 17. Therefore all persons desiring examination should secure blanks and fill them out at once, in order to allow time for any necessary corrections.

The list of eligibles at the Duluth office for the positions of clerks and carriers is getting rather short, and the superintendent of delivery thought best to request the present examination to increase the list of eligibles. There will probably be two or three vacancies in the local force by July 1, for it is thought likely the working force at the Duluth office will be increased by that many clerks about July 1. About twenty persons have already signified their intention of taking the examination.

On May 14 an examination will be held to secure eligibles to fill a vacancy in the position of fireman in the Duluth federal building, at a salary of $720 per annum. No educational test will be given, and it will not be necessary for applicants to appear at any place for examination. The age limit will be 21 to 50 years. All honorably discharged soldiers and sailors of the war of the rebellion will be admitted to this examination without regard to the maximum age limit. The examination will consist chiefly in communicating with persons named in the applications as references.

CARGILL IS FOUND GUILTY

Convicted of Selling Liquor to Romney Kelley, Minor.

J. B. Cargill, the proprietor of the saloon at 208 West Superior street, was found guilty in the municipal court yesterday afternoon of selling liquor to minors. Sentence was withheld and a stay of twenty days granted at the request of his attorney, Albert Baldwin.

The conviction was due to the testimony of Romney Kelley, a 19-year-old boy. Kelley testified that he had been served with two glasses of beer over the bar in Cargill's establishment on the morning of Sunday, April 10. He also stated that he had been given a drink of liquor from a bottle in the possession of some unknown man in the saloon. The witness stated that "Paddy" Sheehan, another minor, was with him at the time.

Sheehan is under parole from the municipal court, and it is possible that his connection with the case will result in his parole being cancelled.

P. T. Vail, the bartender, denied that he had served liquor to the boys, and stated that he had ordered them from the saloon.

The city council will probably consider the question of revoking Cargill's license as the result of his conviction.

WHO DESIGNED MONITOR?

Swedes Ask That Question Be Definitely Decided.

Chicago, April 29.—Senator Knute Nelson and Congressman Lind have been appealed to by the Swedish National association of Illinois "to determine authoritatively and finally where the honor of having designed the first monitor belongs."

In the letter sent to Senator Nelson and Congressman Lind, it was said that "the entire American people, as well as the whole world, have always believed that 'from turret to keel plate, from rudder shoe to anchor well,' every distinctive feature of the monitor was the creation of Eriesson's brain; every detail was stamped with evidence of his handiwork."

It is said that the request of a decision is made to silence "the impudent pretensions of false claimants to the honor of the invention."

"Here, here, little boy," said the benevolent old gentleman, "stop your crying and act like a little man."

"Say," said the little boy, "cut out that hot air about 'acting like a little man.' I just bought a box of Dr. Hickox's Malarial Capsules for la grippe and biliousness at Kugler's."

WILL BEGIN MONDAY

Assessors to Commence Valuing Personal Property of City.

Names of Those Who Have the Work In Hand.

The work of assessing the personal property in the city of Duluth will be commenced Monday morning, when City Assessor Olafson will send out thirteen deputies to do the work.

The deputies will be provided with badges in order that their authority may not be questioned, and that irresponsible persons may not secure admittance to the houses on the pretext of being deputy assessors.

The deputies are paid at the rate of $3 per day during the time they serve. The following is the list of deputies as appointed by the city assessor:

First ward—Henry Nelson.
Second ward—Richard J. Ryan.
Third ward—O. J. Klippen.
Fourth ward—John W. Marvin.
Fifth ward—E. B. Fox.
Sixth ward—John Bergstrom.
Seventh ward—J. P. Weir.
Eighth ward—Anthony Johnson.
Special district—Alfred Robinson and C. H. Young.
Lumber and coal—R. C. McKinley and W. J. Wallace.
For district north of boulevard and east of Thirty-sixth avenue east, W. J. Wallace.

The two deputies for the special district will assess the personal property in the business portion of the city.

The work must be completed by June 27, when the board of review will meet to consider all protests against the assessments.

The personal property assessment is made every year on May 1. The men will be sworn in tomorrow before City Clerk Cheadle, and will commence work Monday morning.

The real property is also assessed this spring. This assessment is made every two years. The work is done by the regular office force, which has been engaged at it for several months past.

The office formerly occupied by the city building inspector in the city hall has been turned over to the assessor for the two months that the deputies will be at work. The building inspector has moved his office into the room occupied by the board of park commissioners.

IS DELAYED ANOTHER WEEK

New Omaha Limited Train Will Reach Here May 9.

General Agent Smith of the Omaha has received a telegram from General Passenger Agent Teasdale, regretting the postponement again of the new Duluth limited train, which is being tested in the St. Paul shops.

It was found necessary to make some changes in the mechanism of the train at the last minute, so it cannot come tomorrow and will not reach here until next week, when it is expected to start it into service May 9.

But the change in schedule on the Omaha will be in effect Sunday, as heretofore advertised, and the present equipment will be run on the new schedule of departing and arriving as heretofore announced, until the new trains are ready. The officials of the road say they hope and believe that the present changes in the train will be the last, but that what changes have been made have been for the betterment of the service.

GOODMAN OUT ON BAIL.

New York, April 29.—James W. Goodman, who is under indictment charged with attempting to shoot William C. Greene, president of the Greene Consolidated Copper company, about a month ago, was released from prison on bail today in the sum of $2800.

PRESIDENT'S CABINET.

Transacts Considerable Business In a Short Time.

Washington, April 29.—Considerable business of importance was transacted at today's meeting of the cabinet, although the session did not consume as much time as usual. All the members were present except Secretary Taft, Postmaster General Payne being in attendance the first time in several weeks. Mr. Payne remained with the president some time after adjournment, talking over departmental matters.

Secretary Shaw presented to the president the new commission of Dr. W. D. Crum as collector of the port of Charleston, S. C., and the president signed it. The commission was made otu at the time by direction of the president, given yesterday.

ASTONISHED HER PA.

Nearly thirty-eight years ago Mark Hanna was just starting on his business career as a grocer in Cleveland, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. He was poor, plodding, and to the casual observer a very everyday sort of young man. Daniel Rhodes was one of the rich coal owners of the state. He had one daughter, Gussie, the very idol of his soul. Around this lovely girl the brusque old father had wreathed all the sentiment, all the hopes of his future existence. Everything was to be done for Gussie. Mrs. Rhodes, her fond mother, was the joint idolator at the daughter's shrine, and the doting parents had dreams of a rich, influential suitor, a splendid marriage and a brilliant social career for Gussie, when, as usual, the unexpected happened. Gussie Rhodes met and loved the obscure, poor young man, Mark Hanna. Mr. Rhodes was astounded when the daring young grocer called upon him and asked for the hand of his daughter. He refused absolutely to grant the young suitor even time enough to beg. He said "no" curtly and sharply, and when he saw his daughter he tried to scold her, but instead he took her in his honest arms and begged her not to think of "this unknown man, Hanna." He said he never, never could consent to such a choice for his child.

Gussie Rhodes told her father, with many a reassuring embrace, that she would never marry without his consent, and she added: "But, papa, dear, I shall never marry any man but Mark Hanna."

Then she promised her father not to see her lover or write to him for a year at least. She kept her promise, and in the course of a few weeks, although she never audibly murmured, and was sweetly gentle and loving to all about her, she grew pale and wan. She neither ate nor slept. The old father was at his wit's end. Some one proposed a foreign tour for that change of scene which is supposed to work wonders in heart affections, and, presto! at a few hours' notice, father, mother and daughter were on board an Atlantic liner.

For nearly a year the "change of scene" prescription was faithfully pursued and the patient, always cheerfully submissive, gentle and charming, obviously grew frailer day by day. Almost in despair the old man brought his child home again, and one morning he gathered the courage to ask her if she still cared for Mark Hanna.

"Why, father," she replied, "I shall always love Mark. I told you that, you know, a year ago."

Poor old "Uncle Dan" Rhodes! That was a bitter day for him, but he was equal to the occasion. Sending for the obscure young man, he said to him:

"Mr. Hanna, Gussie loves you; that is my only reason for accepting you as her future husband. You are poor. I'll fix it so Gussie can live as she has been accustomed to, and I suppose I must see you marry her."

Now the coming young man cast ever so slight a shadow of his future greatness on the opportunity of the present.

"Mr. Rhodes," said he, "I most gratefully accept the gift of your daughter's love. To marry her is for this world to become a paradise for me, but I cannot make her my wife unless she will be content to live as my means will enable us. I can neither accept aid nor permit my wife to accept it from any one."

So Mark Hanna and Gussie Rhodes were married, and the bride went from her father's big house to live in a tiny little cottage where with one maid-of-all-work, she was as happy as a queen for some years.

A LACHRYMOSE THIEF.

The successful effort of John Mahnken, of Chicago, to pump crocodile tears from his lachrymose glands when claiming bodies of the Iroquois victims as those of his relatives in order to get hold of valuables, furnishes a study in the art of emotion and what it is capable of as a profession apart from ny real seismic sorrow that convulses the breast with sobs and makes the heartstrings ache, says the Dertoit Tribune. The man Mahnken made a confession in which he said of the scene in which he identified a body on which was the sum of $400, as that of his aunt: "I creid as real as any person could who had lost a dear relative." This body having been afterward positively identified caused Mahnken a fresh bereavement, but he was equal to the emergency, and having "identified" another body, went to the room where the unclaimed valuables were, and there once more poured out his anguish in briny tears. In ancient days—and the custom is not yet wholly absolete in some Oriental countries—professional mourners were engaged for a price to maim themselves and wail lamentations for the dead. At the opportune occasion the head mourner broke loose and the rest followed. In Job it is written: "And the mourners go about the streets," showing that professional lamentation with its dolorous exclaims was in very antique practice.

Dealings with the dead even of modern time vary in different localities. Chicago's monster mourned with flowing tears over others' dead and claimed them as his kin, for cash, and in Michigan, it is recalled that a few years ago three men in a carriage, each with a cigr in his mouth, entered Ann Arbor in the gray of the dawn and proceeded toward the university "preserve" where grim old Nagel then held sway. The two "end men" were full of life and business. They had something for sale. The man in the middle was dead. He was for sale. He brought $25. There were no tears. The end men were ghouls. Chicago noodles in crim may weep for gains o'er "friend's" remains, but it is a cowardly trick. For a real tearless, social good time with the dead, nothing in the line of nerve beats the Michigan instance, though it may be added that the university, like the grave, gave up its dead, and lost its $25 and the ghouls served time; but what we are really after is an explanation of the science of emotional grief as exemplified by Mahnken, of Chicago.

SHE WAS A STAYER.

A spruce-looking young woman tripped into the lobby of a Washington hotel and walked up to the counter, says the Detroit News.

"Would you like a room?" asked the clerk.

"Yes, sir, thank you."

"Please sign your name here," said Gilray, and after she had written her name he asked, "Have you a trunk?"

"Yes, sir, thank you."

"Would you like to go to your room now?"

"If you please."

"How long shall you remain?" asked Gilray as he summoned a bellboy.

"I don't know," said the girl, shyly. "I've just got a job in the linen room, and if I like it I shall stay quite a while."

WILL PAY HALF

J. L. Washburn Makes Offer on East Fifth Street Bridge.

Grading From Woodland to Twenty-Third Avenues Is Urged.

J. L. Washburn offered this morning to guarantee any amount up to $2500 toward the building of a bridge across the ravine in the normal school grounds, on condition that the city and the property owners in the vicinity would contribute the other half of $5000, which will be necessary for the work.

"I cannot pledge the state or the normal school board for any amount," said Mr. Washburn to the board of public works, "but I suppose it does not matter where the money comes from, as long as it is forthcoming, and I will promise that that amount of money will be raised in some way, if the other half is raised by the city and the property owners who will be benefitted by the improvement."

The matter came up in connection with the plan to grade Fifth street between Woodland and Twenty-third avenues East of Twenty-third avenue and west of Woodland avenue, the street is graded, but these three blocks are as yet unimproved. A ravine about thirty feet in depth and some 300 feet in width runs across the right-of-way for the street, and it will have to be bridged in some manner or the improvement will be of little account. The expense of an ornamental foot bridge would be about $5000, and as it would be practically within the normal schools grounds their value would be enhanced by the improvement. Mr. Washburn attended the meeting of the board as a representative of the state normal board.

It was thought by the members of the board of public works that the property owners on the street immediately adjoining the proposed improvement might be assessed for the work on account of the benefit accruing to them in having the two improved portions of the street joined. It is claimed by the owners of the lots on the south side of Fifth street between Twenty-second and Twenty-third avenue that the property lies very low and would not stand a heavy assessment for the grading of the street and the building of the proposed bridge. Some of them claim that the assessment would be more than the lots are worth.

"I'll take those lots if they will give them to me, and I'll pay the assessments," said Mr. Washburn, when this objection was mentioned.

Alexander Kennedy of the board of public works thought that a wide foot bridge would answer all the requirements, as there is little heavy teaming done in that district.

President Martz suggested that the aqueduct across the ravine might be utilized in some manner and lessen the cost of the proposed bridge.

The matter was finally allowed to go over, while the city engineer prepares estimates of the cost of the improvement.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Fire Rages In Ninth Level of Ishpeming Mine.

Ishpeming—Fire is raging in the ninth level of the Oliver Iron Mining company's No. 16 mine, and threatens heavy damage. The shaft is too full of smoke to permit the men to enter. The company has suspended operations at its East Norrie mine, at Ironwood, 400 men being affected, and at its big Aragon mine at Norway has laid off one shift. Too much ore in stock is given as the cause of the curtailment.

Bessemer—At the last meeting of the common council an ordinance was passed establishing saloon limits in this city. The ordinance affects only two parties, Andrew Newman and Adolph Johnson, of the Colby location, denying both a license for the ensuing year. Both men intend to contest the right of the city council to revoke licenses.

Manistique—The Manistique council has increased the salaries of the city treasurer and city clerk to $900 per annum each, the former from $400 and the latter from $500. The mayor and each of the aldermen will draw $50 per year. The engineer of the fire department will receive $50 per month and free rent, light and fuel and $10 a month extra while operating the road roller.

Menominee—The bill of Sheriff Stiles, of Menominee county for the care of prisoners during the past two months was nearly $1000. At one time since the first of January there were forty-four prisoners in the county jail, most of them tramps and vagrants. A scrutiny of the records of the sheriff's office shows that there were more prisoners confined there at that time than during any time when Dickinson and Menominee counties were united.

Sault Ste. Marie—City Treasurer J. F. Deadman is in favor of increasing the annual Soo appropriation bill to the extent of about $35,000. This will bring it up to an even $100,000, and in case such action is taken the treasurer is of the opinion it will not be necessary for the city to raise money for issuing bonds hereafter Mr. Deadman says that if the expenses of conducting the city for the coming year will be $290,000, as estimated by the comptroller, half of this sum should be raised by a tax levy, as the income from other sources will not bring in enough money.

JAPAN'S FAUNA.

Monkey's that Surive Snow-storms, Deer and Birds.

In Japan, equally with Northern China, the quadrumana are found further north than in other parts of the globe, says the London Spectator. The sight of hummingbirds in the more or less temperate regions of the Pacific coast of North America is not so surprising as the presence of an active and prolific race of monkeys among the pine groves of Japan. They are rather large apes, with speckled red faces and a most unpleasant cast of countenance, and, to judge from the behavior of those kept in captivity, have considerably more than the average degree of monkey intelligence. They seem quite indifferent to cold, though the forests which they inhabit are frequently visited by deep falls of snow. They are largely herbivorous creatures, devouring tree shoots, leaves and other vegetables, and do not appear to invade the cultivated ground, as do the baboons of South Africa. They are adepts at throwing sticks and stones in self-defense, a trick which is well known to the natives in the forests which they frequent.

The red deer and its varieties, such as the splendid stag known as the "maral" in Manchuria and Siberia, are not found beyond the limits of the continent. But in the Japanese or sika deer Britain's far Eastern allies possess an animal so handsome, hardy and excellent in venison that its highly successful introduction into English parks is a matter for congratulation. It is a short, sturdy, strong looking deer, and the stags carry handsome horns, though by no means so large in proportion as are those of the Indian axis stag. In winter the fur is thick and of a dark brown, in summer it is of a bright fawn color, dappled with white spots. The race is prolific, and the stags are so courageous that they have been known to fight and kill red deer of far greater size when coenfined in the same park with our native stags.

The fur seals still come to their old "rookeries" on one or more of the small islands belonging to Japan in Bering sea, but the number is rapidly dwindling there, as elsewhere. But it is in bird life that the natural history of the islands is most remarkable, and the list of interesting species is by no means confined to the wild ducks and cranes which are such a favorite subject in the national art. Among what may be called the popular birds of the country are the cuckoo and the "jenny wren;" and it is somewhat curious that public fancy has always preferred to delineate the storks, cranes, ducks and gees of the rice marshes and rivers rather than the birds of the garden and the field. If the cranes have a religious association, the same cannot be said of the other waterfowl.

But every Japanese seems to be a florist and ornithologist by nature, and the ease of observing the water birds and the decorative character of their plumage probably determined the popular preference for their presence, not only on the pools and ponds,, but on almost every form of picture and decorative design. Birds of prey are very numerous. Among these is a fine sea eagle, not greatly differing from the splendid Korean sea eagle, one of the largest of its race. The goshawk also breeds there in numbers, nesting chiefly in the pine trees. It was the favorite bird of the sporting daimios in the old days, and the young were regularly taken from the nests and brought up "at hack," much on the same principle as the goshawk is or was in Europe.

They were flown at pheasants mainly, and also at cranes and geese, which were approached by the aid of a stalking horse when feeding on the rice fields and the stubbles in harvest time. A very interesting bird, not exactly a raptor, but allied in habits, is a large butcher bird. It preys on frogs and lives mainly by the side of the reed beds and water channels. The most striking of the Japanese game birds is one of the "copper pheasants," a brilliantly colored, but rather scarce creature.

But the Japanese variety of the common pheasant is also a remarkable bird. In it the splendid green which decorates the neck only of the "English" pheasant, or the ring necked Chinese species, is carried down over the whole breast. It is also larger than either the common or Chinese pheasant, and when c rossed with these greatly improves the size of the progeny.

San Francisco or Los Angeles, Cal., and Return, $50.00.

April 23rd to May 1st the Northern Pacific railway will sell tickets, account Methodist Episcopal Conference and Grocers' Convention, to San Francisco or Los Angeles and return for $50.00, good returning until June 30th. Stopovers allowed in both directions.

Why wait when Herald "want ads" are ready.

GIGANTIC WAIL

From Mine Owners of Colorado and Other States.

Ruling of the Interior Department That Causes Lawsuits.

Washington, April 29.—A gigantic wail has risen from mine owners of Colorado and other western states because of the ruling of the interior department upon the method of settling mining claims when there is a conflict in the surveys. No end of money is tied up because companies interested in mine claims do not know "where they are at," and vigorous complaints are being made daily.

Under the existing order of things a man may stake out a claim, have it surveyed and approved by the surveyor-general of the state in which it is located, and then have another man come along and locate a claim on top of it and obtain from the courts a decision which says the first claim is not where it was, but anywhere from a quarter of a mile or a mile to the north, east, south or west thereof. This is Irish, but it describes the situation.

Mr. Jones finds a streak of ore. He stakes out a claim. Then he employs a surveyor to make the proper survey. These surveyors are appointed and duly authorized by the government, but are paid by the owners of the property they survey. When one gets a contract he goes to the surveyor-general who gives him the authority to make the survey.

He goes over the ground carefully, surveys it and puts up the monuments and then reports that the claim of Jones is of such and such dimensions and is so many degrees in this or that direction from one of the four corners o fthe township in which it is located. This report, when approved by the surveyor-general, is accepted as official and is put on record as the proper description of the size, shape and location of the Jones claim.

Smith, however, strikes ore also. Smith's strip is in the same township in which Jones' is located. Smith's surveyor reports the location of Smith's claim. By his report Smith's claim lands squarely on top of Jones'. Then there is a row. An investigation follows, and it is shown that the Jones claim was not where the surveyor said it was, but half a mile away, because of a mistake made by the surveyor.

Very often Jones' claim will be described as located on such and such a tie line, as the line running from the claim to the nearest corner of the township is called, when in reality, it is half a mile off the line. Smith's actual claim may be on the line, and in no way interfering with Jones' claim and yet, because Jones' claim is officially described in the government plats as being on the tie line, Smith is unable to get out a patent. Jones refuses to allow another survey, because he fears that Brown may have a patent for the ground actually occupied by his claim, so the matter goes to court, where witnesses are heard and other evidence is received and the true location and description of the claims are settled.

There are a number of such suits before the courts now and two or three cases before Secretary Hitchcock. One company of New York capitalists was forced to close up its works in 1899 because of such a conflict of claims and allow to lie idle a mine upon which was being spent $30,000 a year. Its monthly bill for machinery and supplies averaged $1000 and they were spending a great deal of money for other supplies.

The surveyor-general "stood pat" on his "official" survey, although it was proven that the mine was not where it was described as being and the owners had to go into court to settle the question.

TEACHING THE IGORROTES

They Seem to Like It and Try Hard to Learn.

St. Louis, Mo., April 29.—For the first time in their lives the wild Igorrotes in the Filipino colony at the World's Fair are going to school. The institution was started last week as an experiment. Some of the Igorrotes have got as far as A, B, C, and a few to F and G. Others can count as high as ten. Old men, young men, boys and girls—the whole tribe—are attending. The school is in session one hour every morning and two hours each afternoon. The Igorrotes seem to like it, and try hard to learn.

The teacher is Miss Leonora R. Vandiver. She is a stenographer employed by Dr. T. K. Hunt, who is in charge of the tribe. Miss Vandiver found her duties not so very pressing, and, as she had taught school in Illinois, she thought she would try a hand with the savages. Dr. Hunt bought some primers and school started.

Never did a teacher have a stranger class. The half-naked Igorrotes gather round her in a semicircle and repeat their A, B, Cs after her. Miss Vandiver speaks a little Spanish, but this does not help her much, as the Igorrotes know about as much Spanish as they do English. The teacher has a great help in Aleto, a boy who talks some English. He is at the head of the class and likely to stay there.

The class began in the primers on "See the cat." The teacher repeated the words and then called on the class. They tried, but only one or two succeeded. The rest shook their heads. Then they turned over to the next page. "See the dog," said the teacher. The Igorrotes looked at the picture a moment. Then, in chorus they shouted "Dog; dog! dog!" They understood dog, and the sight of their favorite food almost broke up the school.

FIGHTING DIVES

Texas Brewers Would Save Reputation of Their Business.

Are Anxious to See the Dive Saloons Wiped Out.

Austin, Tex., April 29.—The Texas Brewers' association has come to the conclusion that the saloon business is suffering in reputation and drawing warfare upon the institution of liquor selling because of some of the disreputable persons engaged in it. It is believed by the members of the association that if this element was driven out the attacks on it would be lessened, and that it could be placed on a plane with every other line of business or trade authorized and permitted by the laws of the state. The Brewers' association of almost every state in the Union came to this conclusion some months ago.

In some cities, notably Memphis, Tenn, just as soon as a man is convicted of violation of the liquor law, the brewers and wholesale dealers refuse to sell to him, and there is nothing left for him to do but to go out of business.

The law in force in Pennsylvania is the result of the brewers' work, and it is said that more beer is sold there and fewer violations of the law reported, according to population, than in any other state.

The brewers have no use for the dives and want to see them wiped out, whether it be by license regulations or by vigorous and sucessful prosecution every time the keepers violate the law.

There are several counties in this state where the association has been instrumental in breaking up the dives, and at this time more than sixty indictments are pending in counties where they have been secured by the association.

The association is thoroughly organized and equipped, and is engaging the best legal counsel obtainable in the several counties in its effort to free the state from the baneful influence of the dives.

At a recent meeting of the owners and managers of the Texas breweries in Galveston, action was taken with a view of purifying the liquor traffic. The following report of the proceedings of the conference was furnished the press:

The managers and owners of Texas breweries, assembled at Galveston for the purpose of discussing the causes and conditions which have led to the prejudice now existing among a number of our fellow-citizens against the so-called liquor traffic, have reached the following conclusions as a result of their deliberations:

There are places in this state which, under the cover of a saloon license, transact illegitimate business in complete disregard of the laws of the state, and the officers, whose duty it is to prevent and remove such abuses, either neglect their duty or are powerless for want of proper support.

To correct these abuses and their immoral influence, reputable citizens are naturally driven to almost any extreme, and as the local option law seems to offer the quickest remedy, they do not hesitate to avail themselves of this unjust measure and become prohibitionists, although at heart they are against the fanatical doctrine of interference with the rights and personal liberty of their neighbors.

That this state of affairs is detrimental to the interests and the good name of the brewing industry requires no argument. We know that true temperance can but be promoted by the more general introduction of beer as a beverage, which is a pure and wholesome stimulant, and it becomes a duty to ourselves and our vocation to protest against the accusation of immoral or hurtful tendencies in the manufacture and sale of beer.

TWO MILLIONS IN APPLES

Arkansas County Has Three Million Trees and Big Distelleries.

Bentonville, Ark., April 29.—Benton county, Arkansas, joins Missouri and the Cherokee Nation. It contains 891 square miles. People from almost every state in the Union and a goodly number from Europe comprise its population. This part of Arkansas is in the front rank for health, and in producing fine mules and horses, fine tobacco, etc.

From Benton county's 3,000,000 apple trees come the delicious Shannon apple and other fine varieties that took first premium at the different world's fairs—at Philadelphia in 1876; at London and Paris; at Louisville, at Nashville, New Orleans, Atlanta and several fruit expositions in California; at the Pomological society in Boston, and in Chicago in 1893 they took 11 out of 15 premiums on apples. This is the only place in the United States that will color the Ben Davis apple perfectly red. Of the first setting of apple trees there are but few of the unprofitable varieties, and one-half of the trees planted are not yet bearing.

One-third of Benton county is prairie, one-third heavily timbered, but generally lies well; one-third flint and limestone hills, with hundreds of fine cold living springs most all over the county. All of this prairie and wood land is suitable for agricultural purposes and is excellent fruit land, while these flinty hills produce the finest berries and grapes, and under the new state law (which allows the producer to dispose of his wine without license) will soon be the most valuable part of the county.

While the people of Benton county believe in diversifying crops, apple-growing is the staple industry. There has been only one failure of the crop in twenty years, so the farmers can rely upon it with more certainty than any other crop.

The shipments of green and evaporated apples from Benton county amount to more than 200 cars annually, and of this large amount one-third is shipped to Bentonville and shipping stations in its immediate vicinity.

Benton is one of the richest counties in the state of Arkansas, and well it may be, for the apple crop bring annually $2,000,000.

The demands for Arkansas apples is steadily growing and is growing faster than the supply.

PASSION PLAY BY NEGROES

Colored Methodists Give Vivid Production of Great Tragedy.

Columbia, S. C., April 29.—On Sunday night last a spectacular performance took place at the colored Methodist Episcopal church at Fairfax, this state, marking an epoch in the religious ceremonies of the negroes. The participants had only one week for rehearsal and to prepare costumes. Whether any of these people ever heard of the Passion Play of Oberammergau is a question, but they certainly attempted something along similar lines at their Easter celebration.

The church was brilliantly lighted with innumerable candles and decorated with flowers, vines and mosses. The specially dramatic features were the five women at the sepulchre, dressed in mourning robes, wearing crowns stuck full of tiny candles. They circled about the tomb of Jesus—a black box—asking in thrilling tones "Where have they laid him?" Then a great angel came forth, all in white. This was a colored man, wearing a gown, with sleeves that, when lifted up by raising the arms, caused him to look as if he had wings. He said to the women:

"He is not here. He is risen."

Then the women marched up and down the aisles intoning the words: "Christ is risen! Christ is risen indeed." They had a "star in the East" and the Magi. Many incidents in the life of Christ were illustrated in songs and speeches, and a mighty wave of frenzied excitement was engendered by the realism.

MEDERINE MADE FROM PURE HERBS CURES RHEUMATISM!

Shawano, Wis., March 20th, 1904.

MEDERINE REMEDY CO., Duluth, Minn.

Dear Sirs: A year ago last February I was taken with a most severe attack of Inflammatory Rheumatism, so that it was impossible for me to help myself. I called a doctor and he prescribed some medicine for me and I doctored with him for two months without any help. Then I went to taking patent medicine but they did not help, and I was nearly discouraged, till finally I saw your advertisement and started to take MEDERINE. After I had taken three bottles I was able to work but I finished the whole course and am perfectly cured. If north would have come back before this time. I most gladly recommend Mederine for Rheumatism. One of my children is taking Mederine for Eczema with great success.

PRESIDENT PERSISTENT.

Again Appoints Crum as Collector of Customs.

Washington, April 29.—President Roosevelt yesterday directed the reappointment of W. D. Crum as collector of customs at Charleston, S. C. The president has received positive assurance that the senate will take up Crum's case immediately on reconvening next session, and that it will be disposed of finally. Until he is confirmed Crum cannot draw any salary, but it is said that his friends have arranged to see that he is provided with ample funds. Should he be confirmed, the government, of course, will pay him the back salary.

MURDERER HEARS

The Funeral Services Held Over His Victim.

Kansas City, Mo., April 29.—As if to further impress him with the enormity of his crime, fate decreed by me e coincidence that Louis Gregory, the negro slayer of the late Roy Martin in Kansas City, Kan., should be forced to hear the funeral hymn sung over the body of his victim.

The Methodist church in which the Martin obsequies were conducted is across the street from the Wyandotte county jail, where Gregory is a prisoner. The inmates in the main cell room could see the funeral crowd congregating. They told Gregory about it. Confined in "murderer's row," Gregory was so isolated that he could not see the mourning assemblage.

But he could hear.

From the church across the street there was wafted into the dismal cell the solemn notes of the good old Methodist funeral odes. It was enough to impress the most blase and cynical criminal in the jail.

Gregory pressed his black face against the bars and sobbed aloud. His frame shook violently and when the sweetly solemn strains of Jesus, lover of my soul.

Let me to thy bosom fly.

came into his cell, he was almost overcome with emotion.

And then, as if to add a fitting climax, young Gregory listened and drank in every word of a prayer, the general trend of which was an invocation for divine mercy upon the soul of the murderer.

COMPANY DISBANDS.

Singers In the Silver Slipper Company Struck.

Winnipeg, April 29.—Twelve hundred Winnipeg theater-goers, who assembled last evening to witness a performance by the "Silver Slipper" company, were disappointed and obtained their money back at the box office. The company, while en route to this city, demanded the payment of one day's back pay, which had been withheld owing to delay in wasnouts. The managers refused. The result was a strike, no performance, and the company disbanded.

The company was announced to appear in the Twin City theaters next week.

KID CARTER OUTCLASSED.

St. Louis, April 29.—The police last night stopped the fight between Jack O'Brien, of Philadelphia, and Kid Carter, of Brooklyn, in the third round of a scheduled 15-round bout. Carter was outclassed, being all but a beaten man at the end of the first round. He was sent to the canvas three times in the second, going to his corner very groggy. In the third round he was put down and almost out by a right to the jaw. He attempted to rise at the count of eight, but the police ordered the bout stopped.

SCALDED TO DEATH IN VAT OF BOILING LARD.

St. Paul, April 29.—Andrew Rietz, 32, employed as a vat skimmer at Swift & Co.'s packing house, South St. Paul, fell into a vat of scalding lard yesterday. He was taken to the city hospital, where he died.

Rietz was standing on the edge of the vat when he lost his balance and plunged head foremost into the boiling contents of the vat. His frantic screams attracted help, but before being rescued he was terribly scalded. The unfortunate man was married and lived with his wife at South St. Paul.

CONFISCATED TIMBER.

State Realizes $1,459.78 By Sale at Auction.

St. Paul, April 29.—State Auditor S. C. Iverson sold at auction to C. W. Thomas, of St. Paul, 201,350 feet of confiscated timber at $7.25 a thousand, realizing $1459.78.

A unique feature of the transaction is that although only 75,000 feet of timber had been cut on state lands, the state got pay for 201,350 feet. The 125,000 feet was mixed with the 75,000 feet, and under the law was subject to confiscation by the state. The logs were taken from John C. Patterson, who has been bound over to the grand jury of Aitkin county on a charge of cutting 75,000 feet from state lands.

State Auditor Iverson expected a slightly higher bid on the timber, but inasmuch as the state gets pay for three times as much as had been cut from state lands, the compensation is very satisfactory. There were two bidders, the Pine Tree Lumber company offering $7 a thousand.

BALL LIKE A MENAGERIE

Club Members and Guests Are to Represent Animals.

Stamford, Conn., April 29.—Invitations which have been issued for a fancy dress ball to be given by the Connecticut Cat club have set society here in a flutter. This club has a reputation for giving original entertainments, which is likely to be sustained by the coming ball. The affair is to be given in the Stamford Casino, and the dainty cards of invitation, bearing the coat of arms of the club—tabby of high degree, with the motto "Libertas sine labore"—are eagerly sought.

Some startling effects will be produced by the costumes which have been designed for the ball. The central idea is not unlike that of the famous "vegetable party" given by the late Abram S. Hewitt to New York's "Four Hundred" a few years ago, only on this occasion the dancers will represent animals instead of flowers and kitchen vegetables.

The plan was originated by Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, president of the club, whose husband is the Connecticut member of the Democratic national committee and a former mayor of Stamford. Mrs. Cummings is the daughter of James D. Smith, the former commodore of the New York Yacht club, and former president of the New York stock exchange, with whom she and her husband live at Linden Lodge, a beautiful place on the outskirts of the city. The household pets which are the objects of the club's solicitude have no more enthusiastic champion than she, and she owns a large number of highly-bred cats.

Her name was brought into prominence a year ago, when the club gave a cat show. Among the events announced was a series of field trials, with a prize for the kitten killing the largest number of mice. Mayor Charles H. Leeds forbade the contest, and was backed up by John P. Hamies, president of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Mrs. Cummings engaged in a brisk controversy with her opponent. In one of her letters she wrote:

"It seems to me that a mouse-protecting mayor as a feature of the cat show would tend to provoke levity in the community."

When the little storm subsided it turned out that a clever hoax had been perpetrated by Mrs. Cummings. Only mechanical cats and mice appeared in the widely advertised "field trials," while candy mice were given away as souvenirs. Mayor Leeds enjoyed the joke on himself so thoroughly that he joined the Cat club. He is now its treasurer.

ITEM IN PAPER

Led to Reunion of Kentuckian and Daughter.

Columbia, Mo., April 29.—C. E. James, a clerk in the criminal court of Frankfort, Ky., while looking over a country paper from Jackson county, Missouri, noticed an item concerning his long-lost daughter, Miss Mary James, a pupil of the Synodical college in Fulton.

The father and daughter had been separated for 16 years, or since the daughter was 2 years old, and neither knew the whereabouts of the other until the father saw the item. Miss James had been taken in charge by her mother on account of a family separation, and knew nothing of her father.

Mr. James at once left for Fulton, where he was reunited with his daughter, and after she finishes her school year she will go to her father's home to reside.

THE SKIN LIKE A SPONGE

Some of the most stubborn diseases enter into the system through the pores of the skin. Like a sponge, it absorbs poisons of various kinds, which are taken up by the little blood-vessels beneath the surface of the body, and emptied into the great current of the blood. The juices of poison oak and other noxious wild plants percolate through the skin like water through a sponge, are taken into the circulation, breaking out afresh each season, and lingering on for years unless antidoted and driven out of the system.

Dye Poisoning among the employes of dye houses, and from wearing colored under-clothing and hosiery, is of frequent occurrence and dangerous to health, causing boils and sores and other eruptions.

Workers in lead, brass and other metals ars often poisoned by the chemicals and acids used in polishing, and the dust and filings settling upon the skin, and which find their way through the pores into the blood, followed by inflammation, swelling and the most obstinate sores.

Blood Poison, the vilest of all human diseases, is often contracted through shaking the hand or handling the clothing or other articles used by one infected with this dangerous poison. The deadly virus finding its way through the pores of the skin, contaminates the blood and produces fearful ulcers, eruptions and blotches.

SSS

The diseases that enter the system by absorption or through the pores are as deep-seated and dangerous as any brought on by internal causes, and cannot be reached by washes, salves, soaps or other external remedies. The blood must be purified and a healthy circulation established before getting permanently rid of the disease. S. S. S. acts upon the blood, ridding it of the original poison and restoring it to a healthy, normal condition.

S. S. S. is guaranteed entirely vegetable, an unrivaled blood purifier and the best of all tonics. With all impurities removed from the blood, the sores and eruptions disappear from the skin. Write us should you desire medical advice or any information about your case; this will cost you nothing.

POISON OAK AND ITS EFFECTS.

Over fifteen years ago I was poisoned with Poison Oak. I tried remedy after remedy without getting relief. Sores broke out over my body and on my tongue, affecting the lining of my mouth. Finally, about a year ago my doctor told me to try S. S. S., which I did. After taking three bottles all the sores disappeared, and I have not been bothered since, and I feel much indebted to your valuable medicine for so prompt and complete a cure. I am certain that S. S. S. will do all that is claimed for it in blood diseases.

DECLINE IN PRICES

Of Many Domestic Products During the Past Year.

Higher Prices of Imported Articles For Manufacturing Uses.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prices of nearly all the great classes of domestic production have materially fallen during the past year, the chief exceptions being cotton, wool, wheat, corn, oats, and refined petroleum. On the other hand, prices of imported articles for use in manufacturing have advanced during the same period. This statement summarizes in a few words the picture of prices today compared with those of a year ago, as presented by the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics.

The bureau of statistics has for many years published in its monthly summary of commerce and finance quotations of prices of about 50 leading articles entering into the markets of the United States. One-fourth of these, perhaps, are imported articles, and include rubber, hemp, sisal, jute, raw silk, raw sugar, and coffee. The articles of domestic production which it quotes include pig iron (Bessemer and Southern), bars of iron and steel, steel billets, steel rails, tin plate, petroleum (crude and refined), refined sugar, copper, lead, zinc, and leather. The quotations presented are in each case those for a given day of each week in the leading market for the article named—in most cases New York, though in a few articles, such as beew cattle, Chicago prices are named, and, in the case of certain manufactures of iron and steel, those of Pittsburg are presented.

The latest issue of the monthly summary of commerce and finance present a study of these prices and also shows the prices from week to week, running back through the entire year, and thus enables a comparison of prices in March, 1904, with those of March, 1903, for certain dates in that month, in many cases as late as the 25th. A study of the prices thus presented, comparing those of the latest available date with those of the corresponding date one year ago, shows an increase in prices of about one-half of the importde articles named and a decrease in but two of the number, while in the articles of domestic production, numbering some thirty, prices are less in March, 1904, than those of March, 1903, in practically all cases except cotton, wool, wheat, corn, oats, beef cattle, and refined petroleum, or kerosene, as this product is popularly designated, while steel rails show no change in price.

Curiously, while beef cattle show an increase in price, family beef shows a marked fall in price. Texas steers are quoted in the Chicago market at $4.30 per hundredweight for the fourth week of March, 1903, and at $5 for the fourth week of March, 1904; and native steers are quoted at $5.50 in the fourth week of March, 1903, and $5.75 for the corresponding week in March of this year. Yet family beef, which was quoted at $15 per barrel in the New York markets in the fourth week of March, 1903, is in the fourth week of March, 1904, quoted at $12.50 per barrel in the fourth week of March, 1904. Mess pork, which was quoted at $19 per barrel in March, 1903, is given at $15.50 in March, 1904. Lard, which was quoted at 10.5 cents per pound in March, 1903, is given at 7.2 cents in March, 1904. Oleostearin also shows a fall from 10 cents per pound in March, 1903, to 7 cents in March, 1904; tallow, a decrease from 5¾ cents per pound in March, 1903, to 4⅞ cents in March, 1904, and refined sugar from 4.61½ cents per pound on March 12, 1903, to 4.5 cents on March 10, 1904.

Turning to manufactured articles, practically all those quoted show a reduction. Pig iron (Bessemer) shows a fall from $23.10 per ton in March, 1903, to $14.35 in March, 1904; Southern pig iron, from $21 per ton in March, 1903, to $9.75 in March, 1904; iron bars, from 2 cents per pound in March, 1903, to 1⅛ cents in March, 1904; steel bars, from 1.6 cents per pound in March, 1903, to 1.4½ cents in March, 1904; steel billets, from $32.50 per ton in March, 1903, to $23 in March, 1904; tin plate, from $4 per box of 100 pounds in March, 1903, to $3.65 per box in March, 1904; leather (oak, middle weight), from 38 cents per pound in March, 1903, to 35 cents in March, 1904; while steel rails, as already indicated, show no change. Metals used in manufacturing show in most cases a slight decrease—copper, from 15 cents per pound in March, 1903, to $12.87½ in March, 1904; lead, from $4.67½ in March, 1903, to $4.62½ in March, 1904; zinc, from 5.7 cents in March, 1903 to $5.12½ in March, 1904.

The chief articles of domestic production showing an advance in price are cotton, wool, wheat, corn, oats and kerosene. Cotton shows, of course, the largest advance, from 9¾ cents per pound in March, 1903, to 14¾ cents in March, 1904; wool, Ohio XX, from 31 cents per pound in March, 1903, to 33 cents in March, 1904; wheat, No. 2 red winter, from 81⅜ cents per bushel in the New York markets on March 26, 1903, to $1.07½ on March 24, 1904; corn, No. 2, from 57½ cents on March 19, 1903, to 58¾ cents on March 17, 1904, and oats, No. 2, from 43½ cents on March 19, 1903, to 48½ cents on March 17, 1904; refined petroleum (kerosene), from 10½ cents in March, 1903, to 11.3½ cents in March, 1904.

Imported articles do not show the general reduction apparent in those of domestic production. Coffee (Rio, No. 7) shows an advance from 5½ cents on March 21, 1903, to 6⅝ cents on March 26, 1904; Japan tea, choice, from 26 cents per pound on March 23, 1903, to 28 cents on March 21, 1904; sugar, centrifugals of 96 degrees polarization, a very slight reduction—from 3.62½ cents per pound on March 2, 1903, to 3.60 cents per pound on March 24, 1904; manila hemp shows a slight increase—from 9 cents per pound on March 23, 1903, to 8⅛ cents on March 21, 1904. Sisal hemp decreased in price from 8¾ cents per pound on March 23, 1903, to 7½ cents on March 21, 1904. Jute shows no change in price during the year. India rubber, Para, fine, new advanced in price from 84 cents per pound on March 21, 1903, to $1.12 on March 26, 1904. Raw silk and pig tin show in each case a slight decrease, silk from $4.45 per pound in March, 1903, to $3.80 in March, 1904, and pig tin from 30.5 cents per pound in March, 1903, to 28.9½ cents in March, 1904.

The table which follows shows the prices of the articles quoted by the bureau of statistics for March, 1903, and March, 1904, the quotation of 1904 being in each case compared with that for the corresponding period of the same month in 1903:

REJECTS VIEW OF PRESIDENT

Senate Resents His Desire That Burton Be Expelled.

Washington, April 29.—The president tried to tell the senate what it ought to do about Senator Burton, of Kansas, and the senate resented the interference.

It all came about in a purely incidental way. A few days ago the presidtnt remarked casually to a White House caller that he thought it would have a good political effect if Mr. Burton, of Kansas, now under jail sentence, should be thrown out of the senate.

This caused quite a commotion at the cauitol, but, after a good deal of discussion as to what to do in the case the president became insistent. It was learned that he would do nothing more than to express his opinion of the senate. One of the members of the senate committee on privileges said:

"We are quite willing to let the president decide what measures we must pass, when we must adjourn and things of minor consequence, but, when it comes to his deciding who are to be members of this body we protest."

The senate is also getting fussy about the Cannon vice presidential boom. The dignified lawmakers have been given to understand that there is a serious movement in the interest of Mr. Cannon on account of the weakness which Mr. Fairbanks will give the ticket.

The senate at first did not pay much attention to this, but, when it was learned that the movement was apt to amount to something, the senators let it be known to a few of the "ticket makers" that it would be very offensive to have Mr. Cannon in the senate as presiding officer.

The senate is unalterably against "Uncle Joe" as a vice presidential candidate.

HOPES OF PARDON GONE.

Life Prisoner Forged Signatures to His Petition.

Columbus, Ohio, April 29.—John Burns, a United States prisoner serving a life sentence for train robbery in the Indian territory, at the penitentiary, is very desirous of getting a pardon, and has forwarded to the department of justice at Washington a lot of affidavits, recommendations and indorsements.

The department took the matter up, when a striking similarity in the appearance of the signatures attracted the attention of the officers and an investigation was made. It then developed that all the signatures are forgeries and were made in the Ohio penitentiary. The investigation was made through District Attorney McPherson and his assistant, T. H. Darby, of Cincinnati. It was thought at first that Burns should be prosecuted for forgery, but as he is a life prisoner nothing will be done in the matter, but his hopes of pardon are gone.

MIXTURE IS FOUND

Guaranteed to Annihilate the Germ of Typhoid Fever.

It Is Not Bordeaux Mixture But It Kills Algae.

Washington, April 29.—After months of experimenting, the chemists of the department of agriculture are about ready to announce that they have hit upon a preparation guaranteed to annihilate the germ of typhoid fever.

The formula will not be made public for some weeks, but the department has concluded that at last it has discovered the real enemy of the typhoid germ, and that the mortality in this country due to typhoid will within the net six months be a thing of the past.

Just what the preparation is cannot be learned. It has been stated that it was the "Bordeaux mixture" of chemicals, but this is officially denied.

The department will say only that the solution is in the hands of the government; that its nature will be made known within a short time; that it can be used in every city and town in the country, and that it will perform the work for which it is designed.

The department's preparation will, according to plans, be given to any one who may apply for it when it is decided to make it public. All cities and towns supplied with drinking water from a common reservoir will be given the formula, so that it may be applied in a manner affecting the whole community.

In an official statement given out this evening the department says:

"We want to emphasize that it is not a universal panacea. It ought to be applied under the direction of this department or the local board of health; and the department is ready to furnish information to anybody who wants it. It must be used intelligently. You have to know what the organism is that you want to destroy, and the character of the some difference. But it is a good thing. We have checked it up here every possible way. The solution is absolutely fatal to typhoid, though so greatly diluted that it would hurt no one, and it would be impossible to find it in the water, it being tasteless and odorless. You could not drink enough of the water to hurt you. It will kill algae at 50 to 100 times weaker solution than this. And engineers have for years discussed the question of exterminating algae. They have recommended covering the reservoirs to keep out the light; and also pumping air into the reservoirs; but these remedies have been tried and failed. Boston has spent $4,000,000 on methods to prevent water pollution by algae, and it still remains to be seen whether they are effective.

"It is unfortunate for us that this report about Bordeaux mixture should have been published, because it will give the public an erroneous impression as to our methods. It is not Bordeaux mixture. In this article printed in New York some of the board of health people say that Bordeaux mixture has been used many times and does not amount to anything. Of course they are right.

"We began by trying to exterminate algae in the water, and the discovery that typhoid would also be exterminated was incidental. We found that the effect of the copper solution we were using, which is not Bordeaux mixture, also had the same effect on the typhoid. We are working on a bulletin and will probably have it out within the next two or three weeks.

"Algae are blue-green and grass-green scums in water supplies. They get in big open reservoirs and ponds and spread over the top and have the effect of peppermint oil or machine oil. They have given trouble all over the country. Our method is applicable where they have no filtration plants and it can be used in small towns."

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Prospectors are rushing to the Canyon of the Shochone river, five miles west of Cody, Wyo., where it is reported tellurim ore assaying several hundred dollars in gold and silver has been discovered. All available ground for miles up and down the river from the scene of the report of discovery has been located.

Rev. Father Victor Zarck, who was arrested last Sunday at Bellefonte, Pa., on the charge of cruelly beating Andrew Sofka, was exonerated when the case was called in habeas corpus proceedings. District Attorney Spangler announced that inasmuch as the coroner's inquest revealed that the boy died of peritonitis the commonwealth had no case against the priest.

At the conclusion of the first round of the International Master Chess match, Janovitsk, the Paris expert, and Leelpic player, Mieses, were tied for first place, Lasker and Marshall for third.

Three thousand persons journeyed to Jamaica, N. J., in the rain Thursday to witness the running of a poor card, the feature of which was the Suffolk stakes. The track was a sea of mud. Only one favorite won, Waterside at 5 to 1, captured the Suffolk by six lengths after having allowed Nevada and Gotowin to make the running to the stretch.

Western traffic officers adjourned their meeting Thursday after discovering that it was impossible for them to arrive at a settlement of the grain rate war. After agreeing on the through and proportionate rates the lines split on the division of the through rates. Failure to agree on sugar rates also was announced.

Daniel Lee Horse, of Basin, Wyo., who was accused of having been a leader of the mob that lynched murderers Walters and Gorman, and killed Officer C. E. Price, last July, was discharged for lack of evidence after the examination of all of the witnesses for the prosecution. It is thought the other mob cases will be dismissed.

NATURE'S HEALTH-GIVING PLANTS.

FACTS IN NATURE.

The fertile fields lay fallow until an unfortunate wind carried the seeds of some wild and worthless plants there, and they quickly took root and flourished. This is the case too with the thin body, weak from overwork, brain fag, nervous prostration, for in such cases the seeds of disease, which are the germs of grip, typhoid, catarrh, pneumonia, gain entrance to the body and there find a fertile field for development and soon a train of diseases follows. Almost any grave change in health is at once betrayed by the loss of flesh, which shows most often in the face. This co-exists with impoverished blood, a feeling of weariness and languor.

RAINING DOLLARS.

How often, in the spring of the year, do we hear someone say: "A good rain would be worth thousands of dollars to the farmers!" The young crops, just springing from the brown earth, need moisture. Their food must be brought to them dissolved in water. Every farmer knows that a fertilizer is valuable in proportion to the amount of soluble material it contains. Scientists, in trying to draw a fixed line between the animal and vegetable kingdoms, take advantage of this fact, and say that an animal differs from a plant, in that the plant requires soluble food, while an animal can take insoluble food, such as grain or meat, and dissolve it in its own secretions.

Plants live by direct absorption of vitalizing elements taken in through the roots and leaves. Man lives by absorbing vitalizing elements through the stomach, and every animal (with possibly a few exceptions), has a stomach in some form or other. But to do this work, so vital to the individual, the stomach must be in perfect working order. If the stomach is weak, it must be supplied with broths and milk and other liquid foods, already dissolved. This is a great help in repair, but pure blood must be supplied to the organ itself. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes pure blood, and gives tone and vigor to every organ of the body.

An eminent physician of this city recently said: "Very thin people live from hand to mouth, and have little reserve for emergencies." Of course, we know of persons whose nature it is to be thin—"born that way," some say, but there is a healthy standard by which a person who knows himself can gauge his good health or poor health. If for any reason he or she is below his or her normal weight, then it is wise to look out for trouble. A gain of flesh up to a certain point means a rise in other essentials of health; the red corpuscles of the blood are increased, and the color improved. When persons find themselves losing weight they should heed the warning, and use the proper means in time before disease fastens on them. The food is taken into the body at intervals, but the system requires nourishment constantly and without interruption. To strike a balance in the supply and demand is the function of the liver, which takes out the nourishing part of the food and stores it up till needed by the tissues. For this reason a certain degree of plumpness and roundness of the features is an index of good health, and on the contrary, wrinkles and protruding bones are an indication that either the system is not getting enough food or that it is not being properly assimilated, and nine chances to ten it is the latter, the trouble being located in the stomach. A tonic alterative is needed to digest the food. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, made up of roots and herbs, is a concentrated extract of nature's health-giving plants, found in the woods and fields; of purely harmless ingredients, containing no alcohol or narcotic. For forty years it has stood the test of time, and stands to-day in a proud position of superiority. It works in the natural way, purifying the blood, toning up the stomach and gently stimulating the liver and bowels to renewed effort. It reaches the root of the disease and stamps it out from the system, so that the patient is cured to stay cured. The following letter is only an example of the many that are received daily by Dr. Pierce from grateful patients:

"I consider Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery the most wonderful blood remedy that a sick man can use," writes Mr. P. Schug, of 653 Lake Street, Appleton, Wis. "Nine bottles changed me from a physical wreck to a well man within a few short weeks. Some two years ago, through complications in sickness I became blood-poisoned, which spread through the entire system, making me very miserable. Skin became yellow, eyes glassy, and step slow and heavy. A general falling off of flesh followed the loss of appetite, and I became thin and emaciated. I felt much worried, as the doctor's prescriptions did not help me any, but after I had taken only one bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery' I felt that I was on the road to speedy recovery, so I continued taking it regularly for ten weeks, and am glad to say that at the end of that time the poison was eliminated from my system and I was in wonderfully good health and strength."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, over 1000 pages, is sent by Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., on receipt of 21 cents in one-cent stamps for the paper-covered book, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound.

FEW TROUT CAUGHT

Fishermen After Speckled Beauties Not Fortunate Thus Far.

Water In Streams Too High and Too Muddy.

Although the trout season is nearly fifteen days advanced in this state there have been no reports of good catches in the neighboring streams. A large number of Duluthians have been out after the speckled beauties during the past week or ten days, and while nearly every stream in this vicinity has been pretty well fished, the catches have been most dicappointing.

At the present time there is no ice in the trout streams, but the water is still pretty high and very muddy. Until it clears the trout fishermen claim it is little use to attempt to get the fish.

Trout fishing is being carried on principally, at the present time, in the vicinity of the city, by boys. Now and then a boy is heard of who catches a few, but these are small and usually represent a number of hours of patient effort.

At Lester Park boys have caught a few trout in the pool below the falls and from the railroad bridge below the park. Several have tried fishing from the mouth of Lester river, but nobody has seen or heard of any trout caught there this season.

Nearly every afternoon Duluth business and professional men, who enjoy the outing, have gone out to Tischer's creek and Lester river for a few hours' fishing, but very few have yet returned with any trout.

Some of the local enthusiasts have gone even further up the north shore to Sucker river, but they report the fishing very poor as yet.

A few trout have been caught out of Miller creek, in the West End, in and below Lincoln Park. One West End citizen says he saw a man fishing in the stream off the Second street bridge, a few days ago, and was somewhat surprised to learn, after inquiry, that the fisherman had caught a few trout there.

The trout season opened in Wisconsin the same date as in Minnesota and a number of the Superior fishermen, who went out to get the early fishing on the Brule and other south shore streams, report ill luck because of high and muddy water.

It is also claimed that the waters in the northern creeks and rivers is yet too cold for fishing because of the large quantity of snow and ice that prevailed along the streams last winter and up to a late date this spring.

Well back from the city it is claimed that considerable snow water is still feeding the streams.

HAVE NO OBJECTION TO DULUTH AS PLACE

For Holding the State Convention, Say Dunn and Collins.

They Will Not Attempt to Influence the State Committee.

St. Paul, April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Both Robert C. Dunn of Princeton and Judge Loren W. Collins of St. Cloud have no objection to holding the state convention for nominating state officers at Duluth. They say they will not in any way attempt to influence the state central committee on this question and they express the belief that the selection of Duluth as the meeting place will in no wise affect their chances at the convention.

The friends of Mr. Dunn deny the report that they are interested in the movement to take the convention to the Zenith City, and the Collins men deny that they are trying to keep it in St. Paul.

"I wish to say that I am willing to leave the question of selecting a place for the convention as well as the date and other questions to the state central committee," said Mr. Dunn yesterday. "Furthermore I intend to leave the business of the convention entirely to the delegates. I am interested in the candidacy of no man for the chairmanship of the convention, and I am willing to let the delegates frame their own platform. As I have stated in a previous interview, I am willing to stand on the platform that the Republicans of Minnesota shall adopt."

One of Judge Collins' campaign managers said yesterday regarding the report that the Collins men are opposed to holding the convention in Duluth:

"We have no preference in the matter; we are willing to let the state central committee decide the question. I do not think that the selection of Duluth as the meeting place will have the slightest effect on Judge Collins' chances at the convention."

H. L. Buck, chairman of the Democratic state central committee in a letter to Maj. J. M. Bowler of Minneapolis expresses his preference for William R. Hearst, as compared with Judge Alton B. Parker. Mr. Buck objects to Parker on the ground that he is the candidate of the so-called reorganizers. Among other things he says:

"I have been trying to learn something about Judge Parker and what he stands for. It has not seemed to me that the great mass of honest, sincere Democrats, who are seeking 'the flesh pots of Egypt,' should be asked to blindly take up and support a man whose views on public questions are unknown. Recent developments appear to have disclosed the cloven hoof of the creature that is back of the Parker movement.

"When the Democrats of this state come to know that all the newspapers representing the Wall street interests, all the Cleveland followers and all the men who bolted the ticket and twice defeated us, are now suddenly to be found promoting and advocating the nomination of Judge Parker, they cannot help but look with distrust upon his Democracy.

"His promoters make the claim that he voted the ticket in 1896 and 1900, but one swallow does not make a summer and voting for a Democrat does not make a Democrat. He is probably an able lawyer and jurist, but that is not enough. Why has he not expressed himself in clear terms upon the vital principles in which the great mass of voters are interested?"

Later Mr. Buck discusses Mr. Hearst as follows:

"I have been trying to find out from the Parker men just why they are so bitter against Hearst's candidacy. He has done some splendid things, in fact, has done more to check the trusts as a private citizen and at his own expense than this whole trust bursting administration. His opponents talk about his being a moral possibility but do not give any facts. They say again that he is the proprietor of yellow journals, but I have not found any one to define that term so that it applies to his journals alone. I have not yet advocated the nomination of either Mr. Parker or Mr. Hearst, but I must confess that as between the two the latter seems much more representative of Democracy than the former."

G. D. Goodwin, of Cambridge, one of the leading attorneys of Isanti county, who was in St. Paul yesterday, said that there is some opposition to Congressman J. Adam Bede in Isanti and Kanabec counties, but that no other candidate has been mentioned for the place. Mr. Goodwin said that several Republicans at Mora, Kanabec county, are incensed at the action of the congressman in appointing R. M. Pope postmaster as against Assistant Postmaster Staples, who had received the almost unanimous indorsement of the Republicans of the county. Mr. Bede's postoffice appointments at Hinckley and Sandstone also, Mr. Goodwin said, have proved unpopular.

There is more talk of A. D. Gray, of Preston, for the Republican nomination for railroad and warehouse commissioner. Mr. Gray is favored by the Collins men, who do not look with favor on the candidacy of former Representative J. H. Burns, of Lennesboro, the same county, who is a supporter of Robert C. Dunn, of Princeton. Mr. Gray has not said that he will be a candidate, and several of his friends believe that he would not consider a place on the commission, believing that he plans to be a candidate for congress when the time comes. Should he be a candidate, the First district will have three Republicans after this position. Former Senator A. T. Stebbins, of Rochester, is in the race.

There is a movement on foot in Hennepin county in favor of bringing out a fourth candidate for governor, and Lieutenant Governor Ray W. Jones has been proposed for the place. Mr. Jones has promptly stopped the rumor, stating in the following interview that he will not consider any such proposal:

"I shall not be a party to any such scheme," said Lieutenant Governor Jones. "I am a candidate for lieutenant governor. Every Republican state senator is supporting me, and up to the present time no other candidate has been mentioned. I am not looking for the governorship. I am keeping my hands off that contest and do not propose to interfere in any way. If there is a plan on foot to put straight 'Jones' tickets in the field, you can count me out of it. I shall not countenance any such work on the part of my friends or my opponents."

PINE TIMBER TO BE SOLD

Bids Will Be Received at Cass Lake on Nov. 15.

Washington, April 29.—The secretary of the interior has approved the instructions of the commissioner of the general land office providing for the sale of pine timber on lands within the ceded Chippewa Indian reservation in Minnesota, Nov. 15 next. The sale will be held at Cass Lake, Minn., and will be by means of sealed bids. The land from which the timber is to be sold is located in the Pigeon river, Fond du Lac, Beresford, Deer Creek, Chippewa, of the Mississippi, Winnibigoshish, Leech Lake, Red Lake and White Earth reservations. It comprises 116,000 acres, containing 128,000,000 feet of white pine and 82,000,000 feet of Norway pine. The timber will be cut clean under the act of Jan. 14, 1889, as amended by the act of June 27, 1902.

SHORTAGE MADE GOOD.

The Chisholm School Fund Trouble Is Settled.

Chisholm, Minn., April 29.—The investigation of the school treasurer's books in this district, which has been awaiting the recovery of William Grant, treasurer, who has been seriously ill for some time, has been settled by Mr. Grant handing in his resignation, and the appointing of M. F. Marion, village president, to fill the vacancy.

Alleged shortages amounting to $431 were discovered in the treasurer's books by the other two members of the school board, E. G. Martin the clerk, and J. W. Lang, director, and notice was brought by them to the proper authorities. William Grant, the treasurer, was suspended by order of Governor Van Sant pending an investigation. The date for the hearing was set for March 3, but before that time, Grant was taken seriously ill with pneumonia from the attack of which he is just recovering. The date of the hearing was postponed several times with the consent of the governor, Grant finally offered his resignation and made good the alleged shortage.

"I had a running, itching sore on my leg. Suffered tortures. Doan's Ointment took away the burning and itching instantly, and quickly, effected permanent cure." C. W. Lenhart, Bowling Green, Ohio.

The Tragic Death of Presbyterian Missionary In Persia.

Was Returning Home on Road Near the Russian Frontier.

Cleveland, O., April 29.—Particulars of the tragic death of Rev. B. W. Larabee, Presbyterian missionary, have been received from Urumia, Persia.

Rev. Larabee was returning to Urumia from Khoi, three days' journey away, on the road to the Russian frontier.

He took the upper pass, which was supposed to be safe and was full of travelers. Suddenly four horsemen rode out upon him and his Nestorian servant. They shot the latter and then led Mr. Larabee off three or four miles into the mountains.

A wagonful of Armenians saw the murder and capture from a distance. The driver wanted to go to Mr. Larabee's assistance, but the women shrieked with fear for their own lives, and so no hand was stretched out to help. Even when the dying servant waved his hands to come to him they "passed by on the other side." Mr. Larabee was stripped of his outer clothes and killed by five dagger stabs, one bad cut being on his face, so that his father and wife were later advised not to have the coffin opened to view the remains. He was found lying on his back, his hands over his heart. He probably died at once. His ring remained on his hand. His bloodstained fur cap had been left. His books and papers had been torn and scattered miles away, probably to lead pursuit astray.

That evening some travelers brought word to a Protestant Nestorian preacher in a neighborhood village that they had seen the bodies, apparently of foreigners, lying near the road. The servant's body was easily found, but they had to search long for Mr. Larabee's body. Both were carried to Ula, whence the sad tidings were telegraphed to Urumia. News spread like wildfire, people mounting to the flat roofs lining the streets and filling the missionaries' yard, sobbing and mourning. The next day the whole city was moved. Moslem noblemen were in tears and the bereaved wiodw and father received 254 calls of sympathy.

On Sunday, March 13, the bodies reached Urumia, and then, in compliance with a custom, which forbids the bringing into a city the body of one who died outside, lest it bring death to the inhabitants, the corpses were conveyed to the American mission college outside. It seemed as though almost the whole Christian population went out to meet and do honor to the remains. All the way around the city moat the road was lined with weeping people, thousands of mourning Christians showing their deep grief, one company of Moslem women beating their breasts, and another company of Moslem men respectfully saluting the cart which bore the bodies.

Monday, March 14, funeral exercises were held at the college. An English service was held in a parlor. Then the pallbearers, Syrian pastors, bore Mr. Larabees' casket to the college chapel, whither that of Israil, the faithful servant had been taken. The chapel could hold but a small part of the people present. Rev. Shedd, a lifelong friend and companion of Mr. Larabee, conducted the service, and a number of Syrian pastors took part. The college students sang Mr. Larabee's favorite hymn, "Must Jesus Bear the Cross Alone?" Just before meeting death Mr. Larabee had preached on "Sharing the Sufferings of Christ?"

The funeral procession started for the mission cemetery on Mount Seir, six miles distant, accompanied to the river by many hundreds, and many on horseback and on foot went to the cemetery. The scene at the grave was very impressive.

The whole village of Seir was waiting on the brow of the hill, and the church bell tolled. One of the speakers said that day:

"We have many times come to this spot to lay away the faithful workers from a foreign land, but this is the first martyr." And then he added: "And we want the missionaries to know that our nation has also given one to be a martyr with him in this service of Christ."

NOT SHIPPING PAUPERS.

Range Towns Not Dumping Them on Superior.

A. P. Cook, secretary of the county poor board, denies emphatically that any of the St. Louis county range towns are unloading their paupers in Superior. Complaint was made a few days ago by the Superior authorities that such was the practice.

Mr. Cook says the poor board has agents in all the towns on the ranges and every case where a person is sent out of the county, goes through the Duluth office. He says that frequently people in destitute circumstances ask to be furnished transportation to Superior or some other outside place, where they have relatives who would care for them, but that in no other instances does St. Louis county send its paupers to Superior or any other city to be cared for.

As to the Joyce family, who are reported stranded in Superior, Mr. Cook says that they were formerly residents of that city before they went on the range. The agents in the range towns, Mr. Cook says, do not undertake to pay the transportation charges of destitute families from their own pockets.

LIBRARY DEDICATED.

Exercises at the Northwestern University Law School.

Chicago, April 29.—Services dedicating the Gary collection of continental law, a part of the library of the Northwestern university, were held today at the university law school. There were speeches by the Hon. John W. Foster, of Washington, D. C.; Hon. Jacob M. Dickinson and others. All of the foreign consuls in Chicago were present as guests. The collection is due to money contributed for the purpose by the Hon. Elbert H. Gary, of New York, a graduate of the Northwestern university. It consists of about 6000 volumes, including the codes, statutes, judicial decisions, leading law journals, and a selection of legal treatises for the entire continent of Europe. Its purpose is mainly to provide materials to an extent not hitherto found in this country for ascertaining the existing law of any European country as affecting the rights and duties of persons living in the United States and having interests in Europe.

NO CONQUESTS FOR FRANCE.

Bizerta, Tunis, April 29.—At a reception tendered him by the municipality, M. Pelletan, French minister of marine, declared that France no longer dreamed of conquests and that her resources would hereafter be employed to fortify her present possessions. He did not believe, he said that the country would be involved in war and he feared no complications in the far East.

GET RATES TO ST. LOUIS FAIR

Y. M. C. A. Club Makes Favorable Terms For the Trip.

The plans of the Y. M. C. A. bureau at St. Louis, laid with a view to lessening the expenses of association members visiting the World's fair, are said to be meeting with great success in the way of gettin cheap rates for Y. M. C. A. clubs over the different railroads.

The local association officials believe that at least one club will be sent from Duluth, probably the week of Aug. 15, which will be athletic week at the fair. The St. Louis bureau has succeeded in getting a special $40 rate for the round trip from Duluth. This will cover all expenses, both fare and living, for seven days, and will include admission to the fair grounds. Even a lower rate than this may be granted before the time to start arrives, all depending on the special rates made by the railroads. This, it is claimed, will mean an actual cash saving of from $10 to $20 to local Y. M. C. A. men who visit St. Louis with the club.

A special parlor car, with all modern conveniences, will be provided, and the members of the club will make this their home while at the fair, as well as while going to and from there. It will take the place of a hotel, and will be switched on a track within one-half block of the main entrance to the fair grounds. Admissions for five days to the grounds will be included. Breakfast and 6 o'clock dinner will be served on the cars each day, and a 12 o'clock lunch will be sent to the grounds to be served in one of the pavilions provided for that purpose.

Winnipeg Is Lively.

A. H. Comstock, of the Marshall-Wells Hardware company, is visiting in Winnipeg and writes from there: "I find that Winnipeg has improved greatly since my last visit here two years ago. There is an enthusiasm and bustle which is contagious, and I certainly think it is going to be a great city. I visited three hotels last night before I found a place to sleep."

WEATHER IN MAY.

Averages Shown In Records of Duluth Bureau.

With the exception that it has more cloudy days than one might desire the month of May in Duluth is a pleasant one, according to data, covering a period of thirty-three years, compiled from the local weather bureau records and issued to show the conditions that have prevailed, during the month in question, for the above period of years.

The mean or normal temperature of the month for this length of time is shown to be 48 degrees above zero. The warmest month was that of 1896, with an average of 53 degrees, and the coldest that of 1888, with an average of 42 degrees. The highest temperature was 88 degrees on May 9, 1896, and the lowest was 25 degrees above on May 1, 1888. The average precipitation for the month is 3.68 inches. The greatest monthly precipitation was 7.99 inches in 1879, and the least monthly precipitation was .62 inches in 1900.

EXPENDITURE WAS ILLEGAL

City Cannot Spend Funds Except For Public Purposes.

St. Paul, April 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court, in an opinion handed down today, written by Judge Douglas, holds that the legislature is powerless to authorize the expenditure of public funds by a municipality except for public purposes.

In Minneapolis, at the last election, Oscar Peterson, a candidate for alderman of the Eleventh ward, appealed from the decision of the canvassing board, which declared his rival elected. A recount of the votes did not bring any better results. The board of aldermen thereupon authorized an order for $190, reimbursing him for the expense he had been put to. Its payment was promptly enjoined by citizens, and the supreme court today affirms the order of the lower court, that the expenditure was illegal.

Other decisions were:

A. J. Dwyer Pine Land company vs. Alonzo J. Whiteman, appellant, from Itasca county. Douglas, J.

Action to quiet title. Order affirmed.

Louisa Caslnk vs. City of New Ulm, appellant, from Brown county. Brown, J. Order affirmed.

William Anderson vs. Supervisors of the Town of San Francisco, appellant, from Carver county. Brown, J. Order affirmed.

H. W. Wright vs. E. S. Tanner as sheriff of Morrison county and Robert Blackwood, appellants. Lewis, J. Order affirmed.

VERESTCHAGIN

Painted Horrible Scenes in Order to Teach the People.

Report of the death of Vasili Verestchagin, the Russian painter, has been confirmed. It was almost fitting that his life should have been ended by the sinking of the Petropavlovsk, inasmuch as in the manner of his end he taught anew the folly and the horror of war, says the Brooklyn Eagle. For this eccentric painter was no preacher of art for art's sake. He believed in art for morality's sake 'and humanity's sake, and he painted horrible subjects with the idea that people would study them and be repelled. Possibly his theory was right, and probably it was wrong, for he found that the people did not care to look at horrible things, unless they took the form of drama. He painted the British blowing Sepoys from the mouths of cannon; he painted the hanging of nihilists in his own country; he painted the crucifixion with aggressive realism; he painted the troops in the Balkans freezing, starving, dying of illness, neglect and wounds; he painted the battlefields on the day after, strewn with corpses, dead horses and the wrecks of battle engines; he painted sentries dying at their posts in Siberian snow storms, and it was all too unpleasant to live with.

Incidentally he was a man of practiced technic, and now and again he painted a peaceful picture, to show that he could do it. His large canvas representing a solitude with a pair of eagles floating through the air at a far height above an olive green valley, and monster peaks rising against the sky in domes and pyramids of white, is one of the most impressive because one of the most truthful landscapes of recent times. He took back from India a number of interesting and decorative bits, illustrative of the architecture and the people, but, odd as it may appear, these were painted with so little sympathy and enthusiasm, as apart from the self-chosen function of the artist, that they are almost forgotten, while his battle pictures, though not often looked at, are famous. Personally, the artist lacked balance, and he had a queer way of suddenly disappearing from social functions. No doubt he felt the draft of larger things. He showed commendable craft and purpose, but he did not reform war.

Indeed, art has proved itself intractable to reformatory or pedagogic effort. It reflects the human sense of beauty, and to ally that beauty to what is intrinsically harsh is usually to debase the beauty and not to lessen the severity. The arts combine together as in religious edifices and observances, in drama, in opera, in certain formalities and practices of society, but when we teach through art we commonly subordinate the artistic to the illustrative, and so teach less art in proportion as we teach more fact. The esthetic is ethical in its influence, in that it disposes humanity to regard with disgust the vulgarity and sordidness of unethical existences; but when we preach ethics through esthetics we weaken thee sthetic value. We can teach little through symphonies, architecture, painting, dances, or even plays. Ibsen to the contrary notwithstanding, for the drama, like other forms of art, prospers through its emotional rather than its intellectual quality. We must nevertheless respect the sincerity of Verestchagin in attempting to order these things otherwise.

IMAGINARY.

President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia university, passed his boyhood in New Jersey, in the town of Elizabeth, and an Elizabeth man said of him recently:

"I am not likely ever to forget the precocious things that I heard Butler in his childhood say. This youngster had a man's wit in a baby's body, and it was impossible to get the better of him.

"One day I heard a minister trying to joke with him a bit.

"'Nicholas,' said the minister, 'can you tell me what the earth's axis is?'

"'Yes, sir,' answere the boy, 'it is an imaginary line, passing from one pole to the other, on which the earth revolves.'

"'Very good,' said the minister. Then he winked at the rest of us. 'And i suppose, Nicholas,' he went on, 'that you could hang a wash out on this imaginary line, eh?'

"'Yes, sir; of course, sir,' said the boy.

"The minister looked blank at that for it was not the answer he had expected.

"'Oh, you could, could you? What kind of a wash?' he said.

"'An imaginary wash,' said Butler."

BATH TUBS OF GLASS.

No longer can the cleanly, hygienic porcelain bath tub be reckoned the leader in bath tubs, for this essential household requisite has now a rival—an importation from Germany, says the Brooklyn Eagle. This latest development in bath tubs is of glass, thick plate glass and molded in one piece. Of course, in the homes of the very wealthy there are bath tubs of much more costly material than plate glass, but this newest comer is designed for ordinary use, the same as the porcelain type. There are not very many glass tubs obtainable as yet, but those that have arrived are attracting attention, particularly from feminine observers, for the glass looks so bright and clean and fresh. These glass tubs are mounted in the same fashion as those of porcelain.

BUSINESS LIGHT

Michigan Street Market Very Dull at Present Time.

Little Doing Outside of Strawberries and Fresh Vegetables.

Extreme dullness has been the feature of the produce markets during the past week. All of the dealers report light business, the only redeeming feature of which is the slight activity in strawberries and some of the southern vegetables.

The prices of these articles however, are still too high to admit of any active trading, as the dealers buy only in sufficient quantities for their immediate use, waiting for lower prices which are only a question of time.

* * *

There has been a slight drop in the prices of the southern vegetables during the week. Asparagus has dropped from $3 per box to $2. Tomatoes have fallen from $3 per crate to $2, and wax beans are selling at $2.25 per box in place of $2.35. A further drop in prices is expected during the next week or two and the fresh vegetables and greens will soon be within the reach of all.

* * *

Potatoes are still selling at the exorbitant price reached a week ago. The new potatoes are worth $3 per bushel and the old potatoes $1.20 and $1.25.

Fresh eggs are slightly lower in price, selling for 17c and 17½c in place of 18c per dozen.

Some extra fine maple sugar and syrup has been received by several of the local commission dealers during the past week. It comes direct from the woods of Vermont and Ohio, and is unadulterated by any corn syrup or other mixtures. It sells for $1.25 to $1.50 per gallon. The adulterated syrup which comes from the Chicago factories is better quality than usual this year, and it is difficult for anyone not a native of a maple sugar state to tell the difference.

Prices on poultry remain unchanged from last week, and the condition of the market is practically the same. The stock of cold storage poultry is now cleaned up, and most of the shipments received during the next few months will consist of live poultry.

Pork loins have taken a big drop during the week. They are now selling at 9½ cents in place of 11½, which was the ruling price a week ago. Other meat prices remain unchanged.

SUICIDE IS SUSPECTED

Deputy Coroner Linneman Investigates Death at Floodwood.

Deputy Coroner Linneman returned last evening from Floodwood, where he has been investigating the case of John Smith, a farm hand, who is believed to have killed himself Tuesday evening.

Smith was at work as usual Tuesday morning, but later in the day complained of illness and, taking his rifle, said he would go hunting for a few hours. He did not return and a searching party was organized. His body was found about a quarter of a mile from the house, with the entire top of the head blown away by a 30-30 bullet.

Very little was known of the man. He was about 24 years of age and, as far as is known, had no relatives in this part of the country. He left no letters of papers which would assist in identifiation.

The body was interred in the Floodwood cemetery.

DEADLOCK IS ON

Masters and Pilots' Proposition Rejected By Lake Carriers.

Possibility of Long Struggle—Points Asked By Masters.

A complete deadlock exists between the Lake Carriers' association, the organization of lake vessel owners, and the Masters and Pilots' association, the organization of captains and mates, and there appears to be no likelihood of an early settlement.

The deadlock is the result of the meeting of the Lake Carriers' association yesterday, at which the terms of the masters were rejected, and it looks as if a long struggle is in sight.

There is no question of wages involved in the struggle. The chief points on which the disagreement arose are as follows:

1. The men insist that each master shall have nine months' pay whether he works the entire period or not as long as he reported for duty when his boat was taken out in the spring and stayed with her during the season. They further insist that a man shall be considered engaged for the boat he had during the preceding season unless notified to the contrary prior to Jan. 15.

2. The men insist that a master shall not be changed or transferred unless given a better boat and shall not be discharged unless the cause is approved by an arbitration board to be selected by the owners and agents and the Masters and Pilots' association.

3. The masters desire the sole right to hire and discharge the men under their control aboard the boat, with or without cause.

The terms of the men are said to have aroused a storm of indignation on the part of the vessel owners, and by a unanimous vote they were rejected, and the advisory board of the Masters and Pilots' association was so notified.

As there was no question of wages involved while the boats were in commission the members present at the meeting unanimously voted that they would not pay for services not rendered; and further, that as the masters are the direct representatives of the owners of the vessel and responsible to the owners for their operation, they must reserve to themselves the right to hire the masters and discharge them for incompetency or when their services are not satisfactory to them.

A settlement has been made with the Firemen, Oilers and Water Tenders' association as the following dispatch from Cleveland shows:

"The conference of the executive committee of the Lake Carriers' association and the representatives of the Firemens, Oilers and Water Tenders' association, over the question of wages for the coming season of navigation, ended tonight. The men will get $45 per month until October and $55 per month for the balance of the season. This is a slight cut compared with last year's wages, when the men received $47.50 for the early part of the season."

NELSON KNOCKS OUT

Provision For Government Dredges on Great Lakes.

Washington, April 29.—Senator Knute Nelson won his long contention for an amendment to the river and harbor bill, providing that no government dredges on the great lakes shall be built by the war department, except on the direct authorization of congress.

Washington, April 29.—Senator Knute Nelson won his long contention for an amendment to the river and harbor bill, providing that no government dredges on the great lakes shall be built by the war department, except on the direct authorization of congress. This amendment was offered by Senator Nelson and was applicable to all territory north of Cape Henry on the Atlantic coast. The department is now building a dredge for Lake Michigan at Philadelphia, where it is claimed it can get better service from the owner of dredges who contract to do government work.

Senator Nelson reported the amendment from the commerce committee, and stood out for it even when Chairman Burton, of the house committee, served notice that there would be no bill, unless all senate amendments were stricken out.

The Nelson amendment and two other minor provisions were the only changes finally accepted by the house.

The reservoir appropriations for the head waters of the Mississippi and the Minnesota and St. Croix river improvations remain in the bill as inserted by the house.

MACK SAYS PARKER

Will Be Nominated on the First Ballot.

Chicago, April 29.—Norman E. Mack, publisher of the Buffalo Times, and member of the Democratic national committee for New York, was in Chicago yesterday. He left last night for St. Louis to attend a meeting of the subcommittee on arrangements for the convention. Mr. Mack is enthusiastic over the progress that Judge Parker's campaign is making.

"New York's seventy-eight delegates to the national convention will cast their votes for Judge Parker for president, and it is my candid opinion that a sufficient number of other states will do likewise to insure his nomination on the first ballot," said he.

ROBBED OF HIS FAMILY.

Extraordinary Story Told By a Cloquet Man.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., April 29.—Albert Maves, of Cloquet, Minn., who had E. G. Aitkins and Edward Domallee arrested here ten days ago, has arrived in search of his children, whom his wife had hid. By the aid of the police the children were located in three different houses in Eau Claire.

Maves is almost crazed by the trouble that has befallen him. He does not know the whereabouts of his wife, and he went yesterday to St. Paul to search for her. He says that Aitkins and Domallee gave him knockout drops at his hotel in Cloquet and then took his wife and children and left for Chippewa Falls. Aitkins has been dismissed by the court, as there was not sufficient testimony to hold him, but Domallee has been bound over.

FORESTRY LAND

For the State Is Granted By Congress.

Washington, April 29.—Late Wednesday night congress passed the bill providing for the selection by Minnesota of 21,000 acres of land for forest reserve. There was considerable opposition by leading Democrats, who argued that it would be unwise to establish such a precedent. What would congress do, they asked, when other states asked similar grants? Democratic opposition was finally stopped by Representative John Lind, who after conferring with the objecting Democrats personally amended the bill so that the land is to go to the state in trust and revert to the government as soon as it is used for other than forestry purposes.

Governor Lind says General Andrews can, by careful selection, locate the 20,000 acres beside tracts owned by the state, making a reserve of four or five townships. Probably selections will be made near Itasca park.

ENGINE VANISHED.

Locomotive that Disappeared During the Night.

A locomotive disappeared one night many years ago, from the place where it was left standing on the rails of the railroad to which it belonged," said an old-time Erie employe to the Buffalo Express, "and what became of it is a mystery unsolved to this day. That locomotive had a history, too, for it had played an important part in the pioneer days of railroading in New York state.

"It was the fourth locomotive added to the motive power of the Erie, and came all the way from Philadelphia, where it was made by the Norris Locomotive works, in 1841, although the Rogers works were at Paterson, handy by. The reason the Erie didn't get its original locomotive built at those adjacent shops was that Rogers wouldn't take his pay for them in Erie stock, which was about all the company had to pay for things with then, and which wasn't exactly a gilt-edged collateral.

"Norris had more faith than the canny Rogers, and built the Erie's first locomotives and shipped them to Piermont by the Raritan canal and Hudson river. This fourth locomotive was named the Orange. She helped build the railroad from Piermont to Goshen, and pulled the first passenger train at the opening of the road for business on Sept. 23, 1841. Jon Mogerman was her engineer, and in the January following she made the historic flying trip between Goshen and Piermont, carrying the annual message of Governor Seward, which had been brought overland to Goshen from Albany by special post riders, delivering the message to representatives of the New York Sun who were awaiting it on the Erie boat at Piermont, and who got it to New York so that the Sun was on the street with it and the news an hour before the rival paper, the Herald, had received the message from Albany by special stages between New York and Albany on the regular coach line.

"The Orange went on westward as the railroad was slowly constructed, and in the summer of 1848 Josh Martin, who had been running her for a year or two, was ordered to send her to Biringhamton, and go there and help build the railroad on that part of the route. As the railroad was then finished only as far as Port Jarvis, and as Binghamton was 120 miles west of that place, the only way to send the locomotive there was to run her down to the Hudson river at Piermont, load her on a boat, take her thus to Albany, transfer her to a canal boat on the Erie canal at Albany, have her towed across the state to the junction of the Chenango canal, and down that to her destination, all of which he did. The work of construction of the Erie was pretty well along from Binghamton east. The Orange was set up on the track there, and became the first locomotive that had ever been seen in all that part of the state.

"The Orange carried the rails and materials that completed the link necessary to finish the railroad to Binghamton, and was then ordered to go farther west. In charge of Josh Martin she completed the railroad to Hornelsville, and was the pioneer locomotive in the Canisteo valley. This was in the summer of 1850, and then the Erie sold the Orange to the Attica and Hornellsville Railroad company, which was about to begin the building of a railroad between those two places.

"The Orange was the only locomotive that company had and she had all the work of construction from Hornelsville to Portage, and early in 1852 hauled the first train of passengers over that railroad. The great gorge in the Genesee river at Portage had not yet been bridged and to construct the railroad further the Orange was taken apart and ferried piece-meal across the Genesee, and she hauled the iron to finish the road from Warsaw to Attica. She was the first engine to sound a whistle in the Genesee valley east of Attica, the Buffalo and Attica railroad having been built some time before.

"When the Hornellsville and Attica railroad was finished the company, thinking that the usefulness of the Orange was gone, sold her to the Buffalo, Bradford and Pittsburg Railroad company, which had started in to build a road from Buffalo to Pittsburg. The only portion of this road the company finished was the section between Carrollton, on the Erie, and Bradford, Pa. This was long before any one had dreamed of petroleum in that country. The object of the railroad was to develop coal mines that were alleged to be of great value in the region.

"The Orange was used to haul a passenger and freight train between Carrollton and Bradford, but after a few months operations were abandoned, and the faithful old engine was left standing neglected and alone on the rails at Carrollton. This was in 1858. Then one day an employe of the road heard that the locomotive was about to be levied on for taxes due by the company in New York state, and he steamed up the old machine, ran down to Bradford, out of the jurisdiction of the New York officers, and left her on the track there.

"Whether she had the Orange was gone. Whether she had gone and taken her there was not the least clew. Nor has any trace of her ever been found, so far as I have ever heard, and I've made many inquiries during the last forty years. It is conjectured that she was run back to New York state in the night, but what she have been an engineless hulk, but what became of her then? That's the mystery.

"I am reminded of the Orange and her strange fate by seeing in the papers that Billy Martin, of Hornellsville, was among those who were elected as members of the executive committee of the legislative board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which was in session at Buffalo lately. Billy was a son of old Josh Martin, the pioneer engineer of the Southern Tier, who took the Orange where locomotives had never been before, and himself now an old-time Erie engineer.

"When the Orange had served the Erie's purposes and was sold to another company, Josh Martin came East and took a run on the Delaware division, between Port Jervis and Susquehanna. Along in the latter part of 1850 the company got a new locomotive, known as the 71. Josh liked the looks of her and made application to have her assigned to him in place of the one he was running. The new locomotive was placed in charge of Gad Lyman.

"Gad didn't like the new locomotive and after making a few trips with her reported to the master mechanic that she was no good. When Josh Martin heard this, he begged to have a chance at her and although the engine had been condemned to the gravel train, he was told to take it and try it. It worked to perfection under him.

"The Erie railroad was completed to Dunkirk in the spring of 1851 and great preparations were made for the celebration of its opening in May of that year. Gad Layman was selected to pull the lead ing excursion train from Piermont.

"Gad had a favorite engine, the 100, and he started out with flying colors. His locomotive balked on him, though, before he had gone ten miles, and kept losing time so that the train was nearly an hour behind its schedule by the time it reached Goshen. The telegraph had lately been strung along the line of the railroad, but had not yet been utilized in railroading, but at Goshen Charley Minot, the superintendent of the railroad, telegraphed to the agent at Port Jervis to order Josh Martin to be ready with his Engine 71, to hitch on to the train when it reached Port Jervis.

"Josh Martin was already with 71 when the train load of great men got to Port Jervis and he pulled them over the rough and crooked Delaware division at such a rate that he rolled with them into Susquehanna, 106 miles away, with all Gad Lyman's lost time made up."

BATTLE OF MONOPEDS.

One- Legged Colored Fighters Amuse a Crowd.

Before the Nonpariel Athletic club Tuesday night Edward Snowden, colored, letter known as Snowball, knocked out Wesley Ward, colored, in six rounds, says the Baltimore Sun. Snowden was much the larger man. The feature of the fight was the wonderful pluck displayed by Ward.

While the fight between Snowden and Ward was billed as the star bout it was, in the estimation of the spectators, but a secondary feature in the night's entertainment. The Nonpariel club members are accustomed to witnessing good hard fights, as no others are tolerated by them. Tuesday night Peter Kelly, one of the members, sprang a novelty which made a big hit and kept the crowd laughing and shouting from start to finish. From Winchester, Va., he brought Walter Benjamin, a tall, lean, raw-boned colored man, whose left leg had been amputated just above the knee joint. From the colored tenderloin district of Baltimore he brought Charles Boston, a low-built, thick-set mulatto, who was short on the right leg from a point just below the knee joint. When this pair climbed to the stage by the use of their crutches the crowd was guessing what they would do. Many thought they had the set-to framed and would simply box. Others believed that the go would be for keeps, and these were right.

As soon as the men reached their corners their crutches were taken from them and safely placed out of reach. Lanky Bob, a local pugilist, was referee and cautioned the men to break from clinches promptly at the word. This caution was unnecessary, as was later shown.

At the going the one-legged men hopped to the center of the ring and steadying themselves, which proved to be more difficult than the hopping, they put up their gloved hands. Suddenly Boston hopped toward the Winchester man and ducked down until he was practically sitting on her lap, and then swung right and left with them, and which wasn't exactly a gilt-edged collateral. Boston bobbed up inside of Benjamin's guard and, giving the tall man a slight push, unbalanced him. Next he swatted him a hard one on the jaw and down went Benjamin, while Boston had to do a quick balancing act to keep from going, too.

When Benjamin got up hostilities began quickly. Each man kept his one foot in action to retain an equilibrium. Scotching followed in rapid order. Boston, having a shade the better of the round, as, being short, he did not have so far to fall as the Winchester hopper.

The second round was much like the first, excepting that both men persisted in hitting when each was rolling over the floor trying to get his leg under him, so as to rise. Generally when the pair went to a clinch both would fall together.

Some of the crowd yelled for them to use their stumps at infighting, but this was not fair and not allowed, especially as Boston had several inches the better reach with his stump. Once when the pair were in a clinch they remained on their pair of feet long enough for the referee to go between them. Lanky Bob did this and, as usual when the clinch is broken, he pushed the men away from each other. The first time Lanky Bob pushed each man went head foremost through the ropes and out of the ring.

The boxers soon found that a push was better than a blow to ensure a knockdown and they both did considerable pushing thereafter.

Boston put Benjamin out in the middle of the third round, but under circumstances not provided for in the rules made by the Marquis of Queensberry. Boston hopped to the ringside, and when Benjamin followed him, Boston gripped a rope with one gloved hand and thus being braced he pounded Benjamin until the Winchester cripple went down and out.

No sooner was the set-to over than there was a clatter of crutches on the main floor of the hall and two monopeds scrambled to the ring. One proved to be Irvin Scott, colored, who was short in a right leg. The other was Grant Dashiells, colored, who was also short a right leg. Each of these issued a challenge to box the winner of the Boston-Benjamin fight and the result is there will soon be a one-legged champion of the new South.

FEW BLONDES AND CONTRALTOS.

"We all know that the blonde is disappearing," observed the old theatrical manager, in addressing the New York World, "and a glimpse at the chorus, or as they prefer to be called, the 'ensemble,' of any comic opera company will convince those who don't know of it. Of course, chemicals and hair dyes may be partly responsible for this decadence of the light-haired girl. We are not supposed to inquire into such matters.

"But chemicals and all the hair dye in the world cannot account for the almost total disappearance of the girl with the contralto voice. Strange to say, she has become rarer and rarer during the last few years, until now it is the hardest part of engaging a comic opera company to get enough contraltos. I cannot account for it, and have been unable to find anyone who can.

"With the development of the American girl from the weak, small-chested individual of some years ago to the athletic, broad-shouldered beauty of the present, you would naturally think that deep voices would also have been engendered in the process for, rightly or wrongly, we generally associate strength with depth of voice. In the case of a man, you know, it is usually the big, solid fellow who has the bass tones. In the case of the girls, however, this rule does not seem to follow at all, and the finer the girl's physique the greater the likelihood of her being a soprano.

"Attend a performance of any comic opera and see if I am not right. You will find the sopranos completely drowning the voices of the altos and contraltos, though there may be as many of the latter as of the former. I know more than one composer who, having written a chorus for women's voices, has been obliged to introduce the male singers in order to have the parts originally written for the contraltos brought out.

"As a consequence of this scarcity of girls who can get to a low G the majority of the choruses sound, to me at least, comparatively empty, and I never enjoy them as I did twenty years ago, when there would be distinctly noticeable the rich, deep, bell-like tones of the contraltos. If you or anybody else can tell managers where to find what we are looking for you will confer a great favor on the profession and bring down on yourself the everlasting praises of the composers."

RATHER A REFLECTION.

The late Dan Daly, whenever he was idle in New York, had a great habit of attending Salvation Army meetings. He believed in the Salvation Army, and he contributed liberally to its support. Sometimes, too, he had interesting things to tell about it.

One evening, rather late, Daly and a commercial traveler entered the Fifth-Avenue hotel together. Daly, with a nod towards his companion, said:

"My friend and I were at a meeting of the Army tonight. The captain, after his address, passed through the audience, questioning the people. Coming to my friend, he said:

"'What is your business, sir?'

"'I am a commercial traveler,' was the answer.

"'And are you saved?'

"'Oh, I'm all right.'

"At this reply the captain, turning to the congregation, shouted in a loud voice:

"'Hallelujah! A commercial traveler saved. He can save to the uttermost.'"

RANCHERS QUARREL.

Allen Brown Dead at Missoula as Result.

St. Paul, April 29.—A special to the Dispatch from Missoula, Mont., says: Allen S. Brown, a well-known rancher, lies dead here as the result of wounds alleged to have been inflicted by John Peters, a neighboring rancher, as a result of a quarrel over grazing land. Peters escaped soon after the quarrel and Sheriff Thompson and posse have gone to the mountains after him, and another fight is expected. Brown's 10-year-old son was the only witness of the quarrel.

FREEZE THE MICROBES

And Prevent Pneumonia, Says a Chicago Physician.

Chicago, April 29.—Freeze out your microbes by applications of ice. This is the treatment for pneumonia prescribed by Dr. Robert H. Babcock, the blind philosopher and staff physician of the faculty of the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Methods of detection, prevention and treatment of pneumonia were the salient points in his lecture before a crowded audience in the Central Young Men's Christian association lecture room.

"Keep clean, live in rooms through which the pure air circulates hourly and observe proper individual regulations as to diet, and I warrant you that pneumonia will have no terrors for you," said the lecturer.

"Some persons have employed silk jackets and other means of protection of the body after the usual sponging to reduce the temperature, for fever following all cases of pneumonia, which is primarily a congestion of the membranes of the lungs. Use ice to reduce the temperature, and when it is reduced do not bring it back with silk wrappings or heavy body coverings."

PATTI'S TOUR

Was a Financial Loss to the Syndicate.

New York, April 29.—Robert Grau, examined in supplementary proceedings concerning his ability to pay a judgment of $95 for printing, said that, while Mme. Patti took away with her $200,000 her tour was not a financial success.

Mr. Grau testified that he organized a company to tour Mme. Patti with a capital of $40,000. The money, he said, was put up by W. A. Woodend, who was vice president of the company. The $40,000 was deposited with August Belmont, as security for the diva, who was to receive $5000 a night for sixty nights, while Mr. Grau, as president of the company, received a salary of $50 per week.

Only thirty-four concerts were given. The others were cancelled, Mr. Grau said, "because Mme. Patti was perfectly willing to refund to the company the money that had been deposited, on the ground that she did not want to appear in any place where the public did not want her."

HILL PLAN HANGS

On the Defeat of the Czar In Present War.

Victory For Mikado Would Open Up Big Carrying Trade.

New York, April 29.—A friend of Mr. Hill tells this story:

"I met the old man on Broad street the day the Venner suit was dismissed. We shook hands and I congratulated him on the victory.

"'What!' he said. 'Have they lost some more ships!'

"I explained that I meant the suit in Jersey.

"'Oh,' said Mr. Hill, 'that doesn't matter, but the other does!'

"That serves to illustrate the anxiety with which Mr. Hill is watching the trend of events in the Orient."

The fact of the matter is that Mr. Hill and all other Western railroad interests look to see Japan, victorious, become a great commercial nation.

Just as the era of British conquest landed that nation at the head of the world's commerce by sea, so, they figure, will victory for Japan stimulate the life of that nation in commercial lines.

With the markets of Japan and China thrown open to the world and dominated by a spirit of commercialism there would be created the greatest carrying line the world has yet seen.

In this matter lies the future success or failure of the great Hill steamers. In it lies the success or failure of Pacific Mail, Canadian Pacific, Northern Pacific steamship, Occidental and Oriental, the Japanese and Chinese steamship lines—in fact, the whole trade of the Pacific ocean so far as that trade concerns the ports of the Pacific coast.

Whatever is of benefit to one will also be of benefit to the others. All have big business from Japan and are looking for big business from China.

To show exactly where the trade interests of the United States are centred in the Orient, the following figures are instructive: The exports from this country to the Orient in 1903 amounted to about $50,000,000. Of this amount, $21,000,000 went to Japan, $19,000,000 to China, $9,000,000 to Hong Kong, and $1,500,000 to Asiatic Russia. Therefore, exports to Japan amounted to fourteen times as much as to Asiatic Russia. Manifestly there is no comparison between the two customers so far as the western railroad interests of the United States are concerned.

The exports from the United States to Japan have grown as follows, the comparison reflecting the increase in traffic caused very largely by the growth of the Hill business and the opening of the Puget Sound ports:

| | 1893. | 1903. |
|---|---|---|
| To Japan | $3,195,600 | $21,485,000 |
| To China | 8,000,000 | 32,700,000 |
| | 1893. | 1903. |
| Per cent of imports of Japan supplied by United States | 11.1 | 17.9 |
| Per cent of imports of Japan supplied by China | 5.9 | 9.3 |

These figures tell the story in short form. The United States western railroads have a tremendous equity in the development of China and Japan. That equity will only become valuable as China becomes a commercial country and as Japan does likewise.

As Mr. Hill puts it:

"We must teach these rice-eaters to eat wheat flour."

WOULD BE COMMISSIONER.

Axel Zimmerman Anxious to Succeed Ole Berg.

Axel E. Zimmerman, deputy city clerk, will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for county commissioner from the Third district, comprising the Sixth and Seventh wards in Duluth. Mr. Zimmerman filed his declaration of intention with the county auditor yesterday afternoon.

The district is at the present time represented by Commissioner Ole Berg, of the West End, who has held the office two terms and who will probably be a candidate at the primaries for the Democratic nomination.

CANNON A WISE OLD OWL.

Refuses to Be Candidate For Vice President.

Chicago, April 29.—A Washington special to the Tribune says: Friends of Uncle Joe Cannon have been forced to organize to head off his vice presidential boom. He does not want the place under any consideration. He is a wise old owl, and he has not the slightest intention of allowing the Chicago convention to pry him loose from his present place, and by means of a back stairs promotion put him into the presiding officer's chair in the United States senate.

Speaker Cannon's friends insist that he must consent to be the presiding officer of the Republican national convention. But the speaker is wise in his generation, and has announced that he will not take the place, and that he will not go to Chicago at all during convention week unless he can be guaranteed that Platt's performance at Philadelphia will not be repeated.

The speaker has passed word to his friends that the boom for him for vice presidency must be stamped out forthwith. He does not want to be vice president, has a much better place already, likes his job, and is not disposed to go into honorable retirement merely to give some of the aspiring statesmen in the house a chance to step into his shoes.

SHORTAGE IN TRUST FUNDS

Former Mayor Smith of Davenport, Iowa, Admits Defalcation.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 29.—The assignment of Former Mayor S. F. Smith, of Davenport, a prominent attorney and handler of numerous estates, with the statement that his liabilities will foot up $100,000, against assets of only $40,000, including his beautiful home, the finest in that city, was an astounding business revelation yesterday.

Mr. Smith and his wife signed a trust deed turning over all their property to W. C. Putnam and A. W. Vanderver, two of Mr. Smith's bondsmen, who will act as trustees for the creditors.

The deplorable feature of the assignment was the acknowledgment by the bankrupt that there was a shortage of over $50,000 in various trust funds which he has been managing as executor of large estates.

The trust deed provides that the trustees shall allow Mr. Smith $200 a month.

Mr. Smith is the only son of the late Samuel Francis Smith, D. D., of Boston, author of the national anthem, "My Country 'Tis of Thee." He came to Davenport in 1858 and in 1860 became a partner of Judge James Grant.

They were very successful, and in one famous railroad bond case made a profit of $100,000. When they dissolved partnership in 1873, Mr. Smith took his family to Europe, and after a period of travel returned to Davenport. The Smith home was a model of elegance and luxury and a center of society. Mr. Smith's check would have been honored for $50,000 at any Iowa bank.

Later years seem to have brought business losses and bad investments may account largely for the shortage in trust funds.

Mr. Smith was an organizer of the Davenport National bank and of the Union Savings bank. He was part owner of the Davenport Republican, took an active part in state politics, was vice president of the Iowa Sons of the Revolution and formerly president of the Children's Home Finding society.

Four terms as alderman, one as mayor and preminence in social and church affairs and benevolences made him one of the pillars of church and society.

THE STATE OF TRADE

Shown By Reports to the International Mercantile Agency.

New York, April 29.—Advices from important commercial centers, while reflecting disturbance due to prevalence of unseasonable weather, says the international Mercantile Agency, emphasize the basic strength underlying trade conditions with actual results considerably ahead of last year. Continued cold in the South and Southwest has retarded wholesale trade except for boots, shoes and rubbers, where an extraordinary demand is keeping factories working overtime. Excellent business is reported at the West in groceries, dry goods, hardware, machinery, hats, etc., territory tributary to St. Louis showing exceptional results because of rush orders for "exposition week." Low temperature, while restricting spring business, is aiding merchants to close out heavyweight goods, with the result that the stock carried over will be unusually small. While advance orders are somewhat backward, indications point to extraordinary activity during May if seasonable weather prevails. Enormous demand is reported for agricultural implements, farmers evidencing little alarm over the future.

THE STAGE

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

METROPOLITAN — Kennedy Stock company in "The Midnight Express."

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Blanche Walsh in "Resurrection" Saturday afternoon and evening.

"THE MIDNIGHT EXPRESS."

"The Midnight Express" was played at the Metropolitan last night and was enthusiastically received. The play proved to be a good melodrama, in which Lewis S. Stone had an opportunity to prove that his ability as an actor is embraced in the word "versatile." He gave a fine portrayal of the character of David Holt. John Kennedy was good as Bob Backus, and did a very clever stunt as a story teller before the curtain. Earle, Bannister and Stout were well placed. Miss Kennedy and Miss Greenwood divided the honors of the feminine roles. Baby Dot and the Flamme sisters gave an entertaining exhibition of dancing and singing after the first act, and the illustrated songs were well sung.

"A ROYAL SLAVE."

"A Royal Slave," a melodrama of the sensational type, was given at the Lyceum last evening, and an enthusiastic audience greeted it, and manifested much pleasure over the thrilling situations, hairbreadth escapes, etc. There is, of course, the usual love interest and the requisite amount of villainy to balance it. The company is a fairly good one and the scenic effects are good.

"RESURRECTION."

Blanche Walsh will present "Resurrection," dramatized from Tolstoi's great story, at the Lyceum tomorrow afternoon and evening. "Resurrectin" as it will be seen here is the famous dramatization by Bataille and Morton, which had a run of over 300 nights in Paris, was the reigning dramatic sensation of London, and in which Miss Walsh played for four months at the Victoria theater, New York. It will be seen here with practically the same great cast and the complete production.

OFFICER STOPS WOMAN

From Leaping From a Third Story Window.

Chicago, April 29.—By a ruse Detective Kehoe of the Desplaines street police station prevented Mrs. Susie Lindsey, 4 North Sangamon street, from jumping from a third story window when fire started in her home last evening.

In the kitchen of her home Mrs. Lindsay discovered fire which was caused by a defective chimney. She attempted to extinguish the blaze, but failed. She then hastened to a window and was standing on the ledge when seen by the detective. The latter saw the woman's 4-year-old child playing in a yard near and shouted to its mother: "Don't jump, Mrs. Lindsey, go back and get your baby."

Mrs. Lindsey stepped back into the smoke filled room, while Kehoe hastened into the building. He found her groping about in the dark and led her to the street.

Jail Breaker Caught and Is In Pen Once More.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Bonesteel—Tom Davis, charged with giving liquor to Indians and indicted by the federal grand jury at Sioux Falls last week, who broke jail here a short time ago, was taken into custody again.

The trial of White Bank, a Sioux Indian charged with horse stealing, is in progress in Judge Rathbun's court. He asserts that he traded for the horse with a man by the name of Cottrell, who lives north of here.

Huron—Claude Cameron had Gus Allen bound over on a charge of assault.

Colonel John H. King has retained the famous O'Brien county, Iowa, land cases before the United States supreme court on behalf of the settlers.

Ross Keeling and wife entertained a company of young people at their home Monday evening in honor of Miss Cora Gilbert of this city and George Stewart of Tacoma, Wash.

Deadwood—The Gilt Edge Maid Mining company has commenced grading for its new mill on Strawberry gulch, five miles from Deadwood. This plant will have an initial capacity of about one hundred and twenty-five tons a day and will extract the gold by the syanide process.

The Safe Investment Gold Mining company has cleared the ground for a sawmill along Box Elder creek to manufacture lumber for use in the erection of various surface buildings.

The new mill of the Ruby Gold Mining and Milling company has just been started. This is a two-battery plant, using the Mercals stamps. The power is furnished by a forty-horse power gasoline engine, and the ore is handled in the mill chiefly by the gravity system.

Good reports are obtained from the Lucky Strike mine, in southern Lawrence county, along Box Elder creek. Better ore is obtained in the bottom of the shaft than at any time before.

The Dizzy Mining company has resumed operations near the Penobscot in the Garden City region.

It is expected that work will be resumed immediately by the Phoenix Gold Mining company in Blacktail gulch. This company owns the Deadbrook mine and purposes to build a large cyanide mill.

A body of high-grade ore has been discovered by the Globe Mining company in the immediate vicinity of Lead. The ore is refractory, and has been encountered in a westerly drift at a depth of 500 feet.

Alexandria—Miss Jane Laidlaw, an old resident, died from being burned in a small prairie fire. She was engaged in lighting the flames when her dress caught in a barb wire fence, where she was pinioned until her clothing was mostly burned from her body.

Elkton—A sneak thief entered the Tremont hotel and stole a sum of money from girls employed there.

A large delegation from here attended the Odd Fellows' celebration at Lake Benton this week.

Plankinton—Aurora will be the first county in South Dakota to provide dipping stations for the treantment of cattle which are affected with Texas itch or other skin diseases.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Forman—C. H. Cooper, Republican candidate for state representative, has secured a fine artesian well on his farm. A strong, clear flow was struck in bedrock at 865 feet.

Eli Preble, a G. A. R. veteran, 87 years of age, has been granted an increase of pension from $12 to $30 a month.

A. N. Carlblom is receiving much pressure to allow his name to be presented as Republican candidate for county auditor.

Surveyors Soule and Haight have gone to Devils Lake, N. D., on a surveying trip.

The daughter of Gilbert Hove, of Nicholson, Sargent county, who was accidentally shot, will recover, her physician says.

Linton—Art Van der Vorste, of Westfield, has been arrested and brought to Linton jail. He is charged with and admits performing an operation upon his daughter, which caused her death. The girl, Mary, was about 15. The body of a child within a month or so of a natural birth was found on the place. Evidence also induces the belief that the father was the cause of his daughter's trouble, as she had no other male associations. Van der Vorste is a farmer in good financial circumstances.

Mott & Marsh, a hardware firm, will dissolve partnership by mutual consent.

The river has been higher than for years. The ice piled up so solidly against the Northern Pacific bridge that dynamite was used to break through the obstruction.

Bowbells—There is a building boom here. The First State bank and Hurley & Gerolomy will build brick blocks. A dozen or more dwellings are under contract.

WASPS OR BULLETS

Speaking of great civil war stories Miss Ada Sweet, when in Denver recently, told the following to a Denver reporter:

Her father, General Sweet of Chicago, was taking his regiment into action. He sent forward a detail of men to make gaps in a rail fence to avoid the heavy loss sure to result if the whole body of men paused to tear it down.

The coolest and finest man in the detail was a young soldier who had never been under fire before. When he began pulling down the fence ne disturbed a nest of hornets and they sang fiercely about his ears. But the lad was not going to run from hornets when there was more serious business ahead.

Ignoring the angry insects, he opened the fence and rejoined the regiment without being stung.

After a time he was appointed second lieutenant and called on General Sweet to thank him.

"But," he said, modestly, "I don't think I deserve promotion over the others."

"My boy," replied the general, "I saw you pull down that fence. You were the coolest man under fire I ever saw."

The man gasped, stared and turned pale.

"Good God!" he exclaimed, losing all caution and grammar. "Was them bullets?"

HOW MRS. LANDIS GOT THE CIGARS.

Representative Charles F. Landis of Indiana recently had a birthday and Mrs. Landis, to give him a surprise, went out and bought many pretty things for his room. The list included trays, doilies and little knick-knacks for his dresser.

When Mrs. Landis' birthday came along, the New York World says, Mr. Landis decided to surprise her with a few presents.

"What did you get her?" asked Representative Hilderbrand of Ohio.

"Oh, I bought a couple of boxes of good cigars, a pound or two of smoking tobacco and a fine meerchem pipe," Mr. Landis said.

WEST DULUTH

The Merrill & Ring will be the first of the West Duluth mills to start running this season. It will commence operations early next week, probably Monday, with a full crew of men employed.

The ice is now pretty well out of the river proper, and that which still remains in the mill pond is being broken up today by blasting powder. A crew of men has been busily engaged at the work all day, and it is progressing rapidly. The mill has been placed in excellent repair and thoroughly overhauled during the past few weeks, and everything is now in readiness for starting in on the season's work, with the exception of the little ice which still remains in the mill pond, and that will be disposed of by tomorrow. Other West Duluth sawmills will start running within a short time, it is expected. It is said that all will be in full operation within the next two weeks, probably by May 10.

Speaking of the matter this morning, a mill man said:

"Two weeks ago it seemed perfectly safe to wager that the mills would be unable to start in on the season's work before the middle of May. The ice apparently measured several feet in thickness all over the bay, and there were few indications of its breaking up. It has been a surprise to everybody the way it has cleared out within the past few days. Thick as the ice was, it could not withstand the effects of half a month of continued warm weather. With the sun and wind overhead and the current underneath, something was bound to happen. Only for the fine weather of the past week or so we would have been unable to start for some time yet."

EXPECT GOOD YEAR.

Pacific Coast Resident Talks of Conditions

George H. Vesper, formerly a resident of West Duluth, was in the city this morning calling on old friends and looking after his real estate interests here. He has just arrived from Seattle, Wash., where he is now established in business.

"Things are looking pretty good along the sound this spring," he said this morning, "and we are looking for a good year, even though there is a presidential election approaching. I have done pretty well in the West. It is certainly a good country, but I don't know as it is really ahead of Duluth and tributary country in anything except climate. You must surely acknowledge that we are ahead of you on that score.

"I have a lot of faith in Duluth in general and West Duluth in particular, and expect big developments here in the not very distant future. West Duluth is going to become the manufacturing center of the city, and it will be a hummer. A better location for most any old kind of a factory will be hard to find anywhere in the Northwest, and I think this fact is becoming apparent to several big concerns."

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

ENGLISH AS SHE IS SPOKE.

An old gray-bearded, well-to-do farmer from up the state on a visit to this city had a queer opinion of the English language before he was here an hour, says the Philadelphia Press. Arriving at Broad street station he accosted a cabman and inquired what it would cost for a trip to League Island and back.

"Two plunks," replied the cabby.

"Two what?"

"Plunks—bones—cases—can't you understand?"

"I asked you what it would cost for the trip, and I'm not here to be made a fool of," replied the farmer with some heat.

"That's what I am trying to tell you. Two daddies. See?"

"Excuse me, but I don't seem to catch what you mean."

"Well, haven't I tried to tell you five or six times already. Two bucks, two cartwheels."

It was then the up-the-state man seemed to grasp the meaning of what the cabby was trying to tell him, and he said in the meekest of voices: "You don't mean two dollars?"

"Yep, that's what I have told you already half a dozen times."

At that the farmer climbed aboard and the cabby mounted the box and drove in the direction named.

A persistent bad cold will run into consumption unless it is relieved in time. So it is with the little daily wants of the people—they grow serious if not promptly filled. You can afford, for instance, to have that house tenantless for a little while but when it continues tenantless, month after month, it becomes a serious matter. The timely want ad in The Herald ends the trouble.

ONE GREAT ISSUE PERVADES ALL QUESTIONS, SAYS WILLIAM J. BRYAN

how the issue between the corporations and the people pervades all questions.

> "I am indifferent as to the candidates, provided they are in sympathy with the recent platforms of the party and honestly desire remedial legislation in restraint of corporate greed.

"I have not cared to say anything for or against any candidate who represents the progressive element of the party.

"Where I have mentioned any names, it has been to point out the purpose of the reorganizers to deceive the public with a platform like that recently written in New York, and with a candidate secretly pledged to carry out the wishes of Wall street."

"How about prosperity in general, Mr. Bryan, as you observe it?"

"As far as that is concerned, I do not think that it is as good as it was a year ago. The Republican party has nothing stable to base its future on, as far as prosperity is concerned. The prosperity is such that the money power is absorbing the great bulk of it and getting it from the majority, so that there would be very little left to help the country through any season of adverse business conditions."

"As you are not a candidate, and are still in the public eye very largely, how about the purpose of your traveling and lecturing?"

"I am lecturing on a subject that is not partisan nor political, and am doing it to keep up the farm."

"And the Commoner takes care of itself?"

"Yes, that's about it," he answered, with a smile.

"How are agricultural conditions in the West?"

"I've got my oats in, or nearly in, but have not got corn in. It's too early to tell much about corn, and it's the more staple financial article for the farmer, although oats are good. As to these conditions, I speak only of those on my own property."

"About your editorial work. How do you carry that on while away? Do you do that part of your work on the road as you are traveling?"

In answer to this Mr. Bryan pulled out of his inside coat pocket a little bundle of manuscript, an editorial, and exhibited it with a pleased look. "There's one," said he. He had written it on the train coming up from Menominee.

"The Commoner has a weekly circulation of 140,000 copies," he stated, with evident satisfaction. "It has a larger circulation, probably, than some of the papers that are criticizing it now, and appears to be performing the mission for which it was instituted."

At this point Mr. Bryan asked one of his callers, who is a subscriber to the paper, if it had come yet, and said that he had not seen the one for this week, although he was anxious to. He asked that he be permitted to see it as soon as it arrived.

"Mr. Bryan, it is being broadly hinted by some of the Eastern papers, the New York World in particular, that you are liable to bolt the convention for nominating a presidential candidate."

> "Most of those that are doing the talking, I guess, are the ones who have already bolted," was the tart reply.

Mr. Bryan did not care to say anything about the receptions he has been met with since away from home on the present trip, but from reports received by his friends here it is understood that he has been lecturing to capacity houses in every instance. A man who came to the St. Louis this morning said that he had ridden on the same train from Eau Claire and that there were knots of people at all the stations anxious to get a glimpse of the lecturer, but when told of this, Mr. Bryan said he was afraid the statement was a little overdrawn.

"I travel very quietly," said he, "and am not seeking receptions."

The present trip of the twice defeated candidate for the presidency began a week ago when he lectured on Saturday night in Chicago. On Monday he was in Mount Pleasant, Ia.; Tuesday, Whitewater, Wis.; Wednesday, Appleton, Wis., and last night at Menominee. Tomorrow evening he will lecture at Madison, Wis., and then go home.

The Chicago occasion was unique for the reason that Bryan cut loose from all auspices except his own, hired his hall himself, paid for it, and lectured in it without giving anyone a chance to suggest what he might or ought to do. Then he proceeded to expound the principles of the present national political issues as he saw them to suit himself. It is needless to say that the audience was a large one.

A well known railroad man who was at the St. Louis this morning, said he was going to have a talk with Bryan.

"He's a charming man," said he, "and I have met him several times. I never miss a chance to say a good word about him, because he's always so decent to everybody that it makes his company a delight. I have never met a more delightful fellow in my life."

Another acquaintance of the Nebraskan paid him a tribute: "The ordinary public has no idea of the difficulties that Mr. Bryan has been through, although he is said now to be making as much money per year as the president of the United States gets in salary. While I do not believe a word of this let it stand at that. He's been twice a candidate for the presidency and defeated both times—twice in succession, a record which no other man holds and a difficulty which might few men would care to weather. But he was not licked, in one sense, even then, for he's still before us and as cheery as ever."

SHOULD QUIT THE COLLEGE

At Twenty-Five and Begin Work, Says President Harper.

Chicago, April 29.—"Get out and hustle" is President Harper's advice to college men who have reached the proper age. Addressing the senior class, he said:

"At the age of 25 a young man should be thinking about getting into his life work. Under the present educational advantages a student should be able to finish his college studies when he is around 20. He then can spend a year in business, where he can gain much by coming in contact with the business world, and later can take up and finish his professional work or graduate work by the time he is 25 years old.

"I have advised twenty men during the last year to quit the university and to go to work. Some students get into the habit of going to school and continue going, waiting for a job to be given them. College is not a business, but a place to prepare for business."

President Harper declared he had no patience with the student who does not plan for life work as he pursues his undergraduate studies. He said that some of the most successful business men who have been graduated from the University of Chicago began their business career before they had finished their collegiate work. They finished their college work, but not until after they had spent a year in business.

"The demands of the times are great today," continued Dr. Harper. "The young man who goes into business must meet powerful competition. He must then be well prepared. The college education of today compares with the preparatory education of a few years ago. The time has come when graduate work is necessary. But the educational advantages are such that a young man can get the graduate or professional training and be ready for life's work as young as when he finished his college work when I took my college course.

"Then there was little opportunity to do graduate work in the West. I was the seventh to receive the degree of doctor of philosophy from Yale. This will serve to illustrate the pioneer of the graduate work in this country. The university of Chicago was the pioneer of this work in the West. For that reason the report has gone forth that the university is primarily a graduate school. This is a mistake. The undergraduate department is just as important. These colleges will be developed side by side."

Members of the senior class have been invited by President Harper to ask him questions pertaining to the university and its work. These the president answers at his Tuesday meetings with the class.

BANKRUPT BRAINS.

Every rational being naturally shudders at the thought of becoming a financial bankrupt; yet far more distressing are those cares of nervous breakdown in which the brain is incapable of yielding a single asset, says the Philadelphia North American.

Busy brains may go on with their labor for many years, till they suddenly realize the true state of affairs. They cannot regard their bankruptcy as the result of pressure on the part of an "unreasonable creditor," for it is the natural outcome of their own mistaken action.

There are a great many lazy people who are ceaselessly chattering about the large amount of business they transsact, as though their individual labors were simply overwhelming. But this class there is not a single word to be said here. The man who really is being mentally overdone can rarely find time to think of himself, and this very self-forgetfulness constitutes the peril of his position.

We cannot discuss here all the complicated machinery and elaborate workings of the human brain; we must content ourselves by regarding it as a mass of living protoplasm, set apart for certain peculiar functions. The mass is made up of an infinite number of "molecules," which term signifies the smallest quantity into which a substance can be physically divided. These molecules die off on completing their work and are replaced by others.

The protoplasm does not die en masse, any more than our body dies when a damaged finger-nail drops off; but just as the nail is replaced by the living tissues forming a new one, so is dead matter in the brain removed and replaced by the living particles which remain. This, in fact, is nature's universal process for the repair of all living structures. Every single thought having its origin in the brain involves the death of one or more of these protoplasmic molecules, the others quickly preparing fresh particles to take the place of their deceased relatives. This being so, let us suppose that thought follows thought with such great rapidity as to leave little time for reproduction; then it is inevitable the number of working units becomes gradually diminished. Fortunately for us, before such a condition is brought about nature utters her warning voice, and a profound sense of weariness tells us the brain requires rest. If the process of destruction has not gone too far, reconstruction takes place during the night's repose, and the brain is able to start afresh on another day's labor.

But where the period of sleep has been too short or the brain expenditure has been too great, the new day's work is entered upon at a great disadvantage. The actual loss in the twenty-four hours may be a comparatively slight one, and easily compensated; but if the same thing occurs every day, without sufficient rest for recuperation, the deficit soon mounts up to figures of serious magnitude.

Let us imagine, by way of illustration, that there are some 10,000 working units in a brain, and that one day's labor showed a loss of 100; such a deficiency would scarcely be perceptible; but allow that the daily loss continues for months, or even for years, then, as increasing losses lead to pecuniary bankruptcy, so there must come a day when insufficient molecules remain to do the brain's work, and a nervous breakdown must inevitably ensue. When this mental condition has occurred, it is easy to realize the necessity for a lengthy rest, because the brain can only develop fresh molecules slowly and imperfectly so long as it remains in an exhausted condition.

An important factor contributing largely to mental bankruptcy is habitual excessive excitement. Purely intellectual work, with its attendant pleasure, seldom brings it about, even though extended over a period of years. Excessive excitement involves greatly increased activity on the part of the brain-cells, and, as it is generally admitted to be "the pace that kills," evidently this increase of activity must be harmful. Moderate excitement slightly accelerates the speed, and probably increases the output of work, but it does nothing more. If, with excessive excitement, there are rapid transitions from hope to fear, from anxiety to joy, the case is so much the worse, because the brain loss is more extensive. No man ever found his hair change color by sober, steady thought; yet strong, emotional excitement has been known to change it completely in a single night. It is the worry and not the work, the excitement and not intellectual effort which is the source of danger.

Another important contributory factor is to be found in excessive indulgences in pleasures which may be classed as alcoholic and gastronomic. These must be studiously avoided, for they simply mean absolute mental ruin.

During his periods of repose and mental relaxation the busy man is putting his thinking-machine in order; and, instead of looking upon recreation as a regrettable waste of time, he should regard it more as a sharpening of his tools in order to do more and better work. One excellent method of averting a mental bankruptcy, and one into which every man can easily train himself, is that of taking up a hobby.

Among the simplest indications of threatening brain bankruptcy is an excessive nervousness or irritability, for they are both common results of real overwork. Just what pain is to the broken limb, this nervousness is to the brain-worker, because it drives him to seek relief in rest and repose.

Another sign I found in the peculiar sensations experienced in the head and wrongly attributed to common headache. Such are a feeling of weight on the top, a sense of constriction across the brows, or a failure to fix the attention. If either of these symptoms occurs after a long period of mental strain, it must be regarded as very significant.

Advantages are offered in many prices which will make early buying worth while.

Another very effective Shirtwaist Suit is of a fine striped taffeta, in navy blue or rich brown; waist is made with bias straps of material forming a round yoke; skirt strapped at each gore—$22.50.

TAILORED WALKING AND DRESS SUITS—Wonderfully varied displays of original ideas.

The extremely elaborate Train Suits in combinations of sheer materials and rich laces, and the smartly man-tailored Round Length Suits are now being shown in these displays in styles of incomparable beauty and variety. Some are original conceptions reflecting the enthusiasm of the successful designers. Some are clever adaptations combining the characteristic features of the American styles with the individuality of the most noted European originators.

Such is the merit of the displays as a whole that the style supremacy of this section is assured more emphatically than ever.

The most notable innovations in the jackets are the prettily fashioned high folded girdles, the new blouse effect and the fancy sleeves.

The fact that we are displaying a very small number of each style and that the ideas have been almost entirely confined to this section is an assurance of unusual exclusiveness.

Walking Suits in beautiful light novelty mixed cloths—$15.00 to $57.50.

The new Eton Suits, two remarkably attractive styles in the new mixtures—$18.50 to $25.00.

Walking Suits of Scotch Tweeds, Etamine Cheviots and Panama Cloth, Eton and jacket blouse styles—$25.00 to $65.00.

PRESIDENT PRESSES A BUTTON, STARTING MACHINERY IN MOTION

Exercises at Grounds Began Promptly at Nine O'Clock.

Elaborate Ceremonies Marked the Opening of Great Event.

Seemed as If Half of the City Was In Attendance.

World's Fair Grounds, St. Louis, April 30.—At 1:01 this afternoon, to the tolling of bells, amid the crash of bands, the sweeping chorus of the "Star Spangled Banner" sung by a thousand voices and the cheers of the greatest throng ever assembled in the city of St. Louis, the Louisiana Purchase exposition was formally declared open.

Washington, April 30.—President Roosevelt today pressed the gold key by which the electric circuit was broken, releasing the gigantic power of the Louisiana Purchase exposition at St. Louis, putting in motion the 40,000-horse power machinery and the fairy-like cascades on the exposition grounds. The ceremony occurred in the east room of the White House precisely at 1 o'clock, Eastern standard time. As the president pressed the key the Third battery of United States artillery, stationed on the grounds of the Washington monument, south of the White House, fired a national salute of twenty-one guns. Congratulatory messages then were exchanged between the president and David R. Francis, president of the Exposition company.

St. Louis, April 30.—Notwithstanding the ominous prediction of the government forecaster, who prophesied rain for the latter part of the day and lowering skies for the morning, St. Louis put forth her best and bravest effort today in honor of the opening of her great exposition. The morning at least was bright, and the most was made of it. The official hour for the commencement of the exercises was 9 o'clock, at which time the officials of the exposition, members of the national commission and of the board of lady managers were scheduled to meet at the Administration building. Long before this time the grounds were filled with nearly half the population of the city of St. Louis, and the remainder apparently was thronging to the exposition grounds. To the many thousands of the local population were added many more who came in on excursion trains last night and this morning. Although no special effort was made by the management of the exposition to secure a large attendance for the opening day, the crowd was fully as large as that which filled the grounds a year ago, when the exposition buildings were dedicated with so much pomp and ceremony.

Promptly at the hour set the officers and directors of the exposition, the members of the national commission and of the board of lady managers were gathered at the Administration building, where, as rapidly as possible, they were formed into a procession and marched to the plaza of St. Louis, in the center of the grounds, where the formal exercises of the opening were conducted. At the head of the column was a detachment of the Jefferson Guards, who are to do police duty within the exposition while it continues. Then came the Philippine Scouts band, followed by the Philippine scouts, an imposing body of men, who marched well. Behind them, and leading the officers and directors of the exposition, came Sousa's band. Following the officers and directors were members of the national commissioners, and last of all, the board of lady managers, some of whom went on foot, while others preferred the more luxurious method of riding in carriages.

As the column from the administration building entered the plaza, a long line formed of representatives of foreign governments which had assembled in the Hall of Congresses, came pouring into the plaza from another avenue. This column was also headed by a detachment of the Jefferson guards, followed by a band. At the head of the line immediately behind the music were the members of the exposition committee on foreign relations, then came commissioners and representatives of foreign governments which have ambassadors accredited to the United States, marching in the order of presentation of credentials to the exposition. Following these came representatives of governments having ministers accredited to the United States government, and then a great number of other representatives of foreign governments and colonies, also in the order of presentation of their credentials to the exposition. This column presented by far the gayest appearance of the day, for the foreigners made a prodigal display of gold lace and bright colors in glittering contrast to the black silk hats and dark frock coats which were so prominent among the officials and dignitaries of the exposition.

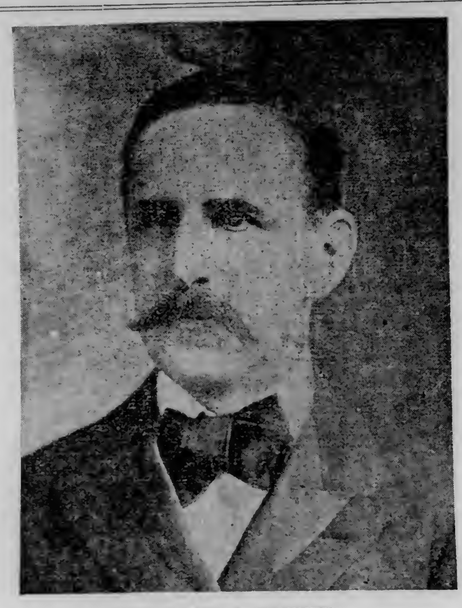

A third column came shortly afterward, formed of representatives of the states and territorial governments in the Union.

THE EXERCISES BEGIN.

The participants in the exercises quickly took their places at the base of the Louisiana monument, where a small stand had been erected for the speakers and seats provided for the listeners. The assemblage was called to order without delay by President D. R. Francis of the exposition, who requested the audience to rise while the Rev. Frank M. Gunsaulus, of Chicago, delivered the following invocation:

Almighty God, author of all goodness, in whose hand are all our times, who art from all eternity unto all eternity, we pause upon this glad and inspiring moment where an hundred rejoicing years are met, and we offer Thee our praise and prayer. We humble ourselves and yet we exult in Thee today as we implore Thy spirit divinely to open the gates of this our festival and prosper it with holy guidance, remembering that ours is the unchanging God. We celebrate the significance of far-reaching events; we shall here, day by day rehearse the story of uncounted transformations. O Thou eternal Love and Light, stay us and guide us—Thou who art the same yesterday and forever! We know not the swiftness of time or the startling movement of events, while we pray for the life and good of the president of these United States and all others in authority with him. We perceive not how weak is man when we implore Thy blessing upon the officers of this centennial celebration and upon their work. Only when we are sure that Thou, who will protect and guide them, did'st aforetime swear and bend our fathers on their way, do we gratefully recognize that the continuity of American history is in the life and purpose of God as revealed in the progress of man, and that in Thee we have the future as in Thee we had the past. For this we adore Thy great and holy name, and make mention of Thy goodness and power. We remember gratefully the days of old. We thank Thee for those silences and solitudes, well nigh eternal and infinite, in which God wrought in natural manners here creating a measureless opportunity and advantage in soil and sky, river and rock, forest and climate—a challenge for the hands and hearts which should meet and master the nascent energies and build commonwealths in these new realms for the glory of God and the good of man. But Thou hast often taught us how poor are resources apparently inexhaustible, how worthless are flashing ores and hidden streams without man. They servant and child, viceregent of Thyself made kingly by Thy providence and race to subdue and transform according to Thy plan. So we thank Thee good spirit, wrought righteousness, while they stopped the mouths of wild beasts, quenched the violence of even prairie fire, rocked their children to sleep with the wolf's howl shivering the quiet night, overcame the savage and the pestilence, conquered poverty, turned wilderness into gardens, and transformed hot deserts into fields where bloom and rose and cornflower and where ripen apples or gold in pictures of silver. The little one has become a thousand and the small one a strong nation. The wilderness and the solitary place have indeed been glad for them. Verily the Lord hath hastened it in His time. Make us worthier of such fatherhood and motherhood, and because we shall henceforth serve more devoutly their God who is also our God, we lift up our eyes, on this day at least, to the hills whence cometh our help. Glad is our thanksgiving, fervent our praise, but quick and tender on this exultant day is the consciousness of our shortcomings and our iniquities. By the same might with which Thou hast led and protected, spare us and pardon. From our greed and foolish pride, from our fear of men and our faithfulness to Thee, we appeal to Thee through Him who suffered for all our sins. May no splendid events of our history hide from us Thy righteousness revealed betimes in flame and thunder. Clouds and darkness have indeed been round about Thee, at times in our history, but ever justice and judgment have been the habitation of Thy throne. We have sinned against Thy commandments, and lo! Thou hast done

WORLD'S FAIR SPECIAL IN FRIGHTFUL WRECK

The Dead and Injured May Number Fifty---Bodies Recovered.

Kimmswick, Mo., April 30.—The fast morning train on the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern railroad, known as No. 18, running as a World's fair special, was wrecked one mile and a half from here today.

The engine struck an open switch, and, with the exception of the last sleeper, all the coaches were derailed. It is reported that he list of dead and injured will reach nearly fifty.

Dead:

ENGINEER BAILEY.

MASTER MECHANIC TABOR, De Loto.

Fatally injured: Fireman Gumpert, Express Messenger De Gloat. Nine bodies have been removed from the wreck, only one of which has been identified.

Six passengers are seriously injured and twenty are suffering minor wounds.

The wreck occurred while the train was going at an excessive rate of speed. Last night there was trouble with a freight car on one of the fast trains, and it was necessary to abandon it on the main line, near Wickes siding.

Orders were issued for all northbound and southbound trains to use the switch at that point instead of the main line. Five trains passed the siding during the interval between the breakdown of the car and the arrival of No. 18.

It is stated by Conductor Austin that he read the order to the engineer and handed a copy to him. The officials of the road cannot account for the fact that the train approached the siding at such a high rate of speed. The engine turned completely over, pinioning Engineer Bailey beneath tons of steel. Master Mechanic Tabor, who was riding in the engine, was also instantly killed.

CITY OF CHICAGO IN DANGER OF SERIOUS CONFLAGRATION

Chicago, April 30.—William H. Johnson, general inspector for the national board of fire underwriters, who has just concluded a six-weeks' investigation of the Chicago fire department, the city water department, and other auxiliaries affecting the fire insurance of the city, has made his report. Among other things he finds:

That the present fire fighting force is inadequate, numerically, its equipment insufficient, and the department, as a whole, on the down grade.

That the down town, or congested district, is in danger of a serious conflagration.

That the merchants and owners of buildings are careless and neglect to avail themselves of the various precautionary devices with which their buildings are equipped.

That the present water facilities are behind the times.

That conditions demand the immediate installment of the high pressure system.

That many of the engines are unfit for the uses to which they are put.

That many Chicago alleys are so narrow as to render fire fighting from them impossible.

That physically incapicated men are on the force.

In sending out this report the fire department committee of the national board of fire underwirters suggests:

That the members ask the co-operation of agents in efforts to secure the improvements recommended.

Sixteen Thousand Japanese Said to Have Begun the Attack.

Found Thirty Thousand Russian Troops Strongly Entrenched.

Manchuria, April 30.—The first battle of the war is persistently reported to have occurred on the Yalu river. Sixteen thousand Japanese crossed the stream Thursday and attacked 30,000 Russians, who were strongly fortified. It is rumored this morning that the Japanese were reinforced and that the battle continues. The Japanese sharpshooters killed many Russian officers, whose uniforms were conspicuous.

Washington, April 30.—Reports have reached the state department the sources which officials do not care to divulge, to the effect that a great battle has been fought in the Yalu river, resulting in a complete Japanese victory. Details are unobtainable.

The Japanese legation here has no news confirming these reoprts, but the matter has aroused intense interest in official circles.

Reports which have from time to time reached the Washington government from its agent in the field indicated that the two great armies would not come in touch before May 1st and that what has heretofore occurred was nothing more than mere outpost skirmishes and collisions between the scouting parties. It is believed now, however, that the weather conditions in Manchuria have improved sufficiently to facilitate the movement of troops and artillery and that the two vanguards have consequently come together a few days in advance of the expected date.

St. Petersburg, April 30.—The Japanese troops are still concentrating in the neighborhood of the Yalu river, but nothing of particular moment has thus far been reported.

The emperor received a telegram from Gen. Kuropatkin, under today's date, as follows:

Gen. Sassulitch reports that the night of April 28-29 passed quietly. Small bodies of Japanese are moving on the right bank of the Yalu, at the mouth of which steamers are arriving.

"On April 28, at about 2 in the afternoon, Japanese columns were seen going from Yongampo towards Wiju, and a party of Japanese scouts were seen on a mountain to the southward of Sindiaju.

"The Japanese have not as yet undertaken any active operations."

St. Petersburg, April 30.—An official announcement is gazetted today explaining that the emperor is refusing all applications of foreigners for permission to serve as volunters in the far East, because he considers that the life and strength of the individual belong, above all, to his native country.

WHITNEY HOME REPORTED SOLD

New York, April 30.—Although William C. Whitney's will provided that his magnificent house at 871 Fifth avenue "shall be maintained as a home" for his daughter Dorothy and his step children for two years after his death, it is reported to have been sold to James Henry Smith, heir of the fifty million dollar estate of George Smith of Chicago and London. None of those directly interested has confirmed the report. The price is placed between $2,000,000 and $2,500,000. This is understood to have included the entire contents, together with many rare paintings, statuary and objects of art, with the exception of a single painting, a Van Dyck for which Mr. Whitney paid $100,000.

If the sale has been made at the figure indicated it will go on record as the highest price ever paid for a private residence in New York. The building is a four-story structure at the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and 68th street with a Fifth avenue frontage of 55 feet and 200 feet on the side street.

THE GREATEST EXPOSITION

great and good things for us and wonderful. Thou hast blessed us in basket and in store and planted in the midst of the garden of our growth the tree of life, which bears twelve manner of fruits whose leaves also are for the healing of the nations. When we have most offended against Thy holy law, we have done it amid all the glory of Thine infinite goodness. Deliver us, we pray Thee, from our sins and forgive, renewing in our fresh vision of Jesus Christ the assurances of Thy pardon. Farewell the past; welcome the future, O our King! May we not fail Thee, O Thou God of nations, since Thou hast called us to tasks so sublime and hast spread every banquet with hands of love and for the richer triumph of Thy kingdom In and through the governments of men. To this end may we have that righteousness which, coming from above, is life and hope. Then our youth shall be renewed like the eagles; we shall mount upon wings; we shall run and not be weary; we shall even walk and not faint. Give us the ennobling expectation that as our God hath commanded our strength because of the very greatness of our way in the past, even so shall he lead us on from entersprise to enterprise of faith, from altar to altar of devotion, even from Gethsamane to Salvary of self-sacrifice, so that we may follow the uncrowned holiness from glory unto glory. Accustom us to the truth which shall lead us to seek first the kingdom of God that in the light and for the purposes thereof all triumphs of science applied, all conquests of discovery, all victories of philosophic endeavor, all fruits of the tilled soil, all tamed tides of ocean, all songs of happy homes, all opulent literatures yet to be written, all art waiting here to be created —so that all these things shall be added unto us. Then shall He be crowned, indeed and with many crowns. And then shall be answered, so far as we may be made worthy to receive the answer, the words he has taught us to say when we pray; 'our Father,' etc.

PRESIDENT FRANCIS.

Dr. Gunsaulus concluded his eloquent invocation with the Lord's prayer, in which the audience joined. President Francis, as the chief executive of the exposition then delived the following address:

"A great thinker has said: 'the sentiment from which it springs determines the dignity of any deed.' This universal exposition was conceived in a sense of obligation on the part of the people of the Louisiana purchase to give expression to their gratitude for the innumerable blessings that have flowed from a century of membership in the American Union, to manifest their appreciation of the manifold benefits of living in a land whose climate and soil and resources are unsurpassed and of having their lots cast in an age when liberty and enlightenment are established on foundations broad and deep, and are the heritage of all who worthily strive. To rise to the full measure of such a sentiment required an undertaking of comprehensive proportions, and the participation of all races and of every clime.

"Six years have passed since the conception began to assume form. The first year was devoted to arousing the interest of this community and securing the co-operation of the states and territories of the purchase. The next two years were spent in enlisting the sympathy of other sections of our own country and in gaining the recognition and assistance of the general government. Three years ago the work of preparation was begun. It has been vigorously prosecuted in every section of the globe. The movement has enlarged in scope from day to day and taken on more definite shape from year to year. Discouragements were frequent enough, but were never disheartening, and are now all forgotten. We remember only the words of cheer and commendation, the patient consideration given to what was often looked upon as misdirected enthusiasm, but which was persisted in, and almost invariably converted indifference or skepticism into helpful and active interest. The magnitude of the enterprise was never lost sight of by its promoters, but its mammoth proportions, constantly increasing as they developed, never for a moment shook the confidence, weakened the energies, or diverted from their well-defined purposes those who had been entrusted with the responsibility and the work. Today you see the consummation of their efforts.

"The sincere and helpful interest of the federal government, the unanimous cooperation of the state and territories and possessions of the United States, the participation of almost every country on the earth, is evidence of the wisdom and thoroughness of the work of exploitation, and establishes unquestionably the universal character of the exposition.

"The magnificent structures whose graceful lines and imposing fronts have had no peer in architecture or design, the entrancing picture that holds your admiring gaze on yonder lagoon and cascades; the delightful vistas that meet you at every turn, the inimitable adaptation of the beauties of nature to the achievement of art, clearly show the skill and judgment that have been exercised in preparing receptacles for the products of the world.

"The exhibits of every country and every people, classified as they are in a manner unequalled for clear and comparitive comparison, and by a system and in an order that records the development of man and his accomplishment, bear testimony to the advancement of civilization, and show that their arrangement is the result of thoughtful expedience, and is for the edification of all who desire to learn.

"Has the consummation risen to the full measure of the ambitious plan outlined at the inception of the enterprise? Has the lofty sentiment that inspired the celebration found a realizing embodiment in the picture you behold? Does the exhibition of man's handiwork here installed faithfully portray his progress and development? Does this assembling of the best products of all the ages, brought together in friendly rivalry by nationalities and races differing in faith and in habit and in ideals, form a correct composite of man's achievements; of the advancement of science; of the thougat of the twentieth century? If so, this universal exposition is more than an exhibition of products, or even of processes; it is more than a congregating of the grades of civilization as represented by all races from the primitive to the cultured; it is even more than a symposium of the thought of the thrones, of the student and the moralist. It is all of these combined, and the tout ensemble forms a distinct entity whose impress on the present and influence on the future are deep and lasting. It will have a place in history, more conspicuous than its projectors ever conceived. Or more than a generation to come it will be a marker in the accomplishments and progress of man. So thoroughly does it represent the world's civilization that if all man's other works were by some unspeakable catastrophe blotted out, the records here established by the assembled nations would afford all necessary data to guide the rebuilding of our entire civilization.

"By bringing together sections and peoples hitherto remote and unacquainted and thereby promoting mutual respect, it is a distinct step toward establishing that universal peace for which all right minded people are striving, and which the exposition's gifted sculptor has so fittingly typified in the graceful figure that crowns the noble monument at whose base we stand.

"The Louisiana Purchase exposition, held in commemoration of the acquisition of an empire by a deed of the pen, salutes the representatives, executive and legislative, of the federal government and tenders most profound thanks for the recognition extended and assistance rendered. It acknowledges obligations to states and territories and foreign countries for co-operation and contribution, and makes its obeisance to commissioners and exhibitors.

"Open ye gates, Swing wide ye portals, Enter herein ye sons of men, and behold the achievements of your race. Learn the lessons here taught and gather from it inspiration for still greater accomplishments."

At the conclusion of his address President Francis recognized William H. Thompson, of the committee on grounds and buildings, who presented to President Francis, Isaac S. Taylor, the director of works. Mr. Taylor delivered to President Francis the keys of the exposition and presented diplomas of merit to the chiefs of his staff.

DIRECTOR SKIFF.

After the rendition of the march "Louisiana," by Sousa's band, President Francis transferred the exposition buildings to Frederick J. V. Skiff, the director of exhibits, the performance being emblematic of the fact that the buildings had been erected by the men in charge of that portion of the work and were now ready and waiting for the installation of the exhibits through Mr. Skiff's department. Mr. Skiff made the following address:

"The scene which stretches before us today is fairer than that upon which Christian gazed from Delectable mountain. The ensemble is inspiring to a degree that makes the occasion reverential.

"A person must be exalted at such a moment as this; the inauguration of the greatest educational force that has ever made its impress on humanity; the dedication of the world's wisdom to the countless ages.

"An exposition is a vast museum in motion. An exposition is a collection of exhibits. The genius of an exposition is the composite exhibitor. The horizon is only slightly broadened when you make the extreme statement that everything within the boundaries of this exposition is an exhibit, is a manifastation of some thought, is the expression of some genius, is the mark of some triumph, in a world, at a time when the battle of brains is being waged with the greatest intensity.

"Ambition, competition, strife and friction are essential to progress. Without these nations would sleep and men would die.

"The aggregation of the productiveness of man displayed at this great festival of progress invites a rather contradictory reflection. It both levels and establishes distinction. To me, a most magnificent fact brought out by the exhibits is the coincidence of advancement on certain distinct lines in sections remote from each other, widely apart in native and acquired attributes; at once denoting the community of thought throughout the world.

"It is in the study of the exposition in detail that the most permanent benefit will come to the individual. The whole picture creates an impression that ennobles the beholder and awakens a sentiment of gratitude that one is permitted to share such a spectacle. But these are impressions, valuable to be sure, but as it is a physiological fact that all strength is diverted from the unison of atoms, so it is that students accumulate the greatest general wisdom by mastering elementary facts.

"The school, the college, the university, stimulate the faculties and improve the intellectual conditions of idividuals. The museum improves the social conditions of a community. The exposition expresses its educational benefactions upon the world. The plan and scope of this exposition uttered at the inception of the enterprise was consciously intended to give its full expression and ultimate outcome a distinct educative character. The classification itself, the rules and regulations of the exposition, the selection of the material, the arrangement of the individual topics, the catalogue, the demonstration of a co-ordinate congress, each constitutes an essential factor in giving to this exposition the elements of the university, the museum, the manual training school, and the library, while over and above it all is the record of the social conditions of mankind, registering not only the culture of the world which different races and different peoples may safely proceed, or in fact have begun to advance towards a still higher development.

"The chief of each department stands as the representative of the arts, sciences, and industries of the classification pertinent to his task, and in just so far as his judgment and discrimination have comprehended and observed the systematic and carefully developed plan of the divislon. his services reflect the highest achievement in the products within his control These exhibits have not been merely received and installed; they have been selected with scientific intent and discrimination.

"In conformity with the authority delegated to me by the executive, I invest the chiefs of the division of exhibits with the isignia of their office, conveying to each of them the full and unreserved acknowledgment of the unexampled manner in which they have discharged the trust reposed in them. I wish to add my presence to earnest thanks the chiefs of the division of exhibits for the splendid work they have done for the exposition, for the cause of education and for the people of these and all times.

"And, president, I have the honor to hand you a catalogue of the exhibits, with descriptions and locations of the same, in the various palaces."

"HYMN OF THE WEST."

The grand chorus "Hymn of the West, was then sung by a choir led by Alfred Ernst. The music of the hymn was by John K. Nowles Payne and its words which were as follows were written by Edmund Clarence Stedman:

O Thou, whose glorious orbs on high
Engird the earth with splendor round,
From out Thy secret place drew nigh
The courts and temples of this ground;
Eternal Light,
Still will this might
These domes that in Thy purpose grew,
And lift a nations heare anew!

Illumine Thou each pathway here,
To show the marvels God hath wrought
Since Thy first people's chief and seer,
Looked up with that prophetic thought,
Hide Thou the scroll
Thy fateful scroll,
And empire unto Freedom gave
From cloudland height to topic wave.

Poured through the gateways of the North
Thy mighty rivers join their tide,
And on the wings of morn set forth
The mists that far-off peaks divide.
By Thee unsealed,
The mountains yield,
Ores that the wealth of Ophir shame,
And gems enwrought of seven-hued flame.

Lo, though what years the soil hath lain
At thine own time to give increase—
The greater and the lesser grain,
The ripening boll, the myriad fleece!
Thy creatures graze
Appointed ways;
League after league across the land
The ceaseless herds obey Thy hand.

Thou, whose high archways shine most clear
Above the plenteous Western plain,
Thine ancient tribes from round the sphere
To breathe its quickening air are fain;
And smiles the sun
To see made one
Their bread throughout Earth's greenest space;
Land of the new and lordlier race!

President Francis then introduced Mayor Rolla Wells of St. Louis, who spoke briefly extending to the people of the United States and to the residents of countries abroad a cordial welcome to the city of St. Louis, when they should visit the exposition.

HON. THOMAS H. CARTER.

Hon. Thomas H Carter, president of the national commission then spoke as follows on behalf of the body of which he is the head:

"An act of the congress of the United States, aproved March 3, 1901, gave national recognition to the exposition which we this day open to the public. By appropriating five million dollars in aid of the project, congress expressed the nations aproval of the the great historic event the exposition is intended to commemorate.

"By joint action of the national commission and the company, the work of women in connection with the exposition, has been placed in charge of a board of lady managers, appointed under authority of law. The friendly disposition of the national government has been steadfast from the beginning. With cheerful alacrity, time for prepration was extended one year by congress upon request of the company, and a loan of four million six hundred thousand dollars was made by the present congress, to meet all the obligations of the exposition up to this day of opening. If to the original appropriation of five million dollars be added this loan, and the aggregate amount directly and indirectly expended and authorized by the government for construction and official exhibits upon the fair grounds is taken into account, it will be found that financially the United States is today concerned in the exposition to the extent of nearly fifteen million dollars, thus practically duplicating in this celebration the price paid for the Louisiana territory 100 years ago.

"In stately architectural display and in exhibits of their achievements in science, art and industry, the society of nations assembled here in generous competition call forth our acclamations of approval, and we greet them as our visiting neighbors and friends.

"Our home folks of the state, territories and districts of the Union have combined to honor this occasion on a scale of unexpected generosity.

"This unrivaled representation of peoples and governments from abroad and the large home participation, places upon the exposition management a weight of responsibility, which, like the exposition itself, is unprecedented. With justice, courtesy, fair play and hospitality as watchwords, from the gatekeeper up to the president of the company, all will be well.

"From comparison of productions, potent ideas destined to affect the future of the world will be evolved. Material progress everywhere will surely be heightened and strengthened in consequence. From the comingling of people social forces will be set in motion laden with far-reaching results.

"In the name of the national commission I extend to those who are here and to those who are to come, a hearty greeting."

SENATOR BURNHAM SPEAKS.

At the conclusion of Mr. Carter's address, President Francis happily introduced a member of the United States senate, who spoke on behalf of the senior house of congress. This was Senator Henry E. Burnham, of New Hampshire, who spoke at length, extending the greetings of the senate.

CONGRESSMAN TAWNEY.

Following the speaker for the higher branch of congress came James A. Tawney of Minnesota, who spoke as follows for the national house of representatives:

"The occasion on which we have assembled today is one of rare and monumental interest. It is crowded with patriotic pride in the achievement here commemorated, and overflows with exultant anticipation of greater glory yet to come.

"Those who conceived and accomplished this marvelous result as a means of celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of the purchase of the territory of Louisiana may feel proud of their magnificent success. As a member of congress of the United States that authorized and aided it, and speaking in behalf of one branch of that body, I will say that, not only as members of congress, but as citizens of the United States, we share with them their just pride and are profoundly grateful for their efficient effort and labor in the work they have accomplished. In the celebration of no event in our national life has the congress of the United States and the government been more liberal. This liberality of government is equalled, too, by the generous and patriotic aid contributed by the city and people of St. Louis, by all but two states of the union, and by every civilized nation on earth. In the amount expended in the number of states and nations centennial anniversary of our acquisition of that vast domain, of which the city of St. Louis is the metropolis, this exposition surpasses anything of the kind heretofore attempted anywhere in the world. To our sister nations, for their generous and enthusiastic response to the invitation on behalf of our government to participate in this commemoration, extended by the late President McKinley, we are deeply grateful. The extent to which this friendly meeting of all nations upon these grounds, in good-natured rivalry, where they will exhibit of their resources, their skill in art and manufacture, and of those things which best typify and illustrate the results of their civilization, progress and material development, will contribute more to universal peace and happiness throughout the world than any previous international event.

"Out of the womb of the world's military and civil convulsions have been born many great events—events made glorious by the victories of military and civil heroes. Under their ennobling influences and actuated by a lofty patriotism and a high appreciation of noble deeds, nations, in the past, have assembled to appropriately commemorate them and honor the memory of those by whom they were achieved, but never before in the history of the world have all nations of the earth assembled, as they are here congregated, to celebrate the achievement and honor the memory of civil or military hero.

"For the first time in the world's history men stand here today in the presence of a spectacle, the like of which has never been conceived by the mind or wrought by the hand of man, in or design, in execution, in the beauty and grandeur of its full completion, it surpasses anything of the kind the human eye has ever looked upon. In a word, it is the world's exhibit of nineteen centuries of human progress. It has been gathered from every land and every part of the habitable globe to commemorate that matchless and patriotic achievement wrought a century ago by Thomas Jefferson, who, as the president of a feeble republic, taking advantages of the necessities of Napoleon and the aggressive designs of Great Britain, wrested from both an empire greater in area than the territory plucked from the British crown by the revolutionary war.

"Rightfully does this event claim a place in the history and in the hearts of the American people by the side of that memorable declaration, which, on July 4, 1776, rang out from the belfry tower of Liberty Hall, like the clarion notes of a trumpet, to the people of all nations, proclaiming the immortal principles of universal liberty, individual worth and the inherent rights and dignity of man.

"The declaration of July 4, 1776, gave us national independence and political liberty. The acquisition of the territory of Louisiana safeguarded both, and, in addition, gave us international freedom and the power to protect ourselves and the republics to the south of us from foreign aggression or territorial aggrandizement. Measured by the life of nations, it has enabled us in the short space of one century to grow and expand from infancy to full manhood and commanding importance, until today we are not only a world power, but in peace and war, in the arts and sciences, in productive industry, and economic organization, in the wisdom and beneficence of our laws and institutions and in all things essential to national leadership, we have justly won, and proudly, though modestly, occupy a foremost placea mong our sister nations.

"In no country, under no government, by no people on earth could this marvelous result have been achieved save by the American people, under the freedom of their institutions, the inspiration of liberty, and the influences of Christian civilization."

SPEECH BY E. H. HARRIMAN.

For the domestic exhibitors Edward H. Harriman, president of the New York state commision delivered an address.

The speaker for the foreign exhibitors was Commissioner General Michel La Grave of France, who was the first commissioner general of a foreign country to erect a pavilion on the exposition grounds.

Mr. La Grave gracefully expressed the thanks of the foreign exhibitors for the treatment which had been accorded them and prophesied eloquently for the brillian success of the exposition.

SECRETARY TAFT

The chorus of "America" was then sung and the Hon. William R. Taft, secretary of war, acting as the representative of the president of the United States delivered the last address of the day. He said in part:

"Speaking today on behalf of the president of the United States, I cannot but recall the admirable and discriminating address which he delivered here a year ago upon the historical and political significance of that great purchase of territory which this exposition commemorates; how forcibly he pointed out the tremendous capacity for expansion and absorption of peoples, our peculiar federal system, with its provision for the birth of new stated, afforded; how new it was when this government began and yet how quietly successful had been its operation until now it seems so natural as to involve no surprise or admiration at all.

"I am sure I may be pardoned if I invoke attention to the fact that we have at this, the centenary of the purchase of Louisiana, entered upon another and a different kind of expansion to which involves the solution of other and different problems from those presented in the Louisiana Purchase. They have been forced upon us without our seeking, and they must be solved with the same high sense of duty, the same fearlessness and courage with which our ancestors met the very startling problems that were peresnted by the addition of this wide expanse of territory of Louisiana. That they may not and probably will not be solved by conferring statehood upon the new territory is probable. Augurs of ill and ruin to follow from the experience and the solution of the problem are not wanting, but they never have been wanting in the history of this country, and they never have been allowed to control the fearless grappling of new problems by Americans.

"We have probably reached a period in the great wealth and power which we have achieved as a nation, in which we find ourselves burdened with the necessity of aiding another people to stand upon its feet and take a short cut to the freedom and the civil liberty which we and our ancestors have hammered out. For the reason that this centennial of the Louisiana purchase marks the beginning of the great Philippine problem, the government of the Philippine islands has felt justified in expending a large sum of money to make the people who come here to commemorate the vindication of one great effort of American enterprise and expansion understand the conditions which surround the beginning of another. Those who look forward with dark foreboding to the result of this new adventure base their prophecies of disaster on what they think is the weakness of the American people. Those who look forward to its success base their judgment and their optimism on what has already been accomplished in the islands, and on what they know the American nation can do when an emergency and an inevitable necessity present themselves. Without being blind to the difficulties or the dangers, it gives me the greatest happiness to know and to say that the president of the United States, whom I unworthily represent today, is glad to take his stand among those who believe in the capacity of the American people, when aroused by the call of duty, to solve any problem of government, however new, which depends solely on the clearheaded, the honesty and the courage, the generosity and the self-restraint of the American people."

THE MACHINERY STARTS.

The conclusion of the speech of Secretary Taft was the signal for the opening of the fair. In the White House at Washington President Roosevelt was waiting for the signal to touch the golden key that would formally open the fair and set its manifold machinery in operation.

Secretary Taft had not turned to resume his seat after concluding his speech before the signal had been flashed to Washington over the wires of the Postal Telegraph company. Instantly there was a return flash, which started the machinery in Machinery hall in operation.

Strictly speaking this was all that was accomplished by the presidential touch on the button at Washington. Operators here were waiting for the response from the White House, and as quickly as it came they touched the keys which released the fastenings of the thousands of banners that were secured to the staffs on the roofs of all the large exhibit palaces. This portion of the work, as far as could be seen from any one section of the grounds, was perfect. Every banner apparently caught the same breath of air, and they unfurled and floated out as one. At the far end of the lagoon from the Louisiana monument was the place of the cascades. This portion of the ceremonies had greater interest for the people than apparently any other feature of the opening. Hundreds of thousands of eyes were focussed on the three white inclines that extend from the colonade of states to the lagoon basin. The first glint of white foam at the summit of the inclines was greeted with a tremendous cheer, which deepened as the great flood of water came splashing tumultuously down the lagoon below. It was a sight full of beauty, and the great crowd which witnessed it appreciated and applauded to the full. Simultaneously, with the rush of the water, all the bands burst forth at once into the strains of the "Star Spangled Banner." Every man in the great crowd uncovered, and when the last strain of the martial song had died out, the exercises were finished and the exposition proper had commenced.

The first feature of the exposition was the concessionaires' parade. This was made up of all the different features which will figure on "The Pike" during the life of the exposition.

The Pike is to the St. Louis exposition what the "Midway" was to the Columbian exposition in Chicago. The features, though different in character, furnish practically the same form of amusement. There were in this parade some who had actually been present upon the famous Midway eleven years ago, and many which had not been seen or heard of at that time. This procession, with its diverse and unique attractions, gave much pleasure and delight to the crowds, which cheered it most enthusiastically during the entire length of its line of march."

BRITISH ADMIRAL REGARDS BIG BATTLESHIPS UNDESIRABLE

New York, April 30.—Admiral Sir Cyprian Bridge of the British navy, who before his retirement March 14 was commander-in-chief of the China station, has sailed for England. In discussing developments in the far East, he expressed the opinion that very large battleships have been proved undesirable.

"I see no new lesson from torpedo boats in the present war," he said. "My opinion is there is only one way to defend yourself effectively against torpedo attack, and that is to assume a vigorous offensive. If you go hunting a squadron of torpedo boats, they will have quite enough to do in looking out for themselves. The essence of a torpedo boat is attack by surprise, to get in unobserved, launch a torpedo, and get away. If you simply remain quiet and trust in an obstruction which you put around you, an active, vigorous assault is bound to find a soft place in it, for there is no armor yet made but what has its weak spot.

"I do not regard the submarine as progress. In my opinion it is a somewhat handicapped torpedo boat. A torpedo boat depends on invisibility, by which suddenness of attack is aided. If it can leave its base, reach its objective, deliver its attack and get nearly back to its base before daylight, it has a very great prospect of escaping with immunity. To do this, it is obvious that it must have high speed. The submarine becomes invisible only when near the object of attack. It is then more completely invisible than the ordinary torpedo boat, but it has to pay what I regard as the very high price of relatively extreme slowness in movement. I do not think a submarine has been constructed, or is likely to be, that can cover more than nine or ten miles per hour. Therefore the apparent advantage of temporary invisibility is neutralized by lack of speed.

"Battleships when very large are ineffective. The modern battleship is a fortress afloat, and the land is the place for a fortress. To my mind, it is inadvisable to build battleships larger than the Kearsarge and Kentucky, and even they are a bit large. The Kentucky, by the way, is a remarkable ship. I have been over her and think her internal arrangements admirable. As a fighter I do not rate her superior to H. M. S. Glory, my late flagship.

"But I do not hesitate to say that the sanitary arrangements in the latest type of British battleships are disgusting. On the Kentucky it is as if one were in a private house. In respect to her inside fittings, the Kentucky is a hundred years in advance of any of our warships."

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Gumshoe Campaign By Managers of Gubernatorial Campaign In Duluth—Both Sides Continue Confident.

DULUTH'S CHANCES OF GETTING REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION

Boom of A. D. Gray of Fillmore County For Railroad Commissioner Gaining Strength.

Dull politics held sway locally the past week. Neither side in the governorship contest seemed to be doing anything but underground work. Chairman Sargent of the Dunn campaign committee was in St. Paul most of the week, and while he probably was lining up some plans in that city, it seemed to leave the local end to have a short rest, and William Getty was also out of the city. As for the Collins side, those belonging to it seemed almost as hard to find, and when they were discovered, claimed they had nothing interesting on the situation since the last report.

Of the 1176 votes in the state convention, about 50 will come from the range out of the 150 odd that St. Louis county will send, and it is a much mooted question as to just how those votes are going to stand. They are enough to swing a balance of power in a good many instances if they were but held together for the purpose, but it is said they are to be independent.

A Dunn man said yesterday that there might be some concentration of this vote, although it was very uncertain. Time was, he said, when the range vote was the most powerful factor in the St. Louis county sentiment, but since the formation of the United States Steel corporation the different interests are more than ever under one head and are being left alone to do as they please, in politics, at least nominally.

"It seems to be the policy of the corporation," said he, "not to endanger itself by any political entanglements, and I guess one particular reason is that it does not care to get on the wrong side. If it ever did that it would face the unpleasant situation of an officer of the state in a position to do it considerable harm, for the man who might be elected despite the opposition of such a concern as the United States Steel corporation would be very likely to think of getting even at the earliest possible opportunity.

"Take, for instance, the range towns, such as Virginia, Eveleth, Sparta, Chisholm, Biwabik and some others that I might name, and I am quite sure that you will find no concentrated interests in favor of our man or the other, at least not so far as the corporation's influence is concerned, as it is not talking in the matter. But outside the towns and in the really rural parts of the range the company might exert its influence in a quiet way and get a number of votes together. But I feel positive it will not do so in the towns, even if it does outside of them. The conditions, as everyone knows, were different up to three years ago, before the corporation took shape. We had instances where a man might be overwhelmingly victorious in the city and be beaten in the county by the range vote.

"One thing which hurts the politicians in this county is the expense of working it. It is awfully expensive canvassing the county. The traveling expenses, such as railroad fares and hotel bills, go up so fast that when you think you've nothing accomplished you've spent $100 or so, which looks like so much wasted money, as you can find nothing in sight to account for the expenditure. Twenty-five cent cigars even run you up in pocket till you'd think they were about $20 each."

Wednesday next the Republican state central committee will meet in St. Paul and fix the apportionment of delegates to the state convention and decide where that convention shall be held. It has been assumed all along that the delegates will number 1176, based on the McKinley vote of 1900, which same representation was used at the convention of March 17 in this city. To base it on the Van Sant vote two years ago would mean 1045 delegates, but either way is expected to cut no figure with the chances of the candidates, except to make good the old saw, "the more the merrier."

It is expected that the state convention will be timed for as soon as expedient after the national convention in Chicago June 28, and many think that the second week in July will be selected. The Fourth of July is on Monday, and the 5th has been suggested as a good day for beginning the work.

* * *

The place of meeting is decidedly interesting to Duluth, as this city has been anxious to get the convention. In case of it coming here, the location would be considered a move favorable to the Dunn forces, as St. Louis county is more nearly in Dunn's stamping ground than in that of Judge Collins. The fact that the Collins men think the convention will not come here is said by the Dunn people to be the result of a "wish being father to the thought."

The Dunn people say that they have a distinct advantage in fighting for the convention to come here, as St. Paul has no hall that is adequate for holding the convention, and that some of the people interested are tired of holding the meetings in one place so often as has been the case. If the element that wants a change of scene and the Dunn hustlers get together there might be a considerable influence felt toward fixing the convention for Duluth. The argument against holding the convention in this city advanced by the Collins side is that this city is not so near the center of the state and that farmers from the lower part of the state will not care to pay more railroad fare than they have to, besides the fact that the southern part of the state has more private business in the Twin cities to make the neighborhood of those cities a more desirable place to visit.

But the Dunn people say that when the delegates got to a convention they don't go for private business and are willing to go anywhere the committee chooses to name, although it is conceded that the committee will please as many delegates as it can by pleasing itself. The vote of the committee is always assumed to be a likeness of the complexion of the state, reduced from lifesize.

It is needless to say that both sides in the governorship fight continue as confiednt as ever, and neither side concedes the other anything, at least not anything worth having. The Dunn people admit that the Collinites have a strong following in this city among the Scandinavian vote, but claim a good share for themselves, although they admit that it is stronger for them among the Norwegians than among the Swedes. But they say they are working hard and getting results.

So far as the county chairmanship of the Collins end is concerned, a prominent Duluth adherent of the St. Cloud jurist says that the fact that Dr. Eklund has not accepted the chairmanship is no criterion.

"Nobody needs to be worried about our not getting a chairman," said he, 'for we were not so certain of getting Dr. Eklund to accept the position of chairman when we asked him. The doctor is a very busy man, as you know, or at least if you make inquiry you can satisfy yourself on the point. He has a very large practise and one that takes a great deal of time to attend to properly, and it maybe that to accept the chairmanship would involve his professional duties in a way that he could not see his way clear to permit. But we have every assurance that the doctor will give his influence to us in every way that is consistent, whether he accepts the chairmanship or not, and anybody who believes we are not going to get a chairman is very badly mistaken.

"We expect to have our organization completed very soon now and will announce it in plenty of time for the good of our cause. We are pleased with the results in our compaign from day to day and know that the sentiment in favor of our side is growing rapidly. We are confident of carrying St. Louis county, no matter what may be said to the contrary."

Judge Collins will make Duluth a visit next week arriving here the latter part of the week in all probability. He has been intending to make this visit for some time but for one reason or another has postponed it from time to time.

* * *

One criticism of Judge Collins which has stirred up some feeling is of his being a member of the Loyal Legion. The Fairmont Sentinel not long since had an article to the effect that, as the judge belonged to that well-known organization, and said that as a consequence the G. A. R. would hold him in contempt for being an aristocrat. President Macdonald of the State Editorial association, who is editor of the St. Cloud Times, replied in the following editorial:

"The writer is a member of the G. A. R. but not of the Loyal Legion. We are, therefore, in a position to deny or disput the above assertion that members of the Loyal Legion are held in contempt by the G. A. R. rank and file. It is false and absurd. Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Logan, Hancock and other thousands of 'our old commanders' were Loyal Legion members. Were they 'silk stockings?' Most of the membership, including Judge Collins, enlisted as privates and won promotion on the field of battle or by other meritorious service. Nearly if not quite all the Loyal Legion members belong to the G. A. R. In this state such past department commanders as Torrance, Compton, Hicks, Castle, Harries, Mahan and others are Loyal League members, and have been elevated to the highest honors in the G. A. R. Oh, no, the Grand Army of the Republic is proud of the officers who led it, and can only feel 'contempt' for such senseless, outrageous and baseless attacks as the above upon their brave and gallant comrades of the Loyal Legion. The truth is that the Grand Army of the Republic and the Loyal Legion are, like the states of the Union, 'divided as the billows—one as the sea.' To attack one is to assail the other. Surely the service of the Loyal Legion members forty years ago on the battlefields of the nation, should protect them from such vile assaults."

* * *

In teh legislative campaign the week has been quiet as it has in other political directions. tI is said that a well-known business man will be sprung for the legislature in the Forty-ninth district, although his friends are not as yet willing to give his name. It is believed that the gentleman in question is not as anxious to run as his friends are to have him, and is resisting persuasion.

* * *

Hearst may not have such hard sledding in Indiana after all. A Duluth man, who was recently in that state, says that although it is a fact that the New Yorker got no delegates in Marion county, which includes Indianapolis, he will have considerable following throughout the rural districts of the state, where the farmers are largely Democratic, without regard to platform or policy. Bryan's strength in Indiana during the free silver period was emphatic.

* * *

An old Republican campaigner of Duluth asked a reporter the other day if he had ever been in Washington. The reporter said he had not.

"Well, you'd be surprised at the character of many of the men you would meet in congress," said he. "There are intelligent men there, and there are some who are not. This, we may say, is particularly true of the house of representatives, where the mixture of men is more general. I am sure that the average of brains and intelligence there would not by any means exceed that in the legislature, and the public is prone to make fun of the 'hayseed' character of our legislatures on some occasions. There are lots of representatives at the national capital who are just as bad spellers, pronounce words just as badly, have just as bad manners and everything else out of keeping with their position, as you will find in the average state legislature, and I honestly believe that the percentage of brains is no higher. I've had chances to observe the legislative sessions for both the state and the nation and I know what I am talking about."

THE BOOM OF GRAY

For Railroad Commissioner Is Developing Strength.

St. Paul, April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The boom of A. D. Gray of Preston for the Republican nomination for railroad and warehouse commissioner, which two weeks ago appeared to be a very insignificant affair, has developed considerable strength among Twin City Republicans in the last few days. Present indications point to Mr. Gray as the candidate of Southern Minnesota for a place on the railroad and warehouse commission, and it is predicted that the Fillmore county statesman will enter the field in a few days.

Mr. Gray is favored by both the supporters of Judge Loren W. Collins of St. Cloud and Robert C. Dunn of Princeton. He is a Collins man, but the friends of Mr. Dunn have announced that they will not oppose his candidacy and some of them are out for the Fillmore county man. When Mr. Gray's name was first mentioned it was supposed that he would not consider the matter, the general sentiment being that he is a receptive candidate for congress. Close friends of Mr. Gray say, however, that in case he receives the support of the Republicans of the First district, irrespective of their gubernatorial preference, he will consent to make the run. Gray will likewise receive the support of Congressman Tawney's freinds, who are anxious to get him out of the road for congress.

"Although Mr. Gray is a Collins' man I personally favor him for railroad and warehouse commissioner," said an out-of-town Republican yesterday, who is friendly to Robert C. Dunn. "I believe that Gray is the strongest man that the Republicans of the southern part of the state can present. He is really congressional material, but I understand that he is willing to make the run provided he can get the united support of the Republicans of the district."

* * *

Minneapolis Republicans are putting in a claim for the Republican state convention. They maintain that they have the best accommodations of the three large cities. The International auditorium, formerly the exposition building, in which the Republican national convention of 1892 was held, is available, and the Minneapolis Republicans say that it will seat 2000 people comfortably. They point to the fact that the St. Paul auditorium has been torn down and that, if the convention is held in the capitol city, it will have to be held in one of the opera houses, which will prevent the delegates from being all on the main floor. According to the Republicans of the Flour City, Duluth is too far from the center of the state.

William Henry Eustis is steering clear of the attempts of some Hennepin county Republicans to get him into the congressional race against Congressman Lind. He states positively that he will either be a candidate for governor, or will not run for any political office. He says that he is in no hurry about the governship question, and that he may not make an announcement for several weeks.

Mr. Eustis has been urged to get into the congressional race by the Republicans back of the so-called independent movement. The same Republicans tried to induce Lieut Governor Ray W. Jones to enter the gubernatorial fight, but the lieutenant governor said they could count him out of it. The "independent" Republicans want a candidate on whom all the Republicans of the county can unite, irrespective of gubernatorial preference.

* * *

The members of the Republican state central committee who live in the Twin Cities say they have no desire to dictate the appointment of a temporary chairman of the Republican state convention to nominate state officers. Some of them say that inasmuch as there is a close gubernatorial contest on this year, it will be better to leave the appointment of the temporary chairman as well as of the permanent chairman to the convention.

"The statement of some of the Dunn men that the committee is trying to dictate the appointment of a temporary chairman is not true," said a Collins man yesterday. "It is true that the chairman of the committee did appoint the temporary chairman two years ago, but that was because there was no objection to Senator Nelson and because there was really no gubernatorial contest on. This year it is all different. I am satisfied that Robert Jamison, chairman of the state central committee, has no idea of naming the temporary chairman. He is willing to leave the matter to the convention."

V. B. Seward, of Marshall, district delegate to the Republictn national convention, is in St. Paul, and he confirms the report that former Representative M. J. Dowling, of Oliva, has decided to keep out of the congressional race in the Seventh district.

"I am satisfied that Mr. Dowling will not run against Congressman Volstead," said Mr. Seward yesterday. "Congressman Volstead has got the support of a great majority of the Republicans of the district, 65 per cent of whom are Scandinavians. I don't think there is a man in the district that can beat him."

TO VIEW ROUTE.

Commissioners Go to Floodwood In Road Matter.

County Commissioners E. M. Patterson and Ole Berg left this morning for Floodwood, where they will go over the proposed route for a new county road, petitioned for by the settlers in that vicinity, a hearing for which has been set for June.

The road, if constructed, will run from the village of Floodwood, in a northeasterly direction, for about eight miles, and connect with the old Swan Lake road in 51-19.

The Swan Lake road, from the point of the proposed junction, runs along the St. Louis river to Floodwood, but it has been practically abandoned, because it cresses a large number of ravines, and it costs a large amount of money to keep it in proper repair.

The settlers desire the new road which crosses the St. Louis river, at Floodwood, and runs direct east for about three miles before taking the northeasterly direction, paralleling the river. They claim that the proposed route has the advantage in that it is quite level and the road could be built with comparatively little expense. It is also claimed that a road by the proposed route would accomnodate a large number of new settlers.

The May meeting of the board of county commissioners will be held next Thursday, and at that time it is expected that a number of road matters will come up for consideration.

Last year the board expended about $40,00 for the construction of new roads and the maintenance of old roads, and the appropriation for the same purpose this year will be fully as large, if not larger.

SUGGESTS PLAN

City Engineer McGilvray's Scheme to Settle Storm Sewer Trouble.

Would Drain Across Vacant Lots For the Time Being.

City Engineer McGilvray has a plan to relieve the property owners on the southern end of Seventeenth avenue east from the objectionable assessment for a storm sewer, and at the same time give the people on the upper end of the avenue what they desire.

The property on the upper half of the avenue is improved and the street graded. The property owners are anxious to have a storm sewer put in, and have already petitioned for the improvement.

On the lower half of the avenue, however, the street is not graded and the property is unimproved. The property owners, therefore object to the assessment, claiming that the storm sewer would be of little or no benefit to them until the street is graded.

"There is a depression in the ground adjoining the southern end of Seventeenth avenue east," said Mr. McGilvray this morning. "It is something in the nature of a small ravine, and runs across the lots to the lake. I believe the storm sewer could be drained into this, if the property owners would agree to have the surface water drain across their empty lots. This would relieve them of the expense of the construction of a storm sewer and at the same time give the property owners on the upper end of the avenue the improvement they so much desire.

"The arrangement, of course, need only be temporary. The lower half of the avenue will be graded some day, and when it is, the property owners there will want a storm sewer, and it can then be petitioned for and constructed.

"I will lay the plan before the council Monday night, and in the meantime the people out there can be thinking it over, and if they have any serious objections to the plan we shall doubtless hear from them.

"There would be nothing unsanitary in allowing the storm sewer to drain into this depression, and as the property is not yet improved, I believe it would be a good method of allowing the property owners on the lower half of the avenue to rid themselves of an objectionable assessment, and at the same time give those on the upper half the improvement they desire."

ONCE EVERY MONTH.

Naval Reserve Plans For Battalion Drill.

The Minnesota Naval Reserve will hold a battalion drill next Monday night at the armory.

It has been decided to hold a battalion drill once a month during the summer. The battalion drill will fall on one of the regular drill nights of each division in alternate months. Next Monday is the regular drill night of the first division, and the first Thursday in June, which is the date of the next battalion drill, is the regular drill night of the second division.

Visitors are admitted to any of the drills, and there will doubtless be a good crowd to witness the first drill of the two divisions of the reserve, next Monday night.

WANTED AT MINNEAPOLIS

Man of Many Aliases Arrested In Duluth—Jail Breaker.

Martin Connors, alias "Kid" Martin, alias Harry Smith, the Minneapolis jail breaker, was picked up in Duluth by the local police yesterday afternoon, and handed over to Sheriff Dreger of that city.

Connors was being held by the Minneapolis police on the charge of stealing $75 worth of diamonds. He sawed the lock off his cell and with a rope made of clothes from his bed, let himself down from the second story window. He left a note for the sheriff saying he was innocent but feared he would have trouble in convincing the jury of the fact.

Connors is well known by the local police, having been arrested here about three months ago under the vagrancy ordinance. He served thirty days in the county jail.

He will have the charge of jail-breaking to face on his return to the Flour City. It is a serious offense and may mean a term in the Stillwater prison.

Sheriff Dreger has offered a reward of $25 for his capture. This will go to the local police force if Mayor Cullum gives his permission, as no rewards can be accepted without the consent of the city's chief executive.

CHANGE IN STREET CAR TIME

Cars on the West Duluth, East End and Lakeside line will, beginning May 1st, leave the western terminal one minute later and the eastern terminals one minute earlier than at present. This will make the large cars leave Central avenue at '05, '10, '25, etc. past each hour ("on the 5"), and Third avenue west going east "on the 1". Going west they will leave Fourteenth avenue East "on the 1" and Third avenue West "on the 6".

The small cars which are run morning, noon and evening will split the spaces between the large cars, making a five-minute service.

Small cars on the LAKESIDE LINE will leave Lester Park three minutes earlier than at present, taking two minutes additional time between Lester Park and Twenty-third avenue East on account of making all stops in Lakeside.

DULUTH STREET RAILWAY CO.

DIVIDEND WILL BE SMALL.

San Francisco, April 30.—The Examiner says: The failure for $1,700,000 of the fruit-buying and shipping firm of Porter Bros. company about a year ago is recalled by the fact that the California and Eastern creditors have just reluctantly reached the conclusion that with the exception of a few debits protected by good securities, there will not be enough available assets to pay more than between 15 and 18 cents on the dollar.

CURZON SAILS FOR HOME.

Bombay, April 30.—Lord Curzon of Kedelston, viceroy of India, sailed for home today on board the steamer Arabia. He was given a great send-off. The city was decorated and large crowds gathered on the sea front to bid him farewell. The viceroy appeared to be in excellent health.

REGULAR G. N. DIVIDEND.

ALMONT BARNES, late U. S. Consul to Venezuela, S. A.; ex-Chief of Bureau of Statistics, of State Department, now in Bureau of Statistics in Agriculture Department, Washington, D. C., writes:

"Peruna is not only a remedy for catarrhal troubles, but equally as effective for colds and aches arising from the same. IT IS AN EXCELLENT TONIC FOR DEBILITATED SYSTEMS. Many of my friends have used it successfully, and I have no hesitation in giving it my recommendation."—Almont Barnes.

Hazard Wheeler, Lieut. Col. Logan Command, U. V. U., No. 2, Department of the Potomac, in a letter from No. 20 K. St., N. E., Washington, D. C., writes:

"Your preparation of Peruna as a tonic and as a catarrh remedy has been a boon to all those suffering from debility and the various forms of catarrhal diseases. Experience from actual use enables me to give this testimonial of its successful curative qualities."
HAZARD WHEELER.

Chronic catarrh often makes its approach in disguise. Before a person knows it, he may become a victim of chronic catarrh. Its onset may be gradual, its development insidious, but at last the victim finds himself in the clutches of a tenacious disease. A slight cold, a tendency to sneeze, a puffiness in the nose and head, fullness or cracking in the ears, stringy mucous in the throat, slight cough or wheeziness, snoring during sleep; any one of these symptoms should be regarded as a warning.

Peruna is the remedy for catarrh. Almost everybody knows that by hearsay and thousands know it by experience.

Ex-Judge Phil. Lucas, of Missouri, writes from 130 E. Capitol St., Washington, D. C., as follows: "I have tried a bottle of Peruna and am still taking it with the best of results. I regard it as a very powerful tonic and renovator of the system."—Phil. Lucas.

What can be cured in the beginning in a week or two by using Peruna, if allowed to become chronic, may require months of faithful treatment. You had better take Peruna now for by and by you may be obliged to take it for some time in order to get well. Now the balmy weather will assist in your cure. You are not liable to catch fresh cold and delay your cure.

Hon. James M. Morgan, 1730 20th St., Washington, D. C., who is ex-lieutenant U. S. Navy, ex-lieutenant Confederate Navy and ex-Consul General to Australia, writes:

"The use of your Peruna as a remedy or cure for catarrh by many of my friends, who have been benefited by the same, as well as my own experience as to its efficacy and good tonic properties, causes me to recommend it to all persons."—James M. Morgan.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

A GREAT SWEDISH WRITER AND POET

The Life and Work of Esaias Tegner Discussed By Rev. Hyalmar Henrickson—Wrote a National Poem That Inspired New Life In the Nation.

Thursday evening of this week Rev. Hyalmar Henrickson delivered a lecture on the life and work of Esaias Tegner, the great Swedish writer and poet. The occasion was one of much interest to those that love letters and the art of culture.

Esaias Tegner, said the speaker, lived during the first part of the nineteenth century and displayed unusual talent in his youth. He advanced so rapidly as a student that at 20 years of age, he received the grade of "doctor," a great achievement.

As professor at the university of Lund, Sweden, he was loved and esteemed as none of his predecessors As a writer of poetry he became famous not only in Sweden but in the whole of Europe. His works were translated into all the languages of all civilized nations. As an orator he had great ability. Wherever Esaias Tegner appeared to speak or lecture there was rejoicing among the people for he knew the language so perfectly that all could understand him and at the same time his eloquence surpassed any of the other speakers of that time.

ESAIAS TEGNER.

In national matters he took keen interest. During the gloomy days in the beginning of the nineteenth century when Gustavlus Adolphus IV was king of Sweden, Tegner wrote a national poem that inspired new life in the nation. So great was the desire of the people to get this wonderful poem that before there was time to have it printed they paid 3 kronon apiece to have it copied rather than wait.

Esaias Tegner was honored by all, both in higher circles as well as among the common people. His liberal views on all matters gave him a warm place in the hearts of the people. To him is due the grand advancemtn of Swedish culture in the art of literature and his name is held in reverend memory as the grandest of men in the past century.

Rev. Mr. Henricksen's sketch of his life was as follows:

"Esaias Tegner, the most celebrated of Swedish writers, was born Nov. 13th ,1782, at the parish of By in the province of Wermland, Sweden, one of the most beautiful parts of that country. His parents were Esaias Tegner, the vicar, afterwards the rector of Millesvig, and Sara Maria Scidelius, the daughter of Elof Scidellus, the rector of Kila in Wermland. Esaias being the youngest child. When only nine years old his father died and his large family became very poor. A friend of the family, the noble Brantting, then took the young Esias to his home, with a view of making him a bookkeeper.

"He very soon understood that Esaias was an extraordinarily talented boy and too gifted to become a bookkeeper only. For this reason, he, together with a manufacturer by the name of Myhrman gave him the necessary means to enter the university of Lund. He was then only 17 years old, but was already able to read and write the Greek, Latin, English, German and French languges. The professors of the university were astonished at his learning in almost every branch of knowledge. He obtained the degree of Ph. D. in 1802 when he was appointed professor in the Greek language and esthetics. From that time until 1824 he was a regular lecturer at the university of Lund.

"His first piece of poetry that gained popular recognition was a dithyrambic war song for the army in 1808, which stirred every Swedish heart. In 1811 his patriotic poem "Svea," dedicated to 'The Fatherland' won the great praise of the Swedish academy and made him famous all over the country. Between the years 1812 and 1820 he completed a great many short lyric poems of great literary value of which 'Song to the Sun,' 'the May Song,' 'Charles XII,' 'Song to the Stars,' 'The Bard's Morning Psalm,' 'The Three Brothers,' 'Nora,' all of exceeding beauty. In 1820 he gave his country three poems of a more ambitious character. Of these, two, "The Romance of Axel' and the exquisite idyl 'The Children of the Lord's Supper' are among the masterpieces which made Tegner's fame world wide.

"His most celebrated practical work is the epic 'Frithof's Saga.' Even before this was completed Tegner was among the most famous writers of Europe. When completed in 1825, it was translated into German by Amalia von Helvoige, who was requested to make the translation by the aged Goethe, who had been styled 'the king of the poets of Europe.' Afterwards the poem was translated into almost every language in Europe. Up to the present time it has been translated nineteen times into English, eighteen times into German and several times into French.

"The poems made the author exceedingly popular in his own country because the Swedish people imagined they found their own characteristic mirrored and gave the best imaginative expressions of the early life of our Scandinavian ancestors. He was also very popular in Germany. While on a journey in that country he was a guest of the kron prince of Germany in his castle of Sans-Souci.

"In 1824 he was made bishop at Wexio in Smaland. From that time he did not write anything of great importance. His most famous poetical work after his appointment is a poem dedicated to the fiftieth anniversary of the Swedish academy. His duties as a bishop absorbed almost all his time. He was chief inspector of all the educational institutions of his bishopric, president of the chapter and member of the national parliament. As chief inspector of the educational institutions he made himself famous by his excellent speeches to the students, a great many of which was translated into German, English and French.

"Early in 1836 he complained of a 'fiery heat' in the brain and in 1840, during a visit to Stockholm, he suddenly became insane. He was immediately sent to an asylum in Denmark and in 1841, he was cured and able to return to Wexio. In 1843 he had an apoplectic stroke and on the second of November, 1846, he died at Wexio. After his death a great many unfinished poems were found.

"Bishop Tegner was a kind hearted, genial and very witty man and was easily the foremost scholar of his own country and enthusiastic in promoting learning and popular education. His statue at Lund was reared by the Swedish people."

IN COPPER DISTRICT

Great Change In Production of Lake Superior District.

Old Mines Marking Time and Younger Properties Gaining.

Moughton, Mich., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The old order changes, and a critical observer, well acquainted with the past history of Lake Superior copper mining, can note the great change that is now being made in the production of the district. With rare exceptions, the old mines are marking time, or going backwards, while the younger and more vigorous properties are gaining ground. That this should be so is not surprising, for the richest mine has its bottom, but it comes as something of a shock to the old residents, accustomed for a generation or more to consider the great mines as immortal. It should not be inferred, however, from the preceding statement, that the old and large mines of the district are in danger of immediate extinction, or that their management have grown senile. Such fine old mines as the Calumet & Hecla and Quincy will last for another generation at least, and discoveries of parallel cupiliferous beds may prolong their life indefinitely. In the case of the Calumet & Hecla such prolongation, due to the opening of new mines, is reasonably well assured, and the Quincy has several copper-bearing amygdaloids paralleling the great Pewabic lode, on which the mine is developed, although it was originally opened, and worked for some years, in a small way and with indifferent results, on the Quincy amygdaloid. The improvement in methods and machinery has been marked durhg the past decade, and every item of rock manipulation has been materially reduced. For this reason it is possible to mine and mill much lower-grade rock than ever before, and some of the copper-bearing amygdaloid and conglomerate beds, pronounced worthless after exhaustive tests made many years ago, will eventually be worked at a profit. It is this possibility of developing parallel mines that gives hope for the remote future for the great old mines of the district that have reached their apogee.

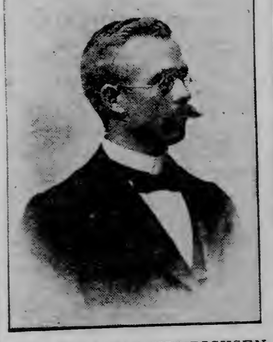

The ore reserves of the Calumet & Hecla are variously estimated at ten to thirty years. The former figure is much too low, as the mine has ground opened ahead of the stoping parties for nearly that length of time, while the higher figure is based upon desires and hopes, rather than on tangible measurements and estimates. By virtue of lower costs in mining and milling, the Calumet & Hecla can now work lower-grade rock than ever before, and the limit has not yet been reached in this regard. The mine, however, has physical limitations, and while its territory west of the Tamarack undoubtedly carries the underlay of the Calumet conglomerate reef, the disappointingly low returns of copper given by all four of the deep vertical shafts sunk on the underlay of the conglomerate, three by the Tamarack and one by the Calumet & Hecla, renders it reasonably certain that at still greater depths the reef would prove still leaner, hence there is little likelihood that the Calumet & Hecla management will ever attempt to sink a 2-mile shaft to reach the conglomerate west of the Tamarack. The objections to such a shaft, which has been given tentative consideration, are many and serious. As to time, not less than ten years would be required for sinking, and a longer period might be needed. The cost of sinking the shaft and equipping it with adequate hoisting machinery, compressors and rock houses, would be not less than $5,000,000, and perhaps nearly twice as much. The heat of the mine openings at a depth of two miles would preclude work, except by the aid of artificial ventilation on a very extensive scale, and it might be necessary to reinforce this by artificial refrigeration. Last, but not least, the conglomerate might be found pinched to unworkable dimensions, or, possibly, cut out entirely, though the latter contingency is a possibility rather than a probability, and the copper contents of the rock would, in all likelihood, be very low.

The percentage of copper secured per ton of rock crushed is steadily decreasing at all of the old mines of the district. This is true of the Calumet & Hecla, Tamarack and Quincy, and the Atlantic is the only old property affording the proverbial exception needed to prove the rule. The Atlantic has always been of notoriously low grade, and its best stopes at the bottom of the mine show small change from those of the upper levels. It is evident, however, in the case of the Atlantic, as of the other extensively developed mines of the district, that the copper makes in courses, or gigantic chutes that extend from surface to great depth, usually running somewhat diagonally to the dip of the copper-bearing bed.

Fortunately for the lake copper district as a whole, mining and milling practice are as advanced here as in any part of the world, and the progress made enables the old mines to offset decreasing richness of rock at depth with greatly increased tonnages and greatly lowered costs per ton in every department of production. Among the important changes of the past decade have been the adoption of much heavier hoisting plants, high-pressure boilers, compound engines, steam economizers, feed-water heaters, automatic stokers, automatic hydraulic ash-discharges, electric underground haulage, improved crushers, heavier stamps, round mortars, hydraulic classifiers and discharges, coarse screens, improved jigs and slime tables and the introduction of several highly efficient forms of patented concentrating tables for the saving of fine copper, formerly lost. nl the smelters the reverberatory furnaces are several times as large as ten years ago. Stirling water-tube boilers are heated by waste gases from the furnaces, dipping and casting are done with the aid of trolley lines, and one man does as much as two did ten years ago, about a smelter. All thees improvements have united to greatly reduce costs, and have saved the day for the old mines of the district, but that have also set a new pace for the developing mines. Twenty-five years ago the experienced men of the district said that $500,000 was needed to properly open and equip a new mine. Ten years ago the figure had been raised to $1,000,000, but the experience of the new mines developed in the district during the past eight years show that this sum was an underestimate. At the present day an average of about $2,000,000 is needed to properly develop and equip an important new mine, allowing an average cost of $500,000 for the lands and promotion. In no other copper-bearing district of the world is the cost of making a mine so great as here, but there has been a proportionate increase in outlay required in all other districts. The principal reason why lake mines are costliest to open and equip is found in the low grade of the rock, which necessitates miles of openings to feed the big mill that is needed to allow the mine to secure a considerable production and earn profits. The cost of opening the mines is usually less in other districts, as the ore is richer and the country rock less refractory as a rule. Timbering is frequently costlier. Power plants are usually much less extensive, and consequently are cheaper, as the lake mines are the deepest in the world. The concentrators of the copper ore mines are far cheaper than the stamp-mills of the lake district. The cost of a lake mill averages about $75,000 per stamp, and a modern three or four-stamp mill, which is the size commonly built for new mines, requires about eighteen months to build, and costs a respectable fortune. In the item on smelting the lake mines have a great advantage over any other district, as the raw charges fed the furnace's average 60 per cent to 80 per cent copper, and the gangue is merely adhering trap, conglomerate or amygdaloid rock, hence the only flux needed in a small charge of limestone. The big smelters and the intricate metallurgical processes common in many copper-bearing fields, are unknown in the Lake Superior fields.

The sole disadvantage of the lake district, as a whole, is the exceeding low grade of its ore. This is a serious matter, and were the district not so firmly entrenched, would prevent its development, with far richer ore abundant at a score of points on the world's surface. The advantages of the district are low labor and fuel costs, the best of rail and water transportation, ample capital, long experience and the best mining and milling equipments found in any mining field.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT.

Work of Geological Survey Practically Finished.

Colorado Springs, Col., April 30.—The work of the United States geological survey in the Cripple Creek district is practically finished, so far as the field part of it is concerned, and the geologists who have had the work in charge will shortly leave for Washington, where the summer months will be devoted to the preparation of the actual report. Of the character of the report, of course, not a line can be had until the official publication is issued, but it is certain that it will contain vast amount of valuable data for the practical mining man and student. On the east the survey includes Cow mountain, where considerable work is now going forward, to the North Copper and Ithyolite mountains, to the West Signal and Rosebud hills, with Grouse and Straub mountains on the south. The references in the reports to these sections should tend to stimulate activity in them. That splendid results will accrue from the intelligent application of mining methods none will doubt who are at all familiar with the highly mineralized character of many of them.

The El Paso Consolidated company is evidently trying to beat the record of the famous Isabella shipment, and is carefully saving ore that comes from a rich streak 250 feet below the surface. All of the ore is being crushed at the mine and sacked, none of it running as high as $50,000 per ton. The record shipment to date for the district is one car sent out by the Isabella company, which returned $219,000. The one now being prepared for shipment by the El Paso company, it is thought, will run about $300,000.

Luck seems to be with the lessee who only ten days ago uncovered a body of bonanza ore on the Missouri property. He has just taken another lease on property adjoining the F. P. H., on Ironclad Hill, and at a depth of only ten feet found ore that assays from $40 to $70 per ton. A shipment is now being saved.

That the drainage tunnel is affecting all the mines in the Western section of the camp is evidenced by the fact that the water has disappeared from the Portland mine, and that company has not been pumping for about two weeks. The sale will soon be true of other mines.

A CONSTABLE KILLED WHILE MAKING ARREST.

Mount Vernon, Ill., April 30.—Albert Wood, a constable, was killed and Curtiss Gregory, a constable, was seriously wounded in a fight in Falrington township with two men alleged to have been William and Robert Howard, brothers, one of whom the officers sought to arrest on a warrant.

Robert Howard is alleged to have made threats against certain persons in this, Jefferson, county, and a peace warrant was procured.

Constable Gregory states that they had arrested Robert Howard and had proceeded a short distance with him in their custody when his brother attacked them. Several posses are in pursuit of the officers' assailants.

EMPRESS EUGENIE'S JEWELS.

The story of the Servian jewe's must recall to the ex-Empress Eugenie her own experiences when the waves that began to dash about her throne, says the St. James Gazette. She determined to sell the greater part of her jewels in hope to do something to save the dynasty. Publicity had to be avoided, and a market was not to be found in Europe, newly thrilled by the horrors of Sedan. The empress looked to the East for a market. An Englishman was on his way home for a holiday. A telegram at Bombay awaited him from one of the greatest European financial houses and informed him of the determination of the empress. The difficulty had been to find a man with sufficient influence to be able to approach the princes of India in secret with a view to selling them the jewels. Not less hard was it to lay hands on the man who had moral strength sufficient to carry with him surreptitiously hundreds of thousands of pounds' worth of jewels in lands where the queen's writ did not run, and where the protection of the constable is not immediately available.

Every care had been taken to insure secrecy. The jewels had been taken to pieces, gems removed from their settings; the latter "jointed" to admit of their folding and being worn around the waist of their bearer in a belt of soft leather. The Englishman put on the belt, armed himself with a trusty revolver, engaged a trusty servant, and set forth on his mission. For three months he wandered over road, rail and river. The responsibility of his trust, the constant danger of discovery, the difficulty of disposing of his burden were worries that combined almost to kill him. At last he was successful. The jewels were sold to a prince who esteemed them the more for that they were the property of a distressed empress. There would have been trouble, no doubt, had the matter been known at the India office, but the man who discharged the undertaking afforded an excellent example of courage and solid worth in trying conditions.

You have read our oft-repeated statement, "In use for over 30 years." It was in the early sixties that Dr. Pitcher first made use of the prescription now universally known as Castoria. With a record of over fifty, under five years of age, out of every hundred deaths, it was the AMBITION OF EVERY PHYSICIAN to discover a remedy suitable for the ailments of infants and children that would decrease this distressing mortality. In Castoria that relief has been found.

Let us take the statistics covering the deaths in the City of New York for the past 30 years, and here we find the benificent effect of a combination of drugs excluding opiates and narcotics so long sought for, namely: CASTORIA.

Of the total number of deaths in New York City in 1870, 50 per cent. were under five years of age; in 1880, 46 per cent.; in 1890, 40 per cent.; in 1900, 35 per cent. only. Just stop to think of it.

Until 1897 no counterfeits or imitations of Castoria appeared on drug store shelves, but since that date Mr. Fletcher has been called upon to suppress a number of these frauds. While the record for 1900 does not come down to our expectation it is owing to the carelessness of mothers when buying Castoria. The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is the only safeguard, and he alone is authorized to use the doctor's name.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Chicago Record-Herald: Young John D. recently said to his Bible class: "A man who is proud and puffed up is sure to fail." True. And a man who climbs too high on a slender pole is likely to break it off and run it into himself.

Cleveland Leader: Why should not missionaries to auriferous regions follow more fully the example of Alaska brethren who have taken up valuable claims in behalf of the churches that sent them out and sustain them? Setting aside to uses of morality and evangelization a portion of the good Providence provides seems a very practical propaganda.

Springfield Republican: Bishop Potter, ordaining a priest in a New York Episcopal church Sunday, dwelt upon service to humanity as an essential and told how, visiting an Italian family in a tenement house, he found between pictures of the Virgin Mary and the crucifix on a portrait of Col. George E. Waring. He asked the woman whom he was visiting if she prayed to Waring. "No," she replied, but every time I pray to God I thank him for the man who made the streets clean and safe for my children." And Waring could have wished for no sweeter remembrance for his life, which was given for just such service in Havana.

Only the actions of the just Smell sweet and blossom in the dust.

New York Times: "Never provoke your congregation to laughter and keep your names out of the newspapers," was the advice given by President Little of the Maryland Methodist Protestant conference to the young ministers who were ordained that day. Continuing, the president said: "Don't advertise yourself and your sermons by talking up commonplace subjects. Don't go on vacations. There are some ministers who never deserve any vacation. Don't be housekeeper and preacher at the same time. Don't try to imitate any one. Be yourself and yourself only. Don't think it will help you to let people know that you have made great sacrifices to enter the ministry. Don't try to get an article for a price cheaper than is asked for it. Be manly. Don't always be looking for your salary. Don't borrow money under the statement that the stewards are lax in their work. If you run up bills and borrow money and impress upon the people you are serving that you need the money, they will soon begin to believe that you are working for the salary and not for the upbuilding of the Lord's kingdom."

WOULD REDUCE EXPRESS RATE

Texas Authorities Hard After Wells-Fargo Company.

San Francisco, April 30.—More books of Wells-Fargo & Company have been inspected and more of its officials examined by the Texas authorities, in the suit brought by that state, to put into effect, the new railroad commission tariff reducing the rates of express companies between 9 and 10 per cent. In the course of cross-examination the fact was developed that Wells-Fargo & Company in 1903 made a deal with the Southern Pacific railroad by which it got a renewal for thirteen years of the exclusive express privilege on the Southern Pacific lines. For this privilege the express company paid the railroad a bonus of three million dollars, including $750,000 of express company stock and agreed to give it forty per cent of its annual gross earnings. The Texas officials are probing deeply into the company's statement of its expenses in Texas and also into the volume of its receipts in order to show that the company can afford to have its tariff reduced as proposed by the railroad commission.

During the year 1903 40,659 Irishmen emigrated, of which number the United States received 33,501.

WOMAN AND THE LAW.

"Tomorrow," said the lawyer, according to the Brooklyn Eagle, "I will have to begin the cross-examination of the fair plaintiff."

His face showed that he was troubled. "It will have to be carefully planned and executed," he added, after a pause.

"What will?" inquired the unsophisticated youth.

"Why, I have arranged to have a clever party sit beside her and abstract her handkerchief just before she takes the stand for cross-examination," explained the lawyer.

"To what purpose?"

"Evidently," said the lawyer, "you are even more inexperienced than I supposed. I can see that she is one of the kind that has no difficulty in crying when she wants to."

"Well?"

"Well, do you not know that all the astuteness of the legal profession is not worth one tear in the eye of a pretty woman, in a jury trial?"

"But the handkerchief?"

"No woman can cry effectively on the witness stand without an embroidered handkerchief. Lacking that, it is no more than sniveling, and the woman who snivels is lost. With the handkerchief she can beat me; without it, she is at my mercy. As the poet truly says, 'In hoc handkerchief vinces!' The verdict in this case is likely to rest on the temporary possession of a bit of linen and lace. When she finds it gone she will be too rattled to even think clearly."

"I begin to see," remarked the unsophisticated one, "that there is more than law to the law."

"In such a case," was the reply, "the law is the least part of it."

A CONFUSION OF TERMS.

Horace T. Eastman, the inventor of the locomotive pilot, said the other day:

"This morning I was sitting in an Anna drug store, waiting to get a prescription filled, when a young Irishman entered.

"The Irishman pointed to a stack of green Castile soap and said:

"'I want a jump of that.'

"'Very well, sir,' said the clerk. 'Will you have it scented or unscented?'

"'I'll take it with me,' said the Irishman."

IN TRAINING.

He stood out on a vacant lot and the boys were throwing tin cans, decayed oranges and various other unsavory things at him, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

"I should think that he would have them arrested," remarked the stranger.

"Not for the world," replied the native.

"It certainly is enough to make a man want to fight," asserted the stranger.

"But he pays them to do it."

"Pays them!"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"Well, he says he is going into municipal politics and he wants to get accustomed to being a target."

THE WORLD'S GREATEST FAIR.

This is a great and glorious day for the city of St. Louis, for the American nation and for the world. For today the doors are thrown open and the wheels set in motion of the greatest exposition of the arts, sciences and industries that, so far as history records, the old earth has ever known. This exposition marks a momentous epoch in the history of America, an era of exceptional progress in all that makes for enlightenment and education, a period of wonderful development in science and invention, the passing of a generation which has developed both artists and artisans whose superiors were never born.

It is a pleasing thing and a satisfying thing to contemplate a World's fair of such magnificent proportions and with such completeness of detail. It cannot fail to have a beneficent effect not only upon our own country, but upon the world at large, and not only will it result in a material benefit, but in the uplifting and advancement of the human race. It is a glorious thing for the peoples of all the world that achievement in the science of transportation has brought them closer together, for it is only necessary that members of distinct races commune with one another to learn that all possess common aspirations and that in reality all are brothers striving toward the same end, although it may be in different manner.

No great exposition of modern times was more complete than this one. The exhibits are all in place—the building work completed. The grounds are beautiful beyond compare, and because of the milder climate of Missouri, the foliage, trees, shrubs and flowers are all contributing their perfect beauty to the charming scene that greets the eye of the early visitor.

It is to be hoped that this fair will be a grand success. It is everybody's duty to attend it who can. There is no surer means of a liberal education and no better method of expanding the human mind.

WHERE LIES THE BLAME?

A writer whose effusion appears in the Cloquet Independent, probably a pedagogue, takes a Duluth contemporary severely to task for criticising the work of public schools in arithmetic and at the same time making a grievous error itself. His comments are caustic and drastic. In closing the Cloquet writer says:

"Let any one visit the schools. Let these men go and see what is done painstakingly, vigilantly day by day, by the intelligent and conscientious teachers, and we will guarantee they will be ready to back down and recall much of the hard and caustic words. The system of our public schools, anywhere and everywhere, is better than it was. The teaching is more systematic and thorough. Much of that which this man and other men like him attribute to the schools is due to something else. The fault, and likely there is fault enough, is due elsewhere and to other things. Study is not so much the object of child life as it ought to be. The home of today does not fix and cultivate this object. There is too much amusement to distract the mind and attract the eye. Too many other things are going on in the street, in the postoffice, in the library, in the theater and its matinees, in the social and club life of the children and parents for the children to be studious and retentive of memory. Our day has too much of the razzle-dazzle (and unfortunately it is in college and university as elsewhere) for the mass of children to do as well as we might otherwise expect. Even those who assume to guide public opinion like this writer, are not exemplary mathematicians or always of sound mind and fair reasoners. Don't blame the schools."

While the article appearing in the Duluth paper was legitimately a matter for good natured criticism, it should be remembered that in a daily newspaper office many unintentional errors are liable to occur. It was evident that the figures in the article in question had been clipped from some other publication and run without any attempt at verification Whether the fault lay with the writer of the original article or with the proofreader, lynotype operator or galley boy, it is plainly evident that it was not because of a lack of ability in mathematics that the error was made. A writer who did not know how to figure the problem correctly would not be likely to make himself ridiculous in that manner if he was sane.

It should be remembered, too, that if nobody is entitled to criticise until he is perfect himself, then there could be no criticism, because perfection is impossible. Some minor typographical errors and some extravagance of statement can be detected in this critic's article. For instance when he says "the system of our public schools, anywhere and everywhere, is better than it was," he makes a statement that manifestly it would be impossible for him to verify of his own knowledge unless he is possessed of superhuman powers.

But this Cloquet critic admits that there is something wrong, and perhaps there is much truth in his charge that at least some of the fault lies elsewhere than in the public schools. Possibly the public has not learned to place the blame where it properly belongs. Perhaps parents have depended too much upon the schools and have been negligent in their own duty. It is easy to criticise. But much depends upon the point of view and deductions from personal experience. It is evident, however, that pupils leaving the graded schools are not as well grounded in the essentials of education as were the pupils of like age before the systems at present employed in the graded schools were adopted. It is natural that people should criticise the schools on this account. Much of this criticism may be unjust, for reasons pointed out by the Cloquet writer. His views are entitled to consideration. But it is barely possible that he is discussing the question from the view point of the teacher, and it is a human failing to endeavor to place the blame for a fault upon other shoulders. If he is a teacher, he admits that there is a failing somewhere. For that much the public should be thankful. He is at least agreed with general sentiment in that respect.

THE ANARCHY OF GREED.

Free speech and a free press are priceless blessings, but one sometimes wishes there were some sort of a statute interdicting the doctrine of international murder. There is no less anarchy in the individual who will advocate the murder of one nation by another, on the ground of necessity, duty and public good, than there is in the man who advocates the assassination of the heads of established governments on the ground that this is a necessity for the people's welfare and a duty the anarchist owes society.

These observations are a result of reading an article in the Philadelphia Post under the title "Unruly Santo Domingo," written by one Frederic Courtland Penfield, former United States diplomatic agent and consul-general to Egypt. No doubt he received much of his inspiration for this article from his observation of the beneficent rule of Great Britain in Egypt, which amounts to a practical enslavement of the natives there, as in India, for the sole benefit of England's monied aristocracy.

Many of the arguments, or assertions, made by this blatant advocate of international anarchy were frequently heard in the case of Cuba before that island was released from Spanish rule, but there, an old-world power was interfering with an American nation while in Santo Domingo the people already enjoy their right of governing themselves as best they may, and there is no occasion for American interference with any government where the people rule.

This writer, however, goes further than anybody ever dared to go before and in answer to the reasonable question of the peaceably-disposed and honest people of the United States, "Why meddle with affairs superficially not our own?" he says:

"Our cherished Monroe doctrine makes us responsible to the world for upholding the case of peace in this hemisphere, doing what we can toward repressing the impulse of hot-blooded neighbors for perpetual rioting—'policing the Caribbean,' precise writers may call it. This is the political reason why Uncle Sam must look after the half-breed Dominican. The more compelling and broader reason is that of civilization. When a neighbor's habit of life becomes intolerable, benevolent Uncle Sam must lay aside personal affairs and do some energetic reforming."

That this is an unqualified falsehood evidently makes no difference to your advocate of world policing. No evidence has ever been shown or ever can be shown that President Monroe even contemplated, when he promulgated his famous doctrine, that it would be the duty or the right of Uncle Sam to exercise police powers in any part of America outside of his own domains. If there is anywhere prevailing such an understanding of the Monroe doctrine it is because of a protuberance or wart that has grown upon that doctrine—a foul thing entirely foreign to its true character.

President Monroe was perhaps America's greatest expansionist, but he never sought nor contemplated the acquirement of territory either by criminal conquest or the subterfuge of "destiny and duty." When he promulgated the doctrine that bears his name it was because he denied the right of old-world powers to interfere with American governments, because an injury to one was the concern of all and if we permitted other American governments to be interfered with by European power, our own national existence would be endangered. The occasion of proclaiming this doctrine was the rumored intervention of the Holy Alliance to aid Spain in the reconquest of her American colonies. Monroe therefore declared that "we would not view any intervention for the purpose of oppressing them, or controlling in any manner their destiny, by any European power, in any other light than as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition towards the United States." That is all there was to it. Nothing more. The chief concern was our own national existence.

Writer Penfield makes the usual charges against Santo Domingo: "The people are half-breeds." "They are incapable of self-government." "They have insurrections." "They are always fighting among themselves." "There is no responsible government." He admits, however, that Morales, the present executive, has succeeded in punishing those responsible for the death of an American seaman, and that his rule is "the nearest approach to peace that the republic has had for a long time." He is grateful to Morales for this because if he "can check turmoils for a few months he will be rendering Uncle Sam a decided service." Why? Well, the entire insincerity of this anarchistic fulmination is shown in the fact that the writer is willing that Uncle Sam shall wait until after the national election so that the success of the Republican party will not be endangered. Therefore if Morales can keep the peace for a while he will be doing "us" a service. Think of that! How great and good we have grown that we assume to ourselves the right to regulate the conduct of other republics!

But if, as pictured by this writer, there is such a terrible condition of affairs down in that benighted island that it is our duty to interfere in behalf of humanity, why wait until after election? Why not interfere now, while these horrible things are occurring, and not wait until some revolutionist may have established peaceful conditions?

Let us quote a few more words from Mr. Penfield's article and we think the reader will agree that we have discovered the reason that he is quite willing to wait. He says: "Besides, the wretched country owes England, France, Germany, Holland and Belgium in the neighborhood of $25,000,000, most of which, both principal and interest, is in wonton default. A pocketbook consideration nowadays is a menace to international harmony."

Ah, there it is. Humanity—faugh! Money—the pocketbook. There is the secret. Uncle Sam must undertake to guarantee the payment of funds lent Santo Domingo by the money changers of the old world. If the people control the government the office-holders get the revenue. If Uncle Sam steps in and captures the custom houses, the bloodsuckers of Europe get their pound of flesh.

If the Hon. Frederic Courtland Penfield, Esq., advocate of international murder, etc., is not in the paid service of some of these money-lending sharks, then The Herald misses its guess.

WHY THIS JOY?

If further evidence were needed that the managers of the Republican party, including President Roosevelt, had made their peace with the trusts, the following extract from the New York Sun, one of the leading exponents and advocates of trust rule, would furnish it. The Sun says:

"All those politicians who are in doubt whether or not the Western Republican leaders intend to throw overboard, very soon, the anti-trust bogey, as eight years ago they threw over the anti-gold-dollar bogey, should read the speech of Mr. Dolliver in the senate last week. No Republican can point to an atom of benefit to the public welfare wrought by the anti-trust bogey, any more than by the silver dollar infatuation from 1876 to 1896. When the Republican leaders turn their backs on trust-busting the merry prosperity which began and ended with McKinley may come bounding back to us."

But it might be asked, in all fairness, if the anti-trust movement within the Republican party was only a bogey, which all well-informed persons will admit, how could it ruin the merry prosperity that began with McKinley? Are the trusts, upon whose beneficent rule, according to the Sun, our national prosperity depends, composed of such weak-kneed individuals that they can be scared by a phantom? Or does the Sun rejoice solely because it thinks the people have become converted to its way of thinking and will henceforth be content to let the trusts do with the government what they will?

If the latter is its conclusion and the cause of its joy then there is reason to believe that it is woefully mistaken and that the Republican party still has need for the services of many spell-binders to fool Republican voters with the idea that the grand old organization is still opposed to the predatory trust.

Furthermore it would be interesting to know, if the Sun could tell us, whether the passing of McKinley and the determination of the public not to dally longer with watered stocks were simply events coincident or whether the latter was a result of the first?

THE FIELD SURVEY

It did not require a navy to take the Philippines from an unwilling people, nor to take Porto Rico from a willing populace. If the United States had no navy at all, would any of the so-called "world powers" undertake to deprive us of those islands? We wot not.

Many good people who went to hear William J. Bryan last night, and went there skeptical of the man and his opinions, came away convinced of his entire sincerity, consistency and honesty. There is nothing like personal contact to impress many people, although the competent student of literature, who has faithfully read the writings and speeches of Mr. Bryan since he has been before the public, could discover in the man sincerity and honesty without ever having set eyes upon him. That he has misjudged the popular desire is his political misfortune, perhaps, but not a fault, and there is reason to believe that he will finally go into history as a greater and abler man than many who have filled the presidential chair.

Yes, the Republican party is the one that "does things," but on the principle of David Harum: "Do others as they would do you, but do 'em fust."

TALKS WITH THE STATE PRESS.

Bourke Cockran gave a Republican congressman a rich brown roast Saturday, for insinuating that Bourke supported McKinley for a financial consideration. The fact is that there were thousands of Democrats all over the country who supported McKinley because they would not stultify themselves by voting for Bryan and a dishonest financial policy. They were actuated by patriotic motives, and it comes with mighty poor grace for Republicans now to attempt to cast reflections on their motives.

Will the St. Cloud Journal Press, from which the above was taken, now kindly inform an anxious public what kind of motives actuated Mr. Cockran, when in 1900 he worked in favor of Bryan and the same "dishonest" financial policy?

* * *

Old Chief Bemidji was a great Indian, and when he died much reverence and respect was paid to his memory. If he had been a white man he would have made his mark. At least some would have noticed his attempt at doing so.

This from the Princeton Union suggests the thought that if the so-called Anglo-Saxon, who appears so anxious to assume the burden of civilizing other races, would grant them better opportunities after the process of civilization is completed, he would be in a better position to justify his conduct in the eyes of the world.

* * *

Be it Collins, Eddy or Dunn, the Republican newspapers will all be in line for the nominee, and the majority will be a paralizer.

This from the Anoka Union is an indication that Brother Pease is beginning to hedge a little.

* * *

It seems to depend upon the point of view whether or not those Dunn cartoons are works of art. Some editors appear to like them very much. Others say they are crude and amateurish.

* * *

The man who makes "shavings" for the Princetoi Union whittled off this one the other day: "Affectation has murdered more than one affection."

* * *

Bemidji is discussing the matter of municipal ownership of the water and light plants, and the Sentinel, which favors the project, says:

There is a splendid power within available distance and sooner or later it will be utilized. Hitch a dynamo to a tandem of turbines on the Mississippi river, put up a line for the transmission of that current for five or six miles, and you can run your pumps, and light your streets and residences at a great saving.

HOTEL GOSSIP

"Duluth has less population than I thought it had," said W. F. Cody, a New York traveling man at the Spalding, the other morning as he busied himself taking samples out of a trunk and placed them around the sample room in attractive array. In this case the sample room referred was not a bar room, but the kind of sample room that drummers use in the display of their wares.

"I always thought the Zenith City had more people than it has, "continued the speaker, "and you ought not to take any offense at that because it is a compliment to you rather than otherwise. This is my first visit to your city and as I had heard so much about Duluth I got way off the true scale when the matter of population was in mind. I thought the town had at least 250,000, but as I get it here, you have about 70,000. It seems to me that's another strong argument in your favor, because if you've got less than 100,000 people and make enough noise for two or three times that many, you're evidently of some importance. Any town that can create an impression in people's minds like that without trying must be all right. I haven't sold any goods here yet, but I'll bet a dollar, if appearances go for anything I'll sell a whole lot before I'm through."

"We have on the books here the name of a representative of a very well known eastern firm that deals in silverware," said the Spalding clerk to the scribbler. "You may not infer anything from this, but I have been led to wonder whether there is going to be a concentration of the silver forces in Duluth. for Bryan was here yesterday. There may be nothing in it more than coincidence, but the guest we have is from the East and Bryan is from the West, and it looks a little as if there was a merger of interests likely.

"Another coincidence that you smart reporters seem to have overlooked and that's about Florence Stone and Blanche Walsh, who is going to play here at the Lyceum tonight. She's going to give 'Resurrection' and the last time it was given here Florence Stone was the star. If Miss Walsh stops with us it will be another coincidence, for Miss Stone has been here for some time, so it would make them both guests at the same time.

"But that's not all. While the Walsh company was following the Stone company around the country in the 'Resurrection' it was highly interesting for they made the same towns right along, and the Stone company's production gave its last appearance here and the Walsa company will do the same.

"But, don't go away. I've something more to tell you about it. That's not all. Both Miss Stone and Miss Walsh played in 'Cleopatra' and a good deal of the time they played in the same towns. But they did not play them at the same time. Why? Because they could not both play the part at the same time under the same man, for the part is not a twin part and they were both in the support of Melbourne McDowell in that show. I don't claim to know anything about the theatrical business but it does seem to me the only thing left for them is to join forces under the same management."

C. C. Haupt, of Fergus Falls, United States district attorney for the state of Minnesota, and his assistant J. M. Dickey, of St. Paul, are at the St. Louis. Another United States government officer at the same hotel is Captain J. W. Lawrence, who has been up on the range looking after some counterfeit cases the government has been pushing at Hibbing.

W. E. Neal, a well known vessel operator at Grand Rapids, is at the St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Campbell, of Calumet, are at the Spalding.

H. Johnson and F. N. Okistron, of Port Wing were at the St. Louis last night. Mr. Johnson is interested in developing the manufacture of Swedish iron.

* * *

One day last week a man who is said to be connected with one of the theatrical companies which was playing in this vicinity came pretty near getting into trouble in one of the hotels. He got into a chat in the lobby with a couple of men and the conversation ran from one thing to another until a game of cards was suggested. The idea seemed to strike all with equal favor and arrangements were made to have the game. When it started the buck ran the theatrical man's way until there was suspicion, and he was shown up as a cheat. He made good by a distribution of the winnings which satisfied the others so they agreed not to prosecute. One of the men was a traveling salesman for a rug house.

SLANDERING BRYAN.

Houston Post: The Chicago Chronicle persists in its prophecy that both Bryan and Hearst will bolt the action of the St. Louis convention, without giving its authority for the statement.

Knowing the hatred which the Chronicle has manifested toward Mr. Bryan in the past the Post insists on believing the Chronicle's malevolence rather than its information on the subject inspires the prophecy. To attribute to Bryan downright treachery, of which the Chronicle was such a shining exemplar in 1896 and in 1900, seems to us an exhibition of surpassing wickedness on the part of our Chicago contemporary.

Mr. Bryan has frequently recalled with great bitterness the infidelity of men who claimed to be Democrats, but who either supported Palmer and Buckner or walked into the ranks of the Republican party. He had cause for bitterness, for if these recalcitrants had followed the example of Judge Parker and abided by the will of the majority of Democrats, Mr. Bryan would be president of the United States today and the country would have escaped many evils which appear now to be permanently rooted in the government.

The country would not now be burdened down with distant insular dependencies which can never become integral portions of the republic, probably the war with Spain would have been averted. There would have been no executive usurpation of the functions of congress and the judiciary. Honesty would have pervaded all braches of the federal government and insolent negro officialism and social equality doctrines would not have been forced upon the Southern states.

The Democrats who bolted in 1896 and in 1900 are utterly opposed to the strange doctrines and maladministration which they helped to saddle upon the country. In saving the nation from what they deemed the dangers of free silver, they helped to inflict upon the people measures and men that are infinitely more dangerous to free government than free coinage of silver would have been, even admitting for the sake of argument that bimetallism would have brought all the disasters they feared.

But the silver issue is now a matter of the past. The perils of Rooseveltism are living realities, and we must get rid of them. Every Democrat in the country realizes this. Mr. Bryan can not be an exception. The men who nominated and supported Mr. Bryan are the men who are moving against the intrenched enemies of constitutional government, and the Democratic army is being recruited from all classes of citizens who sympathize with the great purposes of the party.

And does the Chronicle mean to say that Mr. Bryan will not co-operate with the party which has twice honored him?

We flatly refuse to entertain the thought that Mr. Bryan would under any circumstances turn his back on the party. Such a course would mean his everlasting ruin. How could he be guilty of an act which he has so eloquently and persistently denounced in others?

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Argonaut: "I hired ten chorus girls in five minutes, this morning," remarked Julian Mitchell, who wanted to show how busy he had been.

"Geewhillikins!" exclaimed Jack Flaherty, manager of the Majestic theater, "you are quick at figures."

Chicago Chronicle: Mamma (teaching Dorothy the alphabet)—Now think hard, dearie, what comes after t?

Dorothy—After tea, papa usually kisses the waitress, and she screams.

Lippincott's: Brother Jones was noted for his long and laborious prayers, and although the good people of the church respected him, they were not at all pleased to hear him pray in the meeting. The new minister was not aware of Brother Jones' unpopularity as a "prayer," so he had no idea why such a ripple of amusement passed over the congregation when, after a hymn had been sung, he said, "Brother Jones will lead us in prayer," and in a fervent tone added, "and may God help us."

Chicago News: Tailor—Do you want padded shoulders, my little man?

Willie—Naw; pad de pants! Dat's where I need it most.

Lippincott's: Frances had been brought up in a strict Presbyterian household, and in all her nine years had never attended services in a church of another denomination.

While on a visit with her mother to a part of the country far from her own home she entered the parlor one Saturday afternoon and eagerly asked:

"Oh, mamma, may I go to the Episcopal church with Gertie tomorrow? I'll promise not to believe a single word the minister says!"

Catholic Standard and Times: "I hope, Johnny," said the visitor, "that I haven't disturbed your Pa and Ma at dinner."

"No," replied Johnny, "we was just goin' to sit down, but Pa seen you from the window, an' he told Ma not to have dinner till you went."

We fain would walk about with Spring,
Impatient to begin it;
Like other fair ones sweet, she calls:
"I'm ready in a minute!"

We fret and fuss, and watch the clock.
The minutes larger looming;
Spring dons a robe of tender green.
A dash of faint perfuming.

And when at last she comes to us,
So fair do we behold her;
So radiant and beautiful,
We have no heart to scold her.

—Puck.

SUNDAY BASEBALL.

Moose Lake Star: The editor of The Duluth Evening Herald, in a recent editorial commenting on the action of certain citizens of Duluth in seeking to have Sunday baseball in Duluth stopped by the police, reaches the conclusion that the playing of baseball on Sunday is not necessarily immoral. Our own opinion is that, where baseball or other healthful recreations are carried on in a decent manner, so that the peace or quiet of a community is not disturbed, Sunday participation in baseball, fishing, boating, or other wholesome sport ought not to be interefered with, for the reason that such recreations on Sunday are not immoral nor even irreligious.

The objection is made that Sunday indulgence in baseball or sports of a similar character is unlawful. Technically, it may be true. There may be doubts in minds of some if the law is constitutional, but granting the validity of the law, we must admit that it is seldom enforced and has no excuse for existence when contrary, as we believe it to be, to the wishes of the majority of the people.

Recreation the people must and will have, and Sunday is the only opportunity for most of us.

Who Is the Man That Helps a Town?

Cambridge Press: Is it the one who finds fault with the town, criticises the judgment of a large majority of the people fairly expressed, insists that he knows it all, and that the ones who hold opposite views, although their views are endorsed by a large majority of the community in which they live are absolutely wrong; says if such a measure carries, or if such a measure don't carry he is not going to invest more money in town; or is it the one who gracefully bows to the will of the people, quits finding fault, invests his money in business and improvements and stands by his town? One thing that prompts us to ask this question is that, it has seemed to us that some people think the harder they can kick against a town, and that some other people here think it is only kickers against your town, that amount to anything.

Might Have Discriminated.

Detroit Tribune: Of course battleships may be as good, but Senator Hoar might have discriminated between the Petropavlovsk and the Oregon.

That Would Be Delightful.

Baltimore Sun: Unless a halt is called the time is not far off when this country will set up to be a great military power, with the president a "war lord" and each taxpayer carrying a soldier on his back.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

On Allowing For Contingencies

As you look back over the vanished week, how many things have happened in it which you did not foresee last Saturday night. It may be that the entire course of your life has been altered by some sudden event. Possibly you have been plunged into gloom, or maybe some great vista of happiness has opened before you. Life is an altogether different affair from what it was a week ago.

It is the unexpected that is always happening, and the sensible man governs his life accordingly. Take the simple matter of catching a train. You know that if all goes well you can do it in half an hour from your front door. But the forehanded man leaves himself a little margin of time. A friend may detain him en route or there may be some break in the highway or some blockade of the cars. Or look at the subject from the point of view of family or personal expenditures. You know that your income will suffice for the necessaries and now and then a luxury. But how about the rainy day which may set in three months hence, or how about sending the children away to school before long? Perhaps you will be in duty bound to assume the care of some dependent relative. At all events, won't you be better prepared for emergencies if you plan to have a little leeway between income and outgo, remembering Mr. Micawber's famous adage, "Income 20 pounds, expenditures 19 pounds 10 shillings, result happiness; income 20 pounds, expenditures 20 pounds 10 shillings, result misery."

It is well to make allowance, too, for contingencies in the nature of tests of character. You may think you have your temper and your tongue pretty well under control for the ordinary strains, but who knows whether before this coming week is half over some especially irritating circumstance will arouse a slumbering demon within you, and before you know it you will have said or done something which you will regret the rest of your life? After all, the real test of a man's virtue is the way he will behave when he is taken unawares. Are you laying up some reserves against the day, so that the unexpected trial or temptation shall not destroy or impair your manhood?

Sooner or later most of us have to be temporarily set one side, letting the big world go on with its work without us for a while. Periods of invalidism are great crosses for persons of an active disposition, and yet some men have risen up from sick beds grateful for the providence which sent them there, and for the lessons learned. What are you going to think about if you happen to break your leg and have to lie on a couch for weeks, or if some sharp sickness involves a long season of convalescence? Are you going to chafe or are you going to be a gentleman and a Christian and make it comparatively easy for those who minister to you to stay near you?

Old age is a contingency for which we ought to prepare, nay, look forward eagerly to as the period when our judgment may be ripest, our sympathies with our fellowmen keenest, our influence in the world most potent and beneficial! One needs something besides a good-sized bank account when he passes the 70th milestone. Life thereafter is going to be pretty tame if one cares for nothing beside the almighty dollar.

And how about the thing to which at last old age itself yields? Is not the future life a contingency for which it is high time to begin preparation? "Ah," you say, "it is all hazy with doubt." Well, then, treat it as a contingency, but let the mere possibility of it purify and ennoble your daily living. Suppose that some day you wake up and find yourself in a strange new environment, in the midst of opportunities for ampler, richer life than you have ever enjoyed here upon the earth. Suppose that you find yourself in the presence of a great searcher of human hearts, to whom you will have to render strict account of what you have done with your time and your talents. Would you endure the tender yet searching scrutiny of such a judge? Would you take your place with the upright and valiant of all the ages? Would you go on into the vast reaches of the future, ever learning more about yourself, the universe and God? The only way to be ready for such a contingency is to heed the solemn admonition of the Master of men who, when on earth, bade each of his followers to lay up for himself treasures in heaven.

THE PARSON.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Minneapolis Times: If anybody imagines that loyalty to the government of the United States is first in the hearts of the Mormons of Utah, he has not read much of the testimony in the Smoot case.

Anoka Union: Tariff revision must come. The people are getting sick and sore in protecting industries, which are bleeding them at every turn.

St. Paul Globe: The Daughters of the Revolution will find themselves the mothers of a revolution if they try to carry out their plans for a noiseless Fourth.

Princeton Union: Did you read that heart-rending story sent down from Fargo the other day about the poor North Dakota homesteader near Portal, who drove about for two whole days with the dead body of his wife, and because of high water in the streams could not reach an undertaker? The husband and wife were occupying a little shanty away out on the almost trackless wilderness far from civilization and the woman took sick and died. There was enough of life's bitterness in this fact alone, but human grief must have reached the dark chasm of despair, when the awful whispers of the solitude said "No" to the appeal and longing of the man for the opportunity of giving his wife a Christian burial. Fate pointed its finger at him and bade him go bury his wife alone, and he did. Some people know what sorrow is, and some—well, we just think we do.

Anoka Union: Hearst Parkerized the Democratic party and the judge is likely to be nominated.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A girl is never too thin to dress as if she weren't.

A woman can stand reflections on her honor, and even her beauty, much better than on her clothes.

A woman gets very disappointed in a husband she doesn't think some other woman is trying to steal away from her.

When a mother is proud of the cake her daughter can make, the daughter is not likely to be proud of the bread her mother makes.

It's funny, but the same dress that a woman tells her husband cost $50 less than it did she tells everybody else cost $50 more than it did.

The Reason For Delay.

Chicago Chronicle: The Smoot investigation, which is not an investigation of Smoot, may drag along several weary months, but there will be no Smoot verdict to incite vengeance in Utah until the electoral vote of the polygamous state has been again recorded for the presidential nominee of the party in power.

RAILROAD NEWS

New Settlers' Rates Somewhat Surprising to Passenger Men.

Fifth Avenue Switching Matter—Omaha Moves Its Offices.

Announcement has been made by the various railways concerned of new one-way settlers' excursion rates to points in this state, North Dakota, Manitoba, Ontario, Assiniboia and Saskatchewan. These new rates will be in effect on next Tuesday and the two Tuesdays following thereafter.

Strange to remark, these rates have been advanced to a considerable extent in the Minnesota and North Dakota territory, but not in the Canadian Northwest. Just why this distinction is made is not explained by the announcement, but the fact remains that while a large number of Minnesota and North Dakota points were accessible at a flat rate of $5 during the previous Tuesdays that cheap rates have been in effect, the new rate is $8.45.

An interested railway official speaking of the matter this morning said he was at a loss to understand why the arrangement was changed as described, but presumed it was to keep peace in the railroad family.

"One of the first principles in the railroad business, whether it is in the passenger or freight branch, is to keep all business you can on your own line and divert as little as possible," said he. "It is always our wish to get as much revenue from passengers or freight as we can, whether local or through, and in this case, strange as it may seem, this idea is receiving a flat contradiction, in a certain sense.

"While the revenue from the local points in North Dakota and our own state may be increased by the new rate, it does not sustain the proportionate revenue that we would get from Canadian business. In other words we are putting up the rates on the home lines without taking similar action where the haul requires a passage off our own lines. It seems to me that this is an inconsistent action, for I believe it will not encourage emigration.

"As I said before the revenue locally might be increased, but that's uncertain. The balance between a great number of people at a low rate and a smaller number of people at a lower rate is a study thats always of interest, but only determined by a trial. In the instance the revenue of the lines in the United States for the tickets that are sold to points off their own rails is a proportion, you see, and a low proportion. That is, it is made low by comparison with the new local rates. Usually the railroads are willing to raise the through rates as soon as the locals, but this instance is an exception.

"It may be that the agreement with the Canadian lines prohibits the raising of the through rates, however, or possibly the matter has been submitted to them and they have refused their consent."

WANT NO VIADUCT.

Comment on the Fifth Avenue Switching Matter.

Recent agitation of the subject of switching on Fifth avenue has stirred up considerable interest among railroad men and others. The merchants below the tracks on Fifth avenue are said to be very anxious to have less switching particularly on account of their teams being delayed by it. It has been suggested by one interested party that a viaduct is not necessary, as the switching could be done from east of the Fifth avenue freight house, instead of west of it.

"The Northern Pacific people naturally want no viaduct along Fifth avenue, for the reason that it would mean an enormous expense to them," he said. "So far as the Omaha people are concerned I guess they are no more anxious for it than the Northern Pacific, for they would probably have a share in footing the bill. All that is necessary would be to have the switching done east of the freight house, and I see no reason why it could not be done."

In New Offices.

The city ticket and general office is being moved by the Omaha road today from the ground floor of the Mesaba block to the corner room in the Lonsdale block, at Third avenue East and Superior street. General Agent Smith says he believes no local office will surpass the new quarters when the company gets settled, at least no city ticket office. While part of the moving was done during the day, the ticket business was transacted in the old quarters all day, it being the intention to move the ticket cases and other equipment after the departure of the Chicago train at 5 p. m.

LYING IN DITCH

Oscar Ericson's Body Found In Two Feet of Water.

Occurred Near Poupar's Siding—Evidently Stunned.

The dead body of Oscar Ericson was found yesterday morning, lying in a pool of water less than two feet in depth, beside the railroad tracks of the Great Northern about half a mile from Poupar's siding.

The man had met his death by drowning. There were marks on the bank which showed where he had rolled down into the pool, and he doubtless was stunned in some manner before he reached the water, as he could never have been drowned in a pool of that depth if conscious.

Coroner Boyer was notified of the accident and had the body brought to Duluth this morning. It was taken to Flood & Horgan's undertaking establishment, where the coroner examined it. There were no marks of violence, except a few scratches where he had been hurt in rolling down the steep bank from the railroad tracks.

It is the belief of Coroner Boyer that the man had been stealing a ride on one of the ore trains and, falling off, had been stunned and drowned before he recovered consciousness.

Poupar's siding is a little station about 35 miles out on the Great Northern road.

The accident must have occurred during the night, and the body was not found until the following morning.

The man had no money in his possession and this would lead to the belief that he had been stealing a ride on the train.

The only papers found on him were a money order receipt for $15 sent to some relative in Sweden and an accident ticket for one of the Hibbing hospitals. The money order had been sent last November.

Little is known of the man beyond the fact that he was employed by the Killorin-Philbin Contracting company. He is a man of about 30 years of age and of Scandinavian descent.

Coroner Boyer has decided that no inquest will be necessary.

Uniforms For Band.

Col. Van Duzee, of St. Paul, Major Reschc, Major Eva and Director Flaaten, of the Third Regiment band, have under consideration the purchase of new uniforms for the band and a proposition from a manufacturer of uniforms is being awaited. While the decisions as to such matters are the privilege of the colonel in command, Col. Van Duzee has indicated that whatever the rest of the committee may decide on will have his approval.

While the uniforms of regimental bands always conform to the United States design of soldier suits, there are special individual decorations allowed which give distinction to the bands, and it is the design of this ornamentation which has not been settled.

ORDER IS MADE

New Mail Service on Great Northern Effective May 5.

Four Clerks Appointed to Have Charge of Cars.

The Duluth postoffice has received a bulletin from the office of the superintendent of the Tenth division, railway mail service, announcing that daily railway postoffice service will go into effect May 5 between Duluth and Grand Forks, on the Duluth and Larimore trains 25 and 26. Train 25 is that leaving here over the Great Northern at 8:15 p. m. The same train returning is numbered 26.

This is the improvement in service the need of which was brought to the attention of the postal authorities through articles in The Herald. Owing to the fact that the train leaving here at 8:15 p. m. over the Great Northern carries with it no mail clerk, the smaller towns between these two points receive no mail from it. A business letter mailed in Duluth at any time after 8 o'clock in the morning must lie in the local office until 8 o'clock the following morning, if addressed to any town between here and Grand Forks, outside of those benefited by the pouch post, which are Grand Rapids, Bemidji, Fosston, McIntosh, Bagley and Crookston. The smaller towns, and there are many of them, are steadily growing in size and importance, and it may readily be seen that this improvement in the mail service will be of great benefit to the local business houses as well as to the towns directly concerned.

Clerks will run in these two trains between Duluth and Grand Forks, connecting at the latter point with clerks in the St. Paul and Havre second division. Mail cars will run through in these trains between Duluth and Minot. Between Crookston and Grand Forks the Duluth & Larimore mail cars in trains 25 and 26 will run in the same trains with the St. Paul and Havre trains, Nos. 7 and 25 and 26 and 8. The clerks in the Duluth and Larimore cars will not however, perform any local service at offices between Crookston and Grand Forks. These offices will be supplied by clerks in the St. Paul and Havre cars. Clerks in the Duluth and Larimore cars will of course exchange at both Crookston and Grand Forks.

The following clerks will be employed on the new cars: Messrs. Frank Marr, Fuller, Storms and Flora. The last two have been working on through the North Dakota district. Marr lives in Duluth and has been running between here and Fargo, via St. Cloud, on the Great Northern. Fuller is now a clerk on the Minnesota and International. The places of these men will be filled by men taken from the reserve list.

Diamonds Made by Electricity

The recent experiments in making diamonds by electricity was a success. The manufactured gems are not imitations, but genuine diamonds, made under the same conditions that nature employs, that is, heat and pressure, and these are obtained by means of the electric furnace. If the stomach is weak, the liver and kidneys inactive, the conditions are contrary to nature, and the only way to restore them to a normal condition is to resort to nature's best remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Then you not only obtain a safe medicine but the best ever compounded. It never fails in cases of insomnia, dizziness, nervousness, indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness, kidney ailments, la grippe, colds or spring fever. You only need one bottle to convince you of its value. Get it today from your druggist.

ORDERS HIM COMMITTED.

Non-Resident Italian to Go to Fergus Falls.

Onorato Roncari, the Italian who was adjudged insane in Probate Judge Middlecoff's court a few days ago, will be committed to the insane asylum at Fergus Falls as a patient of the state, rather than St. Louis county. The notice to the probate judge to commit Roncari came from the state board of control this morning.

Roncari has been in America less than a year and has not gained a residence, so his case had to be disposed of by the state board of control rather than the county authorities. Sometimes insane foreigners have been sent back to the country from which they came, but the expense in such cases is heavy, and where there is any prospect of the patient recovering after a short period of treatment, it is cheaper for the state to send them to the hospital rather than go to the expense of sending them out of the country.

COUNTERFEIT MONEY.

Range Men In Trouble Because of It.

On complaint of J. M. Dickey, assistant United States attorney, Capt. T. H. Pressnell, as United States commissioner, today issued a warrant for the arrest of Otto Mattson, arrested Thursday at Hibbing on the charge of having counterfeit coins in his possession. Mattson is being held at Hibbing by the state. He will be given a hearing before United States Commissioner Silliman at Hibbing, Monday.

Isaac Frantila and Frank Hill, arrested at Eveleth on the charge of passing counterfeit money, have been brought to Duluth by George J. Mallory, deputy United States marshal, and lodged in the St. Louis county jail. They are each held in default of $2000 bonds, to await the action of the federal grand jury next July. Isaac Jacobson, arrested with Mattson at Hibbing on the same charge, is still being held at the latter place.

THE WHEAT IN AREA

Change In Pessimistic Tone of Two Weeks Ago.

Wheat Sown as Late as May 15 May Develop Well.

Reports coming from various sections of the Northwest in which the seeding of wheat has been delayed are less pessimistic than they were a couple of weeks ago. It is now conceded by the best farmers in the territory in which there has been delay that wheat seeded as late as May 15 can mature nicely if weather conditions are favorable.

C. H. Sheldon, of Minnewaukon, N. D., writes to a board of trade man here, which vouches for him as a conservative and level-headed man:

"The weather for the past two days has been fine; the ground is drying up fast and seeding has generally commenced. Don't think the average in wheat will be much less on account of the lateness of the season. There will be a large acreage in wheat—one-third more than last season—and less flax and more coarse grains."

P. Goodsell of Moorhead, writes: "There has been no seeding done yet, but with continuance of present weather for a week, seeding will be general in this part of the valley and if wheat seeding can be completed before the 15th of May, the area will be 20 per cent more than usual in this immediate vicinity."

Seeding is expected to begin Monday at the Dalrymple and Aurenia and Sharon farms.

Reports from as far north as Manitoba say that seeding is quite general and that the prospect for a large acreage is good.

It is now becoming a fact generally accepted by grain men that the acreage in wheat will not be any smaller than was originally looked for or at least not appreciably smaller, and this means larger by considerable than last year.

Great Dry Goods Sale.

A. J. Pederson of the Fair, Superior's popular department store, has just returned from a special buying trip to the Eastern markets. Mr. Pederson found manufacturers and wholesalers stocked to the utmost, owing to the unfavorable trade conditions in the East ,and by making extensive cash purchases, he secured some of the most sensational bargains in seasonable merchandise ever obtained at the head of the lakes.

In today's Herald is announced a special three days' sale, to begin Monday morning, in which is a host of wonderful bargains quoted. As a further inducement to Duluth patrons, Mr. Pederson offers to refund street car fare.

FIGHT FOR BELLE

Dusky Gentlemen Have Battle Which Ends In Court.

Governor Daly Resents Alienation of Lady Love's Affection.

Two rivals for a dusky belle became mixed up in a heated argument last evening and the matter had to be settled by Judge Windom in the municipal court this morning after one of the combatants had sworn out a warrant charging the other with assault.

The alleged assailant rejoiced in the pseudonym of Governor Daly, while the complaining witness gave his name as James Matthews.

According to the story told by the police, Governor Daly has been the accepted lover of the lady in question, and has been a regular visitor at her home. But a week or two ago he was called from the city on business, and during his absence Matthews is claimed to have ingratiated himself into the good graces of the fickle maid.

On Dalys' return he heard rumors that Matthews had made a clean winout, and that he was left at the post. But the Governor was not to be jilted in this easy manner, and last evening he called at the home of his former sweetheart. He had been there but a few minutes when Matthews walked in with the confident air of a welcome guest.

This was adding insult to injury. It was more than the Governor could stand, and pulling a miniature cannon from his hip pocket, he requested Matthews to make himself scarce. Matthews demurred, and Daly slugged him over the head with the butt of the gun.

"I wouldn't 'a had him arrested if he'd a given me a show," said Matthews this morning, in relating his troubles to Judge Windom. "I hadn't any chance when he had the gun. I could have licked him only for the gun."

The court did not seem disposed to question the statement, for Matthews had a physique like a Sampson, while Daly was taller and more slenderly built.

The gun certainly was a powerful argument. It was a huge black six-shooter, at least a foot in length, and is claimed by Matthews to have been loaded to the muzzle.

Governor acknowledged the coin this morning and admitted he had assaulted Matthews.

"He hit me first, however," he said in extenuation of his plea. "He had a knife, and he cursed at me before I struck him."

Judge Windom finally decided that the peace and dignity of the state of Minnesota had been damaged about $10 worth, and Daly coughed up. Both of the combatants weer given a severe warning about the danger of carrying concealed weapons, and the arsenal was confiscated by Captain of Police Resche for use on future criminals.

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

Annual Meeting of the Congregation Is Held.

At the regular yearly meeting of the officers and parishioners of St. Luke's mission, held last night, William C. Burton, treasurer, reported the total income of the year to have been $1,476.12. After paying all the mission expenses, including that of remodeling the building, a balance of $57.24 remains on hand. It was estimated that the church will need $700 for its expenses next year.

Interesting and encouraging reports were read by C. A. Marshall, secretary, Mrs. E. C. Swanstrom, president of the Ladies' guild, George Hargraves, for the Sunday school, and Miss Josephine Ransford's report of the What-so-ever guild was read in her absence by a member of the society.

The delegates to the convention of the Sunday school association to be held here in June will be George Hargraves and Henry Liedel, the alternates, S. A. Adams and C. J. Tirste.

Bishop Morrison will submit the following names as nominations for church officers: George Hargraves, C. A. Marshall, W. C. Burton, S. A. Adams, Henry Liedel and J. C. Richardson.

125-127 W. 2nd St.

MRS. J. H. ROBINSON will open, on MAY FIRST, a spacious boarding and rooming house at 125 and 127 West Second street, where she will be able, in the meantime, to meet and arrange to give careful attention to a few more wishing first-class board and room or meals.

FUNERAL OF MENAIGE.

Arrangements Not Yet Completed For It.

The funeral of Jerome E. Menaige will not be held until Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

The body is still lying at the undertaking establishment of Flood & Horgan awaiting the disposition of the relatives. Whether it will be taken to his old home in the southern part of the state or be buried in Duluth is not yet known. The father and wife of the dead man are making the arrangements for the funeral. It was thought for a time that the county would have to bear the expense of the burial as the relatives stated they were unable to do so, but it is now thought likely that they will take charge of the funeral.

GOES TO SUPERIOR.

Percy Armitage Is Appointed Ticket Agent.

Percy Armitage, who for the past few months has been assistant city ticket agent of the Northern Pacific in Duluth, has been promoted to the position of city passenger agent in Superior, vice Charles P. O'Donnell, who will represent the passenger department of the company in Indianapolis. John Robitaille, who has been with the Union depot ticket office for some time, has been given Mr. Armitage's old place.

Both promotions are of young men, who have worked from much humbler positions. Mr. Armitage was at one time a fireman for the company, while Mr. Robitaille started as a messenger boy.

To Close Saturday.

Uptown freight offices of the six lines, who have quarters in this city, will be closed on Saturday afternoons at 1 p. m. commencing May 7 until Sept. 30. Action toward this end was taken at a meeting held this morning. The lines included in the agreement are the Omaha, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern, the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic and the Wisconsin Central.

It is said there has been difficulty before in getting this custom established owing to the temptation of some of the ambitious agents to get business on Saturday afternoons while the others were resting.

INTO THE LAKE

Tug Superior First Boat to Go Through Canal.

Finds Ice Near There In Very Soft Condition.

To the tug Superior of the Great Lakes fleet again falls the honor of opening navigation at the local harbor.

The little vessel poked her nose outside the canal piers shortly before 10 o'clock this morning, and thus has the distinction of being the first steam vessel to navigate the waters of Lake Superior in the year of 1904.

She sailed the length of the strip of open water in front of the entrance to the canal, and bucked some of the ice for a few minutes. She was able to go through it with ease, but did not waste steam on the task, and returned to the harbor after about fifteen minutes.

The Superior was also the first tug out last year, but in 1903 she was fitted out fully a month earlier than this season.

The tug Record, of the same line, is being fitted out and will probably be in commission before night. These two tugs are the best ice-breakers of the fleet, and they will engage in the work of freeing the different vessels which have wintered here, from the ice, in order to allow them to get to their docks and load. The other tugs will not be brought out until their services are required.

The sight of the Superior bucking the ice was witnessed by hundreds of interested spectators. The word that there was again a boat to be seen on the lake traveled like magic, and the windows of every office building that overlooked the lake were crowded with clerks and business men, who hailed with joy the sign of the opening of navigation.

If the ice continues to disappear at the rate it has been going for the past week, it will not be many days before the north shore boats will be able to get out. The Bon Ami is still at Two Harbors, where she was compelled to spend the winter on account of the ice which formed suddenly at this end of the lake.

The other three vessels are lying in the Lake avenue slip and can be made ready for service at short notice. It is the intention of the managers of two lines to send the vessels out just as soon as they can make the trip.

A well-known vessel man predicted this morning that they would be able to make Two Harbors before May 10, if the ice continued to honeycomb at the present rate.

The opening of interlake navigation is dependent on the state of the ice at Sault Ste. Marie and the labor troubles which practically amounut to a strike of the masters and pilots.

WEST DULUTH

At the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club last night preliminary plans for the Fourth of July celebration, to be held at West Duluth this year, were discussed, and L. S. Neuman was appointed a committee of one as being well posted in such matters, to map out a plan of action and suggest the names of persons to be placed on a committee to have charge of the celebration. He will report at the regular meeting of the club next Friday evening. He will, it is understood, recommend at that time that the celebration be kept separate from the club and that it be conducted by private citizens with the endorsement of the club.

The matter of the docks for West Duluth and the proposed ferry line to Billings Park, Superior, came in for considerable discussion. W. L. Palmer, of Billings Park, was present at the meeting last week to set forth the advantages of a ferry to both cities. It now appears to be a certainty that the proposed ferry line will be established in the very near future.

PUT MORE BACK.

S. F. Fullerton Tells of St. Louis River Pike.

The pike fishing season opens in Minnesota tomorrow, May 1, and a number of West Duluth anglers are preparing to try their luck in the St. Louis river. The fish are said to be running in fine style now, and hundreds of them are to be seen going over the rapids above Fond du Lac. Most of the fishing tomorrow will be in Spirit lake and vicinity, although a few disciples of the rod have announced it as being their intention to go to Fond du Lac and from there to the rapids to fish.

S. F. Fullerton, executive agent for the state game and fish commission, who was in the city last night, a guest at the St. Louis hotel, laughed when asked if he had received the protest from West Duluth in regard to taking pike eggs from the St. Louis river.

He said that he had heard about the petition, and that he was also informed that some of the people who are making the worst fuss about the state's taking pike eggs from the river are among the most persistent netters of fish in this section.

"For the information of those who may not know it, I would say that for every 100 pike eggs we take from that river," he said, "we put back 1000 fertilized pike eggs. We are not doing the fishing any harm on the St. Louis." These statements are in accord with an interview on the matter which appeared in Thursday's Herald.

REPAIRING BRIDGES.

Grand Avenues Structures to Be Strengthened.

The matter of repairing the two Grand avenue bridges between Sixty-first and Seventy-first avenues west will probably be taken up by the board of public works next week, and preliminary arrangements will be made to strengthen them sufficiently to make it possible for street cars to pass over them.

City Engineer Patton reported to the council some time ago that the bridge at Sixty-third avenue west would have to be strengthened and repaired before the proposed extension of the street car track was laid. The Sixty-first avenue bridge, he said, was strong enough now to safely withstand the weight of the small cars, but he reported that it would be dangerous for the large double-truck cars to pass over it in its present condition. It is thought the expense of making the necessary repairs will be comparatively light.

DR. MITCHELL

Treats and Cures All Diseases.

Thousands of sufferers from chronic diseases are today alive and well and gratefully testify that Dr. Mitchell's treatment came to them as the star of hope at a period when life seemed slipping from their grasp and the horizon of the future was darkened by the shadows of the grave. This great healer has given to the helpless invalid the use of his limbs, restored to the blind their sight and to the deaf their hearing and all diseases which afflicts the human family are treated and cured permanently. Scientists and physicians have been more than surprised by the many notable cures described in this paper during the past five years.

His treatment works upon the circulation, gives tone to the nervous system and builds up and strengthens the general constitution. After his treatment the return of health is always accompanied by a remarkable increase in vigor of all the organic functions.

If you are thinking of employing a physician, just investigate before you decide and you will find that Dr. Mitchell is the only one who actually cures chronic cases of long standing. He removes tumors and growths before your very eyes. Patients when cured by this wonderful process remain cured. They return to prove that the effects are permanent and the cure is lasting. # FEATURES OF THE SAHARA

Points of New Tomlinson Boat to Be Launched Thursday.

One particular feature of the Sahara, the new boat owned by G. A. Tomlinson and his associates which is to be launched next Thursday at noon at Lorain, is that there are no stanchions or beams in the hold to impede the discharge of the cargo. There are 28 arched girder plates athwartships between hatches and fastened to web frames which give the hold a clear that is seldom seen in vessels.

The Sahara will have a private launching, and there will be no guests saving the owners and their families. The christening will be done by Miss Ruth Mauck, daughter of J. W. Mauck, president of Hillsdale College, Hillsdale, Mich., who is related to Mr. Tomlinson's family.

The Sahara cost $340,000, is 474 feet keel, 494 feet over all, 29 feet molded depth, 52 feet beem, and has triple expansion engines, 22½, 36 and 60, with 42-inch stroke. She has two Scotch boilers 13 feet 9 inches by 12 feet and is equipped with the Ellis & Eaves system of induced draft.

She has seven cargo holds and 28 hatches with steel hatch covers which are removed and placed automatically with steam. There are four engines on the spar deck for the purpose of doing this work.

The capacity of the boat will be 8500 gross tons of ore and 10,000 tons of coal. Her colors will be the same as the other boats owned by Mr. Tomlinson's associates, black prevailing, with two light bands on the stack. She will bear yellow and blue painted as a banner on her bow, the same as the Sonora, her sister ship. These are the colors of the university of Michigan.

DESCRIPTION OF THE GREAT EXPOSITION

Story of Inception and Completion of Great Undertaking.

St. Louis, April 30.—The Louisiana Purchase exhibition, comprising a comprehensive collection and exhibition of the world's people, products, industries, modes of living, diversions, transportation facilities, in fact, a complete universal concentration of arts, manufactures and products of the soil, mine, forest and sea, had its inception in 1898 and was completed in April, 1904. The exposition commemorates the centennial of the purchase from France, in 1803, by the United States of the vast strip of territory stretching from the gulf of Mexico to the dominion of Canada, and extending from the Mississippi river to the crest of the Rocky Mountain range, and since known as "The Louisiana Purchase Territory."

The entire Mississpi valley originally belonged to France by right of discovery and exploration. In 1763 Spain acquired the Louisiana Territory after the treaty of peace at Paris, when France, which had ceded Louisiana to Spain under the secret treaty of 1762, gave up all her other possessions in North America to Great Britain. Spain held the territory for thirty-seven years, returning it to France on the demand of Napoleon Bonaparte, through the secret treaty of St. Ildefonso, Oct. 1, 1800. Napoleon was then first consul of France. The United States, by the Revolutionary war, had won sovereignty over the territory between the Atlantic ocean and the Mississippi river. Spain officials were still in authority at New Orleans, although the Louisiana Territory had been returned to France. The hostile attitude of the Spaniards towards Americans navigating the Mississippi resulted in agitation which led President Thomas Jefferson to undertake the purchase of the city and island of New Orleans, in order to control the mouth of the Mississippi. Robert R. Livingston, United States minister to France, and James Monroe, afterward president of the United States, were accordingly commissioned to conduct the negotiations for this transfer. Instead of the sale of the island of New Orleans alone, Napoleon proposed the sale of the entire Louisiana Territory for $15,000,000 in order to secure funds for the equipment of his armies.

The representatives of the United States at once accepted the offer and the treaty was signed at Paris, April 30, 1803. The formal transfer of the territory took place at New Orleans, Dec. 20, 1803, and for Upper Louisiana, at St. Louis on March 10, 1804.

The newly purchased territory embraced 1,000,000 square miles, and is now divided into the following fourteen states and territories: Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Indian Territory, Kansas, Colorado, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming and Montana.

In the fore part of 1898 an editorial was published in a St. Louis paper to the effect that the centennials of the great events in the history of the United States were not all over and predicting that the greatest was yet to be held.—The centennial of the acquisition of the Louisiana Territory. This editorial was taken up in the press and commented upon, resulting in organized agitation by the Missouri Historical society. The clamor for a commemorative centennial became so general that, in response to strong public sentiment, Governor Stevens, of Missouri, issued a call for a convention of delegates representing the states and territories embraced in the Louisiana Purchase Territory, to be held in St. Louis on Jan. 15, 1899. The convention was attended by ninety-three delegates appointed by the respective governors, and it was unanimously voted to hold an exposition, international in its scope, in St. Louis. The convention extended an invitation to the United States government to assist in the enterprise, and appointed an executive committee, with Hon. David R. Francis as chairman, and also a committee of fifty representative citizens of St. Louis to co-operate in the matter. Plans were devised for raising money to build the exposition buildings and defray the general expenses, and it was fixed that $15,000,000, the amount paid for the territory, should be raised, one-third by private subscription, one-third to be paid by the city, and one-third to be asked from the United States government.

The committee was increased in membership to 250, and work immediately began. Congress passed a bill June 1, 1900, promising government support and $5,000,000 appropriation, if the citizens of St. Louis raised $10,000,000. On Jan. 12, 1901, it was announced that the St. Louis popular subscription list, by the sale of stock, reached $5,000,000, and on Jan. 29, 1901, an ordinance was passed by the municipal assembly authorizing the issuance of city bonds to the amount of $5,000,000. The bill appropriating $5,000,000 was passed by the house of representatives on Feb. 9 and by the United States senate on March 3, and the sum of $15,000,000 was secured, President McKinley immediately signed the bill and on March 12, 1901, appointed the national commission of nine members. It was then decided to open the exposition on April 30, 1903.

Officers were elected, the company was incorporated and the site for the exposition was chosen in Forest Park, a vast natural park in the southwestern border of St. Louis. Trees were felled, some hills were leveled, the course of the River Des Peres which ran through the park, was in part changed, and the mammoth enterprise was under way by the time that, on August 20, 1901, President McKinley issued a proclamation addressed to all the nations of the world and extending them an invitation to participate in the World's Fair. Acceptances received indicated the official participation of nearly all the civilized governments of the world.

The site was made ready, embracing 1,240 acres of ground, practically an area of two miles long and one mile wide, requiring six miles of fence to enclose it. The World's Columbian exposition at Chicago embraced 633 acres, the Paris exposition in 1900 occupied 335 acres, the Pan-American at Buffalo 300 acres, the Centennial at Philadelphia 236 acres, and the Trans-Mississippi at Omaha 150 acres. The Chicago exposition buildings covered a total of 200 acres, while over 250 acres are covered with buildings at the Louisiana Purchase exposition.

The main exhibit palaces at St. Louis have under roof 128 acres. Those at Chicago covered 82 acres, at Buffalo, 15 acres and at Omaha 9 acres.

As the time passed and the exposition increased in magnitude the enthusiasm of the project correspondingly increased. Additional appropriations for the erection of buildings and exhibits were made by the United States government; Missouri alone appropriated $1,000,000; foreign nations increased their original appropriations and asked for larger allotments of space for their exhibits, and the exposition was practically replanned on the most liberal basis. It quickly became apparent that the immensity of the enterprise would preclude its completion and formal opening to the world on the date originally appointed, April 30, 1903, and the time was extended one year and officially announced.

On April 30, 1903, twenty months after the first stake for the location of the exposition had been driven, the exposition stood over half completed, and on that day was officially dedicated to its memorial purpose by the president of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt, and other national dignitaries and officials of the exposition company. Some of the smaller buildings had been erected, most of the large exhibit palaces had been completed; although Machinery hall and the Transportation building, two of the largest on the grounds, had just been commenced, and Mexico had the only completed national pavilion on the grounds.

In the dedication ceremonies former President Grover Cleveland also participated, marking an unique epoch in the history of the United States when a president and a former president of the United States assisted in ceremonies commemorative of a national event.

In the year's additional time granted every effort was made to hurry the work to completion of the exposition, and to collect and rush forward the exhibits to be installed from the four quarters of the earth. In the exposition grounds the force of 5000 workmen was constantly augmented until 20,000 were daily engaged in rushing the work to a finished termination.

At the opening, excepting in a few minor details, the Louisiana Purchase exposition stands practically completed at a cost of almost $50,000,000.

The United States government's total appropriation amounted to $7,962,000, and in addition the government recently loaned the exposition company $4,000,000, making a grand total of $11,962,000, secured from the national government. The state municipal and other appropriations of this country made a total of almost $7,000,000, and to this is added the $10,000,000 from St. Louis and her citizens. The balance of the total cost of the exposition was expended by the other nations of the world.

No previous exposition has had a more beautiful site. The Chicago exposition had Lake Michigan stretching into the distance as a background, but the St. Louis exposition is bordered by verdant hills and charming vistas formed by shallow valleys, involving landscape features embraced by no previous exposition, and surrounding the main picture as a vast natural amphitheater.

The architecture of this universal exposition is majestic in the great ivory white exhibit palaces, historical in the foreign and state buildings, and universally cosmopolitan and unique in concession structures.

The main picture comprises ten great palaces, arranged in fan-shape in their location. Surmounting a hill, and 200 feet from the top of the building to the level of the exposition grounds below, stands Festival hall, overlooking the Cascade Gardens. These three cascades are the largest waterworks ever constructed, and 50,000 gallons of water a minute pour down in three magnificent terrents, at night being illuminated by electricity. At their base stretches the lagoon which winds its way through the main portion of the exposition picture and traversed by gondolas. The Cascade Gardens are semicircular in form, sloping gradually from Festival Hall to the main level of the grounds. Each side of this crescent-shaped hill is flanked with a wide stairway, and its crown, surmounted by Festival Hall, is covered by a colonade of states. The Court of Honor stretches from the main entrance to the lagoon, containing monuments typically commemorative of the Louisiana purchase, chief of which is the Louisiana Purchase monument, 109 feet high with a shaft 17 feet in diameter, surmounted by the statue of Liberty, facing the city of St. Louis and looking out to the world, a guiding star to the sculptural groups symbolical to the twelve states and two territories formed from the Louisiana purchase, which are located at the other end of the Court of Honor in the colonade of states surmounting the crescent-shaped hill and flanking Festival Hall, one of the most ornate exposition structures.

The main portion of the exposition grounds is occupied by the ten large exhibit palaces, as follows: Liberal Arts, Mines and Metallurgy, Manufactures, Education, Varied Industries, Electricity, Transportation, Machinery, Agriculture and Horticulture. In addition to these, is the group of permanent stone structures erected for the display of art at a cost of $1,014,000, located at the rear of the Cascade Gardens behind Festival Hall; the Washington University building in the Western part of the grounds which cost $1,000,000 and are utilized by the exposition until its close, when they will be turned over to the university; the Forestry, Fish and Game building; and the buildings of the different governments of the world.

In the eastern portion of the grounds are located all the state buildings; the Missouri state building standing on the brow of the plateau and overlooking the main portion of the grounds below.

The administration building, in which is located the offices of the officials, constituting it the seat of the exposition government, is the main building in the Washington university group and is located on the top of a gentle rise of ground overlooking the exposition from the west.

Skirting the northern boundary of the exposition for almost a mile, is the street of concessions, lined on both sides by buildings containing various attractions, erected at a total cost of $5,000,000 by concessions. This street has been officially termed "The Pike," and corresponds to the Midway of the Columbian exposition.

A striking and beautiful feature of the exposition is the floral clock, with a dial 100 feet in diameter and hands fifty feet long, which correctly notes the time. Another attractive feature is the rose garden, six acres in area and containing 50,000 rose trees.

The following countries have erected buildings at the total expenditures noted: Austria, $240,000; Belgium, $75,000; Brazil, $135,000; Canada, $50,000; Ceylon, $35,000; China, $50,000; Cuba, $30,000; France, $250,000; Germany, $250,000; India, $20,000; Italy, $50,000; Japan, $60,000; Mexico, $25,000; Morocco, $20,000; Nicaragua, $30,000; Siam, $25,000; Sweden, $30,000; the Netherlands, $30,000. Over fifty foreign governments make elaborate displays, but only the countries noted above have erected pavilions.

France has erected a replica of the Grand Trianon, of Versailles, a magnificent villa erected by Louis XIV for Madame de Maintenon and one of the favorite places of residence of the first Napoleon. The Versailles gardens are also reproduced in all their beauty.

In the southwestern portion of the grounds is located the Philippine village, on the banks of a large, artificial lake. This lake will also serve as a reservoir for fire protection of the exposition.

Opposite the western entrance of the transportation building is a full-sized model of the United States warship, complete in all its appointments. On the border of the Plateau of States stands the reproduction of the home of Thomas Jefferson, and in further commemoration of President Jefferson the corps of uniformed exposition guards are known as the "Jefferson Guards."

Thirty-five miles of asphalt, macadam and gravel roads traverse the exposition grounds, and the municipal double-grounds, and the municipal double-tracked railway quickly conveys visitors wherever they may wish to go throughout the grounds.

A feature never before attempted on so grand a scale in previous expositions is the holding of athletic games and contests. One of the greatest attractions during the World's fair period will be the celebration of the Olympiae games, which will be participate in by famous athletes from every portion of the civilized world. The athletic arena constructed will seat more than 25,000 persons.

Another original and interesting feature is the aerial tournament, in which airships of various kinds will contest over a designated course.

A press building has been erected for visiting newspaper men. It is located near the manufactures building, and is a comfortable home-like place, with chairs, tables and wide verandas. Here may be found all the facilities which the newspaper or magazine writer may desire, books of reference, maps, the leading journals and magazines of the world and all the publications relating to the various departments of the exposition.

Throughout the grounds, at various places, have been erected emergency hospitals with corps of physicians and attendants, who can quickly be summoned to take care of visitors who may be suddenly taken ill or meet with accidents.

During the exposition period a day has been set apart for each state, and designated as that particular state's day. The same plan is carried out with respect to many of the large national organizations.

In festival hall is installed the largest pipe organ in the world and recitals and concerts will be held at intervals throughout the exposition period.

The exposition gates open at 8 o'clock in the morning and the large industrial palaces at 9 o'clock, to remain open to the public until sunset. At night myriads of electric lighting devices will illuminate the grounds, and visitors will be permitted to enjoy the exposition until 11:30 o'clock, when the gates will be closed. The exposition will not be open on Sunday at any time during the entire period.

All hauling and replenishing of exhibits must be done at night, as nothing will be permitted during the open hours to interefere with sightseeing. On Dec. 1, seven months after the opening, the exposition will have officially terminated, and the Louisiana Purchase Exposition will have passed into history as probably the greatest and most comprehensive exposition that the world has ever known.

AN OLD SCHOOLMATE.

Clerk Ross Recognizes One In Police Court.

The experience of seeing an old schoolmate in the police court is not a very pleasant one, but such an experience befell John G. Ross, clerk of the municipal court, this morning.

Duncan MacRae was arrested by the police last evening and arraingned in the municipal court this morning on the charge of drunkenness.

As he entered the court room he was recognized by Mr. Ross as a former schoolmate in the town of Kincardine, Ont. The man also recognized Mr. Ross and hung his head when entering a plea of guilty. It was the man's first offense, and Judge Windom released him under a suspended sentence.

He answered several questions from the court in regard to his birthplace and occupation, and after he left, Judge Windom jokingly reminded Mr. Ross that the man had been born in the same town as he.

"Yes," said Mr. Ross; "he was a schoolmate of mine. I heard that he was in the city, and was not so much surprised to see him here this morning."

Council Makes Statement In St. Croix Avenue Matter.

Building Would Be No Worse After Moving Than Before.

At the last meeting of the city council a committee consisting of L. A. Barnes, W. E. McEwen and Watson S. Moore was appointed to prepare a statement of the position of the council with reference to the permit that was granted for the moving of a house from one location in the St. Croix avenue district to another. The two first named voted for the removal and Mr. Moore voted against it. This committee has prepared the following statement addressed to The Herald:

To the Editor of The Herald:

The report of the meeting of the common council, held on April 18, contained in your issue of April 19, referring to the moving of a building in Industrial division, was so misleading that the council appointed the undersigned as a committee to make a statement of facts relative to said moving, and request you to publish the same.

The question was whether the council would grant a house mover, named Johnson, permission to move a building located in Industrial division a distance of about seventy feet.

The only provision of the charter which makes it necessary to secure the permission of the council for the moving of a building is the provision for the establishment of fire limits. If a person desires to move a building outside of the fire limits no permission is necessary.

It appeared to the members of the common council that the only reason why any opposition was made by the attorneys for and against the granting of permission to move the building in question was a legal point as to the collection of ground rent. A majority of teh council considered that the proper place to adjudicate such a matter was of the council considered that the proper have since taken up the question, and it is in process of adjustment before the courts.

It has been the custom of the council to allow all parties coming before it and desiring to be heard a very wide latitude in their remarks; and it developed at said hearing that the house in question had been used as a house of prostitution, and was at that time unoccupied, but it did not appear that there was any probability of its being so used in the proposed location more than seventy feet away, where located at that time; and it did appear that there would be less fire risk in the proposed location.

The council has from time to time enacted all ordinances necessary for the suppression of houses of prostitution, and there are also state laws ample for such purpose.

It will appear from the above statement of facts that neither technically nor logically can the charge made in your report be substantiated; and we do not think that in reporting said meeting of the council you could fairly charge any alderman with giving his assent to the use of said building as a house of prostitutin, as was the intent of the report published by you.

By order of the council.
L. A. BARNES,
W. E. McEWEN,
Committee.

I entirely concur in all that has been said in the above report. But I also hold that as a practical matter that the council is expected to exercise its discretion on all questions where good morals are involved. I am, however, ready to concede that in the question above referred to it was difficult to determine which way to vote in order to advance the good morals of the city.

W. S. MOORE,
Of Committee.

GAINS FOR LA FOLLETTE

In Milwaukee Said to Assure His Renomination.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 30.—Governor La Follette's stock has taken a sharp rise and the managers of his campaign say he is more assured of the nomination for a third term. This claim is the result of the caucuses in Milwaukee yesterday. The returns indicates La Follette will have seventy delegates from Milwaukee county in the state convention, a gain of twenty over two years ago. La Cresse county is divided, La Follette getting ten delegates and the stalwarts eleven. Two years ago all were for La Follette.

STRONGER MARKET

Wheat Started Out Steady and Closed With an Advance.

Flax Trading Was Very Dull and the Market Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 30.—Wheat was stronger this morning and it was apparently the cash demand that was giving the market its strength. That seems to have been what has been bringing the market to higher prices during the past three or four days, or during the present bulge. A Duluth shipper sold some wheat this morning for all-rail shipment east, not a great amount but enough to show that the millers need wheat. The same shipper has a half dozen more requests for offers for wheat for all-rail shipment. The vessel trouble that has developed is alarming these millers who have been waiting for the opening of navigation expecting to get wheat on the first shipment and running with very low supplies in that expectation. Minneapolis reports a very strong cash market even with the immense stocks of wheat it has in store there.

It is puzzling to many old traders to see this condition existing with export business so poor. Bradstreet reports exports from July 1 of last year to date of only 122,276,000 bus., while in the same period in the year pervious they were 189,-801,000 bus., a decrease of 66,525,000 bus. This week's American clearances were but 1,010,000 bus., the smallest week in fourteen years. With this condition many grain men cannot see where the strength in the cash situation comes, and it is bringing new converts to the belief that the home consumption is a much larger quantity recently than has been supposed.

The Liverpool market closed unchanged to ½d higher, London 3d higher, Paris ½c higher, Antwerp unchanged, Berlin ¼c lower and Buda Pest ½c lower. Broomhall estimates world's shipments to be reported Monday to be 9,600,000 bushels.

The weather situation is very favorable and advices from the Northwest are of a much more hopeful tone.

The Duluth market showed advances of ¾c in both May and July, Chicago ¼c in May and ¾c in July, Minneapolis ¾c to ¾c May and July ⅝c higher, and New York ¼c in May and ⅜c in July. Duluth September advanced ¼c and Minneapolis ⅛@¼c.

Car receipts at Duluth were 8 against 20 last year, and at Minneapolis 82 against 134 a year ago, making a total for the Northwest of 90 against 154 a year ago. Chicago received 16 cars. Winnipeg receipts were 104 against 113 a year ago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 565,100 bus, last year 383,847 bus. Shipments 103,-084 bus, last year 432,502 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 136,350 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged. In the Chicago market July corn closed ⅛@¼c lower. July oats closed ¼c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 196,200 bus, last year 270,200 bus. Shipments 60,000 bus, last year 218,101 bus. Clearances were 159,000 bus.

In the Duluth market trading was dull. May opened unchanged at 90¼c, advanced to 90⅜c at 10:48, fell back to 90⅝c at 11:37 and closed at 91c, an advance of ⅝c. July opened unchanged at 80⅞c, advanced to 91¼c at 10:20, reacted to 90c at 11:28 and sold at 91c at 11:45. It closed at 91¼c, an advance of ⅜c.

Cash offerings were light. May price was paid for No. 1 northern and 2½c under for No. 2.

Flax was very dull. The May option opened unchanged at $1.07⅝, sold at $1.07⅝ and fell back, closing ¼c lower at $1.07⅜. July closed ⅜c lower and September and October ⅛c lower.

Oats advanced ⅜c and rye lost 1c.

Following were the closing prices on the Duluth boards:

Wheat—In store and to arrive, No. 1 hard, 92⅝c; No. 1 northern, 91c; No. 2 northern, 88½c; macaroni, No. 1, 86c; No. 2, 86c; May, 91c; July, 91¼c; September, 91¼c. Flax in store $1.07⅛; to arrive, $1.07⅛; May, $1.07½; July, $1.09; September, $1.10½; October, $1.10⅜. Oats, on track, 40c; to arrive, 41c. Rye, on track, 65c; to arrive, 65c.

Cars inspected—Wheat, 58; last year, 20; oats, 2; barley, 1; flax, 7; last year, 29.

Receipts—Wheat, 3960; barley, 962; rye, 6439; flax, 23,345.

Shipments—Wheat, 2281.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Bullish News Caused Firmness In Wheat Prices.

Chicago, April 30.—Smaller receipts and bullish news regarding the cash situation caused firmness in wheat today. The strength at Minneapolis was an additional bull factor. The principal demand came from commission houses and shorts, while some small holders liquidated to a small extent. Weather conditions were against the market, being favorable in all sections. The market opened a trifle easier due to indifferent cables and to good weather, the July option being off 8c at 88¾c. The price firmed up to 89¼c. Duluth, Minneapolis and Chicago reported receipts of 166 cars, against 95 cars last week and 201 cars a year ago.

The strength of the May delivery in all markets had a buoyant effect in prices here, the market becoming stronger as the session advanced. The active cash demand here and at Minneapolis also increased the bullish feeling. The close was strong with prices at the top, July being up 8c at 89½c.

An improved cash demand and small receipts brought out a scattered demand for corn, and in consequence the market held firm at about yesterday's closing figures. July opened unchanged to a shade higher at 48c @ 48⅛c, sold after selling at 48⅝@48⅜c, the price eased off to 48½c, but rallied to 48⅝c. Local receipts were 157 cars, with 15 to contract grade.

The market was inclined to drag under some liquidation of May. The market closed easier, July being off 1@1¼c, at 48¼@48⅜c, after it had touched 47¾c.

Covering of May oats by shorts caused an advance of nearly a cent in the price of that delivery, and in sympathy with the nearby option, other months ruled firm. The opening was a little easier on the excellent weather. July being down ¼c at 39c. On a fair commission house demand the price advanced to 39⅝@⅞c. Local receipts were 52 cars.

Provisions were barely steady on selling by outside holders. An easier hog market had a depressing influence on the provision trade. July pork opened at the provision trade. July pork opened at $12.02½ @ $12.05, sold at $12.05 @ 12.02½ and steadied at $12.02½. July lard was a shade to 2½c lower at $6.70 to $6.72½ and held at the low figure. Ribs were unchanged to 2½c lower at $6.42½ to $6.45 holding steady at $6.42½.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market closed ⅛c to ⅜c higher. An irregular market throughout the day with small volume of trade. The closing was strong. Our conclusion is that with all the bullish sentiment there are likely to be two sides to the market. Prices in Liverpool is less than it was a year ago, while prices in Chicago are from 12c to 14c per bus higher for the options than they were a year ago, with cash premiums on top of that.

Corn—The market unchanged to ⅛c lower. It is generally supposed that the May stuff will land with a bounce, but it is uncertain. We can only repeat the market acts heavy.

Oats—The market is ⅛c to ¾c higher. There is a good active general trade and not much general pressure. With prevailing favorable weather the reports on this aspect of the case should improve.

Provisions—Prices are 5c to 7½c lower. It was a quiet market with some further scattered liquidation. There is a fair disinterested demand. While, as we have before said, we see nothing very urgently bullish in the situation or outlook to prevent violent, yet on so long and persistent a decline and after the liquidation of the large outside May holdings, which have been accumulated and carried through the winter, there ought to be less selling pressure and some reactions should naturally take place.

B. E. Baker's Chicago grain letter: Wheat—The local professional element pulled the wheat market early on the strength at Minneapolis. Very little assistance was given by the outside and the trading in consequence was limited. The tone on the whole was firm. Export bids were reported close to the market and a sale of No. 1 northern to Eastern millers. There was a much better inquiry here. No. 2 hard changed hands at May price and No. 1 northern at a good premium over it. No. 1 northern at Minneapolis is selling 3c over May and No. 2 northern 1½c over. Stocks there decreased 150,000 bus. yesterday. Receipts were light everywhere. Weather is ideal and temperatures are seasonable. There were light rains in the Southwest but clear throughout the spring wheat belt. The cash news, which is the factor in the July is all strong and we think this option should be bought on all recessions. Liverpool closed with very little change from yesterday. Estimated receipts for Monday six cars.

Corn—The market was dull and draggy, but buoyed up early by the firm tone in wheat. Little interest was shown in it and trade was featureless except for some May liquidation by small scattered holders. Receipts were moderate. Elevator reports for 75,000 bus contract were cancelled today. Demand was rather slow. The cash market was easier and fully ½c lower. A brisk demand is needed if the market is to have material advance. Liverpool closed with little change from yesterday. Estimated for Monday, 150 cars.

Oats—May and July oats were firm, while the September was rather heavy. Trade was small. Buyers of the old crop futures had in mind the very small movement in the country and to this market. The demand has been very discouraging during the week, but a little slow today. Receipts were light. Elevator receipts for 162,000 bus of standard were cancelled this morning. Crop reports are generally favorable, and the warmer weather will give the plant a good start. We believe in buying on all soft spots.

Northwestern Miller: Seeding situation in the Northwest is not as favorable as it might be. At best the season is from two to three weeks late. Early in the season a material increase in wheat acreage was counted upon. There is now some question about any more wheat being planted than was grown in 1903.

TRADING IN STOCKS

Was Extremely Dull and the Closing Was Heavy.

Small Increase In the Bank Reserves Was Unexpected.

New York, April 30.—The small opening price changes in the stock market today were generally on the side of decline. Only a few stocks opened within the first fixe minutes and there were no large transactions.

The market was listless and heavy. Southern Pacific lost more than the average in the active quarter, but the decline was less than a point. Lackawanna dropped 4 and Southern Railway preferred, Kansas & Texas preferred, Pacific Mail and Brooklyn Union Gas ⅞ to 1¼.

The market did not move perceptibly. The small increase in bank reserves was unexpected in view of the week's gold exports, but the effect on prices was insignificant. Realty preferred advanced a point and Railway Steel Spring preferred lost 1½. The closing was dull and heavy.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Market absolutely featureless and dullness is the only cause for any recession in prices. We don't think the market will work off. In the face of strength of the market we believe when this dull spell is over it will be reflected in higher prices and there is a large short interest in the general market.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, April 30.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balances $219,011,065; gold, $107,424,283; silver, $20,393,098; United States notes, $7,224,012; treasury notes of 1890, $126,498; national bank notes, $12,245,190; total receipts this day, $1,742,765; total receipts this month, $41,529,422; total receipts this year, $451,612,171; total expenditures this day $2,310,000; total expenditures this month, $47,030,000; total expenditures this year, $449,173,334; deposits in national banks, $169,218,732.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 30.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 46@22 points on room covering and some little buying through commission houses on account of the new crop and covering of the bull interest of Liverpool houses based on a bullish set of Liverpool cables and continued talk of lower temperatures than desirable in the cotton country. There was considerable liquidation, however, by room longs preferring profits to carrying cotton over Sunday, and risking a more favorable turn in weather conditions and following the call market lost a point or two of the advance, but ruled generally steady in tone with business limited. The visible supply statement was quite as bearish as expected a sto spinners takings during the week.

Cotton futures closed easy: May, 13.50; June 13.63; July, 13.75; August, 13.43; September, 11.96; October, 11.46; November, 11.33; December, 11.31; January, 11.33. Spot quiet; middling uplands, 13.85; middling gulf, 14.10. Sales, 16.73 bales.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, April 30.—Close: Money on call nominal, no loans. Time loans easy; sixty days, 2¼ per cent; ninety days, 2½; six months, 3¼@3½ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 4@4½ per cent. Sterling exchange steady with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.87@4.87.05 for demand and at $4.85@4.85.10 for sixty days bills; posted rates, $4.86 and $4.88; commercial bills, $4.84@4.85c. Bar silver, 54½c; Mexican dollars, 43½c. Bonds—Governments, steady; railroads, heavy.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN'S ELOQUENT LECTURE

Discusses Value of Ideal In All Phases of Life.

Happiness and Everything In Life Depends on Ideals.

There is something very magnetic about the personality of William Jennings Bryan, the eloquent Nebraskan. His presence before the great audience that filled the First Methodist church last night, his smooth, even flow of words, showing his remarkable command of the English language, his forceful, earnest manner of address, seeming sincerity and logical manner of putting the subject. "The Value of An Ideal," before his hearers in an immense and entertaining way, with numerous apt stories to illustrate his main points, all tended to draw one's close attention at the start, and hold it and keep one most intensely interested until the address—perhaps it might better be called a sermon—was finished.

Men and women, Republicans and Democrats alike, could not but like Mr. Bryan in the non-political role, and probably not a person left the building at the close of the lecture who did not feel that he had been benefited. Mr. Bryan put himself into the immediate sympathy of his audience, which felt instinctively that he was perfectly sincere in his exposition of this limitless subject, and heartily agreed with him when, after being introduced by Mayor Cullum, and, as a preface to what was to follow, he said he thought it much better to discuss things which "bring us together from time to time as citizens, for they are much more important than things which separate us from time to time," the latter reference, of course, being to politics. He said he had made many political speeches in the last ten years, but, from the returns, had found the people did not like them, so had made up his mind he had better change the subject.

Mr. Bryan spoke of the ideal in private, business and political life, and told how absolutely essential a high ideal was to any great advancement, either of a political party, a nation, or an individual.

"The value of an ideal," said the speaker, "is the difference between a noble life and a disgraceful career: I might as well say the difference between life and death."

To illustrate the value of an ideal in dollars and cents, he supposed the case of a rich man with a degenarte son, who had descended so low as to be a hopeless wreck. The father, if asked what he would give to turn the son on the upward path again, with an ideal, would respond that he would give all his riches.

"Cannot suicide be explained by a false conception of life, a false ideal?" he asked. He said that life is measured by what a person does for the world, and that service is the measure of greatness. "The ideal must be far above us, and keeps us always looking upward. It is a misfortune to overtake our ideal. When we overtake our ideal our career has reached its highest point."

"An ideal is a permanent thing and not often changed," said Mr. Bryan. "A man's plans may be changed by circumstances, but that does not necessarily mean that his ideal must likewise change. I know my plans have more than once been changed by circumstances. The first time this occurred was so far back that I can hardly remember it; the last time so recently that I can hardly forget it.

"My father was a Baptist minister. When a little lad it was my ambition to follow in his footsteps and also become a preacher of the gospel. In my childish brain I firmly believed that this would come to pass. Then I went one day with my father to where a number of people were being baptized in a cold-looking pool of water. In answer to my questions father responded that a ducking in the pool was one of the first steps to the ministry. I never became a minister. Some have been so cruel as to say this fact was due to my Democratic dislike for water manifesting itself at an early age."

Turned from the ministry, his next ambition was to become a lawyer. This ambition and a high ideal guided him through all his boyhood and school days. On graduating from college he went to Nebraska to practise his profession. That he did not go there to enter politics was shown to be a fact, said Mr. Bryan, by the fact that the state,, county, town and precinct were all Republican. He remarked that the change since that time has not been so great as the intelligence of the community would seem to warrant.

"When I was elected to congress on the Democratic ticket," the speaker continued, "to the great surprise of my friends and enemies, I said my election was due to a joke I had played in my college days, for only for this joke I would never have become established in the affections of the friend who was subsequently the cause of my removal to Nebraska. But that is nothing; I have known men to get to congress by playing a joke on the whole community."

Mr. Bryan made the most of the opportunity offered to take a fall out of the man who professed to be too good to take part in politics. "A man who is too good to mix in the politics of his country, and endeavor to purify and uplift them, is not deserving of the benefits of a free government," he said. "It should be the boast of American mothers that they can raise sons fit to enter and purify politics, thus living for their country and if necessary sacrificing their own personal ambition for it. There is as much glory in this as meeting death on the battlefield for the sake of one's country. Too many mothers advise their sons to keep out of politics, fearing they will be polluted by them.

"A high ideal is the richest gift that may be conferred by parents or teachers upon young and growing children, their impressionable minds, and simple characters. Service is the measure of greatness. The greatest of men and women have been faithful servants of the people, spending a part or all of their time at the willing and glorious task they have set about to do.

"The value of an ideal is felt in every walk of life. It makes a great difference to a man and those about him whether his ideal is to do as little as possible for the money he gets, or whether it is his ideal to give the greatest value within his power to give. Everyone is working for somebody, if it is only himself. It makes a vast difference whether we are trying to absorb all the good we can from the world, giving nothing in return, or whether we are trying to make some use of our lives, and make better for our presence in it. A manly man should be ashamed to sponge on the world for his board and clothes.

"The speaker did not forget to pay his respects to the man boasting that he is self made, and claiming he is indebted to no one for his success in life. Mr. Bryan expressed his disgust at this type, and said that whenever he met such a person he felt like asking whether they had paid off the debt to their mothers, fathers, teachers, patriots of their early days, who, by their advice and guidance inspired to greater things, and to the early patriots who made the country what it is today, making the "self-made" man's success possible.

Mr. Bryan also lent his attention to the ideal in marriage, religion and politics. He compared certain marriages for money to horse trades, where each trader was trying to get the best of the other. An ideal in marriage is an essential to happiness, as in everything else. He spoke in scathing terms of international marriages made for money and title alone.

"If I was a young woman I would have to be mighty ugly before I would pay a man to marry me," he said.

"We must have ideals in every department of life, as well as individuals. Our happiness and everything in life depends on our ideals. A man can on more build a bushes without an ideal than anyone can build a house without plans."

He also spoke of the necessity of a high ideal in the professions. Of religion and and its ideals he spoke of reading a recent book which tried to prove that there no God. He said the author had attempted to find God with a telescope and then with a microscope, and because he could not see him he declared there was no God. He called this grasshopper philosophy, and said the statements of the scientists along these lines were more difficult to believe than the miracles told of in the Bible. He admitted that during als college days he had entertained some scepticism as to these latter mysteries, but in considering the mysteries they resolved themselves down to two questions: "Could God do that? and, would he want to do that?" He decided that a God who could make the world could do anything he wanted to with it, and said that these ola miracles as described in the Bible contained no greater element of mystery than the plant life to be seen every day.

"The greatest trouble about our belief in religion is that mystery does not bother us in the dining room. It bothers us only in the church," he said.

Turning his attention to the political or party ideal, Mr. Bryan said there was plenty of room for raising the ideal of all parties. "The party ideal should be the patriotic ideal," he said. "The true party man will think of how he could best help his party ao give the best expression to patriotism and this he could do by helping to raise its ideals."

He said that today the public conscience is paralyzed and debauched. In politics it is too often asked, will it pay? or, will it win? rather than, Is it right? The result, he said, was that people are found selling their votes, and the men in government circles and high in the life of the nation are corrupted. Too often, he said, the power of government is used as an implement to promote the aims of private business. Mr. Bryan spoke particularly of the corruption existing in Eastern political circles, and said that this corruption, he was sorry to find, was slopping over in the West. He said he was pained to find that certain sections of the East that the Democrats were imitating the methods of the Republicans in buying votes.

"They are trying to fight the devil with fire," he continued. "Don't ever try to fight the devil with fire. The devil knows more about fire than you do, and he don't pay so much for coal.

"I want my party to be honest, and to have an honest platform, and men who thoroughly believe in the platform, who are sincere in their beliefs, to run for office on it.

"If my political defects benefited my country, as some claim they did, I rest content and rejoice in my defeat.

"The people have a right to what they want. They have a right to the gold standard, to a double standard, to an absence of either if they want it. The people have a right to foster trusts, and to kill monopoly if they want to. They have a right to any old thing, and can get it if they only want it, and they can do away with it when they tire of it.

"Sometimes the people make mistakes, but they are mistakes that are rectified, for it is to the advantage of the people to rectify them. When the government is in the hands of a few, mistakes are also sometimes made, but these mistakes are not corrected, for it is to the advantage of the few not to correct them.

"No deal is good enough for one party that is not good enough for the other, and there is no ideal so high as to be out of the reach of the common people.

"The Anglo-Saxon ideal teaches a man how to respect his own rights, but the American ideal shows him how to respect the rights of others."

MANY HOUSES CAN BE HAD THIS YEAR

Rental Agents Not Finding the Demand for Rental Properties So Large This Spring as Was Expected—Some Have Large Lists Available—Realty Market Quiet During the Week.

The past week has been characterized by a quiet though steady realty market. There has been some buying right along and a number of smaller purchases made during the past month went on record. The larger sales now pending are closing very slowly, some it is claimed on account of the delay in securing the funds necessary to swing the sales. When they will eventually be closed seems, however, only a matter of a little time.

Inquiry continues quite brisk, but has been rather overshadowed in the past week by the rental demands. Following the first week or two in May the real estate brokers are all looking for a better business, for by that time the rental question will have settled itself to a considerable extent for another six months or more.

* * *

Contrary to the expectations of a good many, there are more houses available at the present time than there is a demand for. The situation is a little puzzling, for it was generally supposed that there were more people looking for homes the coming year than there are houses and flats available, and the only explanation given by the agencies is that dissatisfaction over rental figures has caused the renters to be slow about closing leases.

At one office visited yesterday afternoon there was a list of eighteen houses and flats for rent, covering the city from West Duluth to Lester Park, the rentals varying from $10 to $45 per month. During the past few days a great many people have been sent out to look at the places, but up to last evening nothing had been closed.

This condition is pretty nearly true of most of the other rental agencies. A few have about closed out all that they had to handle, but there still seems to be plenty of places available for the first of May, if those looking for houses care to pay the prices asked.

Inquiry at several of the offices where lists are held of vacant properties resulted in the information that in the majority of the cases the rent has not been raised this year. It is thought that the fact that so many places are still available for lease this coming year will have the effect of deterring some of the property owners from the contemplated raising of rents.

* * *

A number of important changes in office locations are now under way on Superior street, and more are rumored to take place this coming week. Today and next Monday will be the popular moving days both in the matter of business and private interests, and the van companies as well as the private dray lines are doing a thriving business.

* * *

Improvement work is being carried on in a number of the large office buildings in the city in the way of revarnishing, remodeling and decorating. The work in the Manhattan office building is now well on toward completion. In the Palladio building the court is being remodeled into a barber shop, the fountain having been removed.

* * *

Ground was broken this week for the new Masonic Temple which will be erected at the corner of Second street and Lake avenue. The building will be one of the largest and most expensive enterprises of this season, and the construction work is to be pushed as fast as possible. The laying of the cornerstone with its attendant ceremonies is scheduled for July 4 next. George H. Lounsberry has the general contract.

* * *

George H. Crosby reports a good week's business with an excellent outlook for the coming month. Among the sales of his office has been a 75-foot lot with house, on West Third street, from A. Levin to H. A. Starkey, for $2100; a residence property at 115 South Nineteenth avenue east, for about $4000; a vacant lot on West Second street and Twenty-eighth avenue west, to George Treveranois, for $1260; a 50-foot lot on East Third street, to local parties, for $2000; a double corner at Forty-seventh avenue east, to outside parties, for $825. This lot was sold for immediate improvement.

* * *

Stryker, Manley & Buck report an active week in negotiations, with a few small sales closed. The firm also reports a good loan business.

* * *

T. G. Vaughan reports among his sales of the week a 25 by 140-foot lot in Fifth street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues east, for $850. The property is to be improved immediately by the construction of some brick flats.

* * *

The excavation work on the Duncan & Brewer building, at the northeast corner of Second street and Second avenue east, has been going on rather more slowly on account of the large amount of rock encountered. Contractor Johnson, who has the excavation work in charge, has been given two weeks' additional time in which to get it completed, on account of the rock work.

* * *

Architect A. Terryberry is getting out plans for a modern seven-room brick residence, costing in the neighborhood of $6000, for Dr. H. S. Spengler. The house will be erected at First street and Twenty-second avenue east. Mr. Terryberry has out plans, also, for a modern seven-room frame residence for George Stephenson, at Second street and Twenty-first avenue east.

* * *

Young & Nystrom, architects, have plans ready for a two-story five-room flat building, at 81 East Fifth street, for Charles Stenberg, also plans for an additional story to the Weiman building, at the corner of Fifteenth avenue east and Superior street. The second story will be utilized for flats. The firm is getting out plans for a two-story frame residence for P. A. Young, at Aitkin, and has drawings under way for a brick flat building on East First street for parties who desire their names withheld for the present.

* * *

Dr. J. J. Eklund, in addition to the row he now has at Fifteenth avenue east and Second street, will erect another of four 7-room houses this coming year, building them on the avenue side.

* * *

The contract for the F. E. House new residence on Twenty-third avenue east has been awarded to John Grady. Plans are by W. T. Bray.

* * *

Architect J. J. Wagenstein has prepared plans for some 2-story brick flats at Seventeenth avenue west and First street, for John Jenswold.

* * *

The Duluth Boat club contemplates the erection of a new launch house, 50 by 100 feet.

* * *

John W. Wolvin has sold to E. L. Phillips for $3500 the residence property at Fourth avenue east and Sixth street, described as part of lots 66 and 68, East Sixth street, First division.

* * *

Warren Wilson has sold to Emil Bjorlin a residence property on the lower side of Second street, between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth avenues west, for $3200.

* * *

The deed conveying the residence property at 208 South Eighteenth avenue east from the Howard Improvement company to Samuel D. Fisher, for $3850, went on record this week. Mr. Fisher is cashier at the local branch house of Armour & Co., and has purchased the residence for a home.

FOND DU LAC!

We must have a little outing for the whole family after our long winters. Fond du Lac, our nearest resort, offers every inducement, good boating and fishing, grand scenery, unlimited play ground for the children away from the cold lake winds; easily accessable by boat or rail. For the first time we are now able to offer a few lots at very reasonable figures. The whole cost of lot and cottage is so small that many should have a summer home in this delightful resort.

BIG POWER PLANT AT THE LAKE MINE

Of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company—Best On the Marquette Range—Immense Smokestack of Radial Brick.

Ishpeming, Mich., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company, one of the largest miners of iron ore, are just completing, for the operation of their Lake mine here, a power plant which is said to be the best and most modern of its kind on the Marquette range, if not in the iron ore mining regions of the Northwest, and embodying, as it no doubt does, the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company's experience of over half a century in the construction of such plants.

The plant consists of a boiler and engine house, having brick walls with steel roof trusses, the boiler rooms having steel columns also. The boiler plant consists of five 72-inch by 18 feet horizontal tubular boilers for 150 pounds of steam pressure, set with Murphy automatic stoker, and the coal bins are hung overhead, carried from the roof trusses, so that the coal runs from the bins direct to the stokers, and is automatically fired. There is an ash tunnel underneath the ash pits, in which there is a tram car operated by a small puffer. The ashes are dumped directly into the car by the simple movement of a lever, and are run down to a pit, where they are automatically dumped. There is also a Green economizer in the up-take of the boiler for the purpose of heating the feed water to the highest possible temperature. The smokestack is of radial brick, 6 feet 6 inches internal diameter and 166 feet 6 inches high from the foundation, and was built by the Alphins Custodis Chimney Construction company. To the writer's knowledge, this stack is second in size in the North country, the largest being the stack at the Calumet & Hecla Mining company's plant at Calumet, which is 251 feet 6 inches high and 12 feet 6 inches internal diameter.

The engine room contains a hoist, compressor and electric tram engine and dynamos, and is fitted with an 8-ton hand crane. The hoist consists of a pair of 20-inch by 42-inch Corliss engines driving two 7-foot diameter by 4-foot face drums. The drums have steam operated clutches and brakes and the engine has steam operated spiral reverse gear. This machine was built by the Sullivan Machinery company, of Chicago. The compressor has a capacity of 4000 cubic feet of free air per minute and has 22 and 45 cross compound Corliss steam cylinders, exhausting into an attached condenser of the Nordberg type. The air cylinders are 37 and 23 inches in diameter, all with 48-inch stroke, having Corliss inlet and outlet valves all around. The inter-cooler is of the spray type. The electric tram plant consists of t 75-kilowatt 4-pole N. P. type, General Electric company, generator, and has 13 and 22 by 14-inch Ideal tandem compound engine with independent condensor. The cooling water for condensing purposes and jackets on the compressor will be taken from a cooling tower. The building is not quite completed, but the machinery has been installed some two months and will soon be placed in operation.

The photograph herewith reproduced was taken last fall while the building was in the process of erection, and shows the immense stack, which rises considerably above the hill—a watchman over the city of Ishpeming, which lies on the other side. On the right in the background is a partial view of the Lake mine.

Among other iron ore properties of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company are the "Cliffs Mine shaft," here, and the Mass mine, at Negaunee. The mining office and shops of the company are located here, and the land department office is at Negaunee. In addition to the mining of iron ore and its allied interests, the company has other enterprises, although no doubt, at present, more in the nature of experiments.

CLEVELAND-CLIFFS SMOKESTACK.
166½ Feet High and 6½ Feet Internal Diameter.

About three miles out of Negaunee they have a sheep ranch, the first in this north country, and a dairy, known as the Bellevue farm, which is managed by Sam J. Sims, and it has attained more than a local reputation for its products. At Negaunee they also have a greenhouse and nursery.

A STORY OF LAKE WINDIGO FROM THE INDIAN LEGENDS

How Way-nah, the Great Ojibway Chief, Tested the Devotion of the Pale-face Ralph For His Granddaughter, Ruth.

THE END OF THE GREAT GAMBLER.

Way-nah, the great Ojibway chief, had chosen an ideal dwelling place, back from the pine clad shores of the lake. The old log cabin was surrounded with the smooth red trunks of the giant Norways, the pine forest stretched for miles behind, free from underbrush, save here and there, the younger pine were striving for existence. To the left were several strands of fine nature, white pine, whose tops floated majestically in the breeze, and whose butts were fully forty inches trough. In front, the lake shore for miles around was lined with silvery sand, easy of access both for canoes and bathers. The waters were pure, sparkling in the sun, and were fed by natural springs along the shores, which guzzled forth cool, refreshing waters from the hillside. On the bosom of the lake, many warriors had ridden to victory or to death. It was the main waterway to the small towns and villages and connected the smaller lakes and portages with the markets of the "pale face." Often had this chief seen the moon send forth its glittering rays and the sun its golden hues into its bosom, while from his hut he watched the canoes as they glided past and noted their occupants.

The soil around his home was sandy and drank in rain as quickly as it fell. It was very fertile. The old warrior tilled a little garden near his cabin with marked success. Wild flowers of various colors, with rich fragrance, grew in abundance. In summer, the ground was covered with blueberries. The gentle breezes carried the health-giving ozone from the lake and pines. The tints of the trees gave added beauty to the scene, while the woods and shores were dwelling places of wild birds. With dextrous skill, the chief secured all the game necessary for his family needs, deer and moose being plentiful. Inside the cabin were precious treasures of his youth, also relics of the war and chase. Several pieces of lace and rush work remained to remind him of her, who was once his squaw.

On this particular morning, the only other inmate of the cabin was busily at work making an exquisite beaded wall pocket in many colors. Ruth was the joy of the old chief's life, all that remained to him of kith and kin, the only child of his wayward son, whom many summers ago had joined the tribe beyond the lake in the West. He was greatly attached to his granddaughter. Ruth was proud of the chief. She was of moderate height, with a broad forehead; tresses of luxurient hair, black and glossy, presisted in falling over her shoulders. Her cheeks, unlike those of the chief, were well rounded and proportioned, nearly white, with eyes as black as coal, flashing forth a strange and piercing light. She was harmoniously built, with limbs strong and lithe. Ruth's simple dark dress was very neat and betokened a thoughtful, careful woman. Every few minutes she went to the small window overlooking the forest, gazed long and intently, as if expecting some visitor. At last he came—a young man of about 22, clad in a hunting suit, a Remington over his shoulder, and a dog following immediately at his heels. There was nothing strange about this youth. He was a typical American, the son of a Puritan soldier, his head erect, his chest forward, and walking as if at drill.

Way-nah's mongrel dogs gave vent to their displeasure at the approach of their canine thoroughbred, but quickly retired at the command of their master. The young people greeted each other and entered the house. Way-nah watched them with considerable alarm. In the days of long ago, he would have found an easy way to rid himself of this enemy to the wigwam. Now he was puzzled. What should he do when the time came, as come it must, when he must consent to give Ruth to the white man? Could he find a test worthy of such a man, a test that would give him confidence in the man Ruth should marry? He would try or die in the attempt. All his old medicine art had failed to stop the courtship. Ruth was thinking more of Ralph and less of him. He gathered himself up and left the cabin. Taking from his pocket a heathen charm, a leather bag, he took from its inside a small snake rattle. This had never failed him; if it now failed, his days were numbered, his star would die out; he would die alone and uncared for, only by the All Wise. He chanted a strange dirge, muttering to himself as he fondly stroked the ribs of this strange charm. Then a light lit up his checkered, wrinkled face. He straightened his bent form, then looked to the East. It was well, the All Wise had given him a test for the lover. He would travel the eastern road, accompanied by the youth. If they traveled it in safety and returned west, the stranger could have his consent. If not, both men would die together. Ruth would quickly follow, he knew her desire and spirit. With calm purpose the chief entered the hut; Ralph confronted him with Ruth in his embrace.

Ralph's government work on the survey was done and he was ordered to report at Washington. He was sick at heart, though cheered by Ruth's

FARM SCENES NEAR DULUTH

STOCK ON A NEW FARM NOT FAR FROM DULUTH.

The Finlander method of milking goats is more effective than dignified.

The plan certainly obtains results. The goat is held immovable without being tied, and the hands are within easy reach of the business end of the animal. The esthetic sense may be violated by the sight of a young lady straddling a goat, but no complaints have ever been heard that the plan is not beautifully simple, and the best method of restraining the fractious animal from its playful capers during the process.

Whether the plan could be extended to include other milk-giving animals is doubtful. The gentle bossie might be tempted to walk off with the operator.

The above picture was taken by a local kodak fiend on a little farm in a settlement of Finns not many miles from Duluth. A similar sight can be witnessed any day in the week by any who care to visit the settlement.

The Finns have a reputation for being a goat-keeping race, and long experience with milking them has enabled them to determine the most scientific method. The result of centuries of experience with the playful "Nannies" is embodied in the method shown above.

Those who are not accustomed to wander about the country back of Duluth would be surprised to see the number of small settlements that have grown up there during the past two or three years. The Finnish settlement where the above picture was taken is but one of many similar settlements that have sprung up during that time. Settlers are moving in and clearing a few acres of land for the cultivation of garden products and the raising of poultry. There are few large farms, but many a comfortable cottage is being built by these pioneer settlers. The produce finds a ready market in the city, and the settlers are prosperous.

Goats have been found by other settlers than Finns to be a good investment. They will thrive on a diet which would kill any other animal than a mule, and the pasturage on the partly cleared lands is ample to support them.

Fine teams of horses and small herds of cattle are also commencing to make their appearance, and many a settler can display a span of draft horses that would strike envy into the hearts of the wealthy owners of the fertile acres in the southern part of the state.

THREW ACID IN NUN'S FACE

Dastardly Deed of Tramp at Wheeling, W. Virginia.

Wheeling, W. Va., April 30.—Sister Mary Alma, of the community of St. Joseph, who was assaulted by three burly negroes at the Catholic orphanage, in Elm Grove, last September, received the contents of a large bottle of carbolic acid thrown by a tramp yesterday afternoon, and is in a serious condition at St. Joseph's convent.

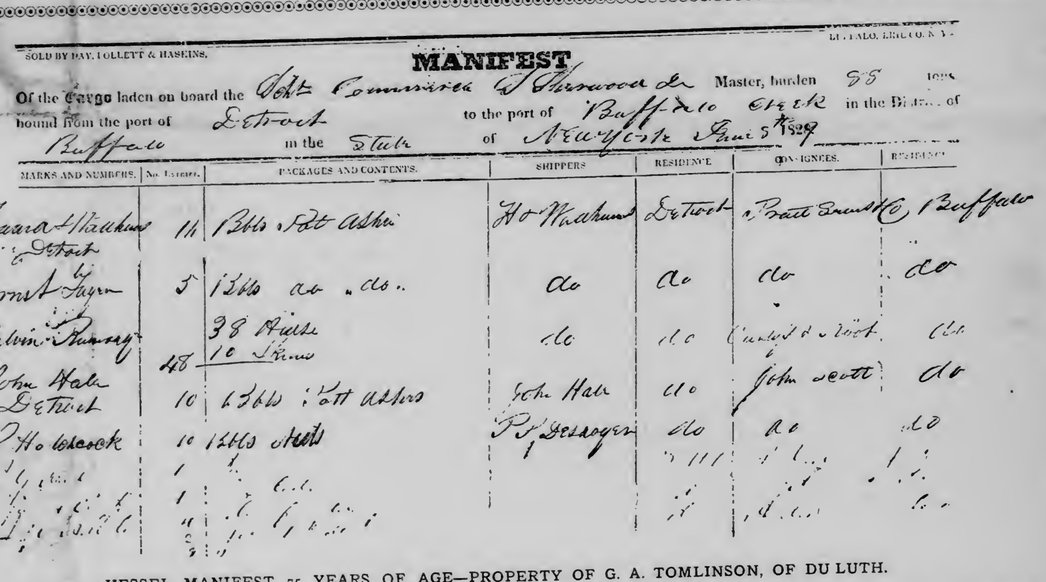

The tramp rapped at the door of the convent and asked for money. Sister Alma said she could not give money, but if he wanted anything to eat it would be given him.

He returned a little later and when the sister opened the door, dashed the bottle in her face. The attending physicians think her sight will be saved, but her prostration may result fatally.

Threatening letters were sent to local newspapers recently, stating that anarchists would avenge the punishment of the negroes convicted of the Elm Grove outrage unless they were given another trial, and letters of warning, written in a friendly vein, were received by the sister superior of the convent and the chief of police.

The acid thrower was a white man and from the meagre description Sister Alma was able to furnish, the police have arrested several suspects.

VESSEL MANIFEST 75 YEARS OF AGE—PROPERTY OF G. A. TOMLINSON, OF DULUTH.

An interesting document is in the possession of G. A. Tomlinson, the local vessel owner. It is a vessel manifest over 75 years old, issued at a time when Duluth did not appear on the map, and when no ship larger than a birch-bark canoe had entered the local harbor.

The manifest was for the old schooner Commerce, S. Sherwood, Jr., master. It was issued on June 8, 1829, by the collector of the port of Detroit, and states that the vessel was bound for Buffalo with a cargo of general merchandise.

The little schooner was of but 88 tons burden, or about the size of the tug Inman, and her cargo list would cause a smile on the face of the modern vessel owner. Some of the items are as follows: Five kegs of nails, eight rolls of leather, ten barrels of salt and other smaller entries. The total number of items is not more than twenty-five or thirty, and the vessel, cargo and all could be stored in one corner of the hold of a modern steamer.

Mr. Tomlinson prizes the document highly, as a curious relic of the early days of navigation on the great lakes.

CURIOUS INCIDENTS AT THE UNION DEPOT

Some of the Trials and Tribulations of the Ticket Sellers—How Many People Miss Their Trains—Ticket Clerks Must Be Linguists.

"What teah tren gaw Mannyoplus?"

That's about the way some people express a desire to learn from the depot ticket agent the leaving time of a train.

There are all sorts and conditions of people at the ticket window for information every hour, and if anyone wants to find a place where patience is not only a virtue, but an absolute necessity, he can find it in the position of the ticket seller behind the grated window in the Union depot.

An Austrian comes up to the window and asks the rate to Hibbing.

"Kucksakucks a mente." Or at least that's what it sounds like.

That means two dollars and twenty cents of American money in the Austrian tongue, and goes to show that the ticket sellers do not confine their efforts to the English language.

"How's that? That all right? Kucksakucks a mente?"

The Austrian smiles as the ticket is handed out and nods his approval of the pronounciation. He gets 80 cents in change from his three silver dollars, and departs.

* * *

"What's the fare to Hibbing" a lumberjack asks.

"Two twenty."

"What time?"

"Two twenty."

"How much is the ticket?"

"Two twenty."

"I want to know the fare and the time, too."

"Well, I've tried to tell you. The train goes at twenty minutes after two and the price of the ticket is two dollars and twenty cents. They are both two twenty."

"Oh. Let me have a ticket."

* * *

A young woman, good-looking, but distressed, wants to get a ticket exchanged. She comes from Hurley, Wis., and is going to Virginia. She missed the connecting train, she says, because she did not hear the train called, and wants the exchange made so she can go up on the other road.

"I have no authority to exchange such tickets. You'll have to pay your fare to the conductor and then send the ticket to the general office and they will give you what's due you on it."

"But I have not the money to pay my fare."

"I am sorry, but this office cannot adjust the matter."

She goes away distressed and brings back the depot matron, who is desirous of helping her out of her difficulty. But nothing can be done, and she has to wait until the morning train.

* * *

A young man buys a ticket for Two Harbors. It is exactly 3:15 and the train is just due to go. The clerk advises him to run for the gate or he will get left. The train can be heard pulling out and by going to the window the clerk sees the train shed in full view with the departing train and no sign of the Two Harbor's passenger. When the train has gone a couple of hundred feet and is absolutely "catchless," the young man appears walking deliberately toward the gate, which has in the meantime been closed and deserted by the gateman. Pretty soon the disappointed passenger appears at the window and wants to get his money back on his ticket.

"We can't buy back tickets here."

"Well, I've missed the train and can't get away till tomorrow."

"Ticket's good tomorrow."

"Oh, all right then."

* * *

A woman wants a round trip ticket to Virginia.

"Is it good back from Hibbing?"

"No, ma'am."

"Then give me a ticket one way to Virginia."

Hibbing is no farther than Virginia, but is on another branch of the road. Anyway, the clerk does not know but what she may be a "spotter," and don't want to advise her to take any chances, as it might be bad policy.

* * *

"What's the fare to Fargo?"

"Seven-thirty."

"Can I get a train this evening?"

"Yes."

"What time?"

"Seven-thirty."

"You told me the fare. I want to know what time the evening train goes."

"Yes, I understand. The train goes at 7.30."

"And the fare?"

"The fare is seven dollars and thirty cents."

"Both the same?"

"Yes."

Another case of duplicate.

* * *

Some foreigner wants a ticket to New York at a rate which will carry him via Montreal, and the ticket takes some time to prepare. A second ticket clerk has entered and is asked to get it. He sets about doing so and the foreigner gets nervous. He is given a piece of paper to hold, which seems to pacify him, as he believes it will entitle him to his ticket and he holds on to this bit of paper patiently until he gets his ticket. Then he goes on his way rejoicing.

* * *

"What time does the next train go?" a young woman asks.

"Four o'clock."

She disappears and comes back in a few minutes.

"Didn't you tell me the next train went at 4 o'clock?" she demands.

"Yes, ma'am."

"Well, it doesn't. At least the man

The idea is a new one to Duluth, but is extensively carried out in the East. Some quaint and pretty posters have been made announcing the event, and a deal of interest is being shown. The breakfast will be served from 7 to 9 on Wednesday morning.

* * *

One of the most delightful affairs of the week to the fortunate few invited was the luncheon Tuesday at which the members of the Women's Council were the guests of the housekeepers' class of the Normal. The housekeepers' class is made up of women outside of the school who desire to attend the class and some of them were experienced housekeepers before attending the class. The table in the center of the room was daintily spread with a luncheon cloth and decorated prettily with roses and their petals scattered over the cloth. Around the sides of the room sat the guests.

When the luncheon was announced the members of the class entered each bearing a small tray with the guest's napkin, glass of water and the first course. These trays were held upon the lap until the end of the luncheon. The day was not one of experimenting as each receipe had been tested and found good and within the capabilities of the hostesses. Everything was delicious and the plates were carefully scraped for the last small morsel.

After the luncheon an informal discussion of the work of the council was held by the members. A plea was made by one of the women for the continuance of the work in basketry which has been carried on at the Webster school. The funds have run out and it was thought that the work would have to be discontinued but a few offerings that were made Tuesday amounted to six dollars, which will furnish material for some little time. This training in manual work is a boon to the children of that part of the town near the Webster and the money which they are able to make from the sale of the little baskets which they make is used to good purpose. The subject of providing shrubs and seeds for the Webster and Garfield schools was talked of and the schools will receive them as before.

The afternoon was a delightful one and thoroughly enjoyed by the hostesses and guests.

FOR THE HONOR OF A NAME

By Ellis Holdom.

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

George had always been extremely fond of Burton, his younger brother, and he made no secret of it. There were several brothers and sisters between—in fact George was a good 20 years Burton's senior, but somehow there was a subtle cord connecting the two that nobody exactly understood.

"Bertie has got the real stuff in him, mother." George would say on one of his rare visits home. "He's a true Gray, and when he gets ready to go against the world I would like to engineer him for a few years."

The mother would look from the strong face of her eldest son, who had made so great a success in the world, to the slim-pled cheeks of her youngest born, and laugh in pure joy that the fatherless child had so strong a protector. For George Gray certainly had won his spurs. Never poor, the family had found their affairs considerably tangled when the father died. In the midst of the general entanglement George had returned from college and with the easy assurance of a master had taken the management of the estate from the hands of the lawyers and the rest of the family, and in a few brief months had straightened everything out in a most satisfactory manner. In doing so he had acquired an intimate knowledge of the stock market, into which he plunged immediately upon his release from his self-imposed task of placing the affairs of the family upon a secure foundation. A few years had sufficed for him to make an independent fortune, since when he had lapsed into the easy and luxurious life of the typical city clubman. His married brothers and sisters he regarded with more or less indifference, his mother with deep respect and veneration. But Bertie he looked upon with the keen affection of a parent or a lover.

And so, while Burton was still at school, George posted him at the exclusive clubs so he would be reached by the time he was ready to join.

George Gray was a typical old batch of the old school and was thoroughly wedded to his clubs, his comfort and his independence.

It was when Burton was just turning into his twenties that George was startled out of his easy-going, complacent, luxurious life by a letter from his mother.

"Oh, George," it ran, "I fear all is lost. Bertie is infatuated with an actress—a low, vulgar, third-rate actress—and threatens to marry her. And from the way he has talked to me I fear that he will do it. He is so like his grandfather Gray—so high-headed and impatient of restraint or authority, that I fear he will do his worst. Think of it, George, Bertie—dainty, aristocratic, artistic Bertie, tied to a coarse vulgarian. Do—do try to do something. I can do no more. Indeed, I fear I have done too much already. I fear I have set him in his determination by my violent opposition. Try, George, try. I have no other help to lean on in this great affliction."

George Gray read the letter entirely through and then read it through again. He lit a fragrant cigar and leaned back in the great leather chair—his favorite corner at his favorite club. He blew out a whiff of blue smoke. Then he bit the cigar savagely and said:

"Dam."

Then he pitched the cigar into the cuspidor and rang for a cab.

Yes, there was only one thing to do. He must give up all his comforts and luxuries and hie himself to Littleford, where Bertie was in college, and upset this impossible marriage. He had thought it all out in a minute. Bertie could not be defied or driven, and Heaven forbid that he should be permitted to blast his life in this way. He was the only human being who knew Bertie well enough to manage him. Yes, he must give up his clubs and his ease and immolate himself upon the spur of necessity.

On the following evening he arrived at Littleford. Burton was evidently not only surprised, but suspicious.

"Just run down to get a breath of country air and have a chat with you," said George, cheerily, ignoring Burton's constraint. "And incidentally I want to see her ladyship. Mother has been writing me that you have found your destiny and she don't seem to like it. Women are so infernally set in these matters. Just as though every fellow hasn't got to settle these affairs for himself. So I thought I'd come and brace you up a bit."

The suspicion vanished from Burton's face, the constraint from his manner.

"You're a brick, George," he exclaimed. "You're the only one in the family who understands a fellow. By Jove, I don't propose to be dictated to in my love affairs. I've got an income of my own now that I'm of age, and I can support a wife. And I propose to marry to suit myself."

"Of course, of course," replied George, gaily. "Stick to it, my boy. When can I see the lady and present my felicitations?"

"We'll have a little dinner tomorrow at Maffoul's. Make it 6:30 sharp, as she goes on at 8 and has to be at the theater at 7:30. She's in the Lyceum stock, you know. Beastly place, and I'm going to marry her as soon as the term is over and get her out of it. She's got the talent to star it, but has had hard luck with those infernal thieves of managers. Anyway, I don't want her on the stage after we're married."

"The young cub," said George savagely to himself as he strolled back to his hotel. "What he needs is a good licking."

Defiance blazed from the black eyes of Lorela Furman when she met George Gray. It was plain that she recognized an enemy. The man of the world sized his antagonist with painstaking care while he greeted her with the deference of a knight to his queen. He beheld a vain, selfish woman some years Burton's senior, with some natural attractions, but more that were artificial; a woman of native shrewdness and tact, a certain native coquettishness and charm of manner which she used with great cleverness; a woman of fiery temper and passionate temperament, but under self-control unusual to one of her mentality and education; ignorant of books and culture, but worldly-wise. He gave a sigh of relief.

"I am most happy to meet the lady who is soon to become one of us," he said with warmth, "and doubly happy to find her so charming. But Bertie always did have good taste."

The supper passed most pleasantly, despite the evident suspicion of the actress and the nervousness of Burton, who found himself involuntarily watching for the bad grammar and lapses into slang which characterized the conversation of his inamorata. He never had heard her talk so badly, he thought. But George seemed charmed and wholly at ease, and his geniality and wit soon placed everyone at ease.

"He ain't half bad," Lorela was forced to admit after it was all over. "But he's a deep one, and 'll bear watching. He better not come any of his tricks on me or he'll hear something drop."

"She's a hummer, Bertie," exclaimed George enthusiastically, as they walked toward his hotel. "You're in great luck, old chap."

A carriage ride was arranged for the following day, and a right jolly one it was. George apparently could not restrain his satisfaction at the approaching marriage, and his enthusiastic admiration for Lorela. The two brothers went to the theater that night to see her perform. It was about as bad as it could be, but George could see no flaw in Lorela's acting.

"If she only had a decent part and some sort of support she'd be a wonder," he exclaimed.

He was to return to the city the following day, he had announced. But when Burton went around to see him off he found George in bed, not feeling at all well, he said. The doctor (an old college mate of George's) came while Burton was there. He looked grave and declared that George must not think of going back to the city for a fortnight at least. His nerves were badly upset and he needed quiet and rest. George acquiesced impatiently.

About this time a new figure appeared on the scene, a smooth, well-dressed, handsome man of 35 or 38. He spent money so freely as to attract attention at once. He appeared in a box at the Lyceum and was evidently smitten deeply with the charms of Lorela Furman. He sought and obtained an introduction, and night after night sent her flowers at the climax of her part. He was courteous and gentlemanly and managed to see much of her.

It was whispered about that he was a millionaire broker from the great metropolis, and that he had come on business, but remained because smitten with the charms of Lorela Furman. Percy Wright was his name.

Burton had not failed to see all these things and came to George in a jealous rage. George laughed at his jealousy.

"Pooh, pooh," said he, "Trust the girl. She's a true blue and I know it. Actresses can't help receiving admiration and flowers and all that sort of thing. What is the man's name?"

"Percy Wright," replied Burton.

George looked grave. "Percy Wright?" he exclaimed. "Why, he's one of the richest and most powerful men in the city. We'll have to look into this."

On the following day he insisted on rising and calling on Miss Furman.

"You certainly cannot mean to throw Bertie over because this richer suitor appears," he said sternly. "You know, of course, that Percy Wright never would marry you. He is only amusing himself."

She tossed her head and her black eyes flashed. "He has proposed already, and on paper, too," she said, waving an envelope triumphantly. "But I have not answered it, yet."

"But," pleaded George, "you will not break Bertie's heart, will you? He is so wrapped up in you. I know you are too good a woman to throw a boy over even if he has only twelve hundred a year, and marry a man twice your age because he happens to be a millionaire."

"Twelve hundred a year," she exclaimed. "Why, he told me he was worth four thousand a year securely invested."

George smiled deprecatingly. "I'm afraid he stretched it a little," he said. "And there have been some losses we haven't told him of."

"But, surely it was not on account of his income you were going to marry him," he continued, sternly.

"No," she faltered. "But there must be some way to live, you know. He can't earn anything to speak of for years."

When Burton heard the result of the conversation from George he was furious, and nothing George could do could prevent him from rushing off post haste to see her. The interview was short and sharp. The tempers of both blazed and the result was that on the following day Burton received his engagement ring back with a terse note breaking the engagement.

George was all sympathy and indignation. He insisted that Bertie should accompany him to the city at once, and that they should then take a long trip abroad together, one to learn to forget, the other to regain his strength.

The strange thing about it is that from that day to this nobody has seen Percy Wright. Lorela received a few letters from him after he returned to the city, but after the departure of the Grays for Europe these ceased, and the most vigilant search of Lorela's lawyers failed to locate him.

"I thought he was a deep 'un," said she, "and I am a fool."

A Flat For His Fair Alice and a Stable For the "Bubble" Were Secured Before He Learned the Source of Her Jollity.

New York, April 30.—Alice Rivers is home. Statement of this fact on several recent evenings created some mild interest in a coterie of moneyed young men who meet often in the cafe of a hotel facing on Madison square. Coupled with such expression of surprise as almost continually bored men may indulge was always the query, which none could answer, "Does Harry know?" He is an acquaintance of this group, occasionally a sharer to a mild extent of their sessions, but differs from them in being a worker. Indeed, in the less than ten years since he came here from a New England city he has shown such abilities as to make reasonable the prospect of a national reputation as a maker of wealth for himself and for his associates.

It was some four years ago that he took up with Alice. He had just brought to a successful completion a particularly arduous deal in salt. Just what was effected I do not know, but it was in the general line of a combination of producers. The deal had hung fire for weeks in an excessively delicate state, where a slight mistake would have upset months of careful and shrewd preparation. When the coon finally came down from the tree, Harry found himself possessed of big profits and such weariness that he thought best to forego all business for a spell. So he bought a touring auto—they were not nearly so numerous then as now—and set out for New England and the Canadian border.

He was gone nearly three months, during which he fished some, hunted a little rested much and made Alice's acquaintance. She was a passenger of the auto on his return, and she was his companion in the short trips, often of not more than an hour or two, that thereafter became his chief means of recreation. A stable for the bubble in Fifty-seventh street and a flat for Alice in Fifty-ninth made it an easy matter to pick up both for a spin, so the young promoter's indulgence in the auto craze consumed no more time than the average man puts into his hobby or pet game. As to his companion, she was fine by suited to him, if there is any truth in the rule of opposites in such mating. She opposed to his well-contained ways an effervescent, rollicking manner of taking fun that he seemed to enjoy watching, and that assured them lively company whenever they sought any.

It was all very well for some three years, by which time it had been impressed on Harry that the true inwardness of his pet's jollity was stimulation. Also was he convinced that she responded only after consuming a great deal more than she used to, and that her fondness for enlivening liquors and her reckless indulgence therein was at times a bit embarrassing in company. Worse yet was her tendency to indulge when he was not in her company, and having become well primed, to long for and seek out her Harry. Twice she acquired her exhilaration early enough in the day to trail him while yet he was on has way up town, and then she located him one evening when he had settled down for a game of sociable drinking and business talk in the company of men with money to invest. Word of her being at the door was passed to him on the quiet, of course, and his message to her that he was too busy to see her just then was conveyed to her without the knowledge of any of the others. But gentle Alice sent by the flunkey the ultimatum that her Harry should come to her at once or she'd go in to him, even if the latter process involved carrienationizing the whole honkatonk.

Harry went, and he carried the matter off with complete success, both with the willful frolicker in her carriage outside and with the men whose confidence he was trying to win. It was thin ice for a moment or two, but he got away with it. Yet the incident set him thinking, and the burden of his thought was that the dear girl was likely to become a nuisance. It's a dreadfully hard conclusion, come to put it in black print, but it is one that is reached very often by men in such association. And having reached it, this man was not slow to action. How to be rid of the girl most completely and fairly—yes, and most cheaply and easily—was a matter requiring study. But Harry was a resourceful chap. He had never gossiped with friends as to how Joe or Jim got rid of Tilly or Jessie, yet he knew when the time came all the well-practiced methods. Buying the woman off to remain in the city wasn't to his liking, for he believed it laid him open to later blackmail, and a plain shake without providing for her would be injudicious, because he was actuated anyhow by a desire to avoid scandal, and he had a lively respect for Alice's abilities in kicking up a rumpus when crossed.

So a trip to Europe was proposed and accepted by the woman after much urging. He would provide means for her doing the continent, but first she should stay for a time at some health resort, where she should take treatment for over-indulgence. Then if only she would behave herself she should continue her trip at Harry's expense. The true inwardness of it all was apparent enough, and Alice was on while she consented. Her feeling was that it was the best she could do, and shortly before last Christmas she was off. She took a 10-day boat so as to have a good long rest before going ashore, and lonesomeness attacked her before she was long out of sight of Sandy Hook. But she found solace in booze, and so it proved throughout her absence. So when a month ago she reached the conclusion that Harry, back in New York, was done putting up, there was no entanglement to prevent her returning to her protector and claiming his further consideration. So the gentle Alice wrote him a fond request for further funds and came to America by the same steamer that bore her missive.

The note would put him off his guard until she could see him, she thought. And so it proved, for at the time the coterie of the Broadway hotel was wondering if Harry had seen her, he had—very much so. As lightning from a clear sky she appeared to him at his down-town offices, entering his private sanctum without announcement and greeting him most affectionately. By the time Harry had impressed her with his feeling that then was not the time, nor there the place, for carresses, she observed that another man was in the sanctum. He was a heavyweight in the financial matters of a small city up the state, and was becoming interested in some of the good things Harry had to offer. But how was the dear girl to know that? He to her was nothing but a man, and this was her homecoming, so she kissed him as fondly as she had Harry, being, it seemed to the watchful promoter, permitted to linger over the greeting rather longer than in his case. Then she dropped into a chair, lifted her feet to the top of Harry's desk and remarked that the down-town atmosphere just there was unnecessarily dry.

This was no tableau for 2:30 p. m., within two short blocks of the very middle of Wall street. The up-stater realized this, while finding entertainment in it, and Harry felt it so keenly that he adjourned business cares for the day and hurried the woman away. Then Alice had the last ride she's ever to have in Harry's auto. He says so and is to be believed, and meanwhile the poor girl's future is not assured.

NEW TRIAL GIVEN

New Lease of Life For a Long Drawn Out Case.

The Government Against Davidson Company In Breakwater Accident.

Several matters came up before Judge Page Morris for consideration today during the special session of the United States district court in the federal court room.

The court ordered a new trial in the case of the United States against the Davidsan Steamship company. This will make the fourth time this case has been tried. It started over one of the steamship company's boats colliding with the government breakwater at Two Harbors about four years ago. The government brought suit to recover $4000 damages.

The case first came up before Judge Shiras, of Iowa, then holding court here, and was set aside on a technicality. Next is came up before Judge Amidon, of North Dakota, and the jury disagreed. The third and last trial was before Judge Page Morris, when the jury returned a verdict of $1000 against the steamship company.

A new trial was asked by the government on the grounds that if damages were assessed at all they should be for an amount not less than $4000.

United States District Attorney Houpt, who is attending court in company with Assistants Al J. Smith and J. M. Dickey, argued the motion on behalf of the government, and H. R. Spencer appeared for the company.

Arguments were also heard today in the condemnation proceedings begun by the United States against lot 201, on Park Point, and land in the vicinity of Pokegama dam, near Grand Rapids. The court appointed G. W. Buck, G. H. Roberts and E. R. Jefferson as a board of appraisers to fix upon the value of the Park Point property, which the government desires for the construction of a boatyard and the erection of suitable buildings. Henry R. King, J. A. Stewart and D. M. Gunn were appointed as a board to appraise the value of the Pokegama dam property. The first named board will hold its first meeting on the morning of May 23 in the federal court room, while the other will meet at Grand Rapids, in the clerk of court's office, on the morning of May 10.

Arguments are being heard this afternoon on the motion of Arthur R. Hathorn, of Minneapolis, for a preliminary injunction against William D. Hale, postmaster at Minneapolis, to prevent the latter from refusing to deliver the plaintiff's mail. The Minneapolis postmaster was instructed by the postmaster general to withhold mail addressed to Hathorn and the Hathorn Commission company, on the grounds that they were sending fraudulent matter through the mails. Mr. Hathorn has brought suit to compel the delivery of his personal mail. Attorney M. H. Boutelle appears for the complainant and United States District Attorney Houpt and Assistant Al J. Smith for the government.

SENSATIONAL CHARGES

Made Against Insurance Commissioner of Wisconsin.

Milwaukee, April 30.—Illegal collection of alleged extortionate fees and expenses for the conduct of an examination of the affairs of the Prudential Insurance company of America, is charged against State Insurance Commissioner Seno M. Host by the company in a suit begun in the United States circuit court at Milwaukee.

These sensational charges are the outgrowth of an alleged attempt on the part of the insurance commissioner to examine into the affairs of the Fidelity Trust company, of Newark, N. J., a corporation in which the Prudential Insurance company owns a large amount of stock.

The insurance company alleges that it has been called upon to pay sums aggregating $21,624 to the state insurance commissioner for an examination of its affairs, and that it has been ordered to show cause why its license should not be discontinued. Judge Seaman today ordered Insurance Commissioner Host to show cause on May 9 why a preliminary injunction should not be granted restraining him and his agents from interfering with the right of the insurance company to do business in the state.

CONFIRMS REPORT

News of Battle Indirectly Substantiated By Missionary.

Japanese at London Think the Report Is Reliable.

Shan Hai Kwan, April 30.—Reports of a big battle on the Yalu river have been given considerable substantiation by information brought in by four Danish missionaries who have just arrived here from Newchwang.

When these missionaries left Antong ten days ago the Rusians in that vicinity numbered 30,600 men and occupied strongly fortified positions between Antong and the Ai river, which empties into the Yalu river about twenty miles northeast of Antong. There also were small Rusisan forces at Hsu Yen and Feng Huan Cheng, where bases had been established. These two places are respectively about 65 and 45 miles to the northwest of Antong.

The Russians along the railroad line according to the missionaries, were burning bean cakes, endeavoring with some success to prevent the export of this product.

London, April 30.—5:13 p. m.—The Japanese legation up to the present has received no confirmation of the reported important engagement between the Japanese and Russian forces on the Yalu river, but the officials think it quite probable. The main body of the Japanese army is believed to have traversed the mountain passes and crossed the Yalu a hundred miles from the sea, with the object of taking the Russian forces near the mouth of the river in the rear. The legation is of opinion that the Japanese operations at the mouth of the Yalu river were merely in the nature of a feint.

St. Petersburg, April 30.—The absence of telegrams from Rear Admiral Yehsen this morning is regarded at the admiralty as proof that the Japanese have not attempted to bombard Vladivostok. It is understood that Vice Admiral Chouknin, now commanding the naval cadet school, will succeed Vice Admiral Skrydloff as commander of the Russian Black sea fleet, and that Admiral Korsakoff will succeed Admiral Chouknin.

Tokio, April 30.—Admiral Hosoya, commanding the Third squadron, reports that on the morning of April 29, gunboats fired on the enemy at the mouth of the Yalu river, but the Russians did not reply. Later a flotilla of small ships, armed with cannon, opened fire on 150 of the enemy at Sandoroto, and teh latter retreated to the mountains, leaving many wounded. The Japanese had no casualties.

Tokio, April 30.—Fourteen foreign military attaches who have been assigned to the first army, left Tokio today by rail for the port of Shimonoseki. They will sail May 3 for an unknown destination. Members of the general staff, the ministers and a large crowd of people bade them farewell at the railroad.

Pekin, April 30.—The Russian censorship over telegrams has been extended to the station at Hsin Min Tun, Manchuria, which is about thirty miles west of Mukden. The Chinese government is greatly amazed at what is termed Russian interference with the telegraphs at Hsin Min Tun, with which place communication hitherto has been free and regular.

The report that the Russians are about to enforce martial law in the country west of the Liao river has been confirmed and in certain diplomatic quarters here the feeling that Russia is seeking an occasion to quarrel with China is gaining ground.

Pekin, April 30.—It is declared here that certain Russian officials are circulating a story accusing China of having made a secret treaty with Japan regarding the port of Amoy and the province of Fu Kien, and containing the statement that prominent Chinese and Japanese officials already have left Shanghai from Amoy to arrange the preliminaries of the treaty. Chinese and Japanese officials here unite in denying this accusation.

SINKING OF TRANSPORT.

Japanese Legation at Washington Receives Report.

Washington, April 30.—The Japanese legation today received the following report from Tokio on the sinking of the transport Kinshuiu Maru:

"Tokio, April 29.—As Ninth company, Eighty-seventh infantry regiment (peace strength about 150) were returning to Ginsan in transport Kinshiu Maru, registered tonnage 2389, after reconnoitering Yiwon and Hangyondo, they were stopped at 11:10 p. m., April 25, off Simpho, by three Russian cruisers and torpedo boats. The Rossia then approached her. Her ship's captain, accompanied by the superintending naval officer and two other officers went aboard the Rossia, where they were detained. The enemy gave an hour's respite for surrender, but the soldiers, in strict discipline, obeying officers' orders, refused.

At 10:30 a. m. the enemy discharged a torpedo, whereupon our soldiers, forming themselves into line on deck, exchanged fires with the enemy, during which many of our officers and men perished. At about 2 a. m. another torpedo was discahrged and hitting the engine room, split the transport in two. Some soluiers and merchants had previously taken to boats, and were subsequently joined by some soldiers after the explosion.

"The boats were then rowed westward and after indescribable sufferings the men reached Simpho on the 27th. There were forty-five petty officers and privates, six coolies and three merchants. Most of the crew and coolies appear to have been taken by the enemy. All military except the above mentioned survivors believed to have died. Of the company lost there were two captains, two first and one second lieutenants, one ensign, seventy-three privates and two interpreters. Of the surviving soldiers, ten were slightly and one seriously wounded."

SECRETARY OF TREASURY CALLS FOR BANK DEPOSITS.

Washington, April 30.—Secretary Shaw this afternoon will make an additional call on depository banks for 10 per cent of their holdings on account of the Panama canal purchase.

The call will be made on banks having deposits of $100,000 or over at the time of the last call. The payment is to be made on or before May 10.

NEW YORK DEMOCRATS.

Some Changes Made In State Committee.

Albany, N. Y., April 30.—At a meeting of the Democratic state committee here today Cord Meyer, of Queens borough, New York City, was elected chairman to succeed Frank Campbell, and State Senator P. H. McCarren, of Brooklyn, was made chairman of the executive committee. Edgarton L. Withrop, of New York, was chosen presidential elector in place of Robert B. Roosevelt, who declined to serve owing to the fact that President Roosevelt, the probable Republican nominee for president, is his nephew.

Former Mayor Hugh J. Grant, of New York City, and Former Lieutenant Governor W. F. Sheehan, of Buffalo, were among those elected to the executive committee. Mr. Grant being selected instead of Charles F. Murphy.

TELEGRAPHERS MAY TIE UP GRAND TRUNK.

Toronto, April 30.—Final steps have been taken by the Order of Railroad Telegraphers employed on the Grand Trunk road that may lead to a tieup of the entire line, from Chicago to Portland. A request has been made to the minister of labor for the appointment of a conciliatory committee to inquire into differences existing between the company and their station agents and operators. If the minister declines to exercise his powers, it is hardly possible that trouble can be averted. The telegraphers demand an increase in wages, readjustment of the working days, a certain number of holidays and extra pay for Sunday work and overtime.

HORRIBLE TRAGEDY IN ALABAMA TOWN.

Huntsville, Ala., April 30.—As the mother was in the act of laying her baby in bed last night, Fleming Froman, of Dallas Mills, shot his wife, followed her as she ran into the yard, cut her throat, killing her, and then inflicted fatal wounds upon himself. Neighbors hearing the shots rushed to the place. Froman met them at the gate with his throat horribly bruised, and told what he had done.

Going back to the body of his wife he again cut his throat and fell dead beside her. A son of the couple was in the room when the trouble started, but fled at the first shot and saw no more of the tragedy.

WALKING DELEGATE PARKS SLOWLY DYING

Ossining, N. Y., April 30.—Samuel Parks, the former walking delegate of the Structural Iron Workers in New York, is dying in the hospital at Sing Sing prison. Ever since he was received at the prison, the last time, he has been suffering from tuberculosis and has been able to do little work. In the opinion of the prison physician, Parks cannot live more than two days at the most and may die at any moment.

Three indictments still remain against the two. Travis is suffering from consumption and may never live to serve his sentence. His wife will probably return to her parents in Baltimore.

RANCHER SURRENDERS.

St. Paul, April 30.—A special to the Dispatch from Missoula, Mont., says: John Peters, who it is alleged, shot and killed Allen Brown, a prominent rancher, during a dispute over grazing land, surrendered to Sheriff Thompson after having been in hiding twenty-four hours. He refuses to make a statement, but a friend who accompanied him to Missoula says the shooting was done in self defense. The coroner's jury in the case returned a verdict charging Peters with the killing and recommended that he be held without bail.

Every day of the year and of years to come, people will be hunting houses in which to live. The houses advertised in the Want Columns of The Herald are the one they will find.

The Leading Magazines For May

"The Villa Claudia" is the title of J. A. Mitchell's new book, issued by the Life Publishing company. Among Mr. Mitchell's previous successes are "The Pines of Lory," "Gloria Victis" and "Amos Judd." The mystery which is the foundation of Mr. Mitchell's new romance is hinted at early in its pages, and at once arouses the reader's interest. Notwithstanding a generous use of the author's well-known sense of fun, and his delicious way of dealing with the sentimental relations between young persons of opposite sexes, the mystery is the dominant note. It would be unfair to the reader to give any hint of just what it is or to reveal its solution; it is enough to say that Mr. Mitchell has embodied in "The Villa Claudia" a thoroughly new idea and has handled it in a way to hold the reader's close attention to the very end. The scene of the story is laid at a villa in modern Tivoli, the town which, in the time of Horace, was Tibur, and was the favorite dwelling place of the jolly Latin poet. His Sabine farm was nearby, and in many of his verses he celebrates this delightful locality. The classic spirit is preserved by frequent quotations from and allusions to the poet, and still more classic flavor is given to the book by numerous engravings of scenes and objects connected with Tibur. The characters, however, are all modern and mostly American. All in all "The Villa Claudia" is a delightful medley of antiquity and modernity, sentiment and humor, with a decided dash of good sense and philosophy.

Gertrude Franklin Atherton, author of "Rulers of Kings," which has just been published by Harper & Brothers, was born in San Francisco, receiving her education in California and Kentucky. It is not egnerally known that Mrs. Atherton is a great grand niece of Benjamin Franklin. Her success in letters has been remarkable. Her first novel, "The Doomsman," published in 1892, gained for her immediate recognition as a new novelist of power. Since then one success has followed another, notable among them "The Conqueror." In "Rulers of Kings" Mrs. Atherton has reached the crowning triumph of her career thus far. She spends most of her time abroad, and is now in London, the recipient of the most distinguished social attentions. It is said that Mrs. Atherton is the only American woman whose books are read by the prominent public men of England. The accompanying picture is her latest portrait, and was taken within the last few weeks. In addition to her literary fame, she is noted as a woman of great beauty.

Stewart Edward White's new novel, "The Silent Places," has just been brought out by McClure-Phillips. It is a story of the Hudson Bay country, the forest wilderness inhabited by the picturesque trappers of the Hudson Bay company, and Indian hunters, with which Mr. White has already made his readers familiar. It is a very powerful story of a determined struggle against the forces of nature, telling the experiences of two Hudson Bay company agents who are sent out to capture a defaulting Indian trapper. The white men follow the Indian's trail far beyond the Arctic circle and persist in the chase until both fugitive and pursuers stand face to face with starvation. This story of a great man-hunt through the snow-covered forests of the Canadian woodland is fresh and invigorating as outdoors itself. The narrative of the chase is intense, impressive and powerful. A beautiful and pathetic strain in the story is furnished by the dogged, faithful love of an Indian girl for one of the white men. The illustrations are by Phillip R. Goodwin and are reproduced in four colors by a special process.

Those who have visited or who intend to visit Quebec will find "By the Good Sainte Anne" a delightful book. It is a story of modern Quebec by Anna Chapin Ray, author of "The Dominant Strain," "Teddy, Her Book," etc., and is a charming summer novel, abounding in bright and interesting conversations, and filled with local color. It is a delightful story, with light dialogue and much clever character work, and may be accounted one of the successes of the spring literary season. Like all books published by Little, Brown & Co., it is beautifully printed and bound, and the illustrations are of a superior class.

"The American Cavalier," by Ogle Read, soon to be published by Thompson & Thomas, Chicago, is a new bit of literature. Mr. Read has made, in his own delightful way, a psychological study of the business types who have made America so great a nation commercially. Interwoven throughout the book is a great fund of amusing anecdote which serves at once to entertain the reader and illustrate the author's point. A portion of these studies have appeared serially in the Saturday Evening Post and attracted wide attention. Mr. Read appears to have opened a new vein and has struck rich ore.

Harper & Bros. have by special arrangement taken over all the novels of Irving Bacheller, including "Eben Holden," "D'ri and I" and "Darrel of the Blessed Isles," and are henceforth the publishers of his past and future work. Mr. Bacheller has just completed a new novel—said to be his greatest work of fiction thus far—and this will be published by the Harpers in the coming fall. The title of this novel will be announced later in the year.

William Vaughn Moody has for some years been working on a trilogy of dramatic poems dealing with the Promethean legend. The first of the three is "The Fire-Bringer," which is to be published next month by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. The second has already been published under the title of "The Masque of Judgment." Mr. Moody expects to complete the third during the next two or three years.

A new novel is announced by Thomas Dixon, Jr., author of "The One Woman" and "The Leopard's Spots." It is said to be, in a way, a companion to his first book, and is entitled "The Clansman." Mr. Dixon's purpose here is to show that the original formers of the Ku Klux Klan were modern knights errant, taking the only means at hand to right wrongs. The book will bear the imprint of Doubleday, Page & Co. Apropos of Mr. Dixon, his "Leopard's Spots" is reported to be well in its second hundred thousand, while "The One Woman" is passing the 100,000 mark.

Bright, helpful and entertaining from cover to cover is the May number of the Housekeeper, which greets us with a charming cover design, portraying a dainty maiden arranging a beautiful bouquet of May blossoms. The fiction, which maintains its usual high standard, includes the third installment of Elliot Walker's serial, "A Rose in the Brambles," and short stories by Leigh Gordon Giltner, Alice M. Douthitt and William Glynn.

A notable feature of great current value in the World Today for May is the grouping of seventeen pictures in colors illustrating various points of interest in connection with the Siberian railway and the Russo-Japanese war. This issue is one of the finest in color effects yet produced, 40 of the 115 pictures having tint plates. There are several beautiful portraits of children among these.

The May number of the Reader Magazine appeals to such a variety of tastes and contains so much of genuine interest that anything short of the full table of contents fails to give an idea of the charm of this new Western publication. Its pages are not monopolized by short stories, but offer many important articles on interesting and timely subjects. Among these are Francis Lynde's first contribution to a series of papers on railway accidents in America, entitled "The Cheapness of Life." Jean Cowgill's graphic story of "How Chicago Takes Care of Her Children," and a sketch of William Nelson Cromwell, the lawyer who received a fee of $2,000,000 for his work in securing the selection of the Panama route for the great ditch.

Among the articles published in the May issue of the Popular Science Monthly are: "The Development of a New Method of Research," by Professor George E. Hale, director of the Yerkes observatory; "The College of the West," by President David Starr Jordan, Stanford university; "A Question of Preference in English Spelling," by Edwin W. Bowen.

For timeliness and variety of interest the May Woman's Home Companion is in the forefront. In "The Wonders of Modern Warfare," Hudson Maxim tells how great battles are fought. "At Home with Admiral and Mrs. Dewey," is an unusually interesting piece of modern biography. The picture features include a series of life photographs of a racoon, views of some pleasant "Porch-Parlors in the New South" an da charming reproduction of a painting of child life "Can 'oo Men' My Dollie?" There are four excellent short stories—"The Matrimonial Adventures of Bertie;" "Mrs. Arnaud's House-Party;" "The Lazy Jaynius," a humorous Irish story; and "Hexerei," a story of the Pensylvania Dutch.

The Four Track News for May contains considerable matter of especial interest to the old soldiers, although those same articles are of much more than passing interest to the general reader. "Where Blue Met Gray," by Thomas C. Harbaugh, tells the story of the old battlefields in the Wilderness; while E. A. Randall, under the caption of "The Shrine of American Reconciliation," gives a graphic description of the battlefield of Gettysburg; "Little Histories" of the Robert E. Lee statue, and the story of the man who "Decorates His Own Monument," also recalls the days of the Civil war.

Edwin A. Abbey's superb drawings in tint which were made to illustrate "Hamlet," are the most distinguished feature of the May Harper's. They are accompanied by critical comment by Theodore Watts-Dunton. Mr. Watts-Dunton inquires why it is that we have no "sensibly arranged text" of this master play, despite the fact that if the vast body of criticism of "Hamlet" were inscribed upon a tape, that tape would form a black scroll of printer's ink reaching from the earth to the moon?" He announces that in the face of charges of heresy which will doubtless be flung at him, he proposes to disregard this great library of Shakespearean criticism and to take independent views of the plays about which he is writing the present series of articles for Harper's.

Wayside Tales is fast taking a foremost position in the educational as well as in the literary world. In the May number, just out, are valuable articles by such distinguished educators as Prof. Lorenzo Sears of Brown university, Dr. William A. Colledge of Armour Institute of Technology; Mary Richards Gray, formerly of the University of Chicago; Dr. Charles W. Burrows of the central high school, Detroit, and Dr. James Quincy Howard, the eminent scholar, critic and musician. There are also in the same number a dozer good stories by famous authors.

The novelette in Ainslee's for May is "Debonnaire," by William Farquhar Payson. Other well known contributors are Maurice Masterlinck, Gertrude Lynch, Richard La Gallienne, Cosmo Hamilton, Sarah Guernsey Bradley, Owen Oliver Josephine Dixon, Lucia Chamberlain, Arthur Ketchum, Zona Gale and Hartley Davis.

In addition to an elaborate portrayal of current fashions and other matter of special interest to women The Delineator for May contains literary and artistic features of the highest excellence. In fiction, there are two short stories: His Fiancee, by Virginia Woodward Cloud, a delightful tale of a girl and her adviceful cousins and awesome mother-in-law, and The Battle of the Strong, by John H. Whitson, a college story; also a dramatic chapter of the Evolution of a Club Woman, by Agnes Surbridge.

The romance of horse racing represents a distinct class in modern fiction. Even in this automobile age, the equine lower forms a large proportion of the reading public, and tales of the race course are eagerly welcomed. The Popular Magazine for May, just out, contains the first story in a series bearing the generic head "Romances of the Race Course," by Charles Steinfort Pearson, who has long been identified with the literature of the paddock. It is called "The Crimson Cap."

* * *

The May Pearson's contains another paper by Henry George, Jr., in his series of Modern Methods of "Finance"—The Shipbuilding Trust; an account of Thomas Nast's first trip abroad in the interests of his paper, by Albert Bigelow Paine, in the Nast memoirs; a timely article on Japan and Korea, by Colgate Baker; the story of Forsyth and the Rough Riders of '98, by Dr. Townsend Brady; and The Birth of Great Trees, by G. Clarke Nuttall, B. S.

The May number of The Smart Set more than upholds that monthly's reputation as "the magazine of cleverness." Between its covers one finds brilliancy, strength, sparkling wit, delicate fancy, originality—every thing in fact, except dullness. The novelette, "Veronica's Lovers," by G. B. Burgin, author of "The Shutters of Silence," is an English story of enthralling interest, in which attention centers upon half-a-dozen characters whose striking individualities are skilfully developed through the unfolding of a most ingenious and novel plot.

* * *

The reader of the May number of The Booklovers Magazine will find much that he expects to find, as a matter of course, in this magazine. He will also find several pleasurable surprises. In the first place, the May cover is novel and striking, with its blazoning of the Japanese and Russian imperial insignia on a light ground. There are, as usual, in the May number, a profusion of pictures, in color and half-tone, illustrating the best and newest things in the realm of contemporary art: Four striking pictures by modern European artists; four of Louis Rhead's delightful flower pictures; four pages of remarkable Japanese cartoons; and an illustrated article on the work of Karl Bitter, the director of the department of sculpture at the St. Louis Fair.

It has been said that "Success Magazine" offers a liberal education in the affairs of the world. This is particularly true of the May issue, which contains much interesting and instructive material of universal interest. The leading article, by Vance Thompson, is the first of a series on "Noted Diplomatic Mysteries," which this author is writing for "Success." In this instance Mr. Thompson has written in his inimitable style of the young king, Ludwig II., of Bavaria, and of how Bismarck's statecraft separated Wagner's betrothed friends.

A good deal of human nature is laid bare in F. E. C. Robbin's story, "Candidate," published in the Special May Number of The Youth's Companion (April 28). There is a story for sensitive girls, by Winifred M. Kirkland, a "creepy" account of "A Botanist's Adventure," by Albert W. Tolman, and the conclusion of Arthur Stanwood Pier's story of "The Last Night" at St. Timothy's school. How to make a safe sail attachment to an ordinary canoe is described by John A. Macy. In addition to these there is an article, entitled "The Snakes' Curse," by Sir Harry H. Johnson, K. C. B., recently commander-in-chief and consul general for the Uganda protectorate, formerly vice consul in the Kamerun, at which time occurred the experience described in this contribution. The issue is rich in gleanings from biography, diverting anecdotes and miscellaneous sketches.

In the spring the young man's fancy and, indeed, the fancy of most of us, turns to the coming of the circus. As Charles Belmont Davis, Richard Harding's talented brother, says in May Outing, "The day we celebrate is the day we go to the circus." The graphic human article in which Mr. Davis tells about the day he went, is one of the timely features of the attractive spring number of Outing. Mr. Davis is proving conclusively that Brother Richard does not monopolize the Davis literary talent.

The May Strand is exceptionally good. W. W. Jacobs, George R. Sims and H. G. Wells help to enrich its pages, each in his own way. The principal feature, however, will be found to be the first installment of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt's Memoirs. This will undoubtedly prove a literary event of immense popular interest.

* * *

The opening chapters of the May Atlantic are made brilliant and entertaining by the first installment of Professor Norton's series of "Letters of John Ruskin," illuminated by his own delightful and illustrative comments and explanations. Col. Higginson continues his recollections with a paper entitled "Intensely Human," which contains many salient and pathetic reminiscences of the characteristics of the negro race, more especially in the days before and during the war of the rebellion.

The May number of Lippincott's is notably stirring and strong from the opening page of its novelette through to the close of the last short story. "Figs From Thistles" makes Frederic Reddale's third appearance through the medium of a long tale in this magazine, and his work may be honestly described as good, better and best. This last shows maturity in both the plot and the handling of it. Its heroine, Janet Persis, is young and pretty, yet too prudent to marry for love alone, after an apprenticeship to poverty as one of seven daughters of a country clergyman. For this reason she falls an easy prey to the plans of an anxious mother in regard to her son, a baronet, of splendid physique but of infantile

The great army of outdoor people everywhere will be glad to know that Casper Whitney, the distinguished editor of Outing, has reached Panama on his way home from his adventuresome trip through South America. His journey lay through the interior of Brazil, where he was the guest of Chief Goyas; through Paraguay, the Argentine Republic, Patagonia, Bolivia and across the highest Andes to Chile. Mr. Whitney reports exciting encounters with jaugers, revolutions, plagues and yellow fever, all of which will add interest to future vigorous articles in Outing. This trip completes Mr. Whitney's world wanderings.

The St. Louis World's fair—its extent, its exhibits, its novel and interesting features—is the subject of a special 48-page number of Harper's Weekly, dated April 30. There are articles by the various heads of departments describing the scope and character of the different exhibitions, beginning with an introductory article by David R. Francis, president of the exposition. The number is fully illustrated with photographs of the buildings and grounds, a notable feature being a double-page suplement containing a striking view of the electricity building by night, showing the elaborate scheme of illumination.

Japan's initial naval victory at Port Arthur was of such signal importance that it is being discussed all around the globe. It is a noteworthy fact that the first chart, prepared by an actual eye-witness, of this great battle that has been printed by any publication in the world appears in the current number of Leslie's Weekly. This remarkable drawing, a historic document, clearly and accurately showing the movements of the vessels of both fleets and the locations of the forts, is the work of Arthur D. Ostrander, a volunteer officer of the navy during the Spanish-American war, and latterly chief engineer of the steamship Pleiades, which lay in the inner harbor at Port Arthur during this and other engagements. Engineer Ostrander also contributes an original and graphic story of the fighting.

IN THE WORLD OF ART

New York, April 30.—The thirty-seventh annual exhibition of the American Water Color society was opened with a private view and reception on Friday, April 29, at the American Art galleries, No. 6 East Twenty-third street, and in the evening a reception was held by the members. The exhibition will continue for two weeks.

Shortly after the close of the water-color exhibition Mr. Kirby will place on view in the American Art galleries an important collection of Japanese plants, garden ornaments of stone and bronze, stone lanterns and a unique exhibit consisting of a portable Japanese house, 10 feet by 12 feet, made in sections of rare wood and complete with handsome mats, which was originally imported to be exhibited at the St. Louis fair. This collection, including the house, will be sold by order of Otokichi Tsuji, of Tokio, Japan.

The annual art exhibition in the Royal Crystal Palace at Munich will be opened on Junes 1 and closed at the end of October.

The pictures and drawings which at one time were a feature of the once celebrated Chat Noir were recently sold by auction at the Hotel Drouot, in Paris. The collection realized $2500. The pictures by A. Willette formed the more important feature of the sale. "Parce, Domine," bringing $600; "Le Moulin de la Galette," $300, and "La Chasse a l'Armour," $320. There were also examples of the work of Caran d'Acne, Grasset, Steinlen and many other well-known artists.

Features in the May Century that will appeal to art lovers are the portrait of Tolstoi, from a drawing by George T. Tobin; a portrait of President Roosevelt and "The Lost Art of the Daguerrotype," by Abraham Bogardus.

A clearance sale of nearly 1000 lots will be held on the afternoons of May 5, 6 and 7, at 2:15 o'clock, by James P. Silo, at the Fifth Avenue Art galleries, No 366 Fifth avenue, including attractive Chinese porcelains and Greek glass and vases. This will afford an opportunity to collectors of Oriental and Greck art objects to add to their collections.

The Chinese porcelains are principally from old shipments of A. S. Forbes and Takee, of Shangrai, China. Half a dozen local collectors have contributed the balance of the antique and modern podcelains and curios. This collection will be placed on exhibition on May 2.

Rhode Island artists will be creditably represented at the St. Louis exposition. Sidney R. Burleigh's canvas, "D'Oud Schipper," which attracted much attention at the Rhode Island School of Design last year, has already been accepted, as has Miss Angela O'Leary's "Flock of Sheep," which was recently exhibited at the Providence Art club.

A William Tell exhibition will be held this summer in Zurich on the occasion of the centenary of Schiller's play. It will contain literary, artistic and historical sections.

An oblong casket formed of plaques of Dresden enamel brought $815 at a recent sale in London. At the same time an old Sevres ecuelle, cover and stand painted by Fontaine, 1784, sold for $710, and an old Sevres beaker-shaped mug, painted with rose-buds, laurel and blue ribands, brought $190.

At the opening of the autumn salon in Paris last year in the basement of the Petit Palais all the critics complained that the exhibition, which was worthy of better surroundings, was stowed away in the cellars. Through the influence of Henri Marcel, the new director of the fine arts department, the autumn salon will be lodged this year in the Grand Palais.

Among the important canvases now on exhibition in the Durand-Ruel galleries, No. 389 Fifth avenue, are two good examples by F. Bouvin entitled "Preparing the Meal," and "The Young Scholar," an excellent marine by Jules Dupre; a coast scene by N. Berghem; a head of a child by Ribot; "Shateau de Verieux, daus le Dauphine," by Jongkind; a charming landscape entitled "Evening," by Delpy; "The White Horse," by Gericault, and a small landscape by de Malines Huysmans. The recent exhibition of the Van Dearing Perrine pictures was greatly appreciated as evidenced by the sale of a number of his canvases. In the early part of next month Messrs. Durand-Ruel & Sons expect to be settled in their new quarters at No. 5 eWst Thirty-sixth street.

Mr. George Durand-Ruel will start on his usual summer trip to look after his interests in Paris during the first week in June. He is delayed on this side somewhat longer than usual on account of the preparations necessary in moving into the firm's new galleries.

The Boston Museum of Fine Arts will be represented at the St. Louis exposition by fifty-three paintings; over one hundred drawings from life and the antique; eight pieces of sculpture and a large number of designs relating to the various applied arts.

A companion picture to the one recently bought by the emperor of Austria, entitled "Hungarian Farm," and by the same artist, Rodolphe Ribarr, is now on exhibition in the Oehme galleries, No. 384 Fifth avenue. Somewhat in the impressionist style it is an interesting example of this artist's work. Among the important paintings now being shown by Mr. Oehme are one of the most notable Schreyers that has come into the market this season. It is entitled "Bedouins Crossing the Desert," showing the advance guard of a wandering tribe watering theri horses at a desert pool. Other paintings now on view include a large canvas entitled "The Runaways," by Josef Brandt, depicting a native team that has gotten beyond the control of their driver, and an excellent van der Weele called "The Sheep Foid."

In the early part of June Mr. Julius Oehme expects to start on his usual trip. He will visit the principal art centers including London, The Hague, Paris and Munich, and expects to be gone about three months.

The well known Dutch artist, B. J. Blommers and his family arrived in New York last week. He follows his compatriot and fellow artist, Albert Neuhuys, who arrived some time ago with his family. Both artists will visit the St. Louis Exposition before returning to Holland.

Among the recently elected members of the Royal Academy of Art in Berlin are Sir Villiers Stanford, Joseph Israels, and the Swedish painter Anders Zorn.

Among fine engravings sold at auction in London a short time ago were the following portraits, all after Reynolds: "Mrs. Abingdon," by Elizabeth Judkins (first state), $485; "Mrs. Harding," by T. Watson (second state), $475; "Mrs. Bonfoy," by J. McArdell (first state), $375; and "Lavina, Countess Spencer," by C. Hodges (first published), $262. The highest price obtained was $972, for an engraving by J. Jones, after Reynolds, of the portrait of Lady Caroline Price (first state.) Next to that came another engraving after Reynolds, by G. Keating, of the portrait of the Duchess of Devonshire and her daughter (second state), which brought $515.

It is probable that the exhibition of pastel portraits and oil paintings now in the Knoedler galleries, No. 355 Fifth avenue, will be extended longer than was anticipated on account of the interest that it has created in the art circles and among the art lovers of this city. The work of Miss Juliet Thompson and Ernest W. Longfellow has attracted a great deal of attention. Among other important paintings now being shown by Messrs. M. Knoedler & Co. are a "Portrait of a Lady," by A. H. Clark; "The Children's Pet," by H. Hirt, and a fine Corot, entitled "The Seine at Mantes." Besides these there is now on exhibition in the water color galleries a number of works from the recent Blum exhibition.

Roland Knoedler will sail in the early part of May on his annual trip to London and the art centers of the continent. His return to this country will probably take place toward the middle of October.

James Staart Forbes, who died in London recently, was well known as a collector of objects of art. His collection was especially rich in examples of the Barbizon school.

The exhibition of old Italian masters at the Ehrich galleries, No. 8 West Thirty-third street, has received two very notable additions. One is the portrait of Beatrice d'Este, by Bartolomeo Veneto, one of the rarest masters of the Italian school. The other is a striking head of St. John, the evangelist, by Carrotto, who was a contemporary and rival of Giovanni Bollini. This painting was a gift from King John of Saxony to one of his subjects, who made contributions toward the support of the Saxon trops after the battle of Leipsig. It is unusually beautiful in color and very striking in drawing.

M. Louis R. Ehrich, of the Ehrich galleries, proposes going abroad early in June and will not return until very late in the fall. He is planning a tour in nEgland, Holland, France, Spain and Italy.

An interesting point in connection with the recent Dunlop sale, conducted at Christie's in London, was the falling off in prices for the works of several celebrated artists. 'The Water Drinkers," by J. Phillip, R. A., brought $4985. In the early part of next month Eight years ago it sold for $12,500. 'Turner's "Whotehaven" was knocked down for $2675, although in 1887 it was purchased from the Novar collection for $3795. "Evening," by W. Muller brought $392. Twenty-one years ago it sold for $1600.

A group of pictures by old masters loaned by Messrs Durand-Ruel has been placed on view at the National Arts club. The exhibition will continue until the end of the month.

Daniel C. French's "The Workingman," a commission from Andrew Carnegie, is just completed in bronze. The statue is a companion piece to the bust of the late Col. James Anderson of Pittsburg. Both are gifts of Mr. Carnegie, in Col. Anderson's memory. The statue will be erected in front of the Carnegie library in Pittsburg.

The Isabella Stuart Gardner museum in Boston is to be enriched by a Degas portrait of "The Woman in Black," which was painted in 1867. It has been bought by Mrs. Gardner.

In the grand foyer of the Blakeslee galeries in the Knickerbocker Trust building, Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, are two old Spanish twisted columns, carved in the grape-vine design, that are splendid specimens of this noted art. Among the noted portraits by the old masters on view are a charming half length Reynold's of Kitty Fisher; a three-quarter length of Marie de Medici by Gerard van Honthrost; a portrait of Pope Innocent X, by Del Maso, a son-in-law of and greatly influenced by the old master, Velasquez, and a small but strong portrait of a nobleman by Francois Cluet. There is also on view a notable Rembrant entitled "A Sibyl."

T. J. Blakeslee will start on his annual trip abroad, which he has not missed for twenty-six years, next week. He will visit France and Holland, but will spend most of the time in England.

The opening of the exhibition in Paris of the Chefs-d'Oeuvre des Grands Maitres de la Peinture Francaise au Dixhuitieme Siecle is fixed for May 14. The exhibition, which will include notable examples of Watteau, Boucher, Chardin, Latour, Perronneau and Fragonard, will remain open fo ra month.

Raimundo di Madrazo is now in Cincinnati adding the finishing touches to the portraits of Charles P. Taft, brother of the secretary of war, his wife and his mother. He will shortly return to New York and expects to sail late in May for Europe.

The annual meeting of the National Society of Associated Arts was held in Chicago last week, when the following were elected officers for the ensuing year: George J. Verbeck, president; Marlon A. White, secretary general; Evelyn Beachey, financial secretary, and J. Ross Bryson, treasurer.

The eleventh annual exhibition of the Cincinnati Museum association will open on May 21 and continue to July 11. The jury of selection consists of Frank Duveneck, Paul Jones, George Debereiner, L. H. Meakin, Miss Dixie Selden, Miss Henrietta Wilson, C. J. Barnhorn and C. S. Kaelin.

Mme. Lasseux has added to the Hotel Sevigny collection a picture of a group which includes Louis XVI, Marie Antoinette, the Dauphin, Louis XVII and the Princesse de Lamballe.

A sale which attracted a great deal of attention in Paris recently was the three days' dispersal of water-color drawings and sketches by Albert Guillaume, the well-known carricaturist. There were in all 368 lots, and there was a keen competition among collectors, prices varying from about $10 to $15 for a single design.

Kate Carl, an American artist resident in China, has painted a portrait of the empress dowager of China, which will be exhibited at the St. Louis exposition.

The German emperor has loaned for the exhibition of pre-Raphaelite paintings now in progress at the Pavilion de Marsan at the Louvre, in Paris, the famous portrait of Etienne Chevalier, by Jehan Foucquet. King Edward VII has loaned two valuable pictures, and King Leopold has authorized the loan of a "Virgin and Child" from the Royal gallery at Brussels.

DULUTH'S NEIGHBORS

Mrs. C. Poirier, mother of City Attorney Poirier, was here from Duluth the first of the week visiting with her son.

Ed. Woods, of Superior, has leased and will run the Virginia restaurant in the Spellacy block. He has alread made some improvements and will do a good business.

Albert Olson, accompanied by his family, has returned from a four months' visit at Sweden points.

Mrs. W. T. McCallum, of Proctor, visited with friends here this week.

Baseball has been talked considerable here during the warm spring days and a meeting of the fans and players was held in the council chambers Saturday night. The one drawback for a good team here this year is suitable grounds. The grounds used the past few years is on private property and the boys do not want to put money in fence and grand stand and park to tear it down at most any time. This is the only damper on the matter. Otherwise Virginia would have a good team and splendid support, and may yet. That there will be a good team here there is no question.

Miss Grace O'Hara, principal at the high school, has accepted a position as instructor in English in the Iowa City, Iowa, schools, and with her mother and sister, will move there at the close of schools here.

A ball game will be played here tomorrow between the Virginia and Buhl Juniors.

Frank Murray, one of Virginia's pioneers, and one of the best engineers that ever pulled a throttle, was in the city a few days this week.

During the quiet part of the season, which is just at present with the company, W. H. Cook, president, acts as general manager of the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake railway, and A. W. Snow, formerly superintendent of construction, is roadmaster. There is not much doing on the main line just at present, the bulk of the work being done on the Sand Lake branch. The logging companies have several trains a day to haul to the city and it keeps one crew and a train pretty busy to keep the Ash mill going day and night. Bickford lake is full of logs again this spring and these will be "snaked" out the loader in a short time. There is about 1,000,000 feet in Crescent lake also.

A. T. Rollins is again at his desk, after being laid up at Lenon's hospital with rheumatic fever for several weeks.

R. Burchell, who has been so seriously ill with pneumonia, is out again, enjoying the bright spring days.

About twenty-five lady friends planned a very successful surprise on Mrs. Robert Lindsay, at her home on Maple street Tuesday evening.

John C. Sutherland, proprietor of the Central hotel, came to Virginia eleven years ago last Wednesday, and to celebrate the event he invited all those who had come here during the years. Those make up the history of Virginia. Those who enjoyed the hospitality of Host Sutherland were A. H. Stevens, W. E. Donnelly, P. A. Coffey, Mose Shonedling, Joel Tormunsit, Jons Rasmussen, Julius Shonedling, J. D. Lamont, W. E. Hannaford, E. E. Burley, A. Belanger, Patnaford Sullivan, W. B. Pratt, Joseph Runnick Sullivan, W. B. ## THE COMING WEEK AT THE THEATERS

Florence Stone in "Camille" Five Nights and Stetson's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" on Saturday Night at the Lyceum---The Kennedy Stock Company All Week at Metropolitan.

Much interest is manifested in Miss Stone's forthcoming production of Alexander Duma's great emotional play, "Camille," at the Lyceum, beginning May 2 and running five nights and a Wednesday matinee. Miss Stone has made a careful analysis of the part and that she has the ability to interpret her understanding of it is evidenced by the glowing praise showered on her by the critics of the country. Miss Stone is essentially an emotional actress, and the part of Camille is the greatest emotional part ever written, hence the production of the play by Miss Stone and company should prove a rare treat.

The dresses worn by Miss Stone are creations from her own designs. She does not follow prevailing fashions, but originates her own little style. Her dressmakers are first given a pen and ink or water-color sketch to study before work is begun. Then begins the tireless search through store after store for the exact shade of goods desired. Sometimes days are spent in this search, picking out every necessary article even to the threads. When one stops to think of the time she devotes to costumes, study, exercise, art and her music, it causes wonder as to how she manages to get rest and recreation, but she does. Each hour of the day has its own right and claim. Miss Stone believes and lives up to the well-worn platitude, "eight hours of work, eight of rest and eight of recreation."

AT THE METROPOLITAN.

"Grit, the Newsboy" and "Wicked London" Next Week

"Grit, the Newsboy," will be the bill for the first half of the week at the Metropolitan, by the Kennedy Stock company, to be followed by Frank Harvy's great English drama, "Wicked London." The story of "Grit" is a most interesting and consistent one, and though there is a sensational vein running through the piece, it is so cleverly constructed and plausible that it has been one of the season's great successes. The famous scene of the Brooklyn bridge and pier 47 are promised to be a novelty in the art of scene painting, and the play gives scope for some very elaborate dressing as well. There are several very funny characters, and Mr. Kennedy will be seen as Col. Worry of the Sixteenth Kentucky.

The usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be given, at which time an 18-karat gold diamond ring will be presented to some lady in attendance.

The Kennedy Stock company has been meeting with full houses nightly, and many are availing themselves of the opportunity to have their seats reserved for the entire season, which insures patrons of their seats without extra charge, and the seats are held for them until called for, unless previously cancelled by the purchaser.

Mr. Kennedy is soon to be seen in one of his greatest roles, when this popular company will present "Robert McCair," and Mr. Kennedy will portray the character of Jacques Stropp. The costuming of this production is in the square-cut period, and the papers throughout the country have spoken in high terms of the detail shown by the Kennedy Stock company both in wardrobe, action and scenery. The same popular 10, 15, 25 and 50-cent prices will continue throughout the season.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

Stetson's Great Production at Lyceum Saturday.

Stetson's dramatic and scenic production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" comes to the Lyceum next Saturday afternoon and evening. This production far surpasses that of last season in every particular, and will be the best seen here. Special attention has been given to the staging of the piece, and several new scenic effects are said to be magnifithe Ohio river, the moonlight scene of the Ohio river, the moonlight sceen of the St. Clair plantation, with house, garden and the cotton-fields beyond, and the transformation scene at the end of the last act, are among the greatest. A great organization of white and colored artists has been engaged by Leon H. Washburn for this season, everyone of whom was selected for his or her adaptability for the part assigned. A clever quartet of colored singers adds materially to the program by a number of high-class specialties. Col. Sawyer's prize pack of genuine Siberian bloodhounds, a lot of beautiful Shetland ponies, trick donkeys, etc., are also with this great combination.

The street parade has two bands of music, a number of gorgeous chariots, tableaux wagons and little carriages, built at a large outlay of money, making this the finest free street pageant ever given by any similar organization.

"RESURRECTION."

Blanche Walsh In the Great Tolstoi Play.

This afternoon Blanche Walsh produced Tolstoi's "Resurrection" at the Lyceum, and this evening she will again be seen. The play is given here with the complete scenic production, as seen during the four months' run of the play at the Victoria theater, New York. Those who have seen Miss Walsh and her company in "Resurrection" say it is a performance that one cannot by any possibility ever forget. Some of its scenes and parts of the dialogue are said to be of such a daring nature as to make the audience gasp. The prison scene, in which Miss Walsh finds her biggest opportunity, is said to be almost revolting in its picture of utter degradation, but it is also said to be intensely and vividly dramatic. The final denouement of the play is a happy one, however, for it illustrates what the title implies, namely, the resurrection of a woman's soul, the soul of a woman who has sinned and who has suffered. It also illustrates the moral redemption of the man who caused her to sin and to suffer.

COMING LYCEUM ATTRACTIONS.

"McFadden's Flats," one of Gus Hill's musical shows, is shortly coming to the Lyceum.

Otis Skinner in "The Wanderer" is coming to the Lyceum soon.

Al. G. Field's Minstrels are billed for the Lyceum for two nights and Saturday matinee in May.

Richard Mansfield's bill at Duluth will probably be "Old Heidleberg."

"A Girl From Dixie," a very clever musical comedy, will be at the Lyceum in May.

COMING OF MRS. FISKE.

The coming of Mrs. Fiske to this city in "Mary of Magdala," at the Metropolitan, May 9, will prove to be the local dramatic event of years, from all indications. The distinguished critic, William Winter, of the New York Tribune, said on the production of this great drama in New York of Mrs. Fiske's acting:

Of Kennedy Stock Company at the Metropolitan.

"Mrs. Fiske, who has not hitherto acted any part that contains so much experience, feeling, spirituality and mournful beauty as are combined in Mr. Heyse's Magdalen, rises, in this embodiment, to an impressive altitude of power—the power not only to comprehend a terrible conflict in a great soul, and to form a lofty ideal of moral grandeur triumphant over human passion, but the power to embody that self-conflict and that moral grandeur in a sumptuous image of beautiful womanhood, and to express them with intense sympathy, affluent vigor and pathetic grace. An exquisite sensibility pervades the performance and vitalizes every fibre of it."

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

Osculation a Feature of Two New Plays.

New York, April 30.—Ovid's "Art of Love" was a primer for infants by comparison with the lessons given to grown-up New Yorkers in two new plays. "Tat-too" and "Love's Pilgrimage," and in old "Camille," reproduced simultaneously in two theaters. Inquisitive maidens are ever asking if stage kisses are real. They surely are real and very earnest in "Tat-too," but the accompanying instruction is in a foreign language, and the piece is performed here in German. Its episode pertinent to the present subject is a night visit by a woman to a man's chamber. They sit side by side on his bed and he kisses her. No doubt she kisses him, too, but the smacks are so joint and mutual that they count as one. He is an army officer and his kiss is professionally as well as temperamentally explosive. She is a submissive creature and adapts her method to his. There is a quick contact, followed instantaneously by a loud detonation and we instinctively look for flying pieces of passion in the air.

The kisses in "Love's Pilgrimage" were operated on the silent system. There are two of them and they were given to the young woman who makes the pilgrimage of love. The actress was Carlotta Nillson, one of those Swedish blondes with taffy hair and cream skin who will still look clean if they hadn't been washed in a year. The actors were William S. Hart and Guy Bates Post. As the secret husband of Carlotta he was entitled to her assent and she yielded without reserve. And the author had insisted upon realism. No kiss so long and sincere had been seen on our stage since Olga Nethersole in "Carmen." It is usual with actors to time their silences by counting mentally till they reach the figure previously agreed on at rehearsal. I should say that Hart counted 20, but it may have been 30 if he hurried the last 10 or 15, because by that time we were snickering.

The other kisser of Carlotta was Mr. Post, as the suitor who was bound to marry her in spite of all. Post is a self-poised actor ordinarily, but his nerve was shaken by what had happened to Hart.

"My God," he cried, when she had spurned him, "how I love that girl!"

He heard us murmur gleefully at that, but he went at her with desperate courage, enfolded her in an embrace which must have made her corset feel loose, pressed his lips to hers with a force which beat her head back till her neck seemed like to break and kept her so to the end of his count. Again we tittered, but that was no worse than we had done to the other fellow. Post backed away from Carlotta with manifest relief that it was all over. But it wasn't. There was a chair right behind him. He fell over it. We roared.

* * *

The rival revivals of "Camille" are made by Virginia Harned and Margaret Anglin. They are two of the thousands of actresses who, since Dumas created an ideal type of Parisian courtesan, have undertaken to alter or add to the characteristics which he gave to her. These latest of the venturesses are as different from each other as they are from the true Camille. Virginia is robustly assertive. Margaret is delicately suggestive. Virginia has had the longer experience and is handsomer. She is an English woman and from the time when she made her New York debut as the clergyman's wayward daughter in "The Dancing Girl" to that of the wilful transgressor in "Iris" her prosperity has been almost altogether in roles of sin. Margaret is a Canadian and in the parts assigned to her the Frohman stock company during several seasons she usually stood for virtue. Both are failing utterly in "Camille" this week and are suffering the penalty of critical abuse.

These fiascos come alike, yet in different ways, from the fact that neither actress excites any sympathy. Virginia Harned seems to have deteriorated. She speaks in explosive bursts and husky whispers. Her Camille is a strong, determined young woman, who gives the impression that she is well able to look out for herself. Her pulmonary ailment is manifested only by two coughs early in the play and even at the death she has lost no power of voice. She dies in a very hurricane of health, suggesting well-developed apoplexy more than consuming tuberculosis.

Margaret Anglin's fiasco is wholly different from Miss Harned's. In the one case Camille's sorrows are expressed too theatrically and in the other not theatrically enough. One is over-demonstrative and the other is wearisomely monotonous. We could foretell Miss Harned's vim, but the ineffectual quietude of Miss Anglin was a surprise. I believe she would have got through triumphantly however, if she had placed herself under the control of some wise director.

After the truth has been thus told about the artistic collapses of these new Camilles let me praise the actresses for giving ingenious novelty to the scene of the sad end.

Mrs. Anglin dies in bed. The apartment is not so poor as the formerly prosperous courtesan is usually brought down to in her last extremity. The bedstead, which stands with its foot toward the audience, has a canopy of silk and pillows of lace. The light is dim at first and we barely discern the woman lying flat on her back. She turns uneasily, moans piteously and awakens in pain. The watching Gaston gives medicine to her, tells her that morning has come and opens a window to the daylight. Thereafter her face, white as her nightrobe and the bedclothes, is brightly illumed.

That is a new, strange, and awful moving picture. And it is hardly more than a pantomime with sighs, gasps and feeble speech. Throughout the earlier acts she has kept her voice so low and faint that we have had to call upon our memories to tell us what she is saying. Now she alters the wording to make it fit her changes in the action, besides weakening her tones still more to indicate deadly feebleness, and she might just as well be speechless. She doesn't die hard, but she is reluctant and very, very slow. She hugs Armand all over the bed till the coverlid and the pillows are tumbled, her hair and nightdress are rumpled and there is a suggestion of a wrestling match protracted by the inability of either contestant to force the other's shoulders and hips to the ground all at once and thus get the referee's decision under the rule. Still I am bound to say that there is nothing to ridicule. Her body relaxes in Armand's embrace, her arms drop limp, her head sags forward on his shoulder, and we know that her broken heart is at rest.

Miss Harned isn't beaten by Miss Anglin in the struggle for novelty in the death phenomena of Camille. The farewell is said. She has thrown Nichette's bridal veil over her face in mute longing for what might have been and has sunk limp into Armand's arms, when suddenly she takes a fresh and very picturesque grip on life. The sprite may say and with some justice, considering how Miss Harned has already protracted the dying scene, that she can't bring herself to stop acting. But the impartial account must tell that the odd innovation is theatrically impressive. Armand holds her on his breast. Her voice is almost gone, and feebly she whispers a desire to pray. He carries her to a prie-dieu, and there she kneels, her head buried low in her arms, before a tall cross. From a church across the way comes a solemn chanting of a New Year's hymn. Armand stands near her with his tender eyes fixed on her hardly animate body and her head sinking humbly in the plea to heaven. Thus they remain silent for a minute that seems five in its intensity of silence. Then he touches her arm, ever so gently, yet with a living hand that sends the lifeless body backward to the floor. With a cry he bends over her and kisses the soulless lips of the first Camille I have ever seen die on her knees.

Henry Miller is the Armand to the Camille of Miss Anglin. He, too, strikes out for unconventionality. William Courtenay serves Miss Harned in that capacity, and his performance, while singularly intense in a manly avoidance of the customary mawkishness, makes no far departures from the standard. Mr. Miller's position as a joint star enables him to indulge himself in oddities. He eliminates Dumas' text at various points. The most remarkable of these is the omission of Armand's denunciation of Camille at the ball. He doesn't dash to the doorway and cry, "Enter all!" nor ask the assembled guests if they see this woman and if they know what she has done.

That passage has been maltreated so much in burlesque that Mr. Miller may think its serious potency is gone. But it is Armand's one electrical speech, and the audience misses it. This is Mr. Miller's original substitution of a climax to the sudden offer Camille has saddened him by act. After Camille has assured him by her loving lie that she prefers the Count de Varville, in order to keep him from fighting a duel, and he has misunderstood her with unconscious cruelty, he quits the room in a frenzy. We hear a tumult of excited voices, and he returns in the midst of a dozen men, who restrain him while frightened women follow in. He struggles like a maniac in the friendly hands, breaks away from them, and then, without a word of the familiar language, throws the handfuls of money at the fainting Camille's feet.

Horace B. Fry is a solid man among financiers in Wall street and politicians in the Union League club, and he is a volatile man among artists at the Academy of Design, authors at the Century and actors at the Players' club. For years he has been a writer of drama. A short one of his plays, "Little Italy," was put on the stage by Minnie Maddern Fiske. It was a tragedy of low life in the Italian quarter of New York. The writing was strong in naturalism, there was genius in Mrs. Fiske's acting, and both were admired very much. But this demonstration of Mr. Fry's ability to make a good drama in a single act did not lead any manager to accept one from him in more acts. So he hired a company and a theater for an afternoon this week to give a performance of a full-length play selected from his stock on hand.

Well, I would be glad for the sake of the writers of thousands of rejected manuscripts if "Love's Pilgrimage" had proved itself to be a praiseworthy literary composition. It had mercifully valuable compositions. It had merits so positive that they should have made the audience condone its faults and give respectful attention to the only representation that will ever be given. But a mob of cynics, few of whom had bought their seats, laughed readily—even gladly, so it seemed—at every incident that went wrong.

To be sure, an experienced theatrical observer like Mr. Fry should have known better than to put a rag baby into his heroine's arms to hold during an emotional scene. It is true that James A. Herne had the wronged woman in his "Margaret Fleming" nurse her infant at her breast and adherents of Herneism applauded. But Mr. Fry shouldn't have been misled by that to believe in the possible dramatic efficiency of a doll which didn't even wail "mamma" when the parent squeezed it to her agonized bosom. There was a snicker at that and a laugh when, after she had fled from home, a maid servant exclaimed:

"Missus has taken baby away and forgotten its bottle!"

From that time on it was hard for the heroine to hold attention closely to her sufferings, which were acute and pitiful. She was the daughter of a British prison's warden in Tasmania and she became the too informal wife of an Irish political convict, inferentially John Boyle O'Reilley, the famous Fenian. She aided him to escape to America, made a pilgrimage of love to join him there, and when she found him he had taken a second wife. In the belief that his first had died. The passage of real pathos in her case did not count much against those which meant nothing interesting.

The Carlotta Nilsson whom I have mentioned as the twice-kissed actress in "Love's Pilgrimage" was as much to blame as Mr. Fry for the failure of the play. She is a naturalist and, like Miss Anglin, she overdid her fad by speaking on the stage in just about the voice that she uses in a parlor. Now, we could follow Miss Anglin's indistinct utterance from memory in Dumas, but we were ignorant of Fry's lines and so we missed his story in so far as the heroine told it.

"What are you talking about?" her stage father asked.

The question was in his role, but its peculiar pertinence made us laugh so that, even if she had raised her voice to that, even if she had raised her voice to answer, we could have heard it.

A serious line was similarly turned into a joke in last week's matinee performance of Ibsen's otherwise solemn "Pillars of Society." Wilton Lackaye is a pet of our discriminate people who go to the theaters with ideas of dramatic art in their minds. We think him a master of stage effects of clarace e lization. When it was announced that he would act the hypocritical pillar in Ibsen's play of rotten society we had no reason to dread that he himself, as well as the person he undertook to portray, would fall down with a crash. But he did. His performance was a surprise with its lack of clean conception and facile execution. Perhaps the consciousness of Ibsenites drove the language out of his memory, but the impression given was that he hadn't studied it.

"I don't know what to say," he at length exclaimed.

Those were Ibsen's words, but they were so applicable to Lackaye's dilemma that we increased his misery by laughing merrily.

"The Chaperons" closed its season in the East last week and ended a tour that has been an interesting one to theatrical people all over the country. This musical comedy, which was thought to have exhausted its successful qualities, was secured last summer by a number of well-known advance agents who pooled their issues and sent it over the Western circuit under the guidance of Sam Thall with George Weltyback, to look after the show. The combination became at once "The Little Syndicate," and many jokes were heard anent the enterprise on Broadway last summer. "Sandy" Dingwall of Duluth was robbed of his best office space for headquarters, and the syndicaters, consisting of the two named together with Eddie Cook, Charley McCaul, George Kingsbury and "Musty" Miller began getting people together and booking a route. They had the able advice of Pete Kennedy, Joe Buckley and that eminent pathfinder, Hon. William Henry Watterson of Hull, and with this vast combination of brains and theatrical shrewdness things looked good for the tour of "The Chaperons." They started out at Asbury Park and the tour reached around to San Francisco and then back to Newark, with only trolley car fares to pay the company's way into New York, where is disbanded last week. The season netted a clean profit in excess of $12,000, so that the venture proved a pick-up for the men who went into it for a side issue. The irony of fate is shown in the record though, for the only losing weeks that were booked were in Milwaukee and Newark. The first named is the home of Eddie Cook and George Kingsbury, sad as this may seem, while Charley McCaul insisted on Newark. George Welty says they might have made a fortune in Milwaukee if they had not mentioned Cook and Kingsbury's names in connection with the enterprise, while Newark would never have been known if McCaul had only been put in a trance for a fortnight before he selected that spot for the final week. However, they have important money in bank, and it has been suggested that "Sandy" Dingwall ought to be remunerated (in black and white) for the unsparing utilization of his office space. The friends of the little syndicaters are glad to know that they did so well and hope they will dig up another one for next season.

Trixie Friganza seems to be making quite a reputation for the creating of widow roles in the Savage musical productions. Only recently Miss Friganza appeared in the original cast of George Ade's piece, "The Sho-Gun" as a widow and was well received by the Chicago critics. Manager Savage, however hustled her out of the cast, and she appeared last week with "The Prince of Pilsen" at Daly's theater, in New York, again playing the role of the widow in that merry musical comedy. Miss Friganza was selected for the part in order to go to London with the company that is now staging the piece in Gotham preparatory to sailing for the other side.

Clayton White, who has been playing in the vaudeville now for several seasons with Marie Stuart in various sketches, has been engaged to play the leading comedy role in George Ade's new musical comedy, "The Sho-Gun." The part is suited to White's peculiar style of humor, and as he proved his worth in that direction he ought to be a valuable addition to the cast of the piece. Gus Bruno was selected for the part after Frank Moulan would not do business with Manager Savage, and was fairly well received, but the management is evidently not satisfied with his work, for the change is soon to be made. "The Sho-Gun," by the way, seems to have been revised and whipped into good shape, and it is likely that Manager Savage will use it for the opening offering on Broadway at Wallack's theater season. This, however, is contingent upon the ultimate result of "The County Chairman" run, for that play continues to pack the theater weekly.

May Yohe is back on the stage in England, having opened at Brighton recently in the Music hall there. She is singing a few songs at each performance and is booked for a tour of the provinces. There is some talk that she may soon be heard again in London.

The startling news comes from London that when Sara Bernhardt opens her summer engagement in the British metropolis, she will have for her associate no less a London favorite than Mrs. Pat Campbell, who will be a co-star with the divine Sara. London is much worked up over this combination. It is said that Mrs. Pat speaks French fluently, but whether she can adapt herself to playing French and shine by comparison with Benhardt is what is troubling her friends. Oddly enough, Pinky-Panky-Poo has not been heard to even let a hark out of him over the proposed Franco-English alliance thus proposed.

It developed last week that E. R. Thomas, the millionaire racing man, who paid the highest price for a horse in training ever recorded on the American turf when he purchased Hermis, has also figured as a theatrical "angel." It is said Mr. Thomas was the financial backer of Mahello Gilman's tour in "The Mockingbird" last season, and based upon this claim Edgar Atchison Ely, who was one of the members of thec ompany, secured judgment against Mr. Thomas last week for $850, alleged to be due him for breach of contract, calling for twenty-two weeks' work at $200 a week.

A London cable says that Tod Sloan, the American jockey, has signified his willingness to become an actor, and will be seen as one of the principal characters in a big English racing drama that is soon to be put on at the Drury Lane theater in London. Sloan will play the part of a jockey, who is one of the heroes of the story.

David eBlasco, in an interesting interview last Sunday, said: "There is at present a dearth of good plays all over the world, and so the managers in mad despair are digging up the dramatic graveyards and reviving old plays to meet the demand."

The reason for the scarcity of plays he ascribes to the fact that there are few producing managers, and consequently little encouragement for young dramatists. The depletion of the ranks of producers, he thinks, has been caused by the predominance of the commercial manager.

Another tendency that Mr. Belasco deplores is the "all-star" cast. He believes that the individual star loses prestige and "confesses weakness" by participating in such performances.

"Exactly how old are you, anyway?" asked a friend of Lillian Russell.

"I have a friend," replied the actress, with apparent irrelevance, "who was born in mid-ocean on an ocean steamer. After she and her mother had landed the steamer, on its return, blew up. So practically she has no birthplace. My age is like that," she added, after a pause.

A MINER'S LUCK.

A Prison Sentence Saved Him For a Fortune.

When John D. Riker walks a free man out of the territorial penitentiary next week he will leave a fine fortune at his command. When he was imprisoned here nine years ago he was without a dollar, says the Yuma, Ariz., correspondent of the Chicago Inter-Ocean. Now $60,000 is in a bank at Prescott, Ariz., awaiting his order, and, besides, $35,000 is likely to be paid to him for mines belonging to him in Mojave county.

Riker came to the territory forty years ago from Newark, N. J. He was about 20 years old then. He has been saloonkeeper, stage driver, sheep herder and tramp. At one time during the Tombstone boom, twenty-five years ago, he was worth about $10,000.

But Riker lost his money at faro and roulette as fast as he made it. Then he became a tattered prospector in the desert wastes and among the mountains. He made scores of locations for mines.

Riker was a hard drinker. Half a dozen times he was imprisoned in Texas and Arizona for short terms for petty violations of the law while drunk or desperate for money. Finally, he killed a bartender in a quarrel at the silver mining camp of White Hills, in Mojave county, and was sentenced to the Yuma penitentiary for ten years.

Along in 1898, when the copper boom swept over the Southwest, the Coahilla Copper company, of Chicago, bought a group of copper claims in Yavapai county, Ariz., and began development of the property on a large scale. An old-time mining prospector with a good memory recollected the fact that Riker had, in 1877, filed a mining claim upon a good part of the ledge occupied by the Coahilla company. He told a lawyer in Phoenix about it.

Riker was visited in Yuma penitentiary, and he gave additional information about his claim upon the ledge and his mines, the Buster and the Biggar, there. The records of the United States land office were searched and his claim was found good. Moreover, Riker's friends swore that he had done the required assessment work on the property for five years. Riker, however, confessed that he had abandoned hope of ever making the property, and had almost forgotten it after he went to prison.

The Coahilla company was asked by Riker's lawyer to pay $100,000 for the Buster and Bigger copper claims, and the company agreed to arbitrate the matter. The arbitration ended in the payment of $75,000 to John Riker's attorney. Of this, $15,000 went to the lawyer for his services and exnpenses, and the remaining $50,000 was put at interest for Riker until he was released from prison.

Still more luck was to come to the old convict miner. About a year ago the discoveries of gold mines among the yellow sands of Mojave county, in this territory, brought the attention of the mining world to the value of low grade ore claims along the Rio Colorado, close to Southern Utah.

It came about that the Dandy mine, which Riker had located and partly developed fifteen years ago, has been sought after by a dozen buyers. It was Riker's good fortune that he was not on the spot and able to accept the early offers of sums ranging from $5000 to $8000 for his property, for everybody who knows him is sure he would have snapped up one of the offers and have spent the money long ago.

As it is, Yuma is over 300 miles by rail from Mojave county, and one has to cross deserts to get to Yuma from Mojave county by horse. Moreover, Riker cannot communicate in writing with the men who want to buy his Dandy gold mine, because he can't write a word, and it is hard work for him to read.

The long days in negotiating has increased John Riker's fortune some $25,000 already. He may get still more money when he comes out of Yuma prison. He has had a standing offer of $35,000 for the Dandy mine for weeks.

And now the Kingman Citizen says that a silver and lead mine, which Riker located and worked upon over at Chloride just before he went to serve his time in prison, is among the most promising in that camp. Riker may gather in a few more thousand dollars from this when he goes back there a free man next week.

Besides the fortune which has come to him while serving as a convict, Riker has had nine years of sobriety, regular meals and sleep. He is in prime physical condition, and bids fair to add twenty years to his 63 years of life. It is dollars to doughnuts that he would have been dead long ago but for his service in Yuma penitentiary.

MR. FITZSIMMONS AS A HUMORIST.

Bob Fitzsimmons is not a habitual wit, but he has the faculty of arousing laughter with a quip once in six months. There is no one better known in the collegiate and amateur athletic circles of Philadelphia than George Brooke.

He is a squash champion—which, Homer Davenport to the contrary notwithstanding, does not mean a champion judge of squaches.

He made the acquaintance of Robert Fitzsimmons, and Freckle Faced Bob highly approved of him.

So much so, says the Boston Post, that he gazed at him long and earnestly, and said:

"Squash champion, are you? Right? Oh, well, Mr. Brooke, 'ere's a little present I'm a-going to give you.

"I got two bowls over to Bensonhurst and I'm going to give you one."

"One what?"

"One bowl. A bloomin' fat bird that sleeps all day."

"Oh!" said Mr. Brooke, "an owl, yes!"

"You shall 'ave it tomorrow."

"But look here, Mr. Fitzsimmons, why the deuce are you going to give me an owl?"

Bob's little eyes glinted and his thin lips compressed.

"So you can smack 'im on the eye with your bloomin' squash but an' 'ear the beggar 'oot!"

BALTIMORE'S FIRE ON CANVAS.

There is no probability that the present generation of Baltimoreans will ever forget the great fire, but the actual spectacle is also to be presented to posterity. The great blaze will live on the canvas of M. Chartran, the French artist, who worked nine hours on the roof of the Hotel Belvereде that fateful Sunday reproducing it, says the Baltimore Herald.

When the approach of night began to furnish magnificent color effects, Artist Chartran, who is living at present at the Belvedere, hurriedly gathered his colors together, and, with the aid of a helboy, carried his easel, a big canvas and other necessaries to the roof of the hotel and began what may be destined to rank as one of the greatest "nocturnes" in existence. The first stroke of the lursh went on the canvas at 5 o'clock in the evening, and not until 3 o'clock in the morning could the artist be tempted, by cold, hunger or drowsiness, to leave his place.

The painting measures four feet six inches wide by three feet six inches high, and embraces the territory from Liberty street to the Maryland Institute. In the edge of the Hotel Belvedere appears, then immediate foreground the coping at the a view of Charles street, showing Governor Brown's residence, the University club and other well known landmarks. Though the picture is not merely an impressionistic color study, the foreground is largely a mass of dark purples and black with little detail, while the taller buildings and the Washington monument are boldly silhouetted against a background of flame. The Union Trust and Equitable and the Calvert buildings, with yellow windows, show as big furnaces, while the flames over the Law building are curling over the courthouse cornices. The Continental Trust building is shown in a literal rain of embers. The city hall, its west side lighted up brilliantly by the glare of the great conflagration; the Maryland Institute, just being reached by the vanguard of flames, and every building within range of the artist's outlook may be recognized, in spite of the unfamiliar point of view and extraordinary lighting.

Mr. Chartran said he considered it the opportunity of a lifetime, and, after painting for nine long hours, with the nervous energy and inspiration the excitement of the hour provided, succeeded in producing an effect that exceeded even his own expectations. The picture is now on exhibition in New York, where it is attracting a great deal of attention.

AS ENGLISH IS SPOKEN.

A school teacher of prominence in this city, says the Brooklyn Eagle, tells the following story apropos of the modern methods of instruction in the schools.

Tommy Brown came home one afternoon and eagerly inquired of his mother:

"Ma, what does gozintka mean?"

"What's that?" was the reply.

Tommy repeated the question, adding: "Teacher says that lots of time every day."

"How does she say it?" asked the mother, hunting for a clow.

"Two gozintka six, three gozintka nine,'" promptly answered Tommy.

The clew was found. Tommy now knows that in English "gozintka" means "goes into."

If you find a pocketbook, look for reward in The Herald.

B. A. SHUMAN'S WORK AT BUENOS AYRES

Fonuding of the Y. M. C. A. In the South American City — Former Duluthian's Success Attracts Attention of the Entire Christian Church

The second anniversary of the organization of the branch of the Young Men's Christian association at Buenos Ayres, organized and now conducted by B. A. Shuman, of Duluth, was celebrated late in March at the South American city. Reading of reports and addresses of leading speakers all tended to show that the association work had made great strides in South America, and in Buenos Ayres in particular.

It was owing to the action of two associations in Minnesota, those at Duluth and Minneapolis, that in October, 1900, M. A. Clark, now secretary of the Rio Janiero association, visited Buenos Ayres and reported to the international committee in New York the possibilities and needs of the place. In consequence of this, early in 1901, Mr. Shuman was asked to undertake the work of starting an association in that city.

All financial difficulties were overcome by the guaranteeing of the salary by his old association in Duluth, aided by the association in Minneapolis. The secretary arrived at his new field of labor in May, 1901, and until the end of that year he lay low, studying the material that was to be worked upon. It was nearly a year before the association was organized and a constitution drawn up. Even then there was no haste; each new step in advance was thought over carefully. By July, 1902, 200 members had joined, and half a dozen rooms were taken in the very heart of the city, and the list of members, for lack of room, had to be closed at 250.

On Janupary 1, 1903, the quarters were found to be much too small for the demands made upon them, and the association entered new premises. It now has nineteen rooms at its disposal, and the membership has almost reached the 500 mark and is steadily growing. On the membership rolls twenty-nine nations are represented. There are fifty men in the bible class alone, which is considered very encouraging under conditions as they exist in Buenos Ayres. Mr. Shuman is holding his winter classes while the summer classes are being conducted in Duluth, and vice versa.

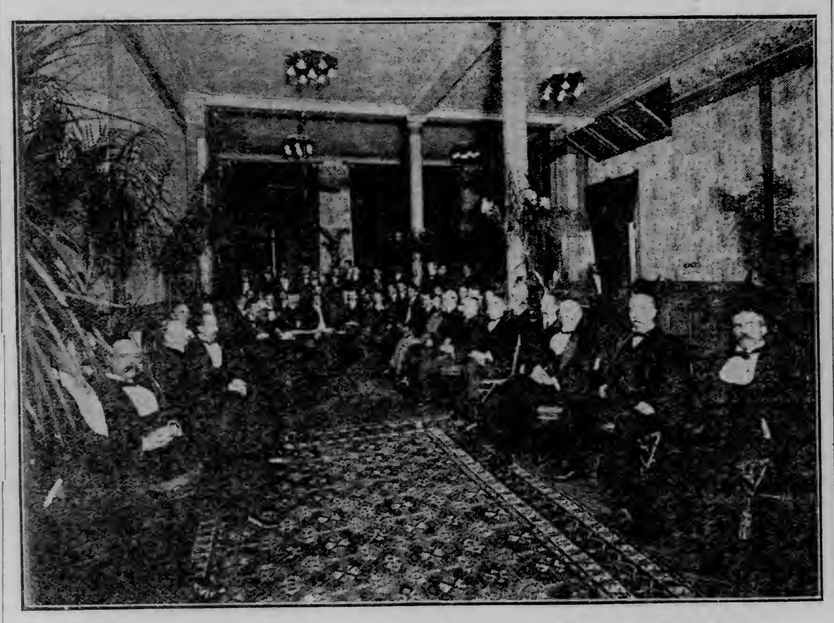

In a little pamphlet recently issued by the local association the following prophecy is made: "Years from now, when the history of the Duluth Y. M. C. A. is written, the work undertaken and accomplished by its foreign work department will be found to be the most valuable and far-reaching of all. From the time this association grappled with this responsibility, every phase of its varied activities has grown in scope and influence."

Mr. Shuman has a great field for his work. It is said that impurity, infidelity and wickedness unamenable in character and depth are rampant in Argentine and Uruguay, and that nearly fifty per cent of the births there are illegitimate.

So markedly successful has been the Y. M. C. A. in Buenos Ayres that it has attracted the attention of the entire Christian church and so impressed was Bishop I. Joyce of the M. E. church, Minneapolis, with the character of it, that shortly after his return from South America he asserted in a public address that Mr. Shuman's work was one of the most marvelous that he had ever observed. J. R. Mott, one of the international secretaries, a short time ago wrote the local association that among the more than thirty secretaries in association work in the foreign field, Mr. Shuman's was the most satisfactory during the past year.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Business Continues to Move In a Most Conservative Way.

New York, April 30.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of trade says: Business continues to move in most conservative channels, purchasing being restricted to immediate requirements, weather conditions dominating the situation to an unusual extent. At many points there has been spring trade and the transition from winter to summer will be accomplished with scarcely any intermediate season.

Considering this adverse factors, the current volume of business is remarkably satisfactory. Building operations are also deferred to a late date. Much structural work is projected, however, and at some favored points last year's record promises to be surpassed. As a rule manufacturers not working at full capacity, idle machinery being most extensive in textile industries.

Floods and storms have interrupted traffic, yet railway earnings thus far reported for April are only 5.5 per cent smaller than last year. Iron and steel conditions are still devoid of any definite change. In several departments the week has brought slightly increased activity, notably in merchant steel, pipe and structural shapes, but in many branches there is hesitation. The nearer fundamental lines are approached the less strength is seen.

Pig iron is also weaker at Pittsburg, and the rapid increase in blast furnace activity has lifted the capacity above the market's requirements. Unless contracts for the third quarter are soon placed on a liberal scale it is probable that output will be checked. Wire nails have maintained activity, but some tin plate works are interrupted by disputes regarding details of the wage reduction. Contracts for Pennsylvania railroad tunnel castings are being sought at very low prices, and this business will soon be placed, while a fair volume of export trade is also approaching consummation. Fuel markets send conflicting reports of anthracite coal being freely sought to take advantage of the spring discounts, but soft coal and coke are abundant and cheap because of idleness at many factories. Conditions are less satisfactory in the dry goods trade than at any previous time this season. Distribution at retail is restricted by the weather, and there are no compensating factors. In men's wear woolens and worsted goods, it is estimated by some that about 70 per cent of the mills are now idle. Carpets are also dull and some cancellations are reported.

Activity and strength is reported in the Western hide markets, sales of over 100,000 being reported on Thursday, when the leading interests resumed purchasing. Trading in foreign dry hides is only limited by arrivals, as demand is good at full values. Forwarding of footwear from Boston continues to fall about an average of 10,000 cases a week behind last year's movement. Bad weather is the paramount figrue in maintaining quiet in boot and shoes.

Failures this week numbered 202 in the United States, against 203 last year and 16 in Canada, compared with 13 a year ago.

ROCKER FOUND GUILTY.

Sentenced to Death For Killing August Schroeder.

Rock Rapids, Iowa, April 30.—A jury yesterday found Charles Rocker guilty of the murder of August Schroeder at Doon, Iowa, June 30, 1901, and fixed the penalty at death.

Rocker worked for Schroeder on a farm. Becoming infatuated with Mrs. Schroeder, he gave Schroeder drugged whisky and then beat him to death and hanged the body in the barn to suggest suicide.

Later Rocker married Mrs. Schroeder, who had in the meantime secured $4,000 insurance on her husband's life. When a child was born, Rocker proposed to kill it, and when the woman protested against the horrible suggestion Rocker told her he had killed Schroeder.

Mrs. Schroeder was able to appear as the principal witness, it being shown that the second marriage was void as Rocker had a wife living whom he had not divorced.

DULUTH BOY'S LIFE WITH TENTED SHOWS

Experiences of Edward Coleman While "Following the Circus."

Traveled With Nine Shows In All, Big and Little.

EDWARD COLEMAN.

Filled with old anecdotes of the road, amusing and otherwise, Edward Coleman, after engaging for nine years in that fascinating profession known as following the circus, so fraught with interest to everyoneand sorich in promise of excitement and adventure to the average American boy, has returned to Duluth, just to stop off awhile and chat with old friends before going to San Francisco to settle down and become established in business. During his travels Mr. Coleman has been in thirty-nine states of the Union and visited every city in the United States of more than 25,000 inhabitants, but he says no city has so taken his fancy as the Western metropolis. For this reason he intends to take up his permanent residence there.

Mr. Coleman, who is now 24 years of age, will be remembered by many old residents of the city for the prominent part he played in two newsboy entertainments given under the auspices of The Herald in the early '90s. For some time he acted as newsboy for the Herald, and while engaged in that capacity made the most of the opportunity to extend his acquaintance among Zenith City people, so that when he left here in 1895, at the age of fifteen, to go to St. Paul and join Ben Wallace's three-ring circus, he left a large circle of friends behind him.

Edward was always known to his brother newsboys as one of those "limber cusses." His limberness, agility and ability as an acrobat and tumbler have made him a living, and more, since he left Duluth, nine years ago. In spite of the fascination about the business, Coleman says that he has quit it for good, and that he is going to retire from the public gaze and lead a quiet life.

* * *

The young man has traveled with nine shows in all, big and little, as follows: Washburn's, W. C. Clarke's, Defen and Boyd, Shower and Rasic, Harris' Nickle Plate show, Gibbs and McGregor, John Robinson, Ben Wallace and Ringling Bros., and in so doing has, as may well be imagined, run across experiences seldom met with in the ordinary walks of life. One such was in Georgia, five years ago.

"Early one evening, as the circus train was bowling merrily along, and we circus people back in our coaches were preparing for bed, there was a collision," said Mr. Coleman yesterday, in narrating some of his experiences. "An engine going madly in the opposite direction had somehow failed to get off the track, and the result was a very much battered and damaged circus.

"By a strange trick of fate neither animals nor people were seriously injured in the wreck, but the smashing of several cars allowed a variety of menagerie attractions to escape and take to the woods. Monkeys, lions, zebras, wolves, bears, creatures from the African jungles, all were turned loose indiscriminately upon a public which should have paid for the privilege of seeing them.

"The manager of the outfit did not worry so much on this score, however, as over the fact that a few of the freed animals were really dangerous. An encounter with human beings might, and very likely would, result most seriously to the latter. Particularly was this true of old Ben, the man-eating lion, which had escaped with the rest, and which even his trainer was afraid to approach without iron bars between.

"But little could be done while it was dark. Daylight was anxiously awaited, and meantime some monkeys and a few of the tamer animals, which had hung about the scene of the accident, were recaptured and placed in their repaired cages.

"The sun rose big and glorious next morning. The irate manager did not notice the beauties of nature, however, but set about scouring the country for signs of the lost prizes, thanking his stars that the smashup had occurred in a wooded section of the country rather than in the city, where the old lion and some of his ill-natnured companions might have done a good deal of harm.

"Signs were to be had in plenty, and frightened negroes arrived every now and then with stories of strange creatures stalking about their cabins. A couple of hours after sun up a little darkey boy came trotting down the road from the north. He timidly approached a group of cussing teamsters, standing about the manger.

"'We uns got one o' yo' big yaller dogs up to ouah place,' he volunteered, 'wid long hayah all over him face, en' a big head."

"'That so?' responded the manager shortly, too much occupied with other things to notice the rather peculiar description, and remembering that four valuable dogs had disappeared with the rest of the animals. 'Bring him down and I'll give you half a dollar.'

"With eyes bulging in excitement at thought of the promised reward, the boy turned and raced with all speed back the way he had come, going three miles to his home, as we afterwards learned.

"Two hours passed, and in the press of other business little more was thought of the matter. Then a strange procession, which struck terror into the hearts of the knights of the ring, appeared, coming down the road.

"'Howly saints presarve us!' an Irish teamster howled, and scrambled hastily and with little grace to the top of the nearest box car, taking time to throw but one frightened glance behind him. I and most of the rest of the followers of the circus joined him in a moment. The wrecking crew merely stood aghast, with their jaws hanging down as though the hinges had broken.

"What we saw, and it didn't strike us as being at all funny at the time, was big Ben, the dreaded man-eater, following meekly along at the end of a piece of clothes line, one end of which was passed around his neck and the other held in the mighty hand of a towering negress, a large and powerful creature little less commanding in appearance than the lion himself. The negro boy of the morning visit, supposedly her son, brought up in the rear with a good-sized club clutched in his chubby fist, with which he soundly hammered old Ben's hams when, on approaching the scene of the wreck, that worthy individual showed signs of hanging back. The woman also brought ito active use a stout willow switch which she carried, and Ben, with a blood-curling snarl of rage, became again submissive.

"Not a man in the troupe, the animal trainer included, would have changed places with the negress at that moment for all the money in circusdom.

"'Come ovah heah, yo' blamed white mans,' she indignantly demanded, 'en take kere yo' measley pup. I wan' mo' a half a dollah, too, 'cause I fed 'im 'nough fo' foah dogs 'smornin'. He come nosin' roun' my place las' night in de dark en skaad de pigs nigh to death, so I had to go out en tie 'im to de fence wid ma clothes line. Licked 'im good, too. 'Pears to me the gu'vm'ent be mighty kereless fo' shoah, lettin' youns tote ugly beasts like him roun' de country.'

"While Ben stood sullenly growling at the heels of his captor, who was looked upon with astonishment and admiration, not unmixed with fear, by the men, a cage was prepared for his reception. He refused to enter it, however, even at the woman's persuasion. None of the men dared approach while the brute had free use of his limbs, for the fact that he had actually killed a man was well known. Finally three ropes were secured and Ben was lassoed and firmly tied, despite his violent protestations.

"The negress was given $5 instead of fifty cents, and she and her son went on their way delighted. No explanation of Ben's strange conduct could be offered, other than that his three-mile tramp through the woods after being so long confined had tired him, and made him less ferocious under the vigorous assault of the burly negress when her pigs were scared the night before than would otherwise have been the case. The fact that his tender feet were sore from the walk probably kept him from breaking the clothes line and escaping during the night.

"But all the adventures with the circus animals have not so happy an ending. Never shall I forget the horrible sight of the burning elephant in 1900, at Flat Rock, Texas. I was traveling with Ben Wallace at the time. One day one of the elephant's got angry at a keeper and killed him, before any assistance could be rendered. The management did not want to kill the animal outright, but did want to cure it once for all of its man killing propensities.

"The trainer devised a devilish torture. The huge animal was securely fastened to the ground, in a clear space, with chains and ropes, and gallon upon gallon of gasoline poured over him. We stood around watching. When preparations were complete the dead keeper was brought out and placed near the elephant's head. Then the gasoline was lighted. Don't tell me that animal did not know what he was being punished for. He knew it just as well as the rest of us.

"It was a terrible sight as the cruel blaze shot up, enveloping the agonized and screaming jungle king in a mass of scorching flame. The awful smell of burning flesh put the other elephants, the whole menagerie, in fact, in a state of extreme terror, and their cries were added to the unearthly din. During the whole day an elephant could not be coaxed within ten rods of the place. They would only scream and moan horribly, and then break and run in the other direction.

"The offending animal was cured. He nearly died, and cooked masses of flesh fell from him in great chunks, leaving holes in places that nearly reached to the bone. By putting your hand on almost any part of his body just after the fire went out you would be burned. One's finger penetrated the animal's flesh as easily as if it were the fat on a fresh-roasted piece of pork. He was sent back to winter quarters, broken in spirit, to be repaired for the next season.

"I met with more unusual experiences while with Wallace than with any of the other shows. There always seemed to be something doing with them. You will remember that it was this show that was mixed in such a terrible wreck down in Michigan last summer. I was not with them at the time, but was with Ringling Bros.

"I was with Wallace, however, down at Greenville, Ind., one time, when a mob was going to clean out the whole outfit for some reason or other. The ropes holding the tents were cut and there was the deuce to pay generally. The police had no control over the armed mob, and the only thing that saved us was the fact that the management made it a practice to carry with the rest of the baggage scores of rifles and revolvers, with plenty of ammunition. The men were soon armed and the property was protected from the infuriated mob. Many of the shows, little and big, carry with them a small arsenal for just such emergencies. Wallace always does.

"I was with Ringling Bros. at Detroit when a hurricane, or something closely related to a hurricane, blew down the tent, and caused a stampede out into the rain last year.

"The lion and the negress, the burning elephant and the circus girls standing in the pouring rain, dressed only in red and pink and blue tights, with the colors running like a frightened rabbit, are the three sights which stand fortmost clearly in the memory of my circus experiences. I don't believe I shall ever forget any of them.

"Circus people are a pretty good sort and make you out a fine fellow, if you will only do as they do, and spend your money as fast as you get it. The men are inveterate gamblers. I have known more than one drawing $150 every Saturday night coming around to some of the poorer paid fellows and asking for a loan of a dollar to tide them over till Saturday.

"Generally your money comes along regularly every Saturday night, but once in a while you strike an outfit that grudges every cent you get. The John Robinson push had it into me for $156 once, so I attached their outfit and they weren't allowed to show until they paid me, which they didn't do until they had been compelled to miss two performances, afternoon and evening.

"I was once quarantined for eighteen days at Pensacola, Fla., and have visited Key West twice. The milkmen have a funny way of doing business in Key West. Instead of milk wagons and cans, they take their cows right along with them, and give you fresh milk right from the udder as you want it.

* * *

"Wagon shows are a thing of the past here in the North, but in parts of the South they are still to be found. I traveled with three different ones through Texas and the Southwestern states. That was a circus for sure. Our bunks were built in wagons, four to a wagon, and we slept in them while bumping along over the rough country roads. It's all in getting used to a thing. There are always a lot of rough hangers-on and robbers along with these wagons, and many of the railroad shows too, for that matter, and they usually reap a rich harvest. A wagon show, especially through a stock country, usually gets its meat and vegetables free. Some of them have a regular foraging wagon which is sent ahead at night to forage for provisions. The men on this wagon think nothing of killing three or four sheep, or even a steer, for they know that before they are found out, if a little care is taken, they will be hundreds of miles away, and then there will be no means of fixing the guilt upon them.

During the conversation Mr. Coleman gave the true receipt for circus lemonade as follows:

Half dozen lemons, 20 cents' worth of tartaric acid, 5 cents' worth of the stuff the curcus girls use as red face paint, and half a barrel of water, the whole mixed with a stick. The lemons are merely for appearance sake, and no effort is made to squeeze the juice from them. The face paint makes good coloring and the acid gives the sour taste.

SCHEDULE IS OUT

Games In Northern Baseball League For 1904 Announced.

Duluth Gets 53 Games at Home Out of 95.

The Northern league official schedule was received in Duluth yesterday afternoon. It shows the effect of Manager Van Praagh's kick during the early part of the season, for the Duluth club has secured practically all it asked for. Duluth plays 95 scheduled games in all, of which number, 53 are played at home and 42 abroad.

Duluth plays at home on the afternoon of July 4 and in Superior in the morning. Memorial day is spent in Grand Forks, but Duluth will be at home for two games on Labor Day.

The summing up of the schedule as it affects Duluth will be a good thing for the fans to paste in their hats.

Duluth opens the season at Fargo, on May 19, 20 and 21, and goes to Crookston for three games on May 23, 24 and 25. From Crookston the team will jump to Winnipeg for three games on May 26, 27 and 28, and will return to Grand Forks for four games on May 30, 31 and June 1. On June 2, 3 and 4 the White Sox will play the first home games with Winnipeg. The team will remain home until June 18, playing Grand Forks on June 13, 14 and 15 and Superior on June 16, 17 and 18. The White Sox will then go to Superior for June 19, 20 and 21 and will jump to Winnipeg for three games on the 23, 24 and 25. They will return to Grand Forks for June 27, 28 and 29, and Fargo for June 30, July 1 and July 2. They play in Superior on the morning of July 4, and July 3 and 5, playing at home on the afternoon of the holiday. On July 7 they will return home for three games with Winnipeg. Another long series of home games will follow. Fargo comes for three games on July 11, 12 and 13, Superior for three games on July 14, 15 and 16, Grand Forks on July 17, 18 and 19 and Crookston on July 21, 22 and 23. The White Sox then go away for a trip around the circuit, playing on July 25, 26 and 28 at Crookston, 28, 29 and 30 at Winnipeg, August 1, 2 and 3 at Fargo, and August 4, 5 and 6 at Grand Forks. They then return home and between that date and the end of the season take only one short trip to Superior for three games. They play Fargo on August 8, 9 and 10, Winnipeg on August 11, 12 and 13, Grand Forks on August 15, 16 and 17, and Crookston on August 18, 20 and 21. They then cross the bay for three games with Bugville and return to Duluth for three more on August 25, 26 and 27. Fargo comes here on August 30 and 31 and September 1, and Crookston closes the season with four games on September 3, 4 and 5, playing two games on the latter date.

This schedule gives Manager Van Praagh's bunch of pennant chasers every chance in the world to land the pennant if they have the stuff in them. The long series of home games at the close of the season should enable the White Sox to pull up in the list if they are not too far behind.

The following is a copy of the complete schedule as approved by President Laxdal:

WILL PLAY CLOQUET TEAM

Fashions Fix Game For May 22—Cloquet Is Strong.

Arrangements have been made for a game between the Duluth Fashions and the fast Cloquet team for May 22.

The Fashions will be one of the strongest amateur nines in Duluth this year. Manager Whyte has signed a number of the best known amateurs at the head of the lakes, and in the two practices already held they have shown up well.

The Cloquet team claimed the amateur championship of Northern Minnesota last year, and was probably entitled to it, winning twenty-one out of twenty-two games played. The team this year is fully as strong, or stronger, and the game with the Fashions should be a fast contest.

The Fashions will practice tomorrow afternoon at the baseball grounds at 2 o'clock.

PYTHON UNCORKED BY STEAM.

Many creatures of the tropic zone arrived yesterday aboard the Atlantic transport liner Marquette, from London, and a few of them of antagonistic temperaments got into scraps on the way across, says the New York Sun.

A monkey and a porcupine had a dispute and the porcupine wrote its monogram on the monkey. But the greatest sport to the animal keepers was a duel between a crocodile and a python.

The crocodile is a pet of Mrs. Szarvasi of the Sells-Forepaugh show and is called Sappho. The python, so the classic press agent who gave out the story said, is named Phaon.

Three nights ago the python, said to be about twenty feet long, escaped from its box and discovered the pet crocodile and made an effort to squeeze the life out. But the scaly armor of the saurian was unbendable and could not be cracked even by the rigorous pressure of a forty-foot python's coil. The crocodile lashed its tail in an ineffectual effort to reach the python, whose eighty feet were wound around the crocodile, chiefly amidships.

The animal men discovered the combatants about an hour after they had been in conflict, and tried to uncoil the 100 feet of python. It was an impossible task, as the coils had become as rigid as steel.

Then the men decided to uncork the coil by pulling out the crocodile with the help of a steam winch and a hawser.

The python presented a somewhat remarkable appearance after the separation. It simply could not uncoil itself, and the animal men rolled it, as they might a long barrel, back to its box. They then drove it, tail first, into an opening, as if it had been a corkscrew. It had relaxed yesterday and looked just like any other python 320 feet long.

AN ARMY OF SUICIDES.

In an article contributed to the New York Independent George P. Upton shows that within the past thirteen years 77,617 people have committed suicide in this country. In 1902 fifty cities furnished 2500 cases of self-destruction, out of a total of 8132 for the entire country. Of the 77,617 suicides in the thirteen-year period, 57,317 were males and 20,400 females. The greatest ration of increase is among young women under 25 years of age. Another curious fact is the increasing number of children who kill themselves. Of the methods chosen for ending life, a very large proportion select carbolic acid. Prior to 1894 more suicides died from bullets than from all other agencies combined. Since then poison seems to have been preferred, with carbolic acid a favorite. The remainder is divided between hanging, drowning, the knife, jumping from windows or roofs, gas, fire and dynamite, while as many as 800 selected the expedient of throwing themselves in front of locomotives.

SCENES AT WORTH RACE TRACK, WHERE THE CHICAGO TURF SEASON HAS OPENED

SHARP BOY.

GRAND STAND AT WORTH.

BUTWELL. TWO OF PA BRADLEY'S 2-YEAR-OLDS. GOLDEN RULE.

TREASURER O'BRIEN DRIVING HIS IRISH TANDEM.

MOST CONSISTENT PERFORMER AT WORTH.

JAMES A. SCANLON'S BLOODED BULL PUP —FATHER IN UPPER CORNER.

"Uncle Jerry" may not be a very handsome pup to look at. He is not the kind of pup that a lady would choose for a pet, but he has blue blood in his veins.

Uncle Jerry is a brindled bull pup, owned by James A. Scanlon, of 126 Seventh avenue west. Mr. Scanlon is a dog fancier and a lover of bulldogs in particular. Uncle Jerry is his prime favorite. He is a pup but a few months old, but already he has the short nose, the wide chest, the bow legs, the projecting lower jaw, and the wide head that distinguish the thoroughbred bull, that marked the composition of ugliness known as Yeovil Lion, the father of Uncle Jerry.

For pure, unadulterated ugliness Yeovil Lion was probably unequaled in the canine world, and Uncle Jerry promises to come a close second when he attains his full growth.

Mr. Scanlon has the pedigree of Uncle Jerry for several generations back. He was born and bred in Galesburg, Ill., and is registered in the American Kennel club. While his appearance is enough to make a man of ordinary courage seek the tall timbers, Uncle Jerry is of a very mild and peaceloving disposition, and while he cannot eradicate the devilish looking grin from his jaws, his eyes are mild and gentle and the children of the neighborhood know him to be a safe playmate.

Uncle Jerry possesses what is known to dog fanciers as a "crank tail." His tail is apparently broken in the middle, which is claimed to be a sign of the pure blood, and is generally good for several points in a bench show.

THE WORTH MEETING

Turf Followers In Readiness For the Opening Events.

The Strings of Well Known Owners Are on Hand.

Chicago, April 30.—This is the week that horsemen and turf followers have been waiting for ever since the last race was run at Worth Oct. 31. The local racing season opens again today, and if indications are of any value, the 1904 meetings will be witnessed by greater throngs than have ever attended performances of thoroughbreds in this neighborhood. The eagerness of horse owners to get stable room at the local tracks, the avidity with which every bit of racing news is read and discussed about town, and the busy scenes at track and club testify plainly that Chicago is race starved, and only waiting for flag fall to indulge its appetite.

Minus the attraction of its usual list of spring stake events, the Worth Jockey club will throw open the gates of the Chicago Ridge course for eighteen days of racing. Realizing the handicap to success which the absence of stakes places upon them, the owners of the track have adopted the plan of giving unusually large over-night events, and thus far the plan has met with the approval of horse owners.

The strings of well-known owners have been arriving for the last ten days. These horses have come from the East, from the South and from the far West. The runners of the Pacific coast meet here with horses that have raced at Memphis, Little Rock, Bennings and St. Louis, for "all roads lead to Rome," and Chicago is the Rome of the racing world.

Fourteen carloads of horses came from Memphis alone, while from the East came the strings of A. L. Aste, James Blute, who ships eight head from Jamaica, and Sydney Bender, the last including Lord Melbourne, who has won many dollars for his backers over a muddy track. The horses of "Sam" Hildreth and George C. Bennett are also here, and four horses belonging to James Griffin & Co., which have been wintering at Hawthorne, are at Worth.

With all these good stables come some of the best jockeys in the business. Lucien Lyne, Dominick, Milton Henry, McIntyre, Sheehan, L. Wilson, Dale and Shaver will wear silk at the Worth meeting, and numbers of others will come here when the meetings at the other tracks end.

KELLY'S MEDAL,

Like Sullivan's Belt, Is In a Pawnshop.

New York, April 30.—Like John L. Sullivan's famous championship belt, Mike Kelly's gold medal is in hock in a Park Row pawnshop.

Mike Kelly—"Ten-thousand-dollar" Kelly. Customers ask, "Who was he?" a tragic commentary, indeed, upon life's little span.

The medal was presented in 1887 by the Boston Globe, shortly after the baseball world had been electrified by the announcement that the Boston Nationals had purchased Kelly from Chicago for the sum of $10,000. It cost about $250, but now rests in a pawnshop window, tarnished, dusty and forgotten.

Fifteen years ago Michael J. Kelly was conceded to be the finest all-round player in the profession, being able to take any position, except pitching, and occasionally he even did that. He was born in Troy, N. Y., in 1857, and had his first professional engagement with the Olympics of Paterson, in 1876-77.

A year later found him with the Buck-eyes of Columbus, Ohio, McCormick pitching. In 1879 he was right-fielder and change catcher for the Cincinnati league team, joining Chicago the same year in the same capacity.

He was regarded in baseball like John L. Sullivan in pugilism. He caught frequently without hat, mask, protector or mouth rubber, and was regarded as the best catcher that ever stood behind the bat. He had never an enemy, although he "kidded" a crowd with more audacity than any player before or since.

In St. Louis one day—the queen of England's birthday—he turned to the Irish rooters sitting in Kerry patch and yelled: "God save the Queen." He then began to whistle "Boyne Water," starting a riot that the police could only quell by explaining that "Mike" was the best Catholic and Irishman of them all.

FAST WORK BY YALE OARSMEN

Crew Covers the Four-Mile Course In Good Time.

New Haven, Conn., April 30.—By covering the four mile course on time the Yale 'varsity crew has secured a basis for figuring its strength and speed. The trip over the regular racing distance for the first time always marks an epoch in the year's history of a crew and the rowing statisticians have had their note books out trying to calculate how much better the eight of 1904 is than its predecessors since it went over the four miles under the watch.

The time is said to have been about twenty-three minutes forty-five seconds, which is about the average for the first try out. The oarsmen have not yet hit the stroke above thirty for regular tests, so that they are a couple of minutes slower than they will be when they get to New London. Their trial Monday was under the most adverse circumstances. The wind blowing such a sea that the oarsmen rowed the last mile in ice water which rose about their ankles and finished with the shell nearly swamped.

The eight showed itself a rugged lot by its endurance. The satisfactory showing in the long time row has gone a long ways toward establishing the order of the eight as settled, at least a majority of the cases. The only regular member of the eight who was absent and who has been away for a week was Morse, No. 3. He has had a bad foot, but has just returned and will probably take his former seat in the shell, although Ferguson showed up well in the seat during his absence.

Capt. Cross is proving a first-class stroke, and, unless his understudy, Whitney, who set the clip for the freshmen eight last year, does astonishing work, Cross will hold his seat. The chance for Whitney taking stroke away from Cross and the latter going back to his old seat at No. 7 have grown less since Miller, who has been No. 3, was moved to No. 7 to permanently replace Cross there.

Miller, although a football guard, has trained down to about 178, and probably will go into the Harvard race at about 175, which is a trifle high for a No. 7 man, but otherwise Miller is an ideal stroke for the starboard oars. Whittier, at No. 6, who was taken from the freshmen boat last June at New London, is one of the most finished oars at Yale He is the backbone of the boat. In some respects his work reminds the coaches of George Langford, the famous stroke of the '97 crew. Big Chase, the 192 pounder from last year's freshman eight, is now a fixture at No. 5, it is thought. The only question is whether he will prove too heavy a man for the shell or not.

Stuyvesant Fish, Jr., has been kept at No. 4 since the training season opened, and he is regarded as having a winning grasp on the bench. He is a painstaking oarsman, has an infinite capacity for hard work, and, although not physically as rugged as two or three other men in the boat, his blade work is finished and he never seems to be out of condition or not on edge. He is one of the most popular oarsmen in the squad and rumor already points to him as the probable captain of the Yale eight for next season.

The 'varsity eight as it stands today is largely the freshmen eight of last season. Whittier, Chase, Morse or Ferguson, No. 3; H. Scott, No. 2; and Weeks, bow, were all in the 1903 shell last season.

Whitney will stroke the eight which goes to Annapolis. The second eight has been rowing as follows:

Stroke, Whitney; No. 7, Shaw; No. 6, Bloomer; No. 5, B. Scott; No. 4, Daly; No. 3, Ferguson or Low; No. 2, Ely; and No. 3, bow, Swenson.

Capt. MacMahon, of the crack freshman eight of last year has stopped rowing.

KENTUCKY DERBY

Nearly All the Derby Eligibles Are at the Downs.

Good Representation of Leading Western Stables Is Assured.

Louisville, Ky., April 30.—With the arrival of Conjurer and Proceeds, as well as other grand 3 year olds, at Churchill Downs this week, nearly all of the colts which will start in the Kentucky Derby to be run on May 2 are quartered at the Louisville track.

There are more fine thoroughbreds now at the Downs than ever occupied stalls at this famous course, and between now and the opening day of the coming race meeting some sensational workouts may be expected. A large number of the best horses in the West arrived at the track after the close of the meeting at Memphis and the stables of William Gerst, Johnny Fay, E. S. Gardner, and others will be shipped here at the close of the Nashville meeting. Before the end of the coming week more than 1000 horses will be quartered at Churchill Downs, and there is every indication that the approaching meeting will be the most pretentious given here since the days of Proctor Knott, Hindoo, Leonatus, Riley, and the others from Aristides to Judge Himes.

Among the prominent turfmen who will race their horses at the coming meeting at the Downs are Fred Cook, Joe Pugh, John W. Schorr, Tom McDowell, Woodford Clay, Talbott Bros., William Gerst, E. S. Gardner, C. E. "Boots" Durnell, Capt. S. S. Brown, Mrs. M. Goldblatt, John S. Brattan, C. T. Waltring, W. R. Schulte, John Rodegap, J. C. Allan & Co., George J. Long, George Hendrie, Sam C. Hildreth, P. M. Civill, B. C. Bunbury, E. R. Bradley, M. H. Tichenor & Co., Capt. Jim Williams, W. G. Muir, Charles W. Moore, W. H. Laudeman, Ed Corrigan, W. W. Darden & Co., George C. Bennett & Co., Charles R. Ellison, and others.

The refusal of Trainer Billy Phillips to permit English Lad to be shipped to Nashville for the Cumberland prize on Thursday does not mean that the gallant son of Requital is to start in the Kentucky Derby on May 2, though it is extremely probable he will. It all depends on the form shown by the colt and the form shown by the other eligibles during next week. Fred Cook wants the American Derby most of all, and Trainer Phillips is going to take no chances unless the colt is fit. Cook wanted to have English Lad started in the Cumberland prize, but Phillips refused, and "Brown Dick," that able trainer who is assisting Phillips, boldly declared that English Lad was far from a race.

"We have been hampered by a lack of training weather," said Brown Dick, "and while English Lad did a mile in 1:42 1-5 last Sunday, galloping on to the mile and a quarter in 2:13¾, the mile and an eighth being done in 1:56, we have let the son of Requital take things easy this week. He takes kindly to his work, but the weather has been against us. We want him to win the Kentucky Derby, but are going to take no chances." And so Elgbish Lad was not asked to do anything like his best during the week.

Conjurer and Proceeds, the S. S. Brown eligibles, who arrived here on Wednesday with Audience, winner of the Tennessee Oaks, and nine other high class thoroughbreds, were also not asked to do anything during the week. In fact a cold wave swept over the state the day they arrived. Stiff breezing was all that was asked of them.

The only workout during the week of a Derby eligible was by Talbott Bros.' Prince Silverwings, who was given a mile in 1:44 with a big boy up. He seems well enough to have gone the Derby route, but that will be asked of him next week. Prince Silverwings is regarded as a certain starter. English Lad was galloped a mile in 1:46½, mile and an eight in 2:02, finishing under a strong pull in 2:28.

Working of 2-year-olds has been one of the features of the week's training at Churchill Downs. The strings of Fred Cook and Talbot Bros. abound in good ones who are now working halves in less than :50. Work under that time, however, has been the exception and not the rule, and the majority of the trainers have been content to send their charges over the half in :52 or better. Warm sunshine and crisp mornings are needed before the 2-year-old division is let out.

Dell Leath, another of the Cook Derby eligibles, has not been asked to do better than a mile. His best time during the week was three-quarters in 1:20. Phillips is going to take no chances with his legs are bad. Determination worked three-quarters in 1:19. This 3-year-old filly is being prepared for the Kentucky Oaks. She is taking her work well, has grown but little, and looks thin. Linguist was given three-quarters in 1:22. An unknown brown filly in the Cook stable worked five-eighths in 1:00¾, covering the first quarter in :23 and the half in :52. The name of the filly is a mystery, and it is even hinted that she does not belong to the Cook stable.

Proofreader, Jim Williams' crack, worked a mile in 1:46½. Joe Pugh's horses were galloped. Waimamolnen was breezed behind the mare and showed up well. George Long worked one of his 3-year-olds three-quarters in 1:20. A couple of the 3-year-old colts made slightly slower time.

Ed Corrigan, who spent Thursday at the Downs, said positively he would start McGee in the World's Fair handicap in St. Louis. He will not race at all at Louisville this year, though he had some good entries in the Nursery stakes. He will send thirty-one of his best horses to Kansas City. The remainder of the season will be spent on the Chicago tracks.

CHANGE MADE IN FOOTBALL

Field Goal Will Now Count But Four Points.

The changes made in the national football rules by the committee which met at Philadelphia were almost as radical as those effected a year ago. Here is the summary of the alterations:

Goal from field to count for points instead of five.

Six men must be in the line of scrimmage at all times.

If seven men are in the line when the ball is snapped, the first man to receive the ball from center may run with it, providing he goes outside the second man from center—that is, the tackle.

Team which is losing can have choice of kick-off or the wind, but cannot have both.

The team which loses twenty yards by penalty is not to be given first down.

The most important of these changes is that which allows four men besides the quarter behind the line at all times. The change is a compromise between the ideas of the mass-play exponents and those of the advocates of a running game. The quarter-back run is retained, and may be made from any part of the field, but only when seven men are i the line of scrimmage. The change will do away with the checkerboard marking of the field, since the officials are not required to decide whether the quarterback, in making a run, goes five yards outside center.

The new plan is, in all essential features, that proposed by Yost, of Michigan, who has all along argued in favor of having six men in the line at all times. He maintained that an open game was more difficult with seven men in the line than with five or six, since the backs alone could not furnish adequate interference for end runs. Five men behind the line, including the quarter, are not enough to make a mass play effective by weight alone, but still enough to make it easier to gain either through the line or round the ends, than with all seven forwards in the line. Whether the changes will result in a return to mass plays or in an open game can only be determined by next fall's experience. In all probability the individual coaches will select the styles which they favor most, and to which their own men are most suited.

The reduction of the points scored by a field goal has been advocated strenuously for some years by most football men, who contend that a goal should not count as much as a touchdown. Many have favored a reduction to three or even two points.

The question arose several times last year whether or not a team that lost twenty yards by a penalty was entitled to a first down, just as though they had lost it in play, and that rule was changed to read "The team which loses twenty yards, except by a penalty, to be given a first down."

AMATEURS BUSY

All Northern League Cities Have Non-Professional Leagues.

Duluth to Lead Them All With Two Organizations.

Every city in the Northern League circuit will have an amateur baseball league during the coming summer.

Winnipeg has a fast four-club league and Fargo is trying to form a six-club league. Grand Forks and Crookston are in the field with city amateur leagues and Superior has followed suit. Duluth will probably take her rightful place on top of the heap with two fast six-club amateur leagues. The Commercial league has already completed its organization with five clubs, and another will probably be added.

The second city league which is to include several of the indoor ball clubs will probably be formed during the coming week. The men who are behind the scheme have been waiting for the Northern league schedule to be published in order to find out the dates on which they can have the baseball grounds, and now that it has been made public there is nothing delaying the organization.

A meeting will be held some time during the early part of next week for the purpose. The Big Duluth club has already met and organized and announced its line-up for the season. The Freimuth team will follow suit within a few days, and the others will fall into line.

Amateur baseball is going to boom in Duluth during the coming summer and there will probably be more interest taken in the sport than during any previous season.

* * *

Amateur teams throughout the city are at liberty to use The Herald for announcements of their line-ups, and are invited to send in the results of any games played. Communications should be addressed to the sporting editor of The Herald and should reach the office before 9:30 a. m. if possible.

* * *

Bergijl is not going to be dependant upon the Northern league this year for baseball exhibitions. A fast semi-professional team is being organized there and games will be arranged with the different independent teams in Northern Minnesota.

* * *

The Cloquet team, which was one of the fastest amateur nines in the business last season is again in the field and is prepared to meet any of the local amateurs.

Manager La Londe writes The Herald that he has a much stronger team than last year and fully expects to land the amateur championship of Northern Minnesota. His line-up will be as follows: Ridden, catcher; William Ilesche, first base; Ernest Schriber, second base; A. T. Gordon, third base. Tom Crotty, short stop; Frank Crotty, Gust Bentz and Gust Popkins, outfielders, Mike Houle, George Sheehy and A. McGregor will do the twirling. Houle finished the season with Superior last year. Sheehy won twenty-on games and lost one for last year's Cloquet nine, and McGregor is a new southpaw, of whom great things are predicted. The Cloquet bunch is certainly a formidable one, and the local nines will not find any easy money if they take a trip to the hustling little city.

A PLUCKY YANKEE.

Makes a Game Fight In London Club.

Jimmy Walsh, the clever and hard-hitting New England boxer, made his first appearance in London on Monday night of last week, where he met "Digger" Stanley, the champion 108-pound lad of England. The battle for international honors took place before the National Sporting club, and was one of the best ever seen at that famous organization. Stanley was given the decision at the end of the fifteenth round amid wild howls of the fifteenth round amid wild howls from the spectators, who thought that the verdict was unjust.

Stanley must be a pretty tough little fellow, for, had he not been, there would surely have been a knock-out recorded for the American, who has made his record in that line. Before going to England Walsh knocked out four men at various clubs in the vicinity of Boston. He put away Kid Paul in three rounds, Kid Lewis in two rounds, Jimmy Connelly in one round, and Tommy Quigley in thirteen rounds. Despite the discouraging start made by Walsh, he is almost certain to make good before he returns to America.

The North-Western Line.

City Freight and Ticket office will move this Saturday p. m. to 302 West Superior street, Lonsdale building.

HAS UPLIFTED BOXING GAMES

Seattle, Wash., April 30.—Most prominent among those who have of late years been putting forth their efforts towards the upholding of the boxing game, none can be mentioned who has proven better qualified in that direction than Billy Lavigne.

The astute Billy learned his lines of the fistic art both in and out of the ring, and since 1884 has been constantly connected in some manner with it as boxer, manager, promoter, and instructor.

Lavigne at the present time has in view the formation of a circuit of amateur boxing clubs throughout the Northwest, which, when completed, will comprise all the principal cities of the Northwest, including Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane and Portland, Ore.

Lavigne has been connected with many of the most prominent boxing clubs in the country, as well as the organizer of several, and in each case his efforts have always proven highly commendable. His plan to form a Western circuit of athletic clubs is the largest project he has yet undertaken, and it is a novel departure in the field of athletic management.

EIGHT WILL BE OUT

Probable Madison Crew to Have Trial on the Bay.

New Shell Expected Next Week and Will Be Used.

The big 8-oared shell of the Duluth Boat club will be launched for the first time this season this afternoon, and eight of the husky candidates for the crew will undertake to win in a race with old Father Time.

The new eight has not yet arrived. It is expected next week, but the old shell has been repaired and varnished up and will be made use of in the practice spins. As soon as the new shell arrives the members of the crew will commence regular work in it, in order to become accustomed to it before the big race at Madison.

The crew that will man the eight this afternoon will be as follows: Gibson, stroke; Calhoun, 7; H. M. Peyton, 6; B. M. Peyton, 5; L'Estrange, 4; Puck, 3; Elmer Whyte, 2; MacPhail, 1.

This is the crew selected by Dr. Lynam, who has charge of the coaching, and it will probably be the crew that will take the trip to Madison, although one or two changes may possibly be made before the date arrives. The members of the crew have had several spins in the fours since the harbor opened, but the first opportunity of seeing them at work in the eight will be given this afternoon. They are all in the best of condition, as the result of six weeks' work in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium and regular cross-country runs, and they are prepared to pick up their work where they left off last year.

The harbor is now open for a sufficient space to give the crew every opportunity to work out in the shells, and the eight will be out three or four evenings a week from now until the date of the Madison regatta on June 9. This leaves the men but a little over a month to get in shape, but Dr. Lynam believes he can get them into condition for the race by that time, and the Duluth club will be able to send a crew to Madison which will make a good showing. The crew will average about 175 pounds in weight.

LITTLE WORK AT HARVARD

Cambridge, Mass., April 30.—Easter vacation and the weather have both made a decidedly slow week for sports at Harvard. But little would have been attempted in athletics anyway owing to the absence of so many of the men, but as it was, the arctic temperature has practically prevented any outdoor work by any of the men who remained.

It has been too cold on the river for the crews to row, although Coach Colson has had the 'varsity squad out about every afternoon except Wednesday, when a driving snow squall was too much even for him. So far as baseball and lacrosse teams are concerned, their Southern trips, taken for the purpose of "limbering up," have proved just the reverse, and both teams will return with little, if any, benefit derived from their visits.

WAS KING OF SPORT PROMOTERS

New York, April 30.—Big, good-natured and whole-souled Jimmy Kennedy is no more. His familiar figure will no longer be seen at the main entrance of Madison Square Garden during the big sporting events there, nor will his smiling countenance greet the lovers of boxing at the big fights in Frisco. Death claimed Kennedy as a victim last week, while apparently in the best of health.

Mr. Kennedy was known far and wide as a liberal, upright and game sporting man. Nothing was too big for him to do. If a friend asked him a favor and he made up his mind to do it nothing on earth could prevent him from carrying out his promise. He seemed to take particular delight in making great achievements appear small, and although the gene at public had never marveled at his accomplishments, he did things that no one else would ever have thought of. Years ago he went out to the Pacific coast and became interested in the biggest boxing club out there, the Yosemite, although its friends predicted that the sentiment against a New Yorker working his way in on a sport supported by "Native Sons" would be more than he could overcome, but he got there all right and was a stockholder in the organization at the time of his death.

Years ago Kennedy was one of the leading sporting writers of the East. After retiring from the newspaper field he took to promoting sporting events. He met with success a hundred times where he failed once. How he got through with his many big schemes few people could understand, because he did things in such an unconcerned manner that his masterly achievements looked comparatively small in the eyes of those who did not understand his wonderful executive ability.

As a promoter of prize fights and of six-day bicycle races he had gained not only great fame, but, it is believed, considerable fortune. For many years he had been associated with "Pat" Powers, president of the Eastern Baseball league and of the League of Minor Baseball clubs, in the promotion of six-day bicycle races in Madison Square Garden.

They had given these contests an international flavor and interest by bringing each year at their own expense many of the best-known professional bicycle racing men of Europe. The profits from these sixday contests is known to have

With Powers as a partner Kennedy also promoted sprint bicycle races and motor-paced races, both in the garden and at the Manhattan Beach cycle track, of which they were the lessees for several years.

Kennedy was interested in the promotion of prize fights both in the East and the West at different times, being financially interested in boxing and athletic promoting clubs in New York and San Francisco. He was largely interested in the Yosemite Athletic club of the latter city, in whose prize ring many of the most noted pugilistic battles of recent times have been fought.

Frank Kelly, the local sporting man, cherishes a lively recollection of Jim Kennedy, as he came in contact with him on several occasions while he was East as manager of Shadow Maber and Kid McCoy. It was as the manager of the former that Kelly first met Kennedy.

Kelly had Maber go East and secured him for a go with Jimmy Handler before the Manhattan Athletic club, which was then in the heyday of its glory. Maber was a very fast man for a few rounds and he put it all over Handler, who was at that time a protege of Fitzsimmons.

The papers next day gave Maber a big boost and said he was a speedier man than Young Griffo. The result was that Kelly was deluged with offers and got one from Kennedy for the Coney Island club. He accepted this one and it was a novel one, inasmuch as Maber was to get $100 for every round that the fight lasted, and it went six.

Then he gave Maber another chance to go on against Joe Green the same night that Erne was down to fight the main bout. Maber trained at Coney Island and Kelly turned him over to Harry Tuthill, the present trainer of Young Corbett, and went to the city. The rest of the story is best told in Kelly's own words: "I was standing on Upper Broadway the day before the fight when the newsboys came along and yelled 'All about the attempted murder of a prizefighter!' I bought immediately and when I read that Maber had been stabbed near the heart with an ice pick I almost fell over, as I was all in and had borrowed a century from Kennedy in advance.

"Down to Coney Island I went and found Maber in bed with his side all bandaged up. 'This is a fine state of affairs,' said I.

"'I'll fight,' said Maber. 'I am not hurt much.'

"No, he wasn't hurt at all; the pick just went a couple of inches into his chest, a mere trifle.

"Well, I hied to a doctor and by slipping him a twenty-spot he gave me a certificate that Maber was in good condition and able to fight.

"So, armed with the certificate and with a bunch of handlers, carrying buckets, bandages and bottles, accompanied by Maber, we repaired to the club.

"When Kennedy spied us he came over and said, 'What are you doing here?'

"'Came to fight.'

"'What, fight with a dead man?' said he. 'Not much.'

"'Well, here I am, my man is here and here is a certificate from a reputable physician, and if Maber can't fight I want what's coming to us.'

"Kennedy read the certificate, looked at me and said: 'Well, if Maber is game enough to come here in the fix he is in to fight and you have the gall to claim the forfeit, I'll settle.' We took the coin and ducked."

HARD TASK AHEAD

Performances of Runners at Aqueduct Puzzle Expert Pickers.

Stars Fail to Develop and Stubborn Contests the Rule.

New York, April 30.—The few days that we have had of Metropolitan racing have been enough to convince the form players that the task ahead of them is going to be one of the hardest of recent years. This claim is based on the fact that the horses that have been shown and will be introduced are matched with an evenness that is sure to be puzzling.

This applies to the 2-year-olds as well as to the older horses. Stars may be few and far between, but the general grade is such as to bring the most stubborn sort of contests.

Among the younger horses that have been shown, there is no question that the delegation from the stable of Sydney Paget or, to be more correct, the string that he has been racing for Mr. Haggin, is best, and that by a big margin. Mr. Paget says that those that he has shown are only the selling platers, and the stake colts and fillies are still in the barn unknown except by what they have shown in the morning. It may be that he is correct in his views, but the trainers that have been watching the entire outfit are of the opinion that those that have been winning will prove to be pretty close to the top-notchers.

A. J. Joyner, the trainer of the lot, is still on the sick list, and he will hardly have the pleasure of putting a saddle on one of his charges before the opening at Morris Park. He is, of course, delighted with the showing that has been made, and hopes to see is great record of last season in the matter of earnings excelled.

From what the writer can learn the star 2-year-old of the season will probably be found in the string of James R. Keene. His colors have been worn by two of merit already, and the reserve division includes not only grand lookers, but several that have proved that they can work and run fast. The best of this bunch will not, of course, be seen until the Westchester meeting, but take the tip now—when they do get to the post, pin your faith to them no matter what the opposition may be.

Thus far the showing of the horses that raced with success at Bennings has been far below what had been looked for, and there is little chance for any better marks from them. To get down to the vernacular, they are now 'up against another sort of game," that will distance all but a few One of these exceptions will be Lallte, the filly that won a pot of money for her owner, John E. Madden, with her one victory at Washington.

The writer is willing to go on record that this miss will prove one of the best of the 2-year-old fillies of the year and when she next appears at the post, which will be at Morris Park, it will be well to remember that she is worth serious consideration, no matter what the company may be. Madden has some others in his string that are promising; in fact, he states that the lot he is making ready is the best that he has had in years.

There is a lot of dissatisfaction over the starting problem. This applies to the work of both Cassidy and Fitzgerald. The trouble is that they are not working on the same lines, and the horses and riders seem all astray. In one race it is a case of standing start, then comes the walk-up style from all sorts of distances back of the barrier. With all justice to the gentlemen mentioned, it may be stated that the send-offs have not been satisfactory, and the betters are clamoring for some decided style so that the riders will have a chance to know what is expected of them. As it is, they are seriously handicapped and cannot be expected to do themselves full justice.

"Virginia" Bradley has given up all hope of winning the big handicaps here with Peter Paul, and will ship the colt with the rest of his string to Chicago to be on hand for the opening of the meeting at Worth. It looks as if there is some very useful material in his lot, but careful judges believe that the loss of the services of Trainer Rector will prove a big setback to the stable.

Bradley is an old horseman, and has in his time handled some first-class material, but all will admit that he has a way of rushing things that is not always wise. Rector was a great aid, and to him must be given much of the credit for the earnings of the stable last summer.

"Father Bill" Daly is another of the "heroic" trainers. He, too, has a way of rushing his charges, and this week we have had a good example of what harm this plan can bring. One of his string of 2-year-olds, Amber Jack, was generally believed to be one of the pick of the season's youngsters. A month ago he could outwork any horse in the vicinity, but now he has come to the races he fails to make good. The trouble is that he was running his races in his work. An offer of $15,000 was refused for him before he was seen with the colors up, but the chances are that if sold now he would not bring half that sum.

John J. Ryan is here, and he seems greatly disappointed that the Western Jockey club at its last meeting did not reinstate him. Various reasons have been given as the cause for the refusal of the sanction that he seeks, but one of which seems to carry weight in these parts, and that one is that he must make good to the horsemen for the purses of the last meeting held at Newport.

Ryan claims that if this is so there is a misunderstanding. To quot him: "I had nothing whatever to do with that last meeting. It was run by Frank Fowler and others without my aid in any way. While I had the track I paid every dollar that was due, and a lot over. It would be wrong to ask me to assume the obligations of a meeting in which I did not have an iota of interest."

Ryan was betting very heavily at Bennings, but his investments here have been with one or two exceptions moderate. He realizes the task it is to pick the winner, and is content to wait until there is a chance to get a line to the form on which he can rely.

SURPRISE GIVEN

The sporting world was very much surprised when the announcement was published that both Champion Jim Jeffries and his astute manager and trainer, Billy Delaney, had made up their minds to quit the fighting game inside of the next year.

Never in the history of the boxing game has a man of Jeffrie's standing quit the game simply because he wanted to. At the present time Jeff seems to have all his old-time strength and vigor and is apparently the same wonderful man he was when he won the championship from Bob Fitzsimmons at Coney Island. In each fight he has shown improvement and as far as known has never as much as been dazed in the ring. He is without doubt the greatest pugilist the world has ever known, and the story that he will soon quit the game of give-and-take for a more dignified and peaceful calling is indeed a big surprise to his thousands of friends. We shall see what Jeff does in his coming fight with Munroe. Perhaps he believes that he has reached the end of his string and wants to retire with the championship still in his possession. From a sentimental standpoint this is a very good way to look at the situation, but if Jeff is really as good as he has always shown himself to be there can be no fault but what he could retain the championship for many years to come.

Delaney has been in the boxing game for over twenty years, and in all that time he has never been connected with any shady transactions of any kind. He will retire with a record that he may well feel proud of.

Although he trained such men as Buffalo Costello, "Denver Ed" Smith in his first trip to the coast and seconded Jack Dempsey in his early fights at 'Frisco, it was not until he took hold of Jim Corbett that his fame as a trainer became world-wide.

It was Delaney who seconded Jim Corbett in his famous fight with Joe Choynski on the barge near Frisco, which Corbett won on a knockout in twenty-seven rounds. After this fight Corbett went East on an exhibition tour and met Dominick McCaffery, Jake Kilrain and Mike Donovan. Delaney, however, did not go with him but remained on the coast looking after his Galenda Hotel bar in Oakland, which he owned. When Corbett came back to 'Frisco from the East he did not engage in any important contests until he met Peter Jackson at the California Athletic club. This battle went sixty-one rounds and was declared "no contest" by Hiram Cook, the referee. Delaney prepared Corbett for the battle. Corbett's next great fight was the one with John L. Sullivan at New Orleans in which Corbett won the championship after twenty rounds of milling. Delaney trained and seconded Corbett against Sullivan.

After this contest Corbett started out on his tour in a show called "Gentleman Jack." He was on the road about three years, all of which time Delaney was with him. Bill made quite a hit on the stage. He appeared in the ringside scene enacted by Sullivan and Corbett in the Olympic club at New Orleans. During this time, however, Corbett quit the road for a short period to go in training for his fight with Charley Mitchell, which took place at Jacksonville, Fla., in 1891. Delaney trained and seconded him in this fight also. The next big fight Corbett had was with Bob Fitzsimmons at Carson City. This took place in 1897. Delaney prepared Jim to meet Fitz, and after that fight they parted company. Delaney had hired a young fellow named Jim Jeffries to act as Corbett's sparring partner while in training at Carson. Jeffries was a young and husky youth, and Delaney became impressed with the way he handled himself. He knew what a great fighter Corbett was, and was surprised with the able manner Jeffries stood off Corbett. Then he turned his attention to the man who had been Corbett's sparring partner. Corbett in the meantime had gone East to join his old cronies.

The first man Delaney matched Jeffries with was Theodore Van Buskirk at San Francisco. Jeff knocked him out in the second round. Dick Baker was Jeff's next victim. Jeff put him away in nine rounds. Then came Jeffries's fight with Gus Ruhlin. This was really the first good man Jeff had met up to that time. The bout went twenty rounds to a draw. He then met Joe Choynski, whom he boxed twenty rounds to a draw.

Delaney in this case took Jeff down to Los Angeles, Jeff's home town, where he beat Joe Goddard in four rounds. Following this Jeff beat Peter Jackson, Pete Everett and Tom Sharkey. In August of the same year Delaney took Jeffries east for the first time. He matched him against Steve O'Donnell and Bob Armstrong, but Jeff injured his hand on Armstrong and could not take on O'Donnell. Delaney was discouraged with his protege's showing and took him back to 'Frisco. He, however came east again with him in 1899 and matched him with Bob Fitzsimmons. On account of the poor showing he made against the negro, Armstrong, Fitz was made a big favorite over the man from California. Jeffries's friends were confident that he would make good, and Delaney worked hard to get him in condition. He entered the ring in great shape, due to the careful preparation given him by Delaney. Jeffries knocked Fitz out in the eleventh round, much to the surprise of the wise ones, judging by Jeff's previous showing. thought that he did not have a look in with "Lanky Bob." It was in this battle that Jeffries won the title of heavyweight champion. Since that time he has come out victorious in every fight in creditable fashion, and to the untiring efforts of Trainer Delaney is due most of the success of the champion.

A SUMMER SHOOT

Gun Club Expects July Event to Be Great One.

Work of Duluth Men Indicate That They Will Do Well.

The members of the Duluth Gun club are planning to hold an international tournament here on July 20 and 21.

The most prominent marksmen in the country will be invited to be present and shoot for valuable prizes which will be put up by the club. Some of the local members are showing excellent form this year, breaking 47, 48 and 49 birds out of a possible 50 in the regular weekly shoots. They will give any visiting marksmen who enter the contest a hard run.

The old reliables like Storey, Fulton, Nelson, Warren, Farrington and Barry are showing better form than ever, while a new man has entered the field in the person of E. D. Parmelee, of Virginia, the well known mining man. Parmelee had the advantage of shooting up in the Panton & White trophy last week, under very favorable weather conditions and he scored two 47's and a 49, placing him well up in the list. He is an excellent marksman, and will prove to be one of the best shots in the club.

The members are all looking forward to the tournament and are putting in a lot of practice to get into good form by the time the date arrives.

Several other tournaments will also be held in the Northwest during the coming summer, which will be attended by the Duluth marksmen. Winona holds a tournament on July 4 and 6; St. Paul on July 12 and 14; and Grand Forks on July 27 and 28.

The Proctorknott Gun club is also arranging for one to follow immediately after the Duluth tournament, and most of the marksmen who are in the city at the time will attend. Virginia will also hold an open shoot some time between July 24 and August 1.

Most of the events in the local tournament will be sweepstakes, with special prizes donated by the club for best averages.

The regular shoot for the class medals will be held tomorrow. Several of the members have missed one or two shoots in this contest, and the management will endeavor to have all who have fallen behind, shoot up. There are also two or three members who will shoot up in the Panton & White trophy contest.

This shoot is the third in the series of ten for the class medals.

THE LABOR WORLD

The Deadlock Between the Lake Carriers and the Captains.

Few Disagreements In Duluth Between Employers and Employes.

Duluth labor unions will meet the coming week as follows:

Lumber pilers, Sunday evening, at Victor's hall, West Duluth.

Typographical, Sunday afternoon, at Kalamazoo block.

Stone masons, Monday evening, at Axel block.

Tug firemen and linemen, Monday evening, at the Hunter block.

Painters, decorators and paper hangers, Tuesday evening, at Kalamazoo block.

Carpenters, Tuesday evening, at Kalamazoo block.

Musicians, Tuesday evening, at Armory hall.

Leather workers, Wednesday evening, at Kalamazoo block.

Cigarmakers, Wednesday evening, at Kalamazoo block.

Electrical workers, Thursday evening, at 221 West Superior street.

Marine Engineers' Beneficial association, Friday evening, at Hunter block.

* * *

The complete deadlock existing between the Lake Carriers' association, the organization of lake vessel owners, and the Masters' and Pilots' association, the organization of captains and mates, and the fact that there appears to be no likelihood of an early settlement, is of vital interest to several hundred laboringmen in Duluth who are dependent upon the running of the lake boats during the season of navigation for employment.

If the difficulty between the association and masters and pilots is as serious as it at present appears, and the lake boats are tied up as a result of the disagreement, it will mean that hundreds of men depending upon work at the coal, iron and ore docks, the flour sheds, etc., together with members of the Longshoremen's union and similar classes of labor, will lay idle until the difference is adjusted, for there will be no employment for them until the lake boats are put in operation. Besides this class of land labor, there are scores of men now in Duluth depending upon work on the boats this season who will be disappointed in their expectations and forced to seek employment elsewhere unless an agreement between th warring factions is reached.

If war is once declared it is claimed the fight will be to a finish. Some of the large vessel owners are extending their winter insurance, which is taken to mean that they are going to hold their boats in port. It has been stated that a number of managers of the largest lines are ready to put up a bond and enter into an agreement not to turn a wheel this season, rather than grant the demands of the masters and pilots.

May 1 is the time when most of the yearly agreements between union men and their employers expire, and when agreements for the new year are signed. It therefore often happens that disagreements between the men and their employers over the wage scale and other matters occur at this season.

A few slight troubles of this nature are now apparent in Duluth, but no serious results are anticipated. The tinners and cooks and waiters are not having very smooth sailing in trying to arrange an agreement for the ensuing year that will be satisfactory to all concerned, but it is thought that in both cases some adjustment will be arrived at in time to avert a strike. The tinners ask for practically the same agreement as last year, but ask a few more concessions in regard to helpers and apprentices. The masters balk at granting these. The present wage, a $3 minimum for an 8-hour day, is entirely satisfactory.

A report comes from Superior that the cigarmakers on that side of the bay are interested in a proposition to be submitted to the International Cigarmakers' union of America to make longer smokes for a nickel. It is said the proposition would mean better pay and better working conditions.

Henry Pereault, of the local Cigarmakers' union and president of the Duluth Federated Trades' assembly, when seen by The Herald yesterday, said that neither he nor his brother workmen had heard of any such proposition, and expressed surprise that the Superior union should consider such a move without notifying the Duluth union, for an agreement exists whereby such propositions are supposed to be considered at the same time by both the Superior and Duluth unions.

It is said the proposition includes a demand to be made for a uniform gauge, to be used in regulating the thickness of cigars. On mold work the pay is to be $9 a thousand, as against $8, previously paid.

* * *

John T. Lawrence, representing the United Garment Workers of America, who has been in Duluth for the past week, left for Minneapolis yesterday. The purpose of his visit to the Zenith City was to discourage the purchase by union men of so-called unfair clothing, manufactured at Rochester, N. Y., the great clothing center of the country, where several garment makers are on a strike. They ask for an eight-hour day.

* * *

The local branch of the National Association of Stationary Engineers has removed its place of meeting to room No. 60, Lyceum building. The first regular meeting in the new quarters will be held tonight.

* * *

August Murphy, of The Herald staff, was this week elected secretary of the Typographical union, local No. 136, to take the place of Former Secretary C. E. Brown, who, because of Mrs. Brown's ill health, is about to remove to California. Mr. Brown has been secretary of the union for some time past and is popular and well liked among the members. They are sorry to see him leave the city.

* * *

W. E. McEwen, of Duluth, secretary of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor, attended a meeting of the Federation council at Stillwater last Sunday afternon and made his quarterly financial report. Much routine business was transacted and the work of organization was discussed at length. Preparations were made for the coming convention of the federation, to be held at New Ulm, June 13, 14 and 15. A mass meeting was held at Stillwater Saturday evening for the purpose of discussing the issues in the campaign of union labor. Mr. McEwen addressed the meeting and was well received.

* * *

It appears that the Superior Trades' and Labor assembly is as averse to mixing in politics as the local assembly. Organizer Hall, of the National Federation of Labor and deputy organizer of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor, who has been in Superior several days, is meeting with vigorous opposition in his efforts to organize a Hearst Democratic club in that city. The opposition comes chiefly from the local labor organizations, the members of which declare that Mr. Hall is overstepping the duties of his office when he introduces politics.

McKINLEY

McKinley, April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. H. S. Dane, of Biwabik, visited with friends here this week.

There is still about eight inches of snow in the woods, but where it is open and the sun can get at it, the snow is gone and the ground quite dry. The rivers are comparatively low, and the slow melting of snow ocasioned by the warm days and freezing nights has caused its disappearance without any danger of high water or floods. The ice still remains in the lakes, but is honeycombed badly. The rivers are all open, but unless some good rains are had it is likely there will be a shortage of water for driving purposes.

The Pioneer Iron company have built a large steel shaft 125 feet in height at the southwest corner of their property near Chandler shaft No. 2, and will hoist most of their ore there hereafter, owing to the ground at the north side of their property sinking where the ore has been taken from under, causing the settling and spoiling of their stockpile grounds on that part of the property.

WALKER

Walker, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nikolai Hill was put on trial Wednesday afternoon in the district court on the charge of murdering Richard Sanger by cutting him with an ax. The crime was committed in one of the Northland lumber company's camps, about twenty miles from Walker, on Sunday, March 27.

The jury in the Chounard murder case came into court Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock and returned a verdict of murder in the first degree, as charged in the indictment. The defendant listened to the reading of the verdict with the same emotionless face he had maintained throughout the trial and it was, as it had been throughout the trial, impossible to gauge his feelings by any expression of his features. During the taking of testimony he gazed at witnesses or jury without, however, seeming to take any particular interest in what was going on, and while counsel were addressing the jury and summing up the case he had his arm on the table and his hand shading his face. Only once did he manifest emotion and that was when in the address of his counsel reference was made to the death of his mother and he was about 10 years old. The defendant's little child, a pretty little girl about 3 years old, and his sister were in court and sat beside him while the final addresses were being made. They left for Brainerd on Thursday.

Schools closed Friday for the summer vacation of four months. In the primary room the children prepared a program of recitations, etc., which was presented yesterday afternoon.

It is an interesting coincidence that four lawyers who graduated together in 1897 from the law school in the state university, are engaged in cases before the district court now in session here. They are County Attorney Denfeld, of Walker; are County Attorney Denfeld, of Walker; A. T. Larson, of Brainerd; E. A. Kling, of Little Falls, and A. B. Church, of Staples. Mr. DeLury has been engaged in the prosecution of two murder cases, in one of which Mr. Larson appeared for the defense and in the other Mr. Kling for the defense.

The county commissioners of Cass county are in session here this week and have considerable business to transact. The various township assessors are also in town receiving their supplies and instructions.

Mrs. Hall is 35 years of age and Mr. Hall is 45. They were married at Elmdale, Morrison county, Feb. 8, 1884, and there are four children whose ages range from 19 to 12 years. The plaintiff alleged that she was deserted by her husband April 6, 1902, and it is upon that ground that the divorce is granted, the custody of the children being given to Mrs. Hall.

A. H. Clark, postmaster at Ellis, was in Walker this week on jury duty. Mr. Clark is related by marriage to Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Palmer.

A. H. Connor, of Bungo, has been in Walker the past week on jury duty and left for home Thursday morning. Mr. Connor keeps well in touch with public affairs and declares there is very little Collins sentiment to be found in the southern part of Cass county.

W. H. Jones, school director, was in Walker this week and left for home on Thursday. He says that during the summer vacation the school building here will have a thorough overhauling and will be put in first-class condition before the fall term opens. The board is thinking of replacing the plaster ceilings of the lower rooms with tin or galvanized iron, as it seems impossible to prevent the plaster from cracking and falling. If it can see it way clear to doing so, the board will put a heating plant in the basement, so that an even temperature can be maintained and all the rooms be comfortably warm during the winter months. It is the intention of the board to retain the present staff of teachers.

Franklin Benner and S. R. Child vs. H. J. West et al, struck from calendar.

Ten delinquent real estate tax cases, the state against various defendants, pending for some time, were again continued. The lands upon which the taxes are sought to be collected are situated in the eastern part of the county in an unsettled area and defendants claim the assessment is too high. Efforts are being made to effect a settlement of the cases without going to trial.

Aunt Bella and Uncle Billy had invited the three little Leas to a May Day party at their house. Rosemary was to be the queen and Polly and Betty were to be her ladies-in-waiting.

"Here is the royal chariot," said Uncle Billy, as he leaped from his big automobile. "Now, if Her Majesty and the honorable ladies will step into the royal chariot they will be transported to the enchanted palace, where the court is assembling."

The next minute the automobile was whizzing along the road, and the three little Leas were holding on to the seat with one hand and to their hats with the other.

"I'se afraid I'll lose my hat," said Rosemary.

"Never mind if you do," replied Uncle Billy, "you will have a crown, and that's all a queen needs."

On the lawn at the enchanted palace there was a most beautiful sight. From trees and bushes hung gay Japanese lanterns and bright-colored balloons and gold cages containing singing birds. The fountain tinkled silvery music, and there was a striped tent, in which were stored food and drink. Boys and girls in fancy costumes were laughing and playing.

"The mistress of the robes has your court dresses in the palace, I think," said Uncle Billy, as he handed them out of the automobile to a maid, who led them into the house.

"This way," called out Aunt Bella, beckoning them into a room all rosy and white. On the bed lay three lovely dresses. "This one is for Your Majesty," said Aunt Bella, taking up a fluffy frock all spangled in gold, and, with the help of the maid, she soon had Rosemary's own frock off and the white and gold one on.

"I don't fink I can walk, hardly," said Rosemary; for the white and gold ruffles touched the ground and a white and gold court train spread out behind her farther than her own height.

"Oh, yes you can; it is light." Aunt Bella reassured her; "and, besides, you are to have two pages to carry your train."

"Now, girlies, it's your turn," she said, turning to Polly and Betty and helping them into the white gowns with the silver spangles. They also had court trains and looked very stately and handsome, especially when they had their hair done up high on their heads, with shining ornaments on them. Rosemary's hair was done up high, too, but she wore no ornament in it, for she was to have a crown.

"Now then," Aunt Bella called to Uncle Billy, "I think the court is ready to assemble."

"Very well; I'll command the royal musicians to start," replied uncle Billy, and forthwith the strains of "God Save the Queen" floated out over the lawn.

At the foot of the steps from the front door Rosemary and her ladies-in-waiting were met by the ladies and gentlemen of the court. Two of the gentlemen held a silken canopy over the Queen and two carried her train. The ladies-in-waiting and the other ladies and gentlemen of the court fell into line, and they marched across the lawn to where a throne was waiting for the Queen. With much dignity Rosemary mounted the throne and seated herself thereon. Then a prince took from a gentleman of the court a gold crown, which he, kneeling, presented on a cushion and placed it on Rosemary's head, saying: "I crown thee Queen of the May," and all the ladies and gentlemen applauded, saying: "Hurrah for Queen Rosemary!"

"Will Your Majesty be pleased to see a Maypole dance?" asked a gentleman of the court.

"Yes," said Rosemary, with royal brevity.

The royal musicians played such a lively dancing tune that even the Queen upon her throne could not keep her feet still, and the ladies and gentlemen of the court seized the ribbons that dangled from the pole and began to circle gleefully about it.

"Now, you must bestow your favors," Uncle Billy told Rosemary as a servant brought in a large basket heaped up with gifts, each wrapped in white tissue paper and tied with pink and green ribbons. All the ladies and gentlemen of the court filed before the Queen and bent the knee, whereupon she smiled graciously upon them and dispensed her royal bounty.

"And these are for the Queen and the ladies-in-waiting," said Uncle Billy as another servant brought in three larger presents, wrapped in white paper, one tied with gold cord and two with silver cord.

"The gifts are not to be opened until after the banquet, which is now served," announced Aunt Bella, and the Queen and her court with greater haste than comperts with royalty generally repaired to the tent where the royal banquet was spread. The Queen sat at the head of the table and Uncle Billy at the foot, and it was the most beautiful table you ever saw, all covered with flowers, with quivering jellies in cut-glass dishes and heaps of dainty sandwiches and pyramids of cake coming right out of the flowers. The ice-cream was brought on in the form of a bouquet, and each guest had an ice-cream flower from it.

"I think it is time to toast the Queen," said Uncle Billy when everyone's glass had been filled with lemonade, with a strawberry in it. He stood up and held his glass out towards Rosemary, and everyone followed his example.

"May Your Gracious Majesty enjoy a thousand May Day parties," said Uncle Billy, "and may you always have as loving and as charming subjects as surround you today. Long life, honors and prosperity to Queen Rosemary!" and he and all the ladies and gentlemen of the court drank their lemonade and ate the red strawberries from the bottom of the glasses.

"Thank you," replied Rosemary, politely, "and I hope you will all sleep well and wake up cheerful in the morning," she added.

After the banquet men and maids came for the gentlemen and ladies of the court, and they were escorted off in chariots of one kind or another, and Rosemary, Polly and Betty took off their court dresses and put on their own, and Uncle Billy put them into the chariot to take them home.

"It was the bestest May Day party there ever was," protested Rosemary as she kissed Aunt Bella good-by.

"I wish we lived in a royal court all the time," said Polly.

"And wore such lovely gowns!" sighed Betty.

"Maybe you will some day," replied Aunt Bella, and then Uncle Billy started the automobile, and the fields and trees and houses began to whiz by at an astounding rate.

Suddenly at a bend in the road they came upon three automobiles racing and coming toward them at a fearful rate.

"Hold on, chicks!" shouted Uncle Billy as he pulled the automobile sharply to the right in the attempt to avoid a collision with one of the racers. Something clicked, snapped, and with a great whirring over went chariot and children and Uncle Billy.

"It's mighty lucky I happened to be coming along at this minute," said a familiar voice as the children scrambled to their feet. "I've been out on a May Day spree," explained Mr. Timbobby, "and just happened to be coming home this way. I think you'd better finish your journey by the rainbow route; it's safer. I believe I have a rainbow with me. Yes; here it is. Now, take a firm hold of that end, and we will be home in the twinkling of a raindrop."

Polly and Betty and Rosemary took hold of the end of a beauteous rainbow and felt themselves gently lifted from the ground as the rainbow extended into the sky and then came down again at the Leas' gate, and the three little Leas slid off and ran in the house.

A few minutes later Uncle Billy came limping up to the house.

"How did you tots get home so quicly?" he asked. "My, but I am glad you're safe. I got my leg pinned under the machine and couldn't get out until one of those racing chaps came back to rescue me. I looked around for you and you were gone. It was so near that I suppose you just ran home. Not hurt a bit?

"Yes; I've got bruises," said Polly.

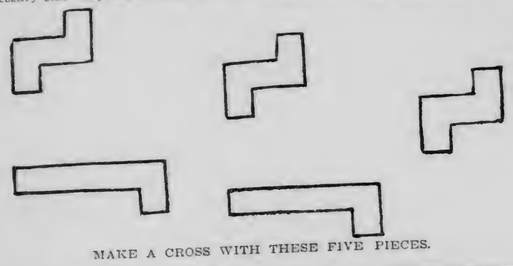

"And I'se sewatched here and here," said Rosemary.

"I'm awfully sorry; but I'm precious glad it was no worse. What's that about a rainbow? You came home on one? Mrs. Lea, that child must have fallen on her head. You'd better send for the doctor."

"We did wide on the wainbow," persisted Rosemary, as they were taken by Norah to the nursery.

The Cross Puzzle.

At the time of the Spanish-American War, when any of our soldiers were killed, crosses were placed over their graves to mark the spot. Wood of the necessary size was, however, hard to get, and the boys, picking up whatever they could find, cut them in the shapes of the accompanying illustration. These were then put together and formed crosses. It taking two large and three small pieces for each cross. How was it done?

Profits in Squab Raising.

Boys may add to their pocket money by devoting their spare time to squab raising, and they will find it a very interesting pursuit. It requires little capital to start with, and the work is not hard, although it requires careful attention and intelligent management.

In the city markets there is a constant demand for squabs. Mr. W. E. Rice, who has a half-acre lot back of his house in New Jersey, not far from New York city, started five years ago with 25 pairs of homing pigeons in an abandoned poultry-house, and now has 1,500 pigeons in five improved houses and has sold several thousand dollars worth of squabs.

His first birds averaged seven and one-half pairs of squabs a year. It is very necessary to start with good, healthy birds, as your success will depend largely upon that. Additional birds should be bought from good breeders, taking care to get good stock not akin from various sources.

New birds should be put in a clean coop by themselves, given plenty of food and water, also nesting material.

When the nest building is well under way Mr. Rice transfers each pair of mates to permanent breeding quarters. He never runs after the birds when he wishes to catch them, but uses a net, somewhat like a crab net, only that it is but three feet across the bows and has a handle about a yard long. When the bird he wishes to catch flies past him Mr. Rice makes a quick pass in the direction in which the bird is flying, and with a sudden twist of the wrist brings the bag of the net against the bows so that the pigeon cannot get out.

All of his birds are "banded" and a record kept of the age, sex and marking of the bird.

For Mr. Rice's 1,500 birds the feed costs a little more than $18 a month. He feeds cracked corn, wheat, peas, Kaffir corn, millet, hemp and sometimes cracked rice.

It requires only four weeks to rear squabs for table use, and that is one of the reasons that there is so much profit in the business.

Any boy that lives in the country or in a town or village where he has a yard can raise enough squabs to make a very tidy little sum for himself.

The Experience of Rufus Wemple.

BY LEONARD DALLAS.

Rufus Wemple was very tired of his job. He was 16, and he had gone to work when he was 14. He was a good boy in the main, and as good boys are not very plentiful, he had got on well and had been promoted twice and was earning $10 a week, which was not bad for a boy of 16 years.

Rufus regarded himself as indispensable, and that was a mistake, for no one is that. If you drop out there is just as good a boy as you ever dreamed of being to take your place. You may not believe it, but it is true.

"It is mighty hard for such a brilliant boy as I am to be shut up in a hole like this, and to have to obey a young man who isn't more than two or three years older than I am and not a whit more capable." Thus Rufus brooded over his position and got so sullen and so unreliable that he had several sharp raps from his superiors.

"I won't stand that," he said, and promptly resigned. With equal promptness his resignation was accepted and Rufus found himself a free youth, with all the world to choose from. He would not hurry himself, he thought, in deciding upon where he would bestow his valuable services. Of one thing he was sure, he would not work for less than $10 a week, and he thought he would ask more. He had a notion of becoming an author, and again the fancy to travel seized him.

He sat down to write, but words would not come so easily as he had thought they would. As for traveling, well, his money was dwindling and he did not feel quite courageous enough to start out with empty pockets.

When he had been a week out of work a tremor suddenly came upon him. What if he could not get another place? He at once wrote to the man who had first helped him.

"You ought not to have given up your position until you had secured another one," the man wrote back. "I am very busy. I will help you if I can, but you will have to depend largely upon your own efforts. I believe that after boys are once started in life they should look out for themselves."

Rufus started to do it. He went a weary round, but he got nothing better than a vague promise here and there that if anything turned up he would be notified.

In most places he was met with curt refusals. He began to think that his old job was not so bad, after all. He remembered how they had let him go home when his head ached, and that he had been promoted without asking for it.

After three weeks of vain tramping and seeking for work he humbled himself and wrote to his old employer.

Mr. Bond had gone abroad, wrote the chief clerk, and Rufus groaned his disappointment. So complete was his humiliation that he was glad a fortnight later to take a place as an office boy at $3 a week. His medicine was bitter, but it was good for him. Hard as the place was, he made no complaints and his employer grudgingly admitted that he wasn't as bad as most boys, but he did not back up letter lest he should prove his words true.

His fingers trembled as he cut the envelope and unfolded the paper inside.

"Dear Rufus," it began, "If you have time, call to see me after office hours this evening. Yours truly, William Bond."

That was the longest day Rufus ever had known and all the time he kept telling himself to expect nothing.

"You like your present work?" Mr. Bond asked him when he presented himself at his office.

"I have no complaint to make."

"You wouldn't care to make a change?"

"Mr. Bond, if you would give me a chance you would find that I am a different boy. I have learned a great deal since I left you. I was very wrong."

"Well, well, there's nothing like learning that you have been wrong and mending by it.."

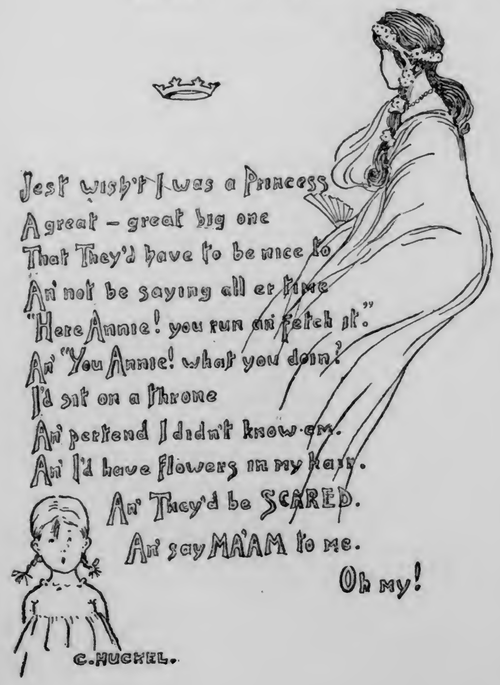

"I suppose you wouldn't like to begin again with me at $4 a week?"

"I should be only too glad of the opportunity."

"All right. Give your present employer a week's notice and then report to me."

Rufus went back to his old $10-a-week job for $4 a week, and there never was a happier boy in all the city. That was three years ago. He is getting $16 a week now, but he does not think he knows nearly so much as he did when he was getting $10 and fancied he had learned all that was worth knowing.
